DROPPED DEAD

Contractor Marr Passes Away At New Atlantic Schoolhouse

Charles F. Marr, aged about 65 years, of Beach street, Wollaston, contractor of the new school building at Atlantic, died suddenly this morning at that building. Mr. Marr arrived at the building shortly before 8 o'clock.

He had been at the building but a short time when he complained of feeling ill. Workmen removed him to the office building and Dr. Peirce was summoned. Before he arrived, however, Mr. Marr had passed away.

Mr. Marr was well known in Wollaston where he has resided for a number of years. He was formerly connected with the Squantum Yacht club as its treasurer. When the Wollaston Yacht club was formed he left the Squantum club and joined the latter organization, and was its first treasurer. He leaves a widow and two children.

Mayor Thompson was immediately notified of Mr. Marr's death, and Commissioner Burke went to the building and assumed charge.

Commissioner Burke, when seen this noon, said that while the death of Mr. Marr came as a shock, that it would in no way interrupt the work on the Atlantic school building. Mr. Marr's brother, who is a member of the firm, had been at the building during its construction up to the present stage and would continue in charge of the work.

Mr. Marr had not complained at al of being ill. On the contrary he had apparently been in the best of health. He was at City Hall no later than last night, and was as jovial as usual when speaking of the progress of the work on the new school building.

W. A. Murphy Held For Grand Jury On the Charge Of Polygamy

Two attractive young women confronted William Albert Murphy in the district court this morning when the case against him charging him with polygamy was called. Both claimed to have been married to him. One was Annie Lee, daughter of Samuel E. and Martha P. Beairsto of Prince Edwards Island, who claimed that she was married to him at Portland, Me., April 22, 1903, by Rev. Rollin T. Hack, and the other was Annie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold D. Hodge of Brockton, who claimed to have been married to him June 21, 1905, by Rev. Albert E. Kirk.

Both exhibited marriage certificates in support of their claim that they were legally married. The Portland woman was the first witness. She testified that they were married April 22, 1903, and that they lived together at Portland until Aug. 1, that same year, when he suddenly took his de-

The Making of a Successful Husband

By CASPAR S. YOST.

It Is Contrary to Popular Tradition and the Newspaper Humorist, but It Is a Fact That a Man's Mother-in-law Is What He Makes Her.

[Copyright, 1905, by C. S. Yost.]

MY DEAR JOHN—Marriage always means a great deal more than merely trotting a girl up to a preacher. Most of the present day youngsters seem to think that's all there is to it and never try to see beyond. They don't realize that marriage is the passing into a new life, or, rather, the graduation into real life, where the surroundings and conditions are different and the responsibilities much heavier than before. That's why there are so many disappointments. It's just like putting a green man into a football team at the beginning of a match. He doesn't know the game, isn't prepared for the contest and is carried out in the first half. Marriage is the greatest game on earth, and there ought to be such things as matrimonial coaches to teach those who would play it not only how to line up, but how to reach the goal. Such a coach would need to have many and diverse lessons for his pupils, and one of the most important in the course would deal with the treatment of one's wife's relations.

That, I judge from the lugubrious tone of your last letter, is the problem you're "rasslin'" with now, and it's a problem that better men than you and I have tackled from the days of Cain and Abel down. It's knocked out a good many of the best of them too.

A matrimonial coach to teach the treatment of one's wife's relations.

Some of these dusty diggers after family secrets of the past are said to have found mother-in-law jokes in cuneiform inscriptions. That may not be true, but nobody can deny the fact that there were mothers-in-law in the days when men wrote their letters with a pointed stick on a gob of mud, and they were doubtless as prominent in domestic affairs then as now. Yes, I know it's the present that's bothering you now, but I just wanted to show you that you haven't butted into an entirely new proposition, as you seem to think. Why, even your mother had some relatives when I married her, and a good many of them have the temerity to be alive yet. I am rather glad of it, too, because I have become as much attached to them as to my own blood kin, and there are one or two in particular that I'd feel mighty lonesome without. There's your Grandmother Larson, for instance. Why, my dear boy, I don't know how many times that blessed woman has pulled me back from the pearly gates by her nursing, and I have a mighty distinct recollection that she helped you over the rough places more than once.

Don't Be Ungrateful.

And don't you remember what delightful doughnuts and cookies she used to make for you when you visited her and how she used to take you up on a cold winter night and, after you had said your prayers, bury you deep in a great feather bed, tuck the covers close around you and then sit by you and sing old fashioned songs until you wandered off into slumberland? And don't you remember—but, pshaw, I could keep on reminding you all night and not exhaust the list of her good deeds to you and me! Oh, you say, but that's my grandmother! Sure! And you don't want to forget that she's my mother-in-law. You think a whole lot of your Aunt Fanny, too, don't you? I heard you say not long ago that she was a "peach." I don't know that I would express it just that way, but my opinion is the same as yours. And there's your Uncle Bill. Did either of us ever have a better friend? Yes, it's true that both of them are your blood relations, but they are not mine. They are just my wife's people, and I want to get that pushed clear through your thinker and clinched on the other side. These kinfolk you love so well bear the same relation to me that the people you are grumbling about do to you, and I don't believe my relations-in-law will average up any better than yours.

You feel aggrieved because your wife's father and mother and brothers and sisters are inclined to make themselves at home in your house. You say you didn't marry the whole derned family and want them to stay in their own yard. Before I say anything more I want you to descend from your elevated steed, so I can carry on a conversation with you without a megaphone. You are right at the point where you are about to make some very bitter enemies or some mighty stanch friends, and true friends are rare enough in this world to make it worth while to go a little way to get them. It is true that you didn't marry the whole family, but by your marriage you assumed a good many responsibilities and secured some incumbrances and a few perquisites that the preacher neglected to mention. Your wife's people may be incumbrances, and they may be perquisites, but whether they are one or the other depends to a mighty considerable extent on your attitude toward them.

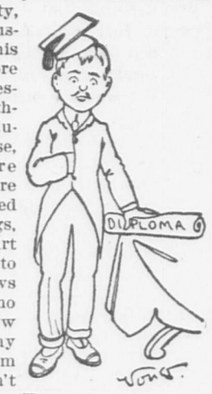

She's Been Maligned.

From time immemorial it has been the custom of humorists out of material for copy to fall back on the mother-in-law. She has been held up to ridicule as the common enemy of married men the world over. There isn't any more real basis for these jokes than there is for the ancient one about the baldheaded men in the front row. I have always been a pretty regular attendant at the theater, and I have yet to see a greater proportion of baldheaded men in front than of those more fortunate in the matter of hair. I believe in giving even the devil his due, and I am satisfied the debt the world owes its mothers-in-law is so great that not even the interest on it could ever be paid. It is true that the mother-in-law has caused many a domestic upheaval, but the meddlesome mammas are not nearly so numerous as they are supposed to be, and if we could get at the facts we would find the chuckle headed son-in-law to blame for her meddling in most cases.

Things the preacher neglected to mention.

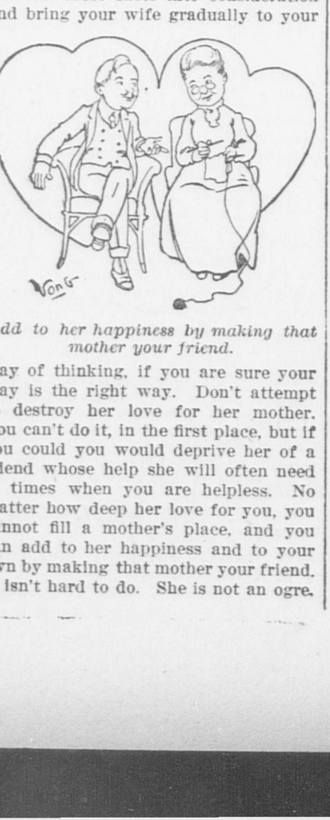

Your marriage to Anna May didn't make her an orphan. Her mother's just as much her mother as she was before and just as much interested in her welfare. She has a natural desire to see her happy, and she has her own ideas about the process. You must remember, too, that she has known her daughter somewhat longer and rather more intimately than you. She knows her disposition, her tastes and her wants much better than do you. She probably has her doubts about your ability to fill the role of the model husband, and she views your conduct at the beginning of your married life with some anxiety, not to say suspicion. All this is nothing more than the expression of the mother love, prejudiced, of course, and therefore getting a more or less distorted view of things, but it is the part of wisdom to give her views consideration, no matter how much they may differ from yours. It isn't advisable in any position in life to be too cocksure. You know, John, there's just a bare possibility that you may be wrong and she may be right as to some things, in which case you would be a fool if you did not accept her views and act upon them.

The proud possessor of a college degree.

Try to Be Logical.

There's another point that may not have occurred to you, although you are the proud possessor of a college degree. Your marriage did not alter your love for your mother. Neither in that ceremony did your wife concentrate all her affection on you. All her life her mother has been her most beloved counselor. Now, it is true she has transferred her allegiance to you, but a few words spoken at the altar cannot change in a moment the influence and training of a lifetime. Anna May is still her mother's daughter, still respects her advice and cherishes her love, and, although she may do as you wish in every particular, if your wishes are opposed to the influence that has hitherto guided her she cannot yield without a struggle within herself. Now, don't misunderstand me. I am not saying that you should let your mother-in-law run your house—not by a jugful. But you must take all these facts into consideration and bring your wife gradually to your way of thinking, if you are sure your way is the right way. Don't attempt to destroy her love for her mother. You can't do it, in the first place, but if you could you would deprive her of a friend whose help she will often need in times when you are helpless. No matter how deep her love for you, you cannot fill a mother's place, and you can add to her happiness and to your own by making that mother your friend. It isn't hard to do. She is not an ogre. Let her be once convinced that you can be depended upon to give her daughter the care and love she is entitled to, and she will become your most devoted ally. Take her into your confidence, treat her as you would your own mother, show her that you are to be trusted, and you will have made a friend you will have many occasions in after life to be thankful for. Make her your enemy, and you not only make your wife unhappy, but you lay the foundation for some mighty uncomfortable moments for yourself. Don't be a chump, my boy. Diplomacy has ever won more victories than war, and tact will accomplish what opposition cannot effect in the least.

Add to her happiness by making that mother your friend.

Give Them Their Due.

It is much the same with your wife's sisters, but the conditions are considerably modified. It is quite important to obtain and retain their good will—important, I mean, for your peace of mind and comfort as well as Anna May's—and you can't get it by force of arms. Keep in mind all the time that they are your sisters-in-law, and therefore entitled to greater consideration than most other women. Once make them your friends, it will take a cataclysm to change them. As to your father-in-law and brothers-in-law—well, they are men and comparatively easy to get along with. Just let them see that you are a real man and that you are going to give their daughter and sister a square deal, and they will stand by you until the lower regions become congealed.

So, John, it all resolves itself into the right treatment of your wife in the first place and the kindly and tactful consideration of her relations in the second. You are not required to yield any of your rights; you don't have to make a martyr of yourself; you don't need to get down on your knees to anybody. Simply be a man of sense, plain hoss sense. Keep your wagon in the middle of the road, but dodge the stumps. The driver who goes over instead of around obstacles may reach his destination, but he'll need a blacksmith when he gets there. Make tact, tact, tact, a compound with your love, and you will eventually praise the Lord that your wife has relatives. And now, my boy, right now, is the time to make them friends. Now you are on trial in a way; now they are sizing you up to see whether Anna May has drawn a prize or a blank. The judgment will be rendered soon, and your conduct toward them has much to do with that judgment. See that it is rendered in your favor and you will have provided capital for your future life that will yield interest compounded semiannually to the end.

I have treated this matter seriously, John, because it is really a mighty serious subject in spite of the jokes it has caused. Your wife's relations are of much more importance in the maintenance of your domestic happiness than your own, and you cannot do too much to secure their respect and love.

Your affectionate father,

JOHN SNEED.

His Happy Home.

His salary was £250 a year, and he had just proposed to Miss Clare Lighthead and been accepted, and they were both exquisitely happy until she said:

"And you don't know how lovely our home will be, George. It shall be a place of rest and joy and comfort! I'll ring the housekeeper up every morning and"—

"The housekeeper?"

"Yes, yes, dear. Now, don't interrupt, you naughty boy. I'll tell the housekeeper to tell the cook to"—

"The cook?"

"Of course, and I do hope we can get a French cook. And I'd like the parlor maid to"—

"The parlor maid?"

"Yes, yes. I'd like a brisk, tidy, rosy cheeked girl. I don't care so much about the housemaid."

"Why, my darling, I'm afraid"—

"Now, now, you bad old boy, you must let your little girl have her own way when it comes to the house servants. You can engage the butler if you like, and of course you'll get the coachman, but when it comes to the laundress and seamstress and—why, George, what a dreadfully long face you have! I don't like it!"

It looked longer as he sat in his 10 by 12 room an hour later trying to "figure out" how the wages of the cook and housekeeper and butler and all the rest of them were to be paid on £5 per week. He hasn't calculated it yet.—London Mail.

Games Akin to Golf.

It is probable that the little boy in the street who calls a hockey stick a golf club is only speaking the truth a few centuries too late. There are many reasons to believe that the Scotch game of golf, sometimes called bandy ball in the old accounts of it, developed into hockey with a flavor of football about it when it came south, and this is borne out by an old fifteenth century print of two bandy ball players in which the stick used, called bandy because bent, resembled a hockey stick far more than a golf club. The Gentleman's Magazine in 1795 also mentions shinty as a Scotch game similar to golf, and another writer defines shinty as "an inferior kind of golf played by young people and in London called hockey."—London Standard.

DO NOT WASTE WIND.

Just Cork It Up and Heat and Light Your House With It.

FUEL AT NOTHING PER YEAR.

Omaha Man Proposes to Harness the Boreal Blasts and the Southern Zephyrs by Windmill Process and Use the Captured Air to Generate Power.

Fuel literally as free as air—heat on winter nights to cost absolutely nothing. Is it a dream?

How to harness the north wind and make it heat houses for people instead of freezing them to death is a problem solved to his satisfaction by Dr. M. J. Gahan, formerly of Grand Island and now making his headquarters in Omaha, says the Omaha World-Herald.

Several factors enter into his plan for lighting, heating and cooking without cost. He proposes that there shall be no expense save the original cost of installing the plant. Power to do these things, whether it be for a residence or for a whole city, is generated by means of a windmill or a system of windmills.

"For twenty years," said Dr. Gahan in a recent interview, "I have been studying various expedients for solving the fuel problem. At the time of the Pennsylvania coal strike I experimented with chemicals in the treatment of coal dust so that it might be converted into anthracite coal. The problem was not difficult of solution and at the present time there are a number of factories in America and in Europe where my method is employed in the making of hard coal by a chemical process."

Unsatisfied with the cost of manufacturing fuel at $2.50 a ton, Dr. Gahan was convinced that he could furnish heat and light at no cost at all. He therefore began his experiments to see if he could not furnish fuel at nothing per year.

Speaking of the valuable fertilization going to waste from the sewers of Paris, Victor Hugo said, "Five hundred millions of francs are annually thrown into the Seine."

"If that assertion is true," said Dr. Gahan, "in the sense that Victor Hugo meant it, how much greater is our loss in Nebraska when we consider the power going to waste in the winds annually blowing over our prairies? Why not save some of that power? Why not have windmills pump air into compressers and thereby bottle up sufficient power to operate motors and dynamos?

"When this idea first came to me it seemed so simple that I was loath to set much store by it. Then I learned of Wittkeil, a town in Holland, where the power for lighting the municipality is generated from a great windmill. That plant has been in operation for some years and has proved eminently satisfactory.

"'But,' says the skeptic, 'what if there is no wind?' Now, that contingency must of course be provided for, but I will come to it later. The point first to be considered is that rarely in Nebraska is there a day when there is not enough wind to turn a windmill. I refer you to the records of the weather bureau. The average wind velocity for Nebraska during the past thirty-six years is 10.6 miles an hour.

"Let us suppose, however, that there are several days in each month when a windmill cannot work. On the days that it does work it can fill up the emergency tanks, and enough compressed air will be stored to last through the lull. The air motor will be kept at work and will drive the dynamo which does the heating and the lighting.

"I may here add that in the Union Pacific shops at Grand Island there is an air tank which operates forty hand motors. The air, however, is compressed by means of a small engine instead of a windmill, as I propose to employ in the storage of compressed air."

Under tests made by Dr. Gahan he believes that an individual plant which would afford heat and light for a ten room house can be installed for $1,200. He says that once it is installed it will cost nothing, the only expense being the general wear and tear to the machinery and lubricating oil.

"These plants," he says, "can be installed in any place where there is a prevailing hourly wind of ten miles an hour. Briefly described, the system is this:

"You first have to have a windmill, size adapted to the demand. Then connect your windmill with an air compresser and your air compresser with an air receiver, or storage tank. The air receiver will then connect with an air motor, turbine in form. This air motor will be connected with a dynamo by gear or friction drive, depending on size of dynamo and local conditions."

Noiseless Street Car Wheel.

A wheel calculated to reduce the noise of moving street cars at least 75 per cent has just been tested at Detroit, Mich. The Free Press calls this invention "one of the possible blessings to the people." The paper states that the wheel has been successfully employed in Indianapolis and Milwaukee and is more lasting than the wheels now in use. One portion of the wheel is permanently fixed to the axle, as are the present cast iron wheels. The outer shell of the wheel, to which is attached the tire, is fastened to the inner side with bolts. Between the two sides is a packing of heavy cardboard that eases the vibration, preventing crystallization and thus prolonging the life of the wheel.

TAFT MEN HOLD OHIO

Do Not Appear, However, to Be In Full Agreement

FORAKER'S SEAT IN DANGER

Senator Cannot Make a Deal With Opponents and Chance of Re-election Seems Small--Taft's Cause Is Somewhat Injured by Friends

Columbus, O., June 1.—The Taft organization is now in complete control of the political situation in Ohio, but what their policy is to be in regard to a state expression on the presidential nomination question is not yet determined.

The Taft leaders do not seem to be agreed. Many propose that a state convention of the party be called within the next three months for the sole purpose of expressing the choice of the party in Ohio for the presidential nomination and selecting the four delegates at large for the state to the national Republican convention of next year.

But the Toledo Blade, a strong opponent of Senators Foraker and Dick, insists that nothing is to be gained by such a state convention this year; that the Republicans of the other states already understand how the Republicans of Ohio feel as to Foraker and Taft and no such demonstration is necessary.

The demand for the elimination of Foraker and his retirement from politics is no longer heard from the Taft organization men, but that they will be after Foraker vigorously next year is not doubted by those who are watching the political game. Foraker no doubt understands it thoroughly and that is the reason why he is demanding some pledge of support from the Taft people this year, before he will agree to the unanimous endorsement of Taft for the presidency.

Five years ago Foraker had no difficulty in making such a deal with Hanna, and even McKinley, when a candidate for the presidential nomination the first time, was quite willing that Foraker, who was then at the head of the other faction of the party, should have the senatorship in consideration of Foraker's support for the presidency. In Taft and Burton—now leading his opponents, Foraker finds leaders who will not enter into negotiations at all.

They believe they can afford to ignore Foraker. Foraker's object now seems to be to show them that they cannot. It is easy to see therefore that it is for his political life that Foraker is now fighting. Governor Harris and all the heads of executive state departments have already joined the Taft movement. The state Republican organization, selected by Foraker and Dick at the Dayton convention last fall, has gone over in a body to the Taft movement; in fact there seems to be nothing left to either Foraker or Dick but their personal friends.

It is the general sentiment among politicians on both sides of the party line here that if the Republican state convention next year should formally nominate Foraker to succeed himself in the senate, the state would elect a Democratic legislature, so that the chances of Foraker being re-elected to the senate now seem to be very small. While Dick has not antagonized Roosevelt as Foraker has, he is quite sure to be retired when his present term expires unless he can get under some such wing as that of the late Senator Hanna in the meantime. He has four years yet to serve.

The only danger that Taft seems to be in now, so far as the Republicans of Ohio are concerned, is from President Roosevelt himself. There is being manifested now a disposition to resent the apparent attempt of the president to dictate that Taft shall be his successor. Roosevelt is still popular in Ohio, and Taft shares in that popularity. If the president keeps his hands off it will all go right in Ohio for Taft. It is also questionable whether the secretary's brother is doing him any real good by making his newspaper—the Cincinnati Times-Star—the chief organ of the Taft boom in the state.

Bodies Found In Fire Ruins

Long Branch, N. J., June 1.—The bodies of four persons were found in the ruins of the house occupied by Walter Schiffer, which was burned. They were Ruth Schiffer, aged 14, and Marion Schiffer, aged 10, daughters of Mr. Schiffer, and Tilly Monthon and Mary Dilter, servants. In attempting to rescue her children Mrs. Schiffer was so severely burned as to be in a critical condition.

Worried Himself to Suicide

New York, June 1.—M. B. Beckman, head of a company which makes a business of running automobiles on sightseeing trips about the city, was found dead in his office last night. His son thought that his father had committed suicide because a mortgage was due on the property and he worried because he could not meet it.

To Pursue Trade Inquiry

St. Johns, June 1.—Richard Griggs, a commercial specialist representing the British Board of Trade, has arrived here to ascertain why Newfoundland trade is being diverted from Great Britain to the United States. He will also visit the west coast and inquire into the herring fisheries question.

Heroine Gets Medal or Honor

Washington, June 1.—A medal of honor has been awarded to Miss Mary Guinan of Middletown, N. Y., by President Roosevelt for distinguished daring in risking her own life to save that of John C. Runyon. Runyon, who is 74 years of age and very feeble, attempted to cross the railroad tracks in front of an approaching train, while another train was coming rapidly on an adjoining track from the opposite direction. When he realized his danger he became bewildered. Miss Guinan sprang to his aid, seizing and holding him firmly between the two trains as they rushed by. As soon as the trains had passed she led the old man to the sidewalk.

Jury In All Night Fight

Boston, June 1.—Despite an all-night fight as to the guilt or innocence of Representative Lamoureux, charged with bribery, the jury had not reached a verdict up to early this morning. The jury was given the case at 3:50 yesterday afternoon. It was generally expected that it would take some time to reach a verdict, but it was soon rumored that the jury was even more seriously divided than had been expected. In the vicinity of the jury room voices were heard raised in debate, and it was evident that the case was being discussed with considerable feeling. Court had adjourned, so that only a sealed verdict could be rendered in any case.

The Pneumatic Contest

Wilmington, Del., June 1.—The meeting of the stockholders of the American Pneumatic company, a $20,000,000 corporation, adjourned late last night without having elected a temporary chairman. It is claimed by the supporters of President Dillaway of the company that the counting of the votes will show a big majority for their candidate, but this the opposition refuses to admit. Recently a movement was started with the purpose of ousting Dillaway.

Funeral Drivers May Strike

New York, June 1.—Last fall the wages of members of the Funeral Drivers' association were raised from $12 to $14 a week. Their employers now seek to renew this scale on a two-years' agreement. The drivers wish to renew the contract for one year only and voted last night to strike on Monday next unless the employers agree to this arrangement.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

M. ALBERT was not often surprised, and still less often did he show it. The party, however, who trooped cheerily into his little restaurant at something after midnight on this particular morning succeeded in placing him at a disadvantage.

First there was the Vicomte de Bergillac, one of his most important and influential patrons for many reasons and whose presence alone was more than sufficient guarantee for whomever might follow. Then there was the Marquise de St. Ethol, one of the "haute noblesse," to welcome whom was a surpassing honor.

And then M. Guy Poynton, the young English gentleman, whose single appearance here a few weeks back had started all the undercurrents of political intrigue and who for the justification of French journalism should at that moment have been slowly drying at the morgue.

And with him the beautiful young English lady who had come there in search of him and who, as she had left the place in the small hours of the morning with M. Louis, should certainly not now have reappeared as charming and as brilliant as ever, her eyes soft with happiness and her laugh making music more wonderful than the violins of his little orchestra.

And following her the broad shouldered young Englishman, Sir George Duncombe, who had once entertained a very dangerous little party in his private room upstairs and against whom the dictum had gone forth.

And following him the Englishman with the heavy glasses, whom "l'affaire Poynton" had also brought before to his cafe and with whom mademoiselle from Austria had talked long and earnestly.

And lastly M. Spencer, the English journalist, also with a black cross after his name, but seemingly altogether unconscious of it.

M. Albert was not altogether at his best. Such a mixture of sheep and goats confused him. It was the vicomte who, together with the head waiter, arranged a redistribution of tables so that the whole party could sit together. It was the vicomte who constituted himself host. He summoned M. Albert to him.

"Albert," he said, with a little wave of the hand, "these ladies and gentlemen are my friends. To quote the words of my charming young companion here, M. Guy Poynton, whom you may possibly remember"—M. Albert bowed—"we are on the bust! I do not know the precise significance of the phrase any more than I suppose you do, but it means among other things a desire for the best you have to eat and to drink. Bring Pommery '92, Albert, and send word to your chef that we desire to eat without being hungry!"

M. Albert hurried away, glad of the opportunity to escape. Guy leaned back in his chair and looked around with interest.

"Same old place," he remarked, "and, by Jove, there's the young lady from Austria!"

The young lady from Austria paid her bill and departed somewhat hastily. The vicomte smiled.

"I think we shall frighten a few of them away tonight," he remarked. "The wine! Good! We shall need magnums to drown our regrets if, indeed, our English friends desert us tomorrow. M. Guy Poynton, unconscious maker of history and savior of your country, I congratulate you upon your whole skin, and I drink your health!"

Guy drank and, laughing, refilled his glass.

"And to you, the best of amateur conspirators and most charming of hosts!" he said. "Come soon to England and bring your automobile, and we will conspire against you with a policeman and a stop watch."

The vicomte sighed and glanced toward Phyllis.

"Under happier circumstances!" he murmured, and then, catching the marquise's eye, he was silent.

The band played English music, and the chef sent them up a wonderful omelet. Mlle. Ermine from the Folie Bergeres danced in the small space between the tables, and the vicomte, buying a cluster of pink roses from the flower girl, sent them across to her with a diamond pin in the ribbon. The marquise rebuked him half seriously, but he only laughed.

"Tonight," he said, "is the end of a great adventure. We amateurs have justified our existence. Tonight I give away all that I choose. Ah, Angele," he murmured in her dainty little ear, "if I had but a heart to give!"

She flashed a quick smile into his face, but her forehead was wrinkled.

"You have lost it to the young English miss. She is beautiful, but so cold!"

"Do you think so?" he whispered. "Look!"

Phyllis was seated next Duncombe, and he, too, was whispering something in her ear. The look with which she answered him told all that there was to know. The marquise, who had interpreted it, shrugged her shoulders

"It is not worth while, my friend, that you break your heart," she murmured, "for that one can see is an affair arranged."

He nodded.

"After all," he said, "the true Frenchman loves only in his own country."

"Or in any other where he may chance to be," she answered dryly. "Never mind, Henri! I shall not let you wander very far. Your supper party has been delightful—but you see the time!"

They trooped down the narrow stairs, laughing and talking. Duncombe and Phyllis came last, and their hands met for an instant behind the burly commissionaire.

"Until tomorrow!"

"Until tomorrow," she echoed softly as he handed her into the electric coupe.

Andrew and he drove down the hill together. Duncombe was a little ill at ease.

"There is one thing, Andrew," he said, "which I should like to say to you. I want you to remember the night in your garden when you asked me to come to Paris for you."

"Yes?"

"I warned you, didn't I? I knew that it would come, and it has!"

Andrew smiled in gentle scorn.

"My dear Duncombe," he said, "why do you think it necessary to tell me a thing so glaringly apparent? I have nothing to blame you for. It was a foolish dream of mine, which I shall easily outlive, for, George, this has been a great day for me. I believe that my time for dreams has gone by."

Duncombe turned toward him with interest.

"What do you mean, Andrew?"

"I have been to see Foudroye, the great oculist. He has examined my eyes carefully, and he assures me positively that my eyesight is completely sound. In two months' time I shall see as well as any one!"

Duncombe's voice shook with emotion. He grasped his friend's hand.

"That is good — magnificent — Andrew!" he declared.

Their carriage rattled over the cobblestones as they crossed the square. The white, mysterious dawn was breaking over Paris. Andrew threw his head back with a little laugh.

"Back into the world, George, where dreams are only the cobwebs of time and a man's work grows beneath his hands like a living statue to the immortals. I feel my hands upon it and the great winds blowing. Thank God!"

THE END.

TREATMENT OF BITES.

How to Handle Stings of Insects and Snakes In Emergency Cases.

Spider, tarantula, scorpion and centiped bites and stings are not usually fatal in temperate climates unless in the case of children or if the bite or sting is near the throat. They often cause severe symptoms, but free perspiration by a hot bath and the drinking of hot water will give relief, says the Brooklyn Eagle. To keep the swelling down cover the bitten part with fomentation cloths wrung out of hot water that contains soda. Give a saline injection to free the alimentary canal, a mild cathartic and give plenty of fruit juices to drink.

For the bite of a poisonous serpent, a dog, cat, rat bite or any other infected bite put a ligature around the limb between the heart and the wound, draw it tight and immerse the wound in hot soapsuds made with carbolic soap or soda. Then open the wound and squeeze it under the water, so as to encourage free bleeding. Do not suck it with the mouth, as is so frequently directed. A dry, warm glass inverted over the wound for a short time will often help by keeping up the bleeding and washing out the venom or virus. If it is several hours before the physician arrives, as is often the case in the country, it may be needful to loosen the ligature every half hour for a short time, keeping up free perspiration by a warm bath, or, in snake bites, especially active exercise.

How to Cut Glass Easily.

Glass can be cut without a diamond, and the way is very simple, says the New York Herald. Dip a piece of common string in alcohol and squeeze it reasonably dry. Then tie the string tightly around the glass on the line of cutting. Touch a match to the string and let it burn off. The heat of the burning string will weaken the glass in this particular place. While it is hot plunge the glass under water, letting the arm go well under to the elbow so there will be no vibration when the glass is struck. With the free hand strike the glass outside the line of cutting, giving a quick, sharp stroke with any long flat instrument, such as a stick of wood or a long bladed knife, and the cut will be as clean and straight as if made by a regular glass cutter.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It seems to be the policy of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. to improve the Quincy service each spring and fall. The new trains will be appreciated.

Good-by May! You have reminded us of April with your copious showers and the high winds of March seemed blended with your sweet violets and daffodils. The base ball enthusiasts have put a black mark on your rainy Saturdays for they have lost thousands of dollars.

In President Chase the Y. M. C. A. have a gentleman who makes good, and they propose to retain his services as long as possible. To raise the necessary funds, and conduct the association so successfully, requires close attention and a peculiar tact.

A tablet to President John Quincy Adams born in Quincy was among the number added in the Hall of Fame at New York on Memorial day. It had this inscription: John Quincy Adams 1767—1848. I Live in the Faith and Hope of the Progressive Advancement of Christain Liberty and Expect To Abide by the Same in Death.

June has come and right welcome she is to all lovers of out-door life. The season is two weeks behind our usual springtime, say the farmers. However the floral beauties of the trees and the delicate verdure of the grass, so fresh and green with the young and tender foliage of all trees and shrubs, is with us and we can all appreciate the lovely season. Growth and development are on every hand in Nature's realm.

The street railway company has placed commutation tickets on sale at the drug store of C. C. Hearn, good between City Square and the Nantasket steamboat landing at a cost of only 15 cents. The regular fare between these points is 20 cents, so that a saving of five cents is made each way by purchasing these tickets. Through cars are run on Sundays and holidays until June 17, when the summer timetable goes into effect. Then half hour cars will be run every day.

Famous Scenes.

The children in the sixth grade of the Wollaston school gave a pretty program in connection with their Memorial exercises Wednesday afternoon. One attractive feature was the dramatizing of five famous scenes from English history: "Caradoc before the Roman Emperor," presented by Emma Raymond, Raymond Cassidy, Ordway Gould; "Queen Boadicea and the ancient Britons," presented by Margaret Goodspeed and Ednah Sanborn; "The introduction of Christianity into Britain," by Lucy Waite, Charles Bahr and Bayard Robertson; "The siege of Calais," Marion Rand, Edward Bullock, Nelson Merrill, Myrtle Hurlburt. The closing scene from the life of Thomas Wolsey was read by Millicent Chapman and selections from Shakespeare's Henry VIII were given in a very charming manner by Theodosia Park. "Barbara Frietchie" was presented by the class assisted by five brigade boys in costume, Edward Bullock as Stonewall Jackson, and Gertrude Mullen as Barbara Frietchie. Readings appropriate to the day were given by Edna Shay and Nelson Merrill. The program closed with music. The children's work was on exhibition.

TODAY'S COURT.

Nathaniel L. Morse was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Weymouth.

Barney Clayman was arraigned upon two complaints for larceny at Quincy. Cases continued until June 8.

The continued case of William A. Murphy of Braintree, for polygamy, was called and he was held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

Work of the Womens Club

At the request of several members the remarks, of the outgoing president, Mrs. E. C. Bumpus, at the annual meeting, May 14, are given below:

In turning over this club to the new administration I take courage to mention of few facts that have appealed to me during the past two years.

Conscious that I have done those things that I ought not te have done, and have left undone those things that I ought to have done, may I suggest that the lack of esprit de corps is in a measure responsible. To make this club effective, we must work with our entire faith and trust, in its aims and in each other.

We must remember above all that this club house was given us for a distinct purpose, and if that purpose is forgotten or lapses into other more socially attractive issues, we are liable to lose it.

The motto given us in memory of the father and mother of our club founder, is intended for its broadest interpretation.

To the new President, I make a present of my club ambitions.

To incorporate the Day Nursery and care for it with our special trust of district nursing. To arrange as the working girls club of San Jose arranged, which was to have regular yearly contributions from the churches, from the city council, from the merchants who gave either merchandise or money, from the Masonic lodges who responded most generously as well as from the druggists, from the rich and from those willing to give as they were able, a stipulated amount each year. This sum of $500 was raised by a club numbering only thirty-five active members, and seventy-five only counting its honorary membership.

We ought to work for a Juvenile Court.

We ought to work for the protection and limitation of night work among women, in those states less enlightened than our own. To give our earnest effort to the appointment of efficient foresters, that our springs may not dry up at the source, nor our brooks run dry, as they are rapidly doing.

We ought to aid in the suppression of objectionable poster, in the interests of morality, and of art. And we ought above all to exercise all the influence we can bring to bear on the exclusion of indecent detail in our daily papers. All these are things that come within woman's province.

To have this club the centre for such effort, would be making of the Brackett Club house such a centre as was dreamed by her who was so long its mistress, whose influence was for high endeavor, and in whose memory, united with her husband's, a loyal son has given that home to as.

These are a few of the items I would bring to the notice of the new executive, in whose administrative capacity I congratulate the club, and extend to her and to the new officers all best wishes for the coming years; and in bidding you adieu I once more renew my heart felt thanks for the kindness and consideration given me, in the long enforced absence of this past winter.

Those members who have not paid their dues by next Monday will leave vacant places.

Mrs. Emma E. Topham has moved to Providence and resigned from the Club.

The following ladies are expected to qualify as members before June 9th:

Mrs. Herbert B. Bailey, 30 Grand View avenue, Wollaston.
Mrs. Curtis R. Crowell 5 Richie road, Quincy.
Mrs. John J. Nolan, Johnson avenue, Quincy.
Mrs. Henry L. Lovell, 59 Adams street, Quincy.
Mrs. Henry H. Schulze, 38 Bigelow street.
Mrs. J. W. Bartlett, 50 Willow street, West Quincy.
Mrs. R. Ina Crowell, 109 Lincoln avenue, Wollaston.

BRAINTREE.

On Memorial Day 46 members of Post 87, out of only 49, attended the exercises.

Many complimentary remarks have been heard concerning Braintree's cemeteries. They never looked so well cared for as we found them Decoration day.

Mr. J. F. Sheppard is widening, grading and improving Sheppard avenue, and will extend the same northward up the hill beyound the P. R. Raasch estate and then the road will open eastward to Shaw street parallel to Nelson avenue. The land off Shaw street and along Sheppard avenue will be greatly improved.

So successful was the recent minstrel show given by Mrs. H. L. French, and Master George Abell, assisted by Prof. Dan Haley and about thirty voices, where about 700 tickets were sold, the proper thing was to celebrate. Last Tuesday evening the black faces assembled at the home of Mrs. H. L. French for a feast. Chicken was not good enough for them, they had turkey. The solos by Edward Cuff were highly appriciated.

All persons interested in the formation of an association to provide for perpetual care of the burial ground on Plain street are invited to meet at the Methodist church, Saturday evening, June 8, at eight o'clock.

Three boys belonging in East Weymouth stole the pony and cart belonging to Miss Lilian Harlow from in front of her home on Quincy avenue Wednesday noon. Mr. Chase of Liberty street gave chase and overtook the young rascals on Broad street, East Weymouth. They jumped out of the cart and made off into the woods.

Thick and Thin Glasses.

The reason that thick glasses crack more readily than thin ones when hot water is poured into them is because glass is a slow conductor of heat, and when hot liquid is poured into a glass vessel the interior expands before the heat reaches the exterior; consequently there is a struggle between the two forces and the glass flies to pieces.—St. Louis Republic.

RICHMOND ON TEAM

He Plays Again With Abington Vs. Quincy High School

Abington High has a spunky base ball team, and the recent accident to first baseman Richmond, one of its players did not discourage them. They came to Quincy yesterday to play over again the game so suddenly interrupted May 3 and Richmond was in his usual position.

The visitors opened up well in the first with three runs, while the Quincys only got one, but at the end of the second inning the score was 6 to 4 in favor of Quincy. This lead Abington was unable to overtake and lost the game 10 to 8. The visitors excelled at the bat, but luck was with the Quincys.

Richmond played both at first base and in the pitchers box and did good work for his team. He also made two runs.

Special Addresses By Rev. Gardner

On the Sunday mornings in June, Rev. William E. Gardner of Christ's church has advertised to tell his congregation about the Health Conference held weekly in Emmanuel church, Boston during the past winter. The interest of not only Boston, but of people all over the United States has been aroused by the successful healing work of Dr. Elwood Worcester by these conferences. He has clearly demonstrated that the Christian church can regain very much of the healing power which it exercised during the Apostolic days.

Over two hundred and fifty patients have been definitely enrolled in a class for studying and receiving the healing power of the church. A weekly health conference has been held in the church on every Tuesday evening with an attendance from six hundred to a thousand people. Dr. Worcester has hundreds of letters stating the benefits received from various individuals and testifying of the practial, efficient and sane methods that have been used.

In the following subjects Mr. Gardner will deal with some of these methods and principles:

June 2, "Scientific Healing and Christianity."

June 9, "The Christian Habit of Mind."

June 16, "The Healing Faith."

June 23, "The Power of Happiness."

June 30, "Health."

All who are interested in this subject will find in these addresses material that is new and stimulating to thought.

Presentation of Gold Locket

A most enjoyable party was tendered Miss Georgiana Michael at her home on Caledonian avenue last evening by a large number of her friends. In behalf of the invited friends, J. Ernest Collins presented Miss Michael with an elegant gold locket and chain. Although completely surprised, it did not take Miss Michael long to show her appreciation of the gift, as she responded with a beautiful speech, thanking all present for their respect of her friendship.

The evening was spent in games, etc. Selections were rendered by the Old Acre quartette, who responded to a number of encores. Ices, fruits, etc., were served during the evening.

The party was conducted by Miss Anna R. Giles, Miss Jennie Grassick, Mr. J. E. Collins and Mr. William Troupe. Among those present were:—Miss Mary Crammond, Miss Sarah Summers, Miss Margaret Michael, Miss Nellie Troupe, Miss Jennie Hadden, Miss Susan McRitchie, Miss Susan Tytler, Miss Nellie Souter, Miss Margaret Hall, Miss Agnes Lamb, Miss Glennie Jenkins, Miss Alice Joss, Miss Margaret Craig, Miss Anna Giles, Miss Jennie Grassick, and Messrs. Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Qnincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

The Development Of Massachusetts

What will undoubtedly prove to be one of the biggest meetings ever held in Massachusetts for the purpose of booming Bay State industries and commerce will be held in Faneuil Hall on Thursday, June 6, at noon.

This meeting is being arranged by the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, an organization only a few months old, which was formed for the purpose of aiding Massachusetts' business so that the real estate market may be improved.

The topic for discussion will be "The Greater Development of Massachusetts Industries." Gov. Guild has accepted an invitation to preside and great efforts are being made to secure Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou as a speaker.

On the evening of the same day that this meeting is held the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange will hold the last of its monthly dinners for the season at the American House, and the speakers at the meeting will be the guests at this dinner.

Reduced Rates To Nantasket

The street railway service of the city will never be entirely satisfactory until all the principal routes are double-tracked. For this reason there should be no objection to double tracks on Hancock street to School street, and they should also be laid on School, Franklin and Independence avenue, and the entire length of Washington street. It will be a good investment too for th Old Colony Street Railway Company.

BROADER VISION

Alabama Guests Have a New Idea Of Boston and New England

"The man who first called Bostonians cold and distant people ought to be prosecuted, sir!"

This statement was made today by Col. John London and supported by the young women from Birmingham, who came to christen the scout cruiser Birmingham at Quincy says the Boston Herald.

Continuing, Col. London said:

"The author of that statement must have been an infamous liar, and you people here in Boston owe it to yourselves to trace the saying down and nail it as a lie wherever encountered. And I know there are plenty of people living in my section of the country whose ideas on that score need reconstructing. I think that they must have gotten the idea from sources inimical to Boston and her people.

"So far as the experience of my party and myself are concerned we have been treated with the kindliest courtesy, with the most whole-souled hospitality, and the nicest degree of refinement. We have been made to feel 'members of the family,' and that's the way we want to feel.

"If all the different members of Uncle Sam's family, north and south, east and west, could only learn to know and appreciate one another, by actually touching elbows and exchanging ideas, what a vast difference it would make in the relations now existing between the sections. If we in the South had but known the people of the North, and if they had only known us—our good points as well as our weak ones—how differently the history of the last half-century mgiht have been written!

"It will be a mighty hard matter for the historian of the future, I think, to separate the story of American civilization from the story of American railroads. For it is to these, in my opinion, American people owe their better knowledge of one another. Travel is the best education there is.

"The English and continental nations always seemed to understand the fact better than we have, as was evidenced by the fact that they never considered a young man's education was completed until he had been given a chance to see the world and rub elbows with other peoples.

"We have been too narrow, too provincial in the past, although we are now learning that money spent in travel is the best possible investment. The railroads may have had their faults—we know they have in the South—but it seems to me that fairness must recognize the good they have done (perhaps unconsciously) in the past and the greater good they may do in the future by making us all better acquainted one with another, more tolerant of each other's peculiarities and localisms and better able to understand the feelings and aspirations underlying a good many happenings which today may seem strange to us.

"We shall take back to Alabama with us new points of view and a broader vision than those with which we arrived. If the opportunity comes—and it surely will—whereby we may have the privilege of returning Boston's hospitality. It will only be hers to express the wish—ours the pleasure of granting it."

ANOTHER INTERVIEW.

"Yes, we've seen some of the old veterans passng the hotel today, and they don't look at all unlike our old men who fought the war in the South," said Miss Mary Cruikshank, one of the group of Alabama girls who came to Boston to christen the Birmingham, to a Herald reporter on Thursday at the Vendome.

"But our Memorial day comes earlier, on April 30. But then that date is really farther advanced than May 30 in Boston. We have the same parades, the same feeble old men—some of them lacking an arm or a leg—the same tattered old flags that you have in the North. And our mothers and grandmothers weep over them and wave their handkerchiefs at them just the same as yours do here in New England. And they grow fewer and fewer every year, as yours do.

"But we haven't the beautiful cemetery kept in the apple pie order that you have here. We have no Mount Auburn or Forest Hills with their lovely monuments and tombs, which must have cost thousands of dollars.

"I think we people of the South keep our memories and our traditions longer and more faithfully than you do in the North. We don't seem to forget so easily, and it's harder for us to fall into new manners and customs. We have plenty of old ladies to whom the days of '61-'65 seem but yesterday.

parture. Since that time she had received two letters from him, one in October 1903, and the other in November 1904, in both of these letters he spoke of getteng a divorce.

Last September he called upon her where she was working as a domestic at Portland, and wanted her to give him the little daughter that had been born to her and of which she claimed he was the father. This she refused to do and he then left. She had writteh him two letters which had been sent to Braintree where she supposed that he was boarding.

She denied that at any time she had gone under any other name, or that she had been previously married. She further said that she was now 22 years of age and that she was 18 when married.

Mrs. Murphy No. 2 said that she first met him on a train and that she had been married to him at Braintree, June 21, 1905. They lived at 23 Summer street at first, and then at 3 Summer street. They lived together as man and wife until March 17, 1907, when he left her. Two weeks before he left she had found two letters from the Portland woman, in which the latter spoke of a child and asked him for the child's sake not to get a divorce.

Murphy was represented by J. W. McAnarney and offered no defence. The court found probable cause to believe him guilty and held him in $1000 for the grand jury.

In an interview with a representative of the Daily Ledger after the hearing Mrs. Murphy, the Portland woman, said that she first met Murphy in Prince Edward Island as he lived in the same town as she did. She was but a little girl at the time and remembered his coming to the school she attended. At this same school were a brother and sister of his who were her playmates. Later she moved to Portland and at Christmas time in 1902 he called to see her and they were married the following April.

While living together in Portland she had found a picture of a woman and little girl among her husband's effects which she asked him about. He admitted that the picture was that of his wife and little daughter from whom he had not been divorced. This alarmed her as to her own standing, and upon further questioning he had told her not to worry as that woman would not bother her any. She had the picture in question in court. She then asked her mother about it, who told her that if the story was true she was not his legal wife. It was but a short time after this when he left her. She said that her child was now with her mother and that she was working out in a doctor's family at Portland.

Dealer in Antiques Is Arrested

Barney Clayman of the firm of Fagan & Clayman, dealers in antique articles at Wollaston, was arrested by Lieut. McKay yesterday afternoon upon two complaints for larceny from John Carey of West Quincy.

Lieut. McKay with Officer Matthews visited the place of Clayman with a search warrant, and secured a number of articles alleged to have been stolen from Carey. These included a vise, a pair of callipers. two antique brass hooks, two stone cutter's hammers and a razor, all valued at $100. The razor was one that was used in the old Tremont House barber shop and was valued for association's sake at $25.

The articles were taken from Carey's house two months ago.

The shop of Fagan & Clayman is the place where the mysterious robbery took place a week ago. At that time, while the clerk who sleeps in the store was absent one night, the store was entered.

When he returned he found that his valise had been opened and $20 in money, an antique candle stick and pewter tea pot were missing. Two valises belonging to friends of the clerk had also been robbed of $15 each.

Curiosity of Punctuation.

Since you have requoted the interesting example of incorrect punctuation, "It was 'and' I said, not 'of,'" it would be as well to give that even more interesting and better example, "That that is is that that is not is not that it it is." And to avoid nightmares we immediately punctuate thus: That that is, is; that that is not, is not, is not that it? It is.—Cor. London Chronicle.

Practically All French Maritime Population on Strike

BELONG TO NAVAL RESERVE

Peaceable Demonstration to Draw Attention of Country to Inadequacy of Government Pensions--Steamship Lines Greatly Embarrassed

Paris, June 1.—An admirably organized universal strike by all branches of the shipworkers of France has paralyzed life in all the ports of the republic.

Unlike an ordinary strike, this movement is not attended with bitterness against the employers or revolutionary feelings. The manifestations are made with the object of drawing the attention of the country to the strikers' cause. The naval reservists claim, in a manifesto in which they ask the support of all classes, that it is impossible for the widows of seamen to support themselves and raise children on the pensions granted by the government.

The men are well behaved, and an instance of the sentiment back of the strike is the fact that harbor watches have been provided by the strikers for all ships in port.

The government is fully alive to the importance of the movement and it has made arrangements to assure the continuation of the maritime postal service and the transportation of perishable cargoes. The cabinet will hold a special meeting today in an effort to find a way to bring the strike to an end.

The leading steamship lines are much embarrassed, and have appealed to the government to take rapid steps to remove the cause of a state of affairs by which they alone suffer, although they are in no way responsible for the strike.

The French trans-Atlantic steamship officials have requested the government to lend them crews from the state naval depots, but no reply has yet been received.

The naval reserves comprise almost the entire maritime population devoted to seafaring life. They number about 117,000 men, of whom 25,000 belong to the war fleet. Practically the entire personnel of the merchant marine, as well as the longshoremen, are inscribed in the naval reserve.

The executive committee of the National Seamen's union ordered the strike because the members of the union regard the government's new bill increasing pensions from $40.80 to $72.50 in the case of seamen and from $156 to $200 in the case of captains as being inadequate.

[Pugsley Leaves Canadian Cabinet

Fredericton, N. B., June 1.—Premier Pugsley of New Brunswick has given up his office to contest the vacant St. John seat in the Canadian commons in the Liberal interest. The resignation was accepted and Governor Tweedie immediately sent for C. W. Robinson and entrusted to him the task of forming a new administration. The new premier requested all the remaining cabinet members to retain their portfolios and all were sworn in.

Haywood Jury Almost Filled

Boise, Ida., June 1.—There remain only two vacancies in the jury that will try William D. Haywood for his life for alleged participation in the assassination of Frank Steunenberg, and there is reason for hoping that they will be filled by this afternoon. The state has exhausted its arbitrary rights as to the personnel of the jury by using its 10th peremptory challenge.

Trade Retarded by Weather

New York, June 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that seasonable merchandise goes into distribution slowly, which causes accumulation of spring and summer dry goods and millinery in the hands of dealers and retards collections, while making operations for fall and winter much more conservative.

Lack of Water to Fight Fire

Titusville, Pa., June 2.—Fire that broke ou here shortly after midnight burned over a section of about eight acres and caused a damage of about $100,000. The water works had been shut down at midnight to effect repairs and a delay of half an hour in restoring pressure is said to have caused the large loss.

Zion City Property to Be Sold

Chicago, June 1.—Over objections made by Mrs. Jane Dowie and her son, A. G. Dowie, Judge Landis entered an order granting authority to Receiver Hately to sell Zion City property immediately. Landis' order is expected to result in the complete reorganization of Zion City.

No Compromise With Longshoremen

New York, June 1.—The trans-Atlantic steamship lines made it plain last night that efforts to get them to compromise with the striking longshoremen will be futile. It had been reported that both sides were willing to arbitrate.

Ironworkers' Strike Collapses

San Francisco, June 1.—The ironworkers' strike was settled last night. Twenty thousand men were involved. The men returned to work on the same condition that prevailed before the strike.

PANIC FOLLOWS SHOOTING

Clerk Puts Bullets Into Abdomens of Two Fellow Employes

Providence, June 1.—A quarrel between clerks in the timekeeper's office at the plant of the Brown & Sharp Manufacturing company resulted in the shooting of two of the clerks, Amos N. Gorham, aged 27, and Thomas Edmundson, aged 42, by a third, Fitzroy Willet, who is 20 years old. Both the injured men received bullet wounds in the abdomen and are in an apparently critical condition. Several of the 50 or more women employed in the office fainted after the shooting and there was a general panic until Willet was disarmed. Willet was placed under arrest.

According to some of the clerks, Gorham and Willet had quarreled and Gorham went over to Willet's desk, where they had some words, after which Willet started to run down the room, followed by Gorham. Suddenly Willet turned in his flight and, drawing a revolver, fired twice, both bullets taking effect in Gorham's abdomen. A number of other clerks rushed to quell the quarrel as soon as they realized its seriousness, and before Willet could be disarmed he had fired two more bullets, both of which hit Edmundson in the abdomen.

Uncomplimentary to Labor

New Haven, June 1.—President Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, in an address to stockholders who had voted to merge this company with the Consolidated Railway company, said: "The only uncertain, unhappy elements with which the management has to contend are the tremendous demands of organized labor and which will cost us this coming year in the vicinity of $800,000 for increases in wages, and the unfortunate situation we are in with regard to the freight car demurrage, which will make another $800,000 increase in our expenses. So far as the labor item is concerned, I am meeting constantly a decreased efficiency with every increase in wages."

Endeavorers Know No Color Line

Boston, June 1.—The United Society of Christian Endeavor, from its headquarters here, made public a statement denying that the color line would be drawn at the international convention at Seattle this year. The statement says that Christian Endeavor numbers in its membership red, yellow, brown, black and white people, and all have equal privileges on the program and in the convention auditoriums. If the hotels refuse, as some have, to receive negro guests, the responsibility is theirs.

Lepers Chained to Auto

Boston, June 1.—With their faces muffled so as to hide the nature of the disease from which they were suffering, two lepers were taken through the streets of Boston yesterday in an automobile. Hundreds regarded the strange figures curiously. The men were chained hand and foot to prevent their escape, and although the chains were visible their faces were hidden. The lepers, who are in the last stages of the disease, were removed from Gallup's island to be transported to Penikese island.

Higher Wages For 40,000 More

Boston, June 1.—Following the example set by M. C. D. Borden of Fall River, the various millowners throughout New England are posting notices regarding increases in the wage scale. Workers in Lowell, Holyoke, Lawrence, Adams, Exeter, N. H., Dover, N. H., and several other smaller towns, numbering in all about 40,000, are given advances, generally 5 percent.

Lawson Not Seriously Ill

Boston, June 1.—Some of the New York papers published a report from their Paris correspondents to the effect that Thomas W. Lawson was seriously ill in that city. In a cable message Lawson says that his illness is not serious and that a few days in bed and a short rest in the country will restore him completely.

Lecture Fee Returned to Yale

New Haven, June 1.—Secretary of State Root has returned to Yale university the fee of $1200 paid him for giving the Dodge lectures on "The Responsibilities of Citizenship." The secretary said that the invitation to lecture at Yale and the enjoyable visit to New Haven amply repaid him for the loss of his time in Washington.

Will Accept Five Percent Advance

Lowell, Mass., June 1.—The Lowell Textile Council, in special session last night, voted to accept the 5 percent advance in wages announced by the mill agents recently, with the understanding that the increase would apply to every employe in the seven cotton mills of the city.

Aged Woman Fatally Burned

Portland, Me., June 1.—Mrs. Elizabeth Craney, aged 69, who was burned by an explosion of alcohol which she was pouring onto a fire at Commander Robert E. Peary's summer cottage at Eagle island, died last night in a hospital here.

Receivers Want to Sue

New Haven, June 1.—The National Wire company receivers have asked the court for permission to bring suits against contracting concerns in various sections which have contested accounts with the wire company.

Shoe Machinery Bill Passed,

Boston, June 1.—The anti-United Shoe Machinery bill was passed to be enacted in the senate by a rising vote of 17 to 13, and, on a rollcall, by 21 to 15. The bill now goes to the governor for signature.

IT WILL HELP QUINCY!

IT WILL HELP YOU!

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

BOSTON LETTER

General Bartlett's Candidacy Excites Much Curiosity

WHITNEY AS A CONSOLIDATOR

Senate Democrats Sorry They Put Their Foot In It--Called Specia Attention to Mr. Whitney In the Merger Case

A very peculiar situation seems to exist in the Democratic party, if one may judge accurately from what one hears and sees.

There are two candidates in the field for the nomination for governor. These are Henry M. Whitney of Brookline and General Charles W. Bartlett of Boston. Everybody remembers Whitney chiefly by reason of the fact that his doings at the state house while he was president of the West End street railway were critically investigated by a legislative committee on the charge that they had influenced members of the great and general court in order to secure the passage of the legislation which they desired.

Mr. Whitney is in the field, and he is a zealous candidate for the nomination. It is said by those who have met him that his earnestness to secure the nomination is surprising in a man as old as he now is. Mr. Bartlett seems to be in the field for a purpose, and what that purpose is has caused many a query among Democratic politicians. Is he after the nomination? Many think he cares nothing for it. It is the opinion of some that he is merely a stalking horse for some other person, possibly Mr. Whitney himself, in order to keep anybody else out of the fight, or perchance for William L. Douglas, in order to make Whitney fight for the nomination if he wants it.

Everything indicates the nomination of Mr. Whitney as the situation exists today. The following of Mr. Bartlett is not, so far as one can see, extensive. The Democrats of the commonwealth have not so far indicated any wild desire to support him for the nomination or for the election. If he is a stalking horse for Whitney, as seems quite possible at the present moment, he is doing a good work for the Brookline man in barring anybody else from going into the field.

Mr. Whitney as a Public Man

As a business man, Mr. Whitney has been prominent for years. Personally he is extremely versatile, a gentleman of great affability, polished courteous, thoughtful. Connected closely with the Standard Oil company and with other ramifications of great financial interests, he has been in the public eye for years and has posed as a beneficent friend of consolidation and monopolization.

It was Whitney who consolidated the several street railways of Boston and the suburbs into one gigantic corporation which for years has enjoyed the monopoly of the local transportation business on the street car lines about the city. He saw clearly that the man who cornered the transportation facilities of the city of Boston and the suburbs so far as the streets are concerned was due to make a barrel of money, systematize the business and be a great fellow generally. He accomplished this task by methods similar to those employed by him in the passage of legislation in later years.

There came a time when he found it would be possible to monopolize the gas business of the commonwealth in the same way as he had monopolized the street railway traffic of Boston, and to that end he had framed and submitted to the legislature what was known as the Massachusetts Pipe Line bill, giving a pipe line company the right to lay its pipes for the transportation of gas, not only throughout the city of Boston, but throughout the commonwealth of Massachusetts. The scheme was the most far-reaching ever presented to the Massachusetts legislature. If enacted and approved by the governor, it would undoubtedly have resulted eventually in the consolidation of all the gas companies of the commonwealth in one monstrous concern, which would have absolutely controlled and monopolized the gas manufacturing and the gas distributing industry in the commonwealth of Massachusetts. That was its purpose, and it passed both branches of the legislature by good majorities.

There was at that time, however, seated in the governor's chair on Beacon Hill, a man of the greatest integrity, of large abilities, of keen discernment and of indomitable firmness and strength. This man was Roger Wolcott, one of the most upright and fearless of the great executives of Massachusetts.

Governor Wolcott and Pipe Line Bill

When this bill with its far-reaching possibilities was presented to him for approval, he saw at a glance its tremendous effects and possibilities, and discerned the intention of its framers to create a stupendous monopoly. In a veto message which pointed out the viciousness of the bill the governor vetoed it, and that particular scheme of Mr. Whitney's was annihilated at a single pen stroke.

Mr. Whitney is now engaged in another effort to corner transportation facilities. As a director of the Boston and Maine railroad, he is aiding to engineer the plans of President Charles S. Mellen to merge with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad all the properties of the Boston and Maine railroad, and thus place under foreign control the last vestige of locally controlled railroads in this commonwealth and in New England.

All his life Mr. Whitney has been busy cornering the necessities of the people. Is it this fact that commends him to the Democratic party? At all events they seem to favor his nomination more than that of any other person who has been mentioned and he has the call at the present moment from the field of candidates.

Some few things have happened, however, within a short time which may have an important bearing upon his candidacy. Everybody has been discussing recently the merger plans of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road with the Boston and Maine railroad and all its numerous branches and connections. The stock Mr. Whitney represents is all favorable to consolidation, and his influence even beyond the voting power of his stock is cast for the merger.

Boston and Maine Merger

There is a good deal of sentiment in favor of this merger, and a good deal on the other side of the question. There are many who regard the experience of the commonwealth in connection with the lease of the Boston and Albany to the New York Central as disastrous and unfortunate. They believe it has struck a tremendous blow at Boston as a port of export and import and that New York has profited by the loss the state and city have sustained. It is not strange that there are some persons who regard with grave doubt the passing of the control of the last of our Massachusetts railroads now under local control into the hands of foreign corporations whose concern is wholly financial and who may have no regard whatever for the interests and the prosperity of the commonwealth.

With Mr. Whitney as the chief local exponent in the Boston and Maine directorate of the Mellen plan of consolidation, his position in regard to the nomination becomes peculiarly delicate. Ten of the 12 Democratic senators in the Massachusetts legislature have emphasized this unwittingly by introducing a resolution protesting against this consolidation or merger and asking to have the legislature adopt that protest.

No sooner had these Democrats taken this step than it was called to their attention that they had given Mr. Whitney the blackest kind of a black eye possible to inflict. It seems wholly incomprehensible that 10 men of ordinary ability could have prepared for their candidate for governor so beautiful a trap and have done all this without having once thought of its political effect. And yet there is no doubt that this is the fact. They had no intention of calling the attention of the people of the commonwealth in the most impressive manner possible to the attitude of their candidate for the nomination on this merger question. Practically every man of the 10 is a Whitney man. The incident, however, serves to illustrate how blindly Democrats who make a business of politics usually act when they undertake to put the opposite party politically in a hole.

And yet it is quite likely that this blunder of the Democratic senators may not defeat Mr. Whitney for the nomination, although it will bring vividly to the minds of the people the fact that not only now, but during his entire business career, his aim in life appears to have been to corner transportation in such a way as to create an absolute monopoly.

How to Prevent Potato Scab.

Recent investigation has shown that potato scab is a fungous disease and that the fungus may exist in the soil or on the seed. Soils containing large quantities of manure are particularly likely to produce scabby tubers; hence only commercial fertilizers should be used for a potato crop, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Seed potatoes that appear to be free from scab may be laden with spores of the scab fungus. Both scab and spores are destroyed by soaking seed two hours in a solution of eight ounces of formalin in fifteen gallons of water shortly before planting. Where a large amount of seed is to be treated a large vat holding several bushels is best for this purpose. Another convenient method is to use a barrel with one head knocked out. Place the potatoes in a bag and lower into the formalin solution by means of a rope and pulley secured above the barrel. When soaked long enough, pull up and allow potatoes to drain, preventing waste of solution. Do not place treated seed with untreated or in crates where untreated potatoes have been, as contamination will likely result.

How to Save Doctors' Bills.

If people would study the various vegetables, fruits, etc., as to their medicinal qualities in remedying ailments, there would be less demand for the doctor's services. It would not be difficult to remember that fruits and acid vegetables (tomatoes) are good for the liver. Lettuce and celery are good nerve tonics. Beans, peas, lentils, etc., produce strength and heat and are a good substitute for meat in winter. Onions and radishes are preventives of colds. Eggs are easier to digest when slightly boiled than when raw. Macaroni and vermicelli, on account of their closeness of grain, are not as easily digested as light bread. Potatoes when mealy are easily digested; when close and watery they are hard to digest. Bananas, on account of the amount of nitrogen they contain, are easy to digest, says Woman's Life. The sufferer from dyspepsia should take turnips, spinach, cresses, salads, celery, lettuce and dandelions. A person suffering from chronic rheumatism should avoid fried fish.

A VISIT TO MICHIGAN

President Roosevelt Talks to Farmers on College Campus

CHILDREN ARE BEST CROP

Tells Members of Legislature That There Is No Vindictive Spirit In War Against Great Individuals and Great Corporate Wealth

Lansing, Mich., June 1.—After a strenuous six hours in the state capital, during which he made three addresses and held a reception at the state house, President Roosevelt left for Washington.

At the agricultural college President Roosevelt spoke to about 25,000 people from a stand erected on a little knoll at the head of the campus. Seated on benches immediately before the stand were students of the college and hundreds of alumni, and standing behind them were thousands of people. The president declared that pauper labor was no menace to workingmen. He advised the farmers to work together. Children, he said, were the best crop, and family relations the most important. He interjected informal remarks and advice at several places, once turning to a dozen young women in the graduating class and saying: "I believe that you young ladies will make first-class farmers' wives, and I heartily congratulate the farmers of the future on the unexampled prospects before them."

The president also interjected a plea for the paying of proper respect for manual labor. "I shall be mightily disappointed in you boys here," he said to the graduating class, "if you can't work with your hands and are afraid to have your working clothes look as though you do work."

President Roosevelt opened his address to the legislature by referring to his own experience in the New York legislature, saying he knew "the great difficulties, the temptations, the responsibilities" of legislative work, and knew "how often faithful service is not thoroughly appreciated outside."

He discussed some of the great questions, especially control of great corporations, saying that "we are still a long way from the millenium and pointing out the danger of "committing yourselves to a program that promises too much." He spoke of the "foolish conservatives" who fail to see that "we are the real conservatives, the real friends of property, when we try to do away with the abuse of the property." The president then said:

"We must not be misled by those often well meaning men who let a vague general desire to reform everything supplant the place of exact thinking in their minds, and who therefore promise loosely what could not possibly be performed or else indulge in a general declamation against the evils without pointing out how the evils are to be cut out.

"In the war against the abuses of great individuals, and especially of great corporation wealth, we need to show absolute unflinching resolution and yet to combine that with sanity as well as with courage.

"We need to show, too, the very reverse of any vindictive spirit. The minute you begin to display any spirit of revenge or to administer the laws in a spirit of revenge you are starting to invoke trouble and ultimately reaction. We need to show the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, his sanity and his broad and kindly charity, and yet his resolute determination that the evil shall be done away with.

"You have been very kind in alluding to certain things that I have done or tried to do. My power to do them depended entirely upon the support that I have received from the representatives in congress.

"We have taken certain steps in the line of securing a better administration of justice as between man and man, without regard to whether the man is rich or poor, and we have taken certain steps toward seeking better laws for the supervision and control of the great fortunes, especially of great corporation fortunes used in business. We are going steadily forward along those lines. And the only party allusion I shall make today is to say that the Republican party, in 99 percent of its makeup and in all its highest thought, is essentially the party of Abraham Lincoln's plain people and shall continue to be such. There will be not one backward step along the course which we have marked out to follow.

"I ask you to judge of present promises by past performances and to request from your public men not promises of the impossible, but promises of certain things that can be done which will not bring about a complete solution of the difficulties that confront us, but which will be another long stride toward that complete solution, and finally to approach the problem in the Lincoln spirit, not to be misled by the demagogue on one side or reaction on the other. Let us set our faces like flint against a predatory wealth, but also against a predatory poverty with the emphasis on the predatory."

COLONEL LEE'S SENTIMENT

Says Confederate Soldiers Fought For What They Knew to Be Right

Richmond, June 1.—At the reunion of the United Confederate Veterans Senator Daniel spoke in tribute to the valor of the Confederate soldier.

"But the courage and gallantry were not all on the side of the Confederacy," he said. "Boys, we are the same race as the Yankee and the same spirit which made southern arms glorious incited the hearts of the northerners. Their valor was shown in a hundred battles, and they made a worthy foe."

Colonel Robert E. Lee, Jr., spoke at some length in vindication of the south from the charge of having fostered slavery and forced a dissolution of the Union. He gave a resume of the events which led up to the war between the states and concluded as follows:

"Don't tell me with mollycoddlish emphasis that the soldier of the Confederacy fought for what he believed was right. If the courage shown where carnage laid the red curtain of death over thousands, if unwavering faithfulness to the cause which he fought, if the undying resistance to the invaders of homes and hearts mean anything, the soldier of the south fought for what he knew to be right."

On the expression of those sentiments the great audience stood on chairs and, waving hats, flags, scarfs and handkerchiefs, cheered until it was hoarse.

Visit Not of Own Choosing

Morales, former president of the republic of San Domingo, found himself a visitor in New York when steamer Prinz Wilhelm II arrived. Morales sailed today on steamer Coamo for Ponce, P. R., where he will re-embark for his home in St. Thomas, D. W. I., where he has been living since his exile from San Domingo.

Balloonists Probably Drowned

London, June 1.—In spite of the most strenuous efforts of the government authorities, the fate of the two engineer officers, Lieutenants Caulfield and Leake, who went up in a balloon from Aldershot camp May 28, remains a mystery. There is every reason to believe that the aeronauts were either thrown out when the basket struck the water or that they were drowned when the balloon, after being driven bounding over the waves, finally dropped into the channel off Exmouth.

Real Summer Weather Near

Washington, June 1.—The weather bureau last night announced that all records were broken by the low mean temperature throughout the country during the past two months. The entire section east of the Mississippi, said Forecaster Frankenfeld, may expect cool weather and rain today and Sunday. From present indications, he said, the weather will turn warmer by Monday, and after that we will have real summer temperature.

Burnham to Have New Trial

New York, June 1.—George Burnham, Jr., former general counsel of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance company, who is now serving a term in Sing Sing for grand larceny, is to have a new trial under a decision handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court, which reversed the judgment of the criminal branch convicting Burnham and ordered a new trial.

Wisconsin Wins 'Varsity Race

Madison, Wis., June 1.—Wisconsin university won the 'varsity boat race with Syracuse university on Lake Mendota and the Syracuse men won the four-oared races. When the four-oared crews had rowed about three-quarters of the race, the Wisconsin four struck a floating buoy which had drifted into the course. This caused them to lose some valuable time.

Will Put Officers Out of Service

Washington, June 1.—Admiral Evans will preside at the navy department at a meeting of naval officers appointed to "weed out" a sufficient number of officers to meet the needs of the naval personnel act and prevent stagnation in promotions. The result will not be announced before July 1. The act requires this year that 22 vacancies be created.

When Woman Guides The Plot.

By HENRY LINSLEY DOOLITTLE.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

The unusual is ever the most attractive. From his assortment of morning mail Bower first of all selected the one unbusinesslike envelope and hastily tore it open. He read softly, with rising elation:

My Dear Jimmy—Monday evening next, April 1, I am planning a little heart surprise party in honor of little sister's birthday. It won't be complete without one of her best friends, so please cut everything and come. I should have let you know sooner had I not expected to see you at the club reception last night. Where were you—out with the other girl? Anyway, Monday evening without fail. Your sincere friend,

GRACE LOUISE ELSTON.

"It wouldn't do to miss Marjorie's birthday—in memory of three years ago, if for no other reason," he meditated.

"Too bad she had to kick up such a fuss over nothing. How was I to blame? She must have waked up, or I never should have been invited. I wonder"— But at that moment the pile of business letters caught his eye reprovingly.

Arriving early at the Elston home, he found the apartment ablaze with hearts. Large ones adorned the curtains and electroliers, while smaller tokens of the occasion were strewn about in picturesque profusion. Above the main doorway hung a flying Cupid, prince of romance.

The early arrivals had formed into interested groups. More than once Bower thought he heard the mention of some engagement, but upon drawing nearer he was met by a sudden change of subject and what seemed half startled glances. At last he cornered his hostess.

"What does a heart party usually mean?" she parried, with a laugh that jarred strangely on his nerves. "Oh, there's Mr. Stanwood. I must see that he meets some of the out-of-towners," and she was gone.

Just then Marjorie entered. "Little sister," as he had once called her, looked very much grown up tonight. Bower was among the first to press forward with congratulations. "How many is it this time?" he quizzed in well feigned ignorance. "Let's see, three years ago it was nineteen. This time you throw double twos—sign of good luck."

She smiled i. some embarrassment.

"You have too good a memory, Jim. Can't you ever forget? After the teens a girl isn't so proud of her age."

He made way for the others with a tingling sensation of loss. After all, had it been so much her fault three years ago? At the other side of the room he caught sight of Miss Sherwood beckoning to him with parted lips. Mechanically he crossed to her side.

"I was never so stumped in my life," confided his companion. "You are an old friend of the family, Mr. Bower. Did Miss Elston tell you before tonight?"

"I was about as much in the dark as any one," he evaded.

"And did you see the ring?" she rattled on. "It's a perfect beauty!"

Jim smiled to hide his suspicion. Those best wishes—were they as innocently attached to her birthday as he had supposed? He tried to recall her new friends, but none seemed to fit the case.

"Well, if you can't tell me any more about the man than that, I guess I'll hunt up some one who can." Miss Sherwood disappeared with a parting shot, "I always supposed you were the right bower in that game."

Miss Elston was passing the tally cards. "The head table is up there," she indicated, "and the booby at the other end. As there are two people short, the poorest couple at the last table will have to drop out each time until the next change. You'll find a consolation cozy corner in the conservatory."

Starting at the third table, Jim slowly advanced to the head and then as suddenly dropped to the other end. Marjorie was already there.

"Unlucky in cards"— she laughed.

"You might have given a fellow a little warning," he grieved—"sort of chance to renew his option." But the sound of the bell cut short the conversation.

For the next ten minutes he played atrociously, now heaping hearts upon her score, now adding needlessly to his own. The other pair exchanged knowing glances. He couldn't have made a plainer bid for the cozy corner. Yet Marjorie seemed oblivious.

"Now tell me all about it," began Jim a few minutes later.

Marjorie hesitated.

"There isn't so much to tell," she began slowly at last. "Clinton is a distant cousin of mine. He cares for me, and I care for him. He's well off—and generous—and good looking." She weighed each winning quality with a deliberation that hurt. "And, above all, he knows his own mind. Why shouldn't I love him?" she demanded, turning suddenly to her companion.

"Oh, don't mind me tonight," he deprecated. "It's just this: I can't seem to realize what it all means to me. We did have such good times once, Marjie."

She started at the sound of her nickname, so dearly loved of old. "We were children then," reflectively.

"And you promised to give me first chance if any one else came along," he pursued, drawing closer.

"Did I, really? How foolish of me!" she laughed. "Yet we were children through it all. We even scrapped like children at the finish."

"Mostly my fault," he owned.

Her laughing gray eyes glanced up to his.

"No, all your fault," she corrected.

"Marjie, do you really love him?" demanded Jim.

She started violently.

"Why, the idea—what a question! Here I came out for a friendly little talk with you, and you're proving a regular inquisitor. Do you suppose I shall ever marry a man I don't love? Not much!"

His arm crept softly around her waist.

"Haven't you any regard for honor?" she entreated. "We mustn't—I mean, you mustn't forget"—

"Honor? repeated Jim slowly. "No. What do I care for honor if I lose you, Marjie? Can't you see that I've loved you all the time and that it was just my infernal jealousy and pride that kicked up the trouble? Yes, I suppose we were children then, for children never stop to appreciate their happy comradeship till too late. But couldn't we be children again, Marjie—you and I—while all the rest are growing up? Do you remember, it was four years ago tonight that I met you—at the Prestous' box party?"

He drew her closer to him. Everything favored the contrite lover. The fragrance of the hothouse plants blended into a heavy perfume. The Japanese lanterns glowed softly with warm color harmony.

He gently turned her face from the shadow to the softly glowing light.

"Do you really love me, Marjie?" he repeated.

With a gesture of impatience—or was it of fright?—she arose and threw open a window. As she stood gazing into the night a distant hurdy gurdy struck up the much worn "Good Old Summer Time." He joined her.

"Do you remember the first time we heard it together down on the Jersey shore, Marjie?"

"Do it? Oh, what was I saying? It isn't fair," she implored.

Jim turned unsteadily from the freshening breeze to the heavy fragrance within. "Well, I guess it's goodby, Marjie." He held out his hand.

"Oh, why couldn't I"— she breathed.

He snatched her to him. "Marjie, look at me."

Slowly she raised her eyes, then as suddenly buried her face in her hands.

"Oh, how could you?" she gasped, with a frightened cry.

Gently he stroked her hair. "I'll go away and wait if it will do any good," he began feverishly, "if you'll—ah, hang that engagement! Others have discovered their mistake and broken off before it was too late. Will it do any good if I wait? Tell me, Marjie. I must know."

Unresisting, yet shaking violently, she rested her head against his shoulder, but only for an instant. There was a sound of moving chairs and approaching voices.

"May I come around tomorrow night?" he urged as he turned to the room.

She nodded carelessly, for steps were close at hand.

"We were just looking for you, Marjorie," said her sister. "It's time to cut the birthday cake. What has kept you two has-beens so busy out here? You'll be talked about."

"I was just outlining my future plans," answered Jim, following the girls to the card room.

* * * * * * *

"You're perfect dears, both of you," Marjorie was saying to Grace and Clinton an hour later. "Jimmy's such a dog in the manger. I knew he cared for me, but that he'd never come to the point unless some one else butted in. It was such a joke to see how everybody thought Clinton was engaged to little me when big sister was it the whole time."

Grace sleepily consulted her watch.

"It is getting very late," she commented. "Suppose you return my ring. From my first glimpse into the conservatory I should judge that yours will arrive in a day or two."

Memory of Sleepwalkers.

The memory of sleepwalkers is occasionally prodigious under the influence of the dominating impulse that moves them. There is an instance of a poor and illiterate basket maker, who was unable to read or write, yet in a state of sleep he would preach fluent sermons, which were afterward recognized as having formed portions of discourses he was accustomed to hear in the parish church as a child more than forty years before. Quite as strange a case of "unconscious memory" is referred to by Dr. Abercrombie. A girl given to sleepwalking was in the habit of imitating the violin with her lips, giving the preliminary tuning and scraping and flourishing with the utmost fidelity. It puzzled the physician a good deal, until he ascertained that when a child she lived in a room adjoining a fiddler who often performed on his violin in her hearing.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Foot of the Reindeer.

The foot of the reindeer is most peculiar in construction. It is cloven through the middle, and each half curves upward in front. It is slightly elongated and capable of a considerable amount of expansion. When placed on an irregular surface, which is difficult to traverse, the animal contracts the feet into a sort of claw, by which a firm hold is secured. When moving rapidly, the two portions of the foot as it is lifting strike together, the hoofs making a continuous clattering noise, which may be heard at a considerable distance. It is this peculiarity of the feet that makes the reindeer so sure footed and so valuable in rocky and uneven country, where almost any other animal would prove a failure as a beast of burden.

Merrymounts Win Opening Game

At Merrymount Park, on the morning of the holiday, the Merrymounts of Wollaston defeated the Mystics of Somerville in a slow and uninteresting game, 14 to 1. Not a single hit was made off Gram, who allowed no men to pass to first on balls. His pitching and batting were the features of the game.

Citizens of Wollaston, the Merrymounts again appear on the diamond with a fast ball nine. Gram and Leach will be the battery, and some heavy hitters are being secured by the new management. The team will be comprised wholly of local boys and they look for hearty financial support. A few of the players are passing around papers in Ward Five, soliciting subscriptions. It is hoped that a big guarantee paid in advance will enable the management to secure some big games on holiday dates.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

PARK THEATRE.

Miss Lillian Lawrence and her company are crowding the Park Theatre in Boston—"In the Bishop's Carriage." This is the first time the play has been seen in Boston and the success it encountered in New York and Chicago is being duplicated. Miss Lawrence's portrayal of the difficult role of "Nance Olden," the girl-thief has added fresh laurels to her already well known name. The story as told by Miss Miriam Michaelson in her book of the same name, is closely adhered to and all the original characters retained. Beginning next Monday night "The Gay Lord Quex," by Arthur W. Pinero, will inaugurate a week's run. At the matinee performance on Tuesday, June 4th, beautiful pocket mirrors with an excellent photograph of Miss Lawrence on the reverse side will be given as souvenirs to all the ladies in attendance. The regular matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday will be given.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The first light opera of the French to be given at the Castle Square is "The Mascot" and it will have its presentation there Monday evening by the stock opera company. With its scene laid in Italy during the 15th century, it introduces us first to Rocco's farm, then to the palace of Prince Lorenzo, and finally to the camp of Prince Frederick's army. Then the heroine, Bettina, the Mascot, joins the Prince's army disguised as a soldier and through her miraculous powers one after another victory perches upon their banners, until finally as a reward for her services, she is married to the shepherd, Pippo, now an officer, whom she has loved from childhood. At the Castle Square the title role will be sung by Miss Clara Lane, with J. K. Murray, Otis B. Thayer, Harry Davies, Louise Le Baron and the entire company in the cast.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another seasonable bill, full of bright, lively features, will be in evidence at Keith's next week. The most important event will be the farewell to the Boston vaudeville stage of those sterling entertainers, Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne. For their final appearances in the house where they have won so many triumphs "The New Depot," possibly the best and most characteristic of all Mr. Cressy's sketches, has been selected. The original Pony Ballet whose capital dancing act has been the chief feature of several musical comedies since they first came to this country and who recently finished a most successful engagement with "His Honor the Mayor" will surely prove a most attractive feature.

THE ORPHEUM.

Pauline, an eminent French hypnotist and purveyer of the occult, will be the big heedline attraction at Percy Williams' Orpheum for the week beginning June 3. He will give demonstrations of his skill as a mind reader and as a hypnotist, giving an exhibition such as never before seen in Boston. While Dr. Pauline's demonstrations are in a nature scientific and his audiences find much to amuse them as well as to startle. Ye Colonial Septette, the most ambitious musical production ever made for vaudeville, is the big musical novelty on the bill. New moving pictures by the Kinetograph will complete the entertainment.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

It is good news to the theatre-going public of New England that arrangements have just been completed by which it will not be necessary for "The Time, The Place and The Girl" to leave Boston upon the conclusion of the original limit of the engagement as booked at the Tremont theatre next Saturday night. So great was the success of this offering that it was quickly evident that four weeks would not suffice, but then difficulties began to arise, and for a time it looked as if it would be absolutely impossible to play here more than the first period no matter how greatly the Askin-Singer Company might desire to arrange it. There were other attractions booked to follow upon the stage of the Tremont theatre, and no change of bookings could be effected. However, there was a possibility for "The Time, The Place and The Girl" to move to another theatre, and that was what was decided to do. No better spot could be chosen than the Colonial theatre and therefore arrangements have been completed by which the transfer will be made immediately after the close of the original run of "The Time, The Place and The Girl." There will be no loss of performances and no interruption of the regular season of the play, the only difference being that it will be presented upon the stage of the Colonial theatre instead at the spot where it has been so greatly enjoyed for the last three weeks and more. Remember that the time will be any evening after next Monday, the place—the Colonial theatre.

FRANK A. ROBBINS CIRCUS.

If there are any of our readers who have not heard of that prince of arenic managers and good fellows, Frank A. Robbins, all Greater New York has, and sends him forth to tour the country at large with its best wishes for his success and the strongest words of praise for the great incorporated circus, menagerie and hippodrome organized under his name and run under his personal direction. Frank will again be found to be a past master in the business of making huge holiday crowds wide-eyed with wonder and delight and chock full of thrills and tickles, and such will for one among thousands of times be the verdict here on Wednesday next, June 5, when his great train-loads of wild beasts, arenic and aerial artists, hippodrone celebrities and thousand and one performances and pageant features come rolling in upon us—a tidal wave of sensation and superlative fun and recreation. Everybody is already agog to see Alpha and Omega, those mid-air wizards of the bike, in their fearsome precipitous flight down to and across a death trap, in the shape of a yawning fifty-foot gap across which they supernaturally soar awheel. Equally extraordinary, in its way is the colossal animal act, introducing at the same time in one arena performing elephants, zebras, camels, water buffalo, llamas, dogs, goats, horses, ponies, dromedaries, monkeys, mules, donkeys, bears, sacred cattle and other highly educated wild and domestic beasts. The new heroic and historic pageant "The Tribunal of Nations," serves to introduce in royal pomp and splendor living counterparts of Napoleon, Frederick the Great, Julius Caesar, and other famous rulers of ancient and modern times, in the armor and royal costumes of their day.

Birth of the American Flag

Friday, the 14th of June, will be the one hundred thirtieth anniversary of the birth of the flag of the United States. The flag was designed for a nation of thirteen colonies, stretched like a belt along the Atlantic coast, made up of less than three millions of people without common traditions or language; drawn together only by common danger from savages within, and oppression from without, which threatened their existence and liberties. That flag now waves over a great nation, extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the Lakes; from the Atlantic to beyond the Pacific Sea; and inhabited by nearly ninety millions of people, who speak a common language.

Our flag in now—in form—the oldest flag of civilized nations. The resolution of Congress for the adoption of the Stars and Stripes on June the 14th, 1777, was as follows:—"Resolved that the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The design of this flag is credited to George Washington, and in part was taken from his family coat of arms. Such is the origin of a flag dedicated to the proposition that "all men are created free and equal." Let us honor the natal day of our national flag—displaying it from our public buildings, schools, and homes in recognition of this memorable day.

The men of the Grand Army of the Republic, who preserved the nation in the greatest war of modern times and made vital the Declaration of our fathers, call upon all who live under the flag to recognize this day by patriotic observances in schools and—on the Sunday preceding—in churches. To this end we suggest that the Governor of every State by proclamation announce the day and promote its recognition; that the press scatter this call—as seeds of patriotism—broadcast over the land. Such recognition will nourish the greatness of our nation, inculcate noble citizenship, the principles of civil liberty, and be an object lesson to the new generations that have come upon the stage since the Civil War.

The Octopus Seaworthy

The first test of 200 feet of the U. S. S. Octopus is to be made by lowering the vessel from a floating derrick to this depth. The nearest place where this depth can be obtained is some five or six miles to the northeast of the Boston Light Ship. In this locality considerable sea is set up when the wind is at all strong, particularly if it is an easterly wind, and during and after an easterly wind the undertow is very strong. The condition necessary, therefore, is a comparatively calm day following a westerly wind.

The gear required is very heavy, each of the two blocks which must be shackled to straps on the boat weighing about half a ton. When there is any sea on, owing to the movement of the boat and the derrick, it is impossible to handle these heavy blocks and shackle them to the straps, and when there is an undertow the submarine gets carried underneath the derrick with grave danger of twisting the falls, involving the possibility of breaking the same and losing the boat.

This boat was built under contract for the government, which has already paid about 85 per cent. of its purchase price. The method of conducting the test was specified by the trial board as it enabled them to definitely determine the depth by attaching a measured tape to the boat without going in it. The Cuttlefish, a similar but slightly smaller vessel, has already been subjected to this test and passed it successfully, and there is no doubt in the minds of either the government authorities or ourselves that the Octopus will also pass it successfully.

Owing to the shape of certain castings employed in the structure, it was impossible to test them before installation and the only possibility of any trouble would lie in concealed flaws in some of these castings. This first test will demonstrate the strength of these castings, after which it will be permissible to allow the crew to take the vessel down 200 feet. There is possibly one chance in ten thousand of such a flaw developing and it is considered wiser by the authorities not to allow the crew to take the vessel down until after this preliminary test.

So far as the boat itself is concerned, the question of wind and sea cuts no figure at all. She has already demonstrated herself to be an excellent sea boat, and can go anywhere and can perform her functions in any kind of weather. She made the trip under her own power from Quincy to Newport in a gale blowing 45 miles an hour with a heavy sea, and behaved splendidly. She satisfied the trial board at Newport that she was a good sea boat, and as a part of her official contract trials next month she will be required to spend four days at sea to thoroughly demonstrate her seaworthiness and independence of weather conditions.

The articles appearing in the press for the last few days have created the impression in the minds of the public that the test has not taken place because the boat could not go out in bad weather. But in fact the whole trouble lies with the difficulty of handling the gear required to sink her when there is either any sea running or an undertow.

GOOD FEELING

Young Lady Sponsors of United States Navy To Organize

The young ladies who christen the warship launched at Quincy are always enthusiastic over the duty assigned them and regard it as a great honor. Beause they have pleasant recollections of these events it is proposed to organize a Society of the Sponsors of the United States Navy. At an early date, the Salem, a sister ship of the Birmingham launched last week, will take her dip at Quincy, and it will be christened by Miss Lorna Pinnock, the daughter of the mayor of Salem. The correspondence between the two sponsors is of interest:

My Dear Miss Campbell: As sponsor of the sister ship of the Birmingham, permit me to congratulate you on the successful launching of that vessel. May we not trust that these two ships—the Birmingham and the Salem—will long carry the stars and stripes and be emblematical of the friendship and the love of the North and South. I have your picture from the papers, but I shall be much pleased to receive from you your photograph in remembrance of the occasion. Sincerely yours,

Lorna Pinnock.

Miss Campbell replied as follows:

My dear Miss Pinnock: I appreciate your letter and its cordial sentiments, and am pleased that you were kind enough to write it. In Birmingham and in Alabama we love the stars and stripes, and I reciprocate your thought that the sister ships—the Birmingham and the Salem—may be emblematical of the friendship and love of North and South.

A good friend in Boston has suggested that we might organize the Society of the Sponsors of the United States Navy. From the pleasant association and comradeship that should grow out of it, we would contribute our mite to the development of our navy and to the furthering of the good feeling which should prrvade all sections of our glorious country.

If you will join in this suggestion. I will ask our congressman from the Birmingham district—Mr. Underwood—to get the names of the sponsors of the other ships, and, together, we can correspond with them and perfect our organization.

Wouldn't it be nice for Salem and Birmingham—Massachusetts and Alabama—to lead off in this matter? It will add an interest, if anything can add an interest to all future launchings. I hope the Salem will be as good a boat and as successful a scout as the Birmingham will be, and that you will enjoy the honor of christening her as much as I have that of her sister ship. I cannot wish you more happiness. I will be pleased to send you my photograph from Birmingham and hope you will send me yours. With best wishes for your success, I am,sincerely yours,

May Campbell.

Arrested in Barre For Quincy Offence

A dispatch from Barre, Vt., states that a man giving the name of Fred Barry, but believed to be Fred Crosby, for whom a reward of $50 is offered for his arrest for larceny at Quincy was arrested Saturday by Chief Faulkner.

After his arrest Crosby admitted that he had been in Quincy, but that his name was not Crosby, and begged the chief to let him go. When told that Chief Burrell would send a man after him he remarked "I'm up against it now."

Crosby is wanted by Chief Burrell for larceny from Timberlake & Small the Atlantic grocers. It is alleged by them last March as a driver of a delivery wagon he collected certain sums of money from customers which he neglected to turn in.

When the thefts were discovered he hastily left for parts unknown. A reward of $50 was offered for his apprehension.

Lieut McKay left for Barre, Vt., on Sunday, to bring Crosby to Quincy.

Yacht Races By Local Clubs

The race of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon for the Cape Cat class was an interesting one from start to finish. There are three new boats in the class this year, the Emeline, Almira and Dartwell. In the same class are the last year flyers, Arawak, Iris, C. C. Hustler and Moondyne.

This of course made the race interesting and it is safe to say that the Cape cat class will be the observed of all observers of the Quincy club races.

The wind Saturday was strong from the east, enabling the yachts to carry wholesail. It was a close race from start to finish between the Emeline and Arawak. The Emeline however won by 54 seconds actual time and 25 seconds corrected time.

The Almira, Ira M. Whittemore's new boat, finished in third position, although but 27 seconds behind the Arawak by corrected time, and 57 seconds behind the Emeline. It will be seen, therefore, that less than a minute separated the three leaders.

The Moondyne and George Saville's new boat, the Dartwell, have not been measured as yet, and their corrected time is not given.

The judges were John O. Hall, George S. Morse and Thomas E. Furnald.

The summary:

Three classes started in the race Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club, although classes A and C had only one each.

Class B turned out a good number and there was quite an interesting scrap. Vice Commodore Dawes in the Stranger however had things his own way from the start, winning from the Fannie D by six minutes 20 seconds actual time, and 40 seconds by corrected time.

The starter in class A was the Harold D and in class C the Swastika.

The Squantum Yacht club opened its racing season Saturday by a club race for the Flander cup. The wind was from the easterly, just enough to allow the craft to carry wholesail. Later in the race the wind shifted to the south but did not diminish any in strength.

Two classes started and the course was one of seven miles. Commodore Sawyer in the Eleanor had things pretty much his own way in Class A, and finished with a lead of over 12 minutes actual time, and over six minutes corrected time.

In Class B the Osceola was the winner both on actual and corrected time. The judges were Howard Gannett, Jr., Benjamin Sargent and Hamilton Flood.

The Quincy Board of Trade went on record Saturday evening after a prolonged debate in favor of the petition before the City Council for a double track on Hancock street from City Square to School street.

It was voted on motion of F. F. Prescott that the President of the Board of Trade be requested to appear at the public hearing of the City Council in favor of the petition for a double track on Hancock street.

It was also voted on motion of J. A. Sedgwick that it was the sense of the Board of Trade that Hancock street should be widened where necessary, and that now was the opportune time.

Upon motion of Repesentative Hultman, a committee of five was appointed to consider plans of widening, especially with reference to assessing a portion of the cost upon the street railway.

The President appointed Eugene C. Hultman, J. A. Sedgwick, J. R. Richards, William Thompson and W. R. Thomas.

ADULTERATED WINE

Proved a Serious Boomerang to Growers In France

SEEK LEGISLATIVE ACTION

Competition Between Manufactured Article and Natural Product Responsible For Poverty In Several Provinces--Prices at Bed Rock

Paris, June 3.—The general and profound distress which has overtaken the wine growers of France, reducing some regions to a pitiable condition of poverty, is due to a variety of causes, but chiefly to over-production and consequent low prices. The result has been an agitation on the part of the wine growers for the complete suppression of manufactured wine sold in competition with the natural product. The great popular demonstrations recently at Beziers and Pedpignan had this as their direct object.

Unfortunately, it is hardly likely that legislative action in this direction will relieve the wine growers, as there are other evils of which they themselves have been guilty, as indeed most of them have been guilty of the very adulteration against which they now so bitterly complain.

It should be understood that the wine crisis has affected only slightly the higher class of wines, but is confined to low grade, inferior wines drunk by the masses.

The beginning of the trouble dates back to 30 years ago when two-thirds of the vineyards of France were ravished and practically destroyed by the phylloxera. This scourge, it was found, attacked only degenerate plants enfeebled by decades if not centuries of growth. The strong, vigorous American plant was immune and it was used universally in replanting the vineyards, the French varieties of grapes being subsequently grafted upon the American roots. During the period of renewal, however, from 1875 to 1888, the production of natural wine was largely below consumption. Resort was naturally had to adulteration, which first took the form of re-enforcing the third wine pressings with alcohol and other chemicals.

Fraudulent wine was at that time deemed a sort of public benefaction, as it enabled the poorer classes accustomed to the beverage to obtain it at a reasonable price. But the deficit in the natural product, besides inducing the planting of an immense area of new vineyards hitherto devoted to cereals, etc., led to various expedients for increasing the yield of the vine. The most effective means was ascertained to be the submerging of the vineyards in the low valleys during a portion of the season.

This method produced colossal results. A vineyard which formerly yielded from 30 to 50 hectolitres (the normal production of hillside vineyards) was made to produce 200 hectolitres. Over-production and fraudulent wine then steadily beared prices until after the enormous crops of 1899 and 1900 it fell at one time to 2 francs a hectolitre, as against a normal price of from 20 to 30. This crisis was followed in the northern districts by the growth of the manufacture of wine from sugar and chemicals, and when the price of sugar fell, after the denunciation of the Brussels agreement in 1903, the growers themselves were in the business of adulteration by wholesale.

The Temps printed a table giving the names of scores of communes where the output of wine exceeded two and three fold the quantity of grapes grown. One district threw 13,470 hectolitres on the national market. The amount of spurious wine sold also had the effect of reducing consumption and the substitution of beer among the working classes.

Physicians found it deleterious and among the common people the first admonition was always against the use of wine. Among the middle classes it led to the gradual increase of total abstinence, and today there are thousands of French families who never have wine upon their tables, whereas 20 years ago the drinking of wine was universal. It is estimated that 500,000 people in Paris do not drink wine.

While the rigorous suppression of fraudulent wine will undoubtedly greatly relieve the situation of the growers, it is the opinion of the closest students of conditions that there will still be over-production and that the only effective remedy for the present distress will be the return of a large area of ground now planted in vineyards to wheat, potatoes and other products of agriculture.

Parade of Two Hundred Thousand

Nimes, France, June 3.—A gigantic demonstration of wine growers was held here yesterday as a protest against the adulteration of wine. Two hundred thousand persons marched in the procession. The day passed without violence.

Says Revenge Is Certain

New York, June 3.—Admitting he knows the identity of the man who stabbed him and declaring he is the victim of a vendetta, Carmelo Catroneo is probably dying, but refuses to give any information that will will put the police on the track of his assailant. Catroneo says he will attend to the case if he recovers, and that if he does not there are others who will.

WOUNDS PROVE FATAL

Youth Who Shot Two Men Faces Murder and Manslaughter Charges

Providence, June 3.—Both Thomas E. Edmundson and Amos N. Gorham, the two men employed in the office of the timekeeper of the Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing company, who were shot last Friday by another clerk, Fitzroy Willard, following a quarrel between Willard and Gorham, are dead of their injuries, and it is expected that warrants will be sworn out charging Willard with murder in the case of Gorham and manslaughter on account of the death of Edmundson. Edmundson's death, which occurred at midnight Saturday night, was followed by the death of Gorham last night.

Willard is in jail in default of bonds of $15,000. He says he was angry with Gorham because the latter called him a sneak and that the shooting of Edmundson was an accident, due to the effort of Edmundson, with other clerks, to prevent him from shooting Gorham. Willard is 20 years old.

Pennsy Wins In Athletics

Boston, June 3.—Five star athletes from the University of Pennsylvania won the intercollegiate championship in the Harvard Stadium. New intercollegiate figures were written in six events. Pennsylvania was given a splendid fight for first place by the University of Michigan, the Quakers scoring a total of 33 to 29 for Michigan. Yale had 23 points, Cornell 15, Princeton 10, Syracuse 8, Harvard 7, Swarthmore 6, Dartmouth 5, Amherst 4, Williams 2, and Johns Hopkins 1.

Idle Rich Cause Suffering

Worcester, Mass., June 3.—Rev. Eliot White, for 10 years pastor of St. John's Episcopal church, has presented his resignation. White says that his action was taken because of his views on political economy, including his belief in communal ownership in railroads and other public necessities and his conviction that a great deal of suffering is brought about by the idle rich. White says that he intends to enter upon a "campaign for civic righteousness."

Lewiston Weavers Dissatisfied

Lewiston, Me., June 3.—The weavers held a meeting Sunday and discussed at length the wage situation in this city. Finally a committee was appointed to meet the mill agents with a view of pressing their demands for a 10 percent advance in wages. No definite action will be taken by the Textile Workers' union until word is received from national headquarters, to whom they have written for support in pressing their demands for the 10 percent increase.

Trained Nurses For Public Schools

Boston, June 3.—Considering the health of the pupils of the public schools to be of as great importance as the intellectual training, the Boston school committee has decided to appoint a corps of trained nurses, whose duty it shall be to safeguard the health of the youth in the schools. The plan provides for the appointment of 21 women nurses, who, under a supervisor, will be placed in charge of all the pupils.

Mellen Criticised by Labor

Boston, June 3.—At a meeting of the Boston Central Labor union recent utterances of President Mellen of the New Haven road regarding labor conditions were discussed. A resolution was adopted to the effect that whereas Mellen "claimed that a higher wage meant less efficiency and poorer service" the union "condemns all such utterances as tending to inflame the public mind and arouse class hatred."

Unexpected Finding of Body

Holyoke, Mass., June 3.—While the police were searching a canal here for the body of a boy who was drowned a week ago, they found the body of James L. Vahey, 26 years old, who had been employed as a drug clerk and was last seen May 27, but of whose drowning there had been no suspicion. His drowning is regarded as accidental. The body of the boy was not recovered.

Boston Experiences Queer Weather

Boston, June 3.—Boston was treated to a variety of snow, hail and rain yesterday, with the lowest temperature in June in 16 years and a gale which kicked up a terrible sea in the bay, making the docking of vessels hazardous and keeping all the lighter craft snug in the harbor. The temperature dropped to 47, while for half an hour late in the day snow fell.

Suicide of School Principal

Topsfield, Mass., June 3.—E. D. Brooks, aged 28, principal of the high school here, committed suicide on the Beverly turnpike by taking cyanide of potassium. Brooks, it is understood, had become involved in difficulties over checks and notes with a Salem bank. Brooks left two notes written in Beverly in which he explained the reasons for his suicide.

Two Locomotives Wrecked

Milo, Me., June 3.—A passenger train collided with a freight in the Milo Junction yard, causing no serious injury to any of the passengers. The cause of the collision is said to have been the failure of a semaphore signal to work properly and notify the engineer of the passenger train of the presence of the freight on the track.

Strike of Brewery Coopers

Boston, June 3.—Two hundred brewery coopers, members of Coopers' union 89, representing the entire coopering force of the local breweries, voted to remain away from the breweries until granted their demands for a minimum wage of $4 a day. It is believed the matter will be early adjusted.

THE HAYWOOD TRIAL

May Last Sixty Days After Taking of Testimony Begins

THE ORCHARD CONFESSION

Little Is Known as to Its Nature, but State Is Believed to Have Much In Reserve to Corroborate It--Labor Men's Great Defense Fund

Boise, Ida., June 3.—The work of procuring a jury in the case of William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg, will be resumed today. Although a little drawn and pale as a result of medicine and the opiates administered to relieve him from acute pains which he suffered Saturday, Haywood appears to be in his normal condition.

Forty-four talesmen remain of the venire of 61 summoned last week. Only one more peremptory challenge can be exercised and this lies with the defense. This leaves two more to qualify if the defense should see fit to exercise its last challenge. That they will do so is admitted by counsel, but it is not expected that there will be much difficulty in qualifying the two men out of the talesmen yet to be examined.

With a jury completed before adjournment tonight, the case for the state will be opened by James H. Hawley, leading counsel, tomorrow. This will be a lengthy recital of the position taken by the state of Idaho in the effort to prove that Haywood, with Moyer, Pettibone, Simpkins and Orchard, were responsible for the death of Steunenberg on the night of Dec. 30, 1905.

It is now nearly 16 months since Harry Orchard, by his own confession, it is alleged, the assassin of Steunenberg, made a sworn statement, implicating what is called the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners in the plot to murder Steunenberg and in a series of crimes extending over many years of the history of labor and mining troubles in Idaho.

Intimation of what Orchard stated in his confession has come from one source and another from time to time during the last year, but it may be stated positively that little is known of the contents of the confession which will figure, it is said, as the most startling feature of the case against Haywood, first of the prisoners to be placed on trial.

It is believed that the state has in reserve much to corroborate Orchard's testimony. In the procuring of this corroboration a private detective agency has figured largely. James McPartland, famous as the principal figure in the Molly Maguire troubles, directed the work. He makes the statement that he believes he has a complete case.

On the other hand, the defense of Haywood has been as busily at work as the prosecution. Detectives have followed every clue and every intimation of what the secret agency was doing. A large amount of money, estimated to be as much as $500,000, has been subscribed by the members of the Western Federation of Miners and by other labor organizations throughout the country.

Counsel for the defense assert that Orchard's implication of their clients was made out of whole cloth and that the Western Federation of Miners had nothing to do with the Steunenberg assassination. It is charged that what is known as the Mine Owners' association, which has fought the Western Federation of Miners for many years, is behind the effort to discredit the officers of the Federation.

The state will not be able to conclude under three weeks or, possibly, 30 days. The case for the defense will take equally as long. It may therefore be estimated that the case will last 60 days after the opening.

Sympathy For Accused Men

Columbus, O., June 3.—The Socialist party of Ohio yesterday adopted resolutions extending sympathy to Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone and denouncing President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft.

Croker as an Irish Politician

London, June 3.—The newspapers are reviving the report that Richard Croker cherishes an ambition to enter the British parliament as an Irish Nationalist member. Recently Croker has taken an interest in the work of the Nationalists, made contributions to the party funds, loaned automobiles for electioneering purposes and otherwise identified himself with the party.

Lad Killed by Falling Walls

Bridgeport, Conn., June 3.—Carl Hender, 18 years old, was killed by falling walls during a fire which totally destroyed a five-story building occupied by Miner, Read & Garrette, a wholesale firm. The loss is about $25,000. One fireman was knocked unconscious by falling brick and several others had narrow escapes.

Ghost Walked Half Way

Tangier, June 3.—A serious mutiny of the sultan's troops at Casablanca has broken out. The trouble arose over the non-payment of the men. The mutineers attempted to seize merchandise lying in the custom house, but the authorities succeeded in preventing this by paying the men half of the amount due them.

ENGLAND IS SILENT

Gives No Views In Advance of Conference at the Hague

ARMAMENT EXPENDITURES

Bannerman's Proposal, For Reduction Does Not Meet With Enthusiasm Which Was Anticipated--United States May Bring Up the Question

London, June 3.—Although The Hague conference meets on June 15, the British delegates have not been instructed as to the attitude they shall maintain on the subjects included in the Russian program or on other questions to be introduced by the powers.

There have been several cabinet meetings at which Foreign Secretary Grey has brought up the question of The Hague conference, but the cabinet has not yet reached a decision on any point and possibly another week will elapse before the delegates can be instructed. Even Prime Minister Campbell-Bannerman's proposal for a reduction in expenditures for armaments has not yet been outlined, and while those members of the government favoring discussion of the subject still maintain that it should be brought up there is a strong feeling that, after all, it might be better to drop the matter or to leave it for some other power to introduce.

The government certainly is greatly disappointed at the manner in which the question has been received, the United States and Spain being the only powers showing any enthusiasm for it. It is learned that even though those governments which were asked by Great Britain for their views as to how the subject should be introduced and which answered the request have not received any further communication from Great Britain and still are in the dark as to what this country purposes to do. It is possible, however, that the matter may be cleared up while Joseph H. Choate, one of the American delegates to the conference, is here, as Secretary Root's answer to Grey's communication is known to be favorable to a discussion of the question, even should no practicable results be obtained.

Great Britain is most anxious to do nothing at which Germany would take offense, and it is possible, therefore, that another power, preferably the United States, will be urged to bring up the question with a promise of Great Britain's support.

Great Britain will, of course, do everything in her power to increase the efficiency of the court of arbitration, and the government is being pressed by its supporters to move for the throwing open of The Hague arbitration court to all matters of all nations and for the extension of the processes of arbitration, mediation and investigation; but on this point, as on other points, no decision has yet been reached.

The delegates will be instructed to give support to suggestions for the alleviation of sufferings caused by warfare, but they will carefully examine any questions of international law, such as the rights of neutrals, the possibility of exempting private property from capture at sea, contraband, the limitation of the right of search, commercial blockades, the organization of prize courts, floating mines, etc.

There is an element of the Liberal party represented in the cabinet that has made exemption of private property at sea one of the planks of its platform since Great Britain opposed the suggestion at the last Hague conference, so there is a possibility of the government making some concession under this head if it can overcome the opposition of permanent officials of the foreign office, upon whom the members of the cabinet depend largely for advice on foreign affairs and who maintain Great Britain's traditional objection to a change, although Great Britain, of all powers, is more affected by the application of the principle that a public debt cannot justify armed intervention. Secretary Grey has practically agreed that should the United States propose the application of the Drago doctrine to the South American republics, Great Britain will not object to it.

Great Britain has reserved the right to abstain from participation in the discussion of any articles of the program which, in her opinion, will not lead to useful results, and Grey recently announced that the government also reserved the right to raise any other question of international interest not mentioned in the list given in the Russian invitation, but what these subjects which she will not discuss, and those which she intends to introduce are, the foreign office will not say.

SLOOP CAPSIZED

Lone Survivor of Party of Five May Not Recover From Exposure

New Haven, June 3.—Edward Auth of Brooklyn was brought here last night on tug Wyoming, the sole survivor of a party of five men, the other four members having been drowned when the sloop Belle capsized in a heavy sea off Norwalk in Long Island sound. Auth is in a precarious condition as a result of hours of buffeting by the waves as he clung to the overturned boat before he was taken off by the Wyoming. The others of the party were Jacob Auth, brother of Edward; August Jaeger, Otto Pfleger and George Glazer.

According to Auth's story, the party left this city Saturday in the sloop for their homes in Brooklyn. They put into Bridgeport Saturday evening and spent the night there. They left that city yesterday morning and when off Norwalk stopped to fix the machinery. A heavy sea was running at the time, and in some manner the boat capsized and all the men were thrown into the water. Auth's companions made attempts to cling to the craft, but slipped off into the water and were drowned. Auth held on until late yesterday afternoon when the wreck was sighted and he was rescued by the tug.

Longshoremen Reduce Demands

New York, June 3.—At a meeting of the striking Longshoremen's union, demands made a month or more ago on the steamship companies were revised and the new demands will be made to the steamship companies today. Soon after the strike began a compromise was effected with the Savannah and Morgan lines on a basis of 35 cents for day work and 50 cents for night work. At yesterday's meeting it was decided to reduce the original demands made on the trans-Atlantic lines to the figure of the compromise with the two coast lines.

Seamen's Strike In Full Blast

Paris, June 3.—The striking seamen are displaying extraordinary unanimity of resolution. It is the same tale in every portion of France. Not only are ships unable to start, owing to desertions by officers and crew, but the men aboard French vessels arriving immediately throw in their lot with the strikers, even though their voyages are incomplete and they are liable to prosecution for so doing. The struggle of the seamen to obtain their demands promises to be a long and stubborn one

Balloon Struck by Lightning

Rome, June 3.—During a review of the troops by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena a military balloon was sent up to a height of 700 feet with Captain Uvillivelli in the car. A storm burst suddenly and a flash of lightning struck the gas bag. The collapsed balloon, with its dangling car, fell to earth over a mile from the scene of the review. Uvillivelli was found alive, but unconscious. He was rushed to a hospital, where he died.

A Garibaldi Celebration

New York, June 3.—In celebration of the 25th anniversary of the death of Garibaldi, the two Italian ships now in the Hudson river fired a national salute of 21 guns and the ships were dressed. Four American battleships and the Austrian and Brazilian cruisers were likewise dressed and they thundered out in unison a salute of 21 guns, the Italian flag being run to the fore on each ship.

Passenger Train Wrecked

San Antonio, Tex., June 3.—One man instantly killed and a score of persons injured, some of whom will die, is the result of the wrecking of a passenger train two miles west of Lozier. The derailment was the result either of train wreckers or defective steel. The engine passed over the obstruction, though every car in the train was derailed, two of them turning over.

Russians Need No More Aid

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The Russian famine committee has notified its representatives in London and New York that the time has arrived to cease agitation for foreign subscriptions, as Russia is now able to care for her own people. Assistance sent Finland from Great Britain and America has been a mighty weapon to force the Russian government to do its duty.

Snow In New York

New York, June 3.—Snow fell in New York yesterday. The flakes were not of the sort that make sleighing and snowballs, nor did they fall as snow all the way to the pavements, but they swirled about the tops of the skyscrapers and before melting added a midwinter touch to the most remarkable June 2 that New Yorkers have known.

Socialists Condemn Terrorism

London, June 3.—The Russian Social Democratic congress finished its session yesterday after passing a resolution condemning terrorism and in favor of the continuance of the douma. Several parties of delegates have started on their perilous journey home.

Parliament Blocked Reforms

Lisbon, June 3.—Premier Franco, in explaining the political situation, declared that the dissolution of parliament was necessary for public order. After years of fruitless efforts the government had found it was impossible to carry on work, owing to parliamentary obstruction to reforms. The king will continue his endeavors to carry out the reforms of the government by decree. This will only be temporary, and as soon as all the parties are prepared to fulfill their duties parliament will be reassembled.

Thinks He Has Rare Painting

St. Louis, June 3.—Edward Sells of this city believes he has identified a painting that he purchased a year ago for less than $100 as the famous "St. Jerome," painted by Titian about 1531. No trace of the painting has been had since about 1627. Sells purchased the picture from Allison K. Stewart, a St. Louis mining engineer, to whom it was given in 1900 by a padre in the mountains of Honduras after Stewart had given him a liberal offering of silver for his poor.

Complaint of Japanese

Tokio, June 3.—It is reported that members of the progressive party will soon hold a meeting, specially called to consider the American question and to formulate demands on the American authorities, through the Tokio government, relating to the treatment of Japanese in America. It is also reported that, if necessary, a mass meeting will be called to demonstrate public feeling against the reported persecutions of Japanese in San Francisco.

Bail Wanted For Burnham

New York, June 3.—Arrangements have been made for an application in the supreme court for the admission to bail of George Burnham, Jr., former vice president of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assurance company, who was brought to New York from Sing Sing to await a new trial on the reversal of his conviction by the appellate court. Burnham is in the Tombs prison.

'Great Legal Struggle Begun

Austin, June 3.—The Waters-Pierce Oil company of Missouri was adjudged guilty of violating the anti-trust laws of Texas, convicted of having entered the state by fraud and fined $1,623,900. The state's request for ousting proceedings was granted. The trial consumed three weeks and its conclusion is merely the beginning of a long legal struggle.

Richmond, June 3.—In an interview here last night, William J. Bryan said that, under certain conditions, he probably would be a candidate for the presidential nomination, that is, if the party demanded it and if he considered it for the good of the party.

Outsider Wins French Derby

Chantilly, June 3.—The Prix de Jockey Club (the French Derby), a race for 3-year-olds at 1½ miles, resulted in the victory of Maurice Ephrussi's Mordant, an outsider in the betting, 26 to 1 being laid against him. Fourteen horses started.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Unusually Large Death Roll Among Odd Fellows Of Wollaston

Nearly 100 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs braved the very inclement weather of Sunday afternoon and attended the annual memorial services of John Hancock lodge, No. 224, held by invitation of Rev. E. W. Hunt at the Wollaston Unitarian church. The lodge extended the invitation to Mt Wollaston, Neponset and Crescent lodges. Manet and Wampatuck encampments, and George L. Gill, Reliance and Steadfast Rebekah lodges.

The order of service was as follows:

Opening voluntary
The Doxology, Hymn No. 6.
Anthem, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord." Gannett
By Church Choir
Responsive reading, The 34th selection page 70.
Anthem, "They shall come down like rain" Dudley Buck
Scripture reading, Matthew 25
Prayer
Anthem, "Heart be still" John C. Warren
Necrology addres, Past Grand George H. Prentiss
Hymn, No. 32
Sermon, Rev. E. W. Hunt
Anthem, "The mellow eve is gliding" John C. Holden
Hymn, Memorial Hymn, No. 840
Benedection
Closing voluntary

During the past year four members, and also an Odd Fellow of another lodge, have died, an unusually large number. Past Grand George H. Prentiss in his necrology address had a tribute for each, and a brief review of their life work.

Edward L. Robbins, who died June 22, 1906, was born in Plymouth, Mass. in 1836, and became a charter member of the lodge in 1893. Early in life he was a shoe maker and printer. He enlisted in the war and saw service. Later he was successful as a newspaper man and correspondent and was at the time of his death press agent of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Charles A. Staples, who died Feb. 1, 1907, was born in Maine in 1857, and initiated into the order in 1902. He invented an extension ladder extensively used. At the time of his death he was foreman at the Wollaston foundry.

Seymour Fild, who died March 20, 1907, was born in Northfield, Mass., in 1838, and was initiated into the order in 1893. He was a machinist and at the time of his death was connected with the United States Machinery Company.

Wallace B. Rice, who was born in 1857, came to Wollaston about five years ago, and during his last illness of six months was in care of John Hancock lodge. He joined the order at Everett.

Past Grand Charles F. Marr, who died suddenly on Saturday last was a much respected member of the lodge. He was born in 1839 and learned the trade of a mason. He came to Wollaston about fifteen years ago and was initiated into the order in 1893.

Rev. E. W. Hunt, the pastor, in his address, said it was an interesting occasion because of the institutions represented,—the church and the lodge. He quoted from the report of the Grand Master of Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Massachusetts, which reported the order to have gained largely in members the past year, and also in a good financial condition. The church salutes you, and hopes for the continued success of the order. The church regrets it cannot make as satisfactory a showing.

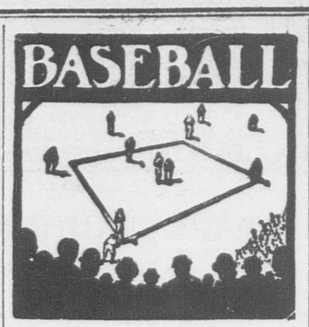

At present the emphasis was on "organized" church, but he felt that there was grave anxiety for the church. The thoughtful man must reflect and become interested in the church. The church of the future must become the spiritual power house of the community.

The speaker felt that the members of the lodge did not gather on this occasion simply to remember their dead but for such inspiration that the church might give the lodge and individual. In the universal order every truth is a degree, and the screts are revealed to those worthy of them.

The singing by the church quartette added much to the program, and the members joined heartily in singing the hymns, especially the Memorial hymn to the tune of Auld Lang Syne.

WEYMOUTH ASSAULT.

Sunday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, when a street car arrived from Weymouth, there alighted from it a man down whose face was streaks of blood. Officer Goodhue saw the man and arrested him on suspicion and sent him to the police station. Later it was learned that the man was wanted for an assault at Weymouth.

It appears that there was a row among some of the workmen at Bradley's phosphate works, during which it is alleged that Schultz picked up an empty bootle and struck one of the party a savage blow on the head.

The man's head was cut open, and he was felled to the floor. During the row Schultz was also cut and his face covered with blood. He then left the house and was headed toward Boston when picked up by Officerr Goodhue. Schultz was arraigned in court.

POSTAL RECEIPTS

On the Increase And Salary of Our Postmaster Also Jumping

In congratulating Postmaster Chas. L. Hammond over an increase of $100 in salary for the year beginning July 1, Quincy itself is to be congratulated as the post office receipts upon which the salaries are based is one of the best indications of the city's business.

Some postmasters suffer reduction, and only a comparatively small number out of the total get increases, but Quincy is one of these. The salary of Postmaster Hammond will be $3,200 which is the same as Taunton, and more than Northhampton, Newburyport, Beverly, Marlboro, Chicopee and other cities.

Several Norfolk county towns get increases including: Wellesley, Holbrook, Randolph, Needham, Medfield, Canton, Foxboro, Stoughton, Franklin and others.

The postmasters at New Bedford, Lawrence and Holyoke receive only $100 more than the Quincy postmaster.

CLEANING FURS.

How to Treat Them at Home When They Are Soiled.

Keeping white furs clean is like keeping linens looking fresh, for both need much attention and frequent cleansing, says the Washington Times.

Of course if women can afford to have furriers do this work they need not be so particular about preventing their muffs, collarets or capes from getting soiled, but when the cleansing must be done at home too much care cannot be taken to keep them clean, for the process of cleaning ermine, coney, angora or any of the white furs, real or imitation, is a long, tedious one that takes much strength.

To begin with, they must be put out on a line and well sunned and aired for a day or two; then they must be whipped gently, yet firmly, with a rattan stick until no dust flies when they are pounded. When the loose dirt is out, the furs may again be hung on a line in the sunshine, while a bath of white sand and furrier's sawdust, mixed half and half, is heated in an oven. When hot, the pieces must be put into this cleanser and the sand and sawdust rubbed well into the fur.

The sand when hot loosens the grease and dirt from the fur, and the sawdust absorbs it. If after one such rubbing the fur does not look as clean as is desired, the process should be repeated. When the dirt is out, the garment or muff must again be pounded with a rattan stick to get out the sand and sawdust. Following this beating, the fur should be placed in a pan filled with cornstarch or plaster of paris, which must be rubbed well into it.

After either whitener has been worked well into the pieces the furs must again be put out of doors and whipped with a stick to get out the white dust, for if not shaken or beaten the plaster of paris or cornstarch will rub off on the clothing, which is unpleasant.

With chinchilla little can be done toward cleansing except a gentle beating with a rattan stick. And this whipping must be lightly done, for the skin is so fine and tears so easily that a person cannot be too careful in the beating, and the best plan is to have it cleaned by a furrier.

Beaver, mink and many of the furs with heavy skins are cleaned exactly as are the ermine and other white pieces, with the exception of the final rubbing on of cornstarch or plaster of paris. The first beating to get out the dust, the airing and bath of white sand and sawdust must be given these furs to properly cleanse them. Pony coats may be successfully cleaned in the same way.

With the heavy, long furs, such as Alaska sable, raccoon and opossum, the airing and pounding with a heavy rattan stick are essential, but the hot sawdust and sand are omitted for the use of a comb with short teeth, known as a furrier's comb.

Sables, like chinchillas, must be carefully treated, and the safest plan is to send them to an expert when they need cleaning.

Both Sides.

"Our contention," said the lawyer for the literary person, "is that our client's hand was so injured by the accident that for six months he has been unable to write."

"And our contention," proclaimed the defense, "is that this very disability has saved the plaintiff so much money in postage that he is in our debt."

Then the case went to trial.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Scientific Healing And Christianity

Rev. William E. Gardner at Christ church began on Sunday morning a series of addresses on the Christian Church and Healing." His subject was "Scientific Healing and Christianity." He said in part: All progressive church people interested in church advance have had their attention called to the possibility of the church taking up the practice of healing disease For years physicians and psychologists have been interested in the cures of disease that have been brought about without medicine. To Christian people many of these cures have seemed to belong to quackery and therefore have not been considered seriously.

At Emmanuel church, Boston, during the last winter Dr. Worcester has taken the position that the best results of medical and psychological study, when combined with the most sane Christian teaching assure us that many diseases can be cured without medicine.

Some of the most eminent physicians of Boston have assisted him in his work and hundreds of people have been helped and cured by the combined treatment. The new and advanced step that Dr. Worcester has taken is found in the combination of the physician and the minister. This combination rests on the belief that the soul and the body cannot be treated separately. For the first time in any form of mental or religious healing a scientific diagnosis of each case is made, with the result that the progress of many diseases and the ultimate death of many patients is prevented.

If there is no organic disease present in the diangosis, the patient is turned over to the minister for treatment. Each individual case is treated alone. The treatment varies according to the environment of life, the circumstances under which the disease developed, the inclination of character, and the capability of comprehension.

Three of the great under-lying principles of the treatment are the following:

First, the principle that mind has more power than we know over the body.

Second, the power of the mnd over the body is most active and effective when one is unconscious of the action of the mind. This point the speaker explained by many familiar illustrations.

Thirdly, the one element in life that drives away a self-centered self-consciousness with its train of fear, worry, doubt and despair, and replaces it with confidence and assurtianity.

Christ condemned the Scribes and Pharisees because they were self-centered and told his disciples to be not anxious, to have faith and to love.

Ninety per cent of the disease of the world is due to diseased souls rather than to diseased bodies.

Next Sunday Mr. Gardner will continue this series of addresses, speaking on the "Christian Habit of Mind."

MAYOR'S VETOES

Of Licenses To Common Victuallers Are Upheld

It took the City Council just three hours and five minutes to transact its business Monday evening.

A public hearing on double tracking Hancock street occupied nearly an hour and a half, and there were prolonged debates on passing certain common victuallers orders over the Mayor's veto, also on the question of a Saturday half holiday for City laborers.

Councilman Hunter, Hayward and Stone were absent.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from the Mayor inclosing a bill from the town of Braintree of $25 for soldiers relief rendered Sarah A. Cain during the year 1906. Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Herbert D. Adams, William W. Cushing, Murdock Lamont, Frank S. Patch, Herbert A. Newton, Edward W. Hall, E. Frank Mitchell, Eben W. Sheppard, Calvin G. Fletcher and John Robbie as weighers of coal and measurers of wood, also Walter L. Bates as weigher of grain. Confirmed.

HIGH SCHOOL BILLS.

A communication was received from the Mayor stating that the Commissioner of Public Works was in receipt of certain bills forwarded by A. H. Gould, architect, relative to extra labor and materials on the High School building, in addition to the five per cent. on the contract price with Rufus E. Lord, and bills for extras which he has also allowed to Rufus E. Lord. These matters are not yet assented to by the Commissioner or myself as we think certain errors exist in some of the itemized accounts, and also that there is an absence of certain itemized accounts on which we cannot pass understandingly until we have seen them. He therefore asks that the communication be referred to the Finance Committee with whom he will take it up in connection with the aforesaid bills when all are received. Referred to Finance Committee.

CRESCENT STREET.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Metropolitan Park Commission relative to the crossing of the Furnace Brook Parkway to Crescent street. The Commission say "that it seems to be the best opinion that to admit traffic on this portion of the Parkway would be unwise for many reasons, and the better plan would be to build a new street in extension of Crescent street. This extension when built should become a public highway of the city and entirely within the control of the city."

To carry out this plan the Commission make the following proposition:—"The Commission has made arrangements by which the necessary land can be acquired and all question of land damages settled for $2000. The estimated cost of building the street with good macadam surface suitable for heavy traffic which is likely to pass over the same is $2,500. This is considerable in advance of the original estimate when the matter was first considered between you and this Board, nevertheless the Commission renews the proposition that they will acquire the necessary land and build the street turning the same over at its completion into the care and control of the City of Quincy provided the city will contribute $1,500 to the cost of the improvement."

The extension proposed is from the present easterly end of Crescent street across the corner of the lot now owned by Dr. Ash to Copeland street.

Referred to joint Committee on Streets and Finance.

A VETO.

A communication was received from Mayor Thompson returning without his approval the order granting common victuallers licenses to Alice Silver, 153 South Walnut street; John McVay, 4 Brooks avenue; Edward H. Lowe, 473 Washington street; George E. Sprague, corner of Washington and River streets; Sanford Davis, 143 East Howard street; Alfred P. J. Pinel, 396 Washington street; Harry Grobarsky, 5 Main street.

In his communication the Mayor says his reasons for returning these orders are "from the fact that these parties are not equipped, as specified under the law, to comply with the requirements necessary preceding an application for a license of this kind; neither do I understand they make any pretence whatever to furnishing or serving food to strangers and travellers as a license of this character imperatively requires a licensee to provide.

In support of the objections which I state, I will quote Section 6, Chapter 102, R. L., containing provisions of the law as relating to innholders and common victullers, which is as follows:

"An innholder's or common victuallers license shall not be granted or issued unless at the time of making application therefor the applicant has upon his premises the necessary implements and facilities for cooking, preparing and serving food for strangers and travellers."

This clearly shows the necessary provisions that must be complied with by persons in order to make themselves eligible to receive a license of this character. And as far as the various applicants in the orders herein named are concerned, I find an entire absence of these provisions.

Furthermore, I desire to call the attention of the Council to the provisions of a portion of Section 2. of the same law, which reads as follows:

DOUBLE TRACKING

Is Favored But Street Railway Must Agree to Improve Service

"A Mayor or any member of a licensing board may refuse to sign a license for a person who in his opinion has not complied with the provisions of this chapter: and a Mayor or any member of such board who signs a license granted contrary to the provisions of this chapter shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars."

This fully shows the responsibility resting upon us and the necessity of our seeing that the law is fully complied with in granting licenses as herein named."

The first order taken up was the granting Alice Silver a license.

Councilman Donovan. This reflects on me as I presented the application and largely signed petition. It looks as though I was trying to foster a mis-statement. I simply want to place myself aright.

Councilman Hull. It was the judgment of the committee it was not a place suitable for a license.

Councilman Walsh. She lives on the premises and must have facilities for cooking. In reply to questions he said she sold bread and a small line of groceries but did not sell groceries on Sundays.

The Council refused to pass the order over the Mayor's veto by a vote of 5 in favor and 14 against.

The Council then refused to pass the order for licenses for E. H. Lowe and George E. Sprague and A. P. J. Pinel by a vote of 3 in favor and 10 against.

Councilman Donovan tried to have the Pinel order laid on the table but the Council refused the motion by a rising vote of 9 in favor, and 10 against.

The roll call vote on the above orders was as follows:

YES— Donovan, McKinnon and Walsh—3.

NO—Beal, Brokaw, Coombs, Curtis, Curtin, Deacon, Falconer, Ferguson, Gelottee, Hobbs, Hull, McGilvray, Pinkham, Polk, Sawyer and Teasdale—16.

ABSENT—Hayward, Hunter and Stone—3.

NOT VOTING—President Piper.

The John McVay order was refused by a vote of 4 in favor and 15 against.

The Sanford Davis order was laid on the table by a vote of 11 in favor and 8 against.

After considerable debate the Harry Grobarsky order was refused by a vote of 9 in favor and 10 against, as follows:

YES—Coombs, Curtin, Donovan, Ferguson, Hobbs, McGilvray, McKinnon, Teasdale and Walsh—9.

NO—Beal, Brokaw, Curtis, Deacon, son, Gelotte, Hobbs, Hull, McGilPolk and Sawyer—10.

ABSENT—Hayward, Hunter and Stowe—3.

NOT VOTING—President Piper.

DOUBLE TRACK.

At 7.45 a public hearing was held on the petition of the Old Colony street railway for a double track location on Hancock street with crossovers at the corner of Temple and Washington street and near the corner of Hancock and Saville streets.

Supt. Conway appeared for the company and explained at length just what the company wanted. The double track would enable the company to greatly improve the West Quincy and Quincy avenue service as it would do away with the pocket between Music hall and Dobles corner.

Councilman Pinkham asked if it would not be imperative to widen Hancock street if a double track was built.

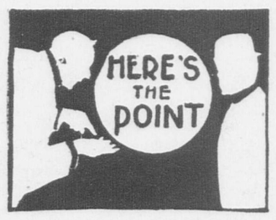

Supt. Conway said there would be more room with two tracks than with one in the centre of the street. He explained why a double track was better than a single track on a narrow street. In reply as to what extent the railroad would contribute toward the expense of widening Mr. Conway said that was regulated by statute.

In answer to further questions he said that it would also do away with the present trouble on Quincy avenue, and that the company would commence work immediately on the granting of the location. He thought it would be possible with the double track to run fifteen minute cars on the West Quincy line. It was the intention of the company to improve the service. Just how it would work out however he could not say at the present time. He was willing to take it up with the committee.

Henry L. Kincaide appeared as a representative of the Citizens' Association and as a business man to favor the petition. He felt that Quincy deserved better service. Some consideration should also be given to the matter of widening and straightening of Hancock street at the same time the double track was built.

The street railway should bear part of this expense. We should de-

South Shore Grain Company Sale

The receivers sale of the property of the South Shore Grain Co., of Quincy, and the Ambler & Hobart Co of Weymouth was held today at the Washington street plant, and was largely attended.

Before the sale, Auctioneer Johnson read the order of the bankruptcy court directing the sale and said everything would be sold to the highest bidders. On every sale of $10 the bidder was required to make immediately such deposit as was asked, or the property was sold again.

The stock of hay and grain was not as large as expected, but there was quantity of straw and poultry food. Some of the horses have been sold privately but there were 12 or more good horses offered, also about 20 wagons and carriages, several pungs and sleds, office furniture, etc.

A large number of buyers were present not only from Quincy but surrounding towns, and everything brought good prices.

A clergyman from Pennsylvania, who had $1000 invested in the stock of the company and came to investigate, was surprised to find the auction in progress, having no previous knowledge of it. He is only one of many.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It would seem that the time is not far distant when the Grand Army should give up its afternoon parade on Memorial Day. The veterans are getting well along in years and the day's duties are a severe test of their strength. When it is considered that these veterans assemble at 7 o'clock in the morning and are kept constantly on the move until 5 o'clock in the afternoon it must be a hard day's work for them. In fact it is a much harder days work than they should undertake. It would be far better, if instead of the parade the veterans should ride to the cemeteries in style letting the younger organizations do escort duty for them. Perhaps it would be well to let the school children decorate the graves annually.

Summer begins June 22.

It is a week of weddings.

The sunshine is appreciated.

Expect 90 degree temperature this month.

The sloop Hero was launched by John L. Souther at Quincy Point on June 7, 1845.

The next holiday, the Seventeenth of June, falls on Monday, a week from next Monday.

The improvements made on the grounds around St. Chrysostom's church by the new sexton, William D. Purdom, is very noticeable.

Miss Amy Childs returned on Saturday to her home in Philadelphia after a month's visit with her friend, Miss Rettie Norrie of Centre street.

On June 4, 1868, a steamboat line with regular trips was established between Quincy Point and Boston. The name of the boat was the Massasoit.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Historical society will be held on Friday afternoon, June 14, at 4 o'clock, at the John Adams cottage on Franklin street. The president will entertain the members at 5 P. M.

The Altar Guild of St. Chrysostom's church held its last meeting of the season at the rectory on Monday evening. After the business was transacted Mrs. Clattenburg served light refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

The base ball teams of the Makaria Fraternity and the Galahad Club will have it out at Merrymount Park on Saturday. There is a keen rivalry between the teams and both are in good condition, so that a good game is assured at 3.30 P. M.

The Frank A. Robbins Co. big circus will exhibit in Quincy tomorrow, on the old circus grounds on Washington street. The street cars pass in front of the lot every fifteen minutes, and a large gathering may be expected, as it is one of the finest shows that ever visited this city.

CREATES SURPRISE

Tokio's Change of Feeling Not Understood at Washington

OFFICIALS GREATLY PUZZLED

Utmost Efforts Had Been Made to Smooth Over Difficulties Arising From Recent Riots and the School Question In San Francisco

Washington, June 4.—The statement coming from Tokio to the effect that uneasiness exists there on account of dissatisfaction on the part of the Japanese at the attitude of America in relation to the San Francisco troubles has caused some concern in official circles here and there are expressions of surprise from those who believed they had seen in the whole-souled felicitations incident to the General Kuroki visit to Washington and Jamestown a manifestation of the best of feeling between America and Japan.

What has caused the reported change of feeling at Tokio is a puzzle to official Washington, because it cannot be learned that there has been any recent exchanges between the two governments relative to the treatment of the Japanese in San Francisco. The attacks upon Japanese restaurants and bathhouses are still under investigation by the national government, as well as by the state authorities in California, and when that inquiry is concluded doubtless the Japanese government will be informed of the result and, if necessary, a proper expression of regret will be made.

As it stands, the state department is on record as having informed the Japanese government of all the facts it has been able to secure, all tending to show that the last trouble in San Francisco was merely an incident to the great railroad strike with its accompanying riots.

In the case of the school question the state department did point out the limitations imposed upon the federal government by the constitution in its dealing with individual states, but it had reason to suppose, from the reception accorded its notes here and in Tokio, that the Japanese government fully understood the situation of the federal government here and was satisfied with the arrangement of the school question obtained by the president and Secretary Root by the exercise of almost extra official influence upon the local authorities of San Francisco.

The officials here can only conjecture that there has not been a publication in Japan of all of the official correspondence, which, it is believed, would favorably affect public opinion toward the United States.

Titus Cannot Row at Henley

Princeton, N. J., June 4.—Constance S. Titus, national rowing champion, has received a communication from Secretary Cooper of the Henley Royal regatta rejecting Titus' entry for the Henley regatta. Cooper quotes a rule which reads "that no entry shall be accepted of any crew or sculler out of the United Kingdom, unless such crew or sculler belongs to a club which is affiliated to a union or federation having an agreement with the committee of the Henley regatta." In 1903 the Titus entry was also rejected, no reason being given.

Douma Repeals Obnoxious Laws

St. Petersburg, June 4.—The lower house of parliament has repealed three obnoxious laws. The first provided for the punishment of persons publicly expressing approval of political crimes and the second excluded from military service persons accused of political crimes or who were under police supervision. The repeal of the third law, penalizing private instruction in Poland, was at the request of the ministry.

Great Demand For Jap Labor

Ottawa, June 4.—A report received from Alexander MacLean, Canada's agent to Japan, gives the opinion that within a short time the United States will have more difficulty in obtaining labor from Japan than it now has keeping Japanese laborers out. There is a growing demand for Japanese laborers from South America and from Hawaii, which promises to absorb the whole of Japan's supply of laborers.

Promoter Francis In Prison

Philadelphia, June 4.—Stanley Francis, the promoter of the Story Cotton company of this city, which was closed by the postal authoritits and which had creditors in all sections of the country, began a sentence of five years in the penitentiary yesterday afternoon. Francis was convicted of using the mails to defraud.

Indiana Miners to Strike

Indianapolis, June 4.—The executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, 11th district, ordered about 5000 miners to leave Indiana mines next Friday and go on a strike. There are eight or ten grievances of the miners.

Ties Piled on Track

San Jose, Cal., June 4.—An attempt to wreck a Southern Pacific train running between San Jose and San Francisco was thwarted by the discovery of a large pile of ties on the track near Santa Clara, a suburb of San Jose. Two tramps were arrested on suspicion.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE ENDED

French Officers and Men Will Get Back Their Old Positions

Paris, June 4.—The extended strike of the seamen has virtually come to an end with the capitulation of the strikers. Minister of Marine Thomson, in the course of his conference with the strikers, declared that it was impossible to accede to their demands. He said, however, that any proposition would be considered if the strikers returned to duty immediately, in which case no punishments would be meted out to deserters and the shipowners would be requested to retain both officers and men in their former positions.

The firm attitude of the minister and his promise that no penalties would be inflicted apparently convinced the strikers that it would be wiser to accept the government's proposition to increase the pensions of seamen from $40.80 to $72 and of officers from $156 to $200 a year than to continue to paralyze commerce and thus entirely alienate the sympathy of the public, which has already been greatly strained.

Dispatches received here from various ports declare that meetings were held last evening at which it was voted to continue the strike, but it is evident that these steps were taken before the receipt of the messages from the delegates advising the cessation of the strike.

Woman Stabbed to Death

New York, June 4.—In the presence of her sleeping child, Catherine Killoran, a young woman, was literally hacked to death in her rooms on the flourth floor of a flat house here. There were six stab wounds on her breast and neck, and her body was covered with bruises when the police found her. Locked up is the woman's husband, James Killoran, suspected of being her murderer. From the hour of their marriage, five years ago, the life of the couple has been one of turmoil.

Wanted by British Authorities

Washington, June 4.—President Roosevelt has had his attention directed to the case of Charles Rohrer, a citizen of New York, whom the British authorities desire to extradite to England. They allege that he was concerned in a robbery in February last, when jewelry of immense value was stolen from two firms in London. When the case was heard by a commissioner in New York Arthur P. Green, who confessed that he committed the robbery, exonerated Rohrer.

Unveiling of Davis Monument

Richmond, June 4.—The remnants of the Confederate armies passed through the streets of Richmond and unveiled a memorial to Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederate States of America. The event came as the climax of the reunion of the United Confederate Veterans and every member of the body of men who were able to walk took part. The ceremony was one of the south. No other section had any part in it.

New Owner Captured Stakes

New York, June 4.—Montgomery, a 3-year-old, won the Jockey club weight for age stakes, at one mile and an eighth, at Belmont park. The time, 1.53, was exceptionally good, considering the heavy track. Previous to the race Montgomery was sold to Emil Herz for $25,000. The stake won for his now owner by the horse carries $3500 added money.

Alleged Anarchists on Trial

Madrid, June 4.—The trial of Senor Ferrer, director of the modern school of Barcelona, Don Jose Hakens, editor of El Motin, and others, charged with complicity in the attempt to assassinate King Alfonso and Queen Victoria May 31, 1906, has begun. The state demands that Ferrer be sentenced to 16 years' imprisonment and the others to 10 years.

Anxious to Fight Guatemala

El Paso, Tex., June 4.—Acting Governor Sanchez of Chihuahua has telegraphed President Diaz, offering troops from Chihuahua to protect the national honor against Guatemala. He says every man in the state is anxious for service. The governors of Guerrero, Jalisco, Tabasco and Morelos have also telegraphed similar messages.

Will Have but Four Legations

Santiago, Chile, June 4.—The proposal that the number of Chilean legations, including that at Washington, shall not exceed four in number, has been accepted, and the conflict of six months' duration between President Montt and congress, which resulted in the downfall of a ministry, is consequently at an end.

Judge Was Tender-Hearted

St. Louis, June 4.—Charles F. Grotefend, defaulting teller of the Washington National bank of St. Louis, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment by Judge Trieber. Grotefend had fled to Sweden, where he was apprehended. Trieber wept as he pronounced the sentence, the lightest permitted by the statutes.

Must Answer to Charge of Libel

Fredericton, N. B., June 4.—James H. Crocket, managing director of the Fredericton Gleaner, was committed for trial by a police magistrate on a charge of criminal libel preferred by H. L. Emmerson, former minister of railways and canals of Canada. The accused was admitted to bail in the sum of $800.

THE JURY COMPLETE

Trial of William Haywood Will Now Begin In Earnest

THE PROSECUTION'S CLAIMS

Many Outrages, Including Murder and Attempts to Murder Judges and Others, the Part of a Great Conspiracy of the "Inner Circle"

Boise, Ida., June 4.—Twelve men to try William D. Haywood for his life on the charge that he murdered former Governor Frank Steunenberg have been chosen and bound by oath to deal justice between state and prisoner. Haywood yesterday heard the indictment charging him with the crime and today, after the state has recited its case and made promise of proof, the first chapter of the tale of the Caldwell crime of Dec. 30, 1905, will be told.

The wearisome work of jury selection ended quickly and unexpectedly yesterday morning. Alfred Eoff, the first talesman examined, was declared disqualified after strong and repeated protests from the defense. O. V. Seboin, the next talesman, proved the last one needed. He qualified satisfactorily to both sides, and when Judge Wood ordered the jury sworn, no objection came from either side.

The courtroom came to silence as the 12 men rose in their places, and, facing the clerk's desk, raised their right hands in solemn asservation of their pledge to do exact justice by the accused. It was an impressive scene and there came another when Haywood listened to the reading of the indictment against himself, Moyer, Pettibone and Simpkins.

The jury complete is as follows: T. B. Gess, real estate; Finley McBean, rancher; S. D. Gilman, farmer; Daniel Clark, farmer; George Powell, rancher; O. V. Seborn, farmer; H. F. Messecar, farmer; Lee Scrivener, farmer; J. A. Robertson, farmer; Levi Smith, carpenter; A. P. Burns, retired rancher, and S. F. Russell, farmer.

Broadly speaking, the state will charge that Haywood, conspiring with Moyer, Pettibone, Simpkins and others of the alleged "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners, plotted a campaign of terrorism that had for its double purpose the removal by assassination of those opposed to the organization and the retention and increase of control and power within the organization.

The prosecution will allege that the explosion at the Vindicator mine, the blowing up of the Independence depot, the murder of Light Gregory, a detective of Denver, the murder of Arthur Collins of Telluride, the alleged blowing up of Fred Bradley of San Francisco, and the alleged attempts on the lives of former Governor Peabody and Judges Gabbert and Goddard of Colorado, were all acts in a single great conspiracy to which the murder of Steunenberg was incidental.

It will be charged that Haywood was the genius of, and the strength behind the great plot, and that Steunenberg was added to the list because of his part during the labor troubles in north Idaho. It will be alleged that Haywood and his associates, standing and working in the background, planned the long list of crimes and sent Harry Orchard and Steven Adams forth as hired executioners.

The state's testimony will begin with a rehearsal of the grim Caldwell tragedy in which Steunenberg was blown to death by a bomb on the night of Dec. 30, 1905. The presence at Caldwell of Harry Orchard and John L. Simpkins, a member of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, will be shown.

After that Harry Orchard, who actually murdered Steunenberg, will be connected with the scene and crime, and then Orchard will be called to the stand to repeat the confession which it is alleged he made to Detective McPartland. After that will come the state's effort to corroborate the Orchard story and to clinch by other testimony the general part of the Western Federation of Miners and the particular part William D. Haywood are alleged to have had in connection with the murder of Steunenberg.

Schmitz Jury Not Complete

San Francisco, June 4.—Twice during the closing hour of yesterday's session of the trial of Mayor Schmitz for extortion it seemed all but certain that the jury was about to be completed, but each time the long looked for 12th juror escaped through peremptory challenges. Adjournment was finally taken, with 11 chosen men in the box.

END OF IRISH BILL.

Its Demise Formally Announced by the British Premier

WAS NO OTHER ALTERNATIVE

"Source of Regret" to the Ministry--Promise of Legislation on Evicted Tenants Restoration and Comprehensive Education Bill

London, June 4.—The Irish bill was formally dropped by the government yesterday afternoon with scant ceremony and only the most perfunctory signs of mourning even on the part of its ministerial sponsors.

The house of commons was well filled when Premier Campbell-Bannerman rose to make his promised statement on the cabinet's views regarding what measures it was necessary to eliminate from the government's overweighted executive program, so that the present session might be brought to a close in the usual time.

"I believe," said the premier, "that the Irish people would have done well to give the details of the measure greater attention than appears to have been the case at the recent convention. But in view of the announcement of the leader of the Irish party in the house of commons that he would abide by the decision of the convention, and in view of the unanimous decision of the convention to reject the bill, the government cannot, of course, go any further with it."

The premier added that the decision of the representatives of the Irish people was a source of sincere regret and disappointment to the ministers, but now that the Irish bill was dropped the government intended to introduce during the present session an "evicted tenants restoration" with powers of compulsory purchase.

As the cabinet has decided against an autumn session, the premier continued, it was necessary to drop the licensing bill. This, however, would be the very first measure to be taken up at the next session.

The measure designed to relieve the "passive resisters" from paying education rates for religious instruction, the premier further announced, would also be crowded out, but the government was determined to introduce at the next session a comprehensive education bill, putting the whole education system of the country in order.

Regarding the long promised attempt to restrict the power of the house of lords, the premier said that so soon as they had made a little further progress in the essential business of the session he proposed to introduce a resolution on the subject either June 17 or June 24, when the government would fully state its views on the matter.

The premier then announced the abandonment of a number of measures of only domestic interest and enumerated those which it was intended to pass, concluding with remarking:

"When I say 'pass,' I mean 'pass the house of commons,' as I can forecast what will be the action of the house of lords."

Dynamite In Kitchen Stove

New York, June 4.—In what the police believe was a dynamite outrage, Mrs. Eliza Maroney, 60 years of age, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary Maroney, 35, were seriously and possibly fatally injured at their home in Mt. Vernon. The women were in the kitchen when the stove exploded, setting fire to the room. It is believed by the authorities that the explosion was caused by a stick of dynamite that had been placed in the firebox. Everything in the room was demolished.

Steamship Officers Exonerated

North Sydney, N. S., June 4.—Captain McKinnon and officers of the steamer Marena, which was wrecked at Brandy rocks, arrived here last night from St. Johns, where they had been attending an inquiry into the loss of the steamer. He has been released on bail in the sum of $10,000. The company had headquarters in Paris.

Stocks Again Decline

New York, June 4.—Securities on the Stock Exchange underwent another decline yesterday and in some instances the lowest prices in years were recorded. The sagging movement was accelerated by the sales of 40,000 shares of stock for foreign account and the news of an engagement of $2,000,000 in gold for export.

RIOTS BREAK OUT AFRESH

Non-Union Men Fare Badly at the Hands of a Boston Mob

Boston, June 4.—After a period of comparative quiet in the teamsters' strike, which has been in force for about two months in this city, a series of riots occurred in South Boston last evening that caused the most turbulence of any time since the strike began. In the midst of the wild excitement some boys pulled in an alarm, calling fire apparatus needlessly to the scene.

The rioting began while one of the Brine company's teams was returning to its stable in South Boston. Through a mistake in orders the team was temporarily left unguarded by the customary police detail. A group of men and boys saw the defenseless condition of the team, on which were three strikebreakers, and soon it was surrounded by several hundred men and boys.

Sticks and stones were hurled at the strikebreakers and two of the men were badly bruised in the head and face with heavy stones. The driver was not hit and kept his team going until a squad of police rushed to the scene and dispersed the mob. The two injured men were taken to a police station and treated.

Further on the mob gathered again and made a bold attempt to get through the police detail at the driver, but were beaten off by the officers' clubs, after two of the officers were hurt, but not seriously. A foreman of the Brine company was later attacked on the street by a mob, but managed to escape by his fleetness of foot William H. Tobin was arrested during the melee, charged with throwing acid at one of the horses.

Prosperity In Textile Industry

Boston, June 4.—An advance in wages, averaging 5 percent, went into effect yesterday in practically every cotton mill in northern New England. Together with the increase of 10 percent which was given to the mills of southern New England and western Massachusetts last week, and the advance of 5 percent, effective next Monday in Lawrence and Chicopee, Mass., and Augusta, Me., factories, the upward wage movement yesterday benefits nearly 200,000 operatives in the six New England states. In almost all cotton mill cities, towns and villages the new wage schedule is the highest ever paid.

Telephone System Knocked Out

Webster, Mass., June 4.—Ten telephone cable boxes on as many different poles in the streets of this town burned out last night, causing great alarm among the residents for an hour or more, while the central telephone exchange appeared to burst into a sheet of flame. The trouble was caused by the crossing of a telephone wire with a feed wire of the Consolidated street railroad. No serious injuries to any person resulted, but it will take at least a week to restore the telephone system to its proper working order.

Boys Say They Set Fire

Boston, June 4.—Closeted with Patrolman Dupee and Paul Ennis, a school teacher, and plied with questions concerning the fire that broke out in the Martin Luther orphan home Sunday, 13-year-old George M. Nelson and 9-year-old Henry Rodtke, inmates of the home, are said to have broken down and admitted that they had fired the building. "George and I set fire to the building because we wanted to go home," Rodtke is said to have admitted. A confession is said to have been made by Nelson later.

Gratuity Bill Up to Governor

Boston, June 4.—The so-called soldiers' gratuity bill, which provides for the payment of $125 to all veterans of the Civil war who did not secure a bounty, was enacted in the house and now goes to the governor for his approval. A similar measure has been passed at every legislative session for the past three years, only to be vetoed by the governor.

Death of Old Army Officer

Stamford, Conn., June 4.—General Thomas M. Ruger, U. S. A., retired, died at his home last evening. He had been ill since last Friday, when he was stricken with heart trouble. He leaves a widow and two daughters. Ruger had a long and brilliant service in the army. He was born at Lima, N. Y., in 1833.

Marooned People Released

Block Island, R. I., June 4.—The 50 excursionists from Providence who came here Sunday, intending to return by the afternoon boat, were detained here over last night, the sea being still so rough that steamer New Stoneham remained at her dock. The steamer returned to Providence this morning.

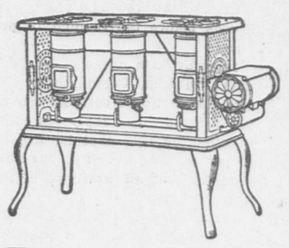

Battered Bike For Creditors

Boston, June 4.—A safety bicycle, battered and torn, with tires sadly in need of wind, and handle bars bent, is the sole asset of Walter H. Baldwin, who filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities aggregating $72,856.48. Baldwin was formerly in the real estate business.

Substantial Contributions

New York, June 4.—Trustees of Columbia university announce that $450,000 has been contributed or pledged from anonymous sources toward the cost of Kent hall, the building for the schools of law and political science. It has been decided to begin the construction of this building at once, that it may be ready for use in September, 1908. It is confidently expected that the additional sum of $100,000 needed to meet the cost of this building and its equipment will be contributed during the progress of the work.

Attributed to "Black Hand"

Philadelphia, June 4.—An unknown man, who the police are certain is a victim of the mysterious "Black Hand" society, was found murdered in Mt. Airy, a suburb. The headless body was found between the embankments of two lines of railroad and the body was some distance away. The head had been severed clean and the clothes on the torso were not blood-stained. Neither was the head disfigured. Detectives say that the man was killed elsewhere and carried to the spot where the body and head were found, after the murderers had dressed him in his best clothes.

Seeks Death by Starvation

New York, June 4.—In a dispatch from Middletown, N. Y., The Tribune says: Balked by the special watchman guarding him night and day at all attempts at suicide, Charles H. Rogers, the confessed murderer of three persons, has determined that he will escape the electric chair, and is trying slowly to starve himself to death. Rogers has taken no food or nourishment for a week. Unless Rogers consents to take food a physician will be called in and food will be forced into the prisoner's stomach in order to keep him alive.

Immigration Probers at Naples

They visited the immigrant headquarters and then witnessed the embarkation of a large number of immigrants on different steamers. They also inspected the plant for the disinfection of the belongings of immigrants, and interrogated several immigrant agents.

Rich Man Accidentally Killed

Buffalo, June 4.—Harry Hamlin, one of Buffalo's best known and wealthiest citizens, was instantly killed in an automobile accident a mile north of this city. Hamlin's automobile collided with a light wagon, driven by Jacob Schaller. Schaller was badly hurt, but will recover. John Heckel, 12 years old, who was in Schaller's wagon, was fatally injured.

He had been brought down from Sing Sing after the supreme court set aside the conviction.

Prosecution of Scalpers Fails

mand to know of the company just what we are to get in return. There should be a definite understanding in the form of a contract. The road obliging people to change cars in City Square does a great injury to business. The railroad is not using the city squarely.

T. L. Williams, president of the Board of Trade appeared in favor. He felt that business was injured by cars being held up at Music hall. It was a duty the city owed to the business men to grant the petition that we may get better service. As to the matter of widening of Hancock street that was in the hands of a special committee of the Board of Trade.

James F. Burke appeared in favor. West Quincy people want at least twenty minute time. But it should be in black and white what th company intends to give us. Will the company pay any part of the expense of widening the street. He then read a letter from Waltham which stated that the street railway there had contributed toward the improvement of streets for privileges granted. Get them to put in writing what they will do.

Supt. Conway wished to be heard again and was granted that premission. He said that he wanted to say a good word for the company with which he had been connected for twenty years and that they had never done him a wrong.

He then spoke of the location that had been granted once before that had not been built. This was because financially the company was not able to at that time. His company was the heaviest taxpayer of the city. Last year it had paid $40,000 in taxes. Seven years ago you did not have a car 20 feet long. They were then running cars with one motor. You could not go from West Quincy to Houghs Neck for less than ten cents. Now you go to all parts of the city for five cents. Be fair with us. It is not all a case of politics. Seven years ago you had but one car an hour on Hancock street. Let us meet this question on the broad guage system. Give something and take something. The company was perfectly willing to sign its name to anything they agree to do. Let us get together. I agree to use you squarely. Use us the same. The workmen of Quincy are the ones we want to accommodate.

Councilman Polk asked if most of the improvements were not made at the request of the Council, to which Mr. Conway replied no.

Councilman Polk asked why the company did not run the cars from Weymouth Landing, West Quincy and Brockton through to Neponset, to which Mr. Conway replied that the service was not required.

In reply to a question as to how the Council were to know that the city would get better service, Mr. Conway replied that he was willing to make an agreement satisfactory to the committee.

Continuing Mr. Conway said that this was a hearing on a double track location, and that he did not come prepared with all kinds of amunition. These things are usually taken up in the committee.

Other questions were asked by Mr. Kincaide, but nothing additional was brought out.

Mayor Thompson asked what had become of the special cars that had been promised for Dudley street line to which Mr. Conway replied that in the first place a re had destroyed a large number of their cars north of Boston and they had to be used there. Then the Elevated had not changed its curves at Dudley street so that they could run.

Ex-Councilman Nichols asked about the new cars of the company to which Mr. Conway replied that the company had at the Campello shops 26 new cars which were being fitted out that had not as yet been assigned.

The hearing was then closed and the order was recommitted.

A public hearing was held on the petition of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles on various streets.

Mr. McTeer appeared in opposition to the erection of a pole in front of his property on Beach street.

The hearing was then closed and the order recommitted.

LICENSE WANTED.

A communication asking that the Boston and Houghs Neck Steamboat Co. be granted a permit to transport liquor was placed on file.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

The Committee on Finance reported an amendment to the order appropriating $6,000 for furnishings for the Atlantic school building making the amount $3,500. To Ordinance Committee.

HALL AT ATLANTIC.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on the order for $3,500 for finishing the hall in the Atlantic school building. Councilman Hobbs wanted the reason.

Councilman Polk explained. He said the original estimate of the cost of a hall was $2,500, but now the architect estimates the cost at $3,500, while Marr Bros. place the cost at $4,700. The work has so far progressed that the hall can be put in a year or two later as economically as now.

The Committee on Finance reported an order apportioning the sidewalk assessment of Mabel A. Keay into ten parts. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance reported an order apportioning the sidewalk assessment of L. W. Chapman into ten parts. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported a substitute order changing the name of a part of Linden street in Ward Six to Oak avenue. Rules suspended and order passed.

ADAMS ACADEMY.

The joint Committee on Finance and Legislative Matters reported on the communication relative to the merger of the Adams Academy that in the opinion of the committee the best interests of the city would be served by closing the Academy indefinitely at the end of the present term and not consolidating with the public schools, and it was therefore inexpedient to legislate.

Councilman Hobbs offered a minority report that the plan as proposed should be carried out and offered an order requesting the City Solicitor to draw up the proper order for the carrying out the plan.

Upon motion of Councilman Hobbs both reports were laid on the table.

OTHER REPORTS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrossed on the order transferring $1,076.89 to the appropriation for Gypsy moth. Order passed.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the application of Evans express for a permit to transport liquor.

Councilman McGilvray moved to lay on the table. Motion lost by a vote of 8 in favor and 10 against. The report was then accepted.

Councilman Ferguson offered an order granting M. T. Sullivan an auctioner's license which was adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Walsh the petition for a track to connect the Washington street and Quincy avenue lines was taken from the special committee and referred to the Committee on Streets.

Councilman Brokaw offered an order for a street light on Summit avenue. Referred to Street Committee.

Councilman McKinnon offered an order for a hydrant on Cleverly court. Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

HALF HOLIDAY.

Upon motion of Councilman Curtin the resolve relative to a Saturday half holiday was taken from the table.

He then amended the resolve so that it would read "Permanent city laborers."

In reply to a question as to the financial end the Mayor said that he had not given the matter any study. If we were well situated financially it should be done.

Councilman Hobbs favored a half holiday but thought the matter should go to the Finance Committee so that it could be learned just what the cost would be.

Councilman Curtin saw no reason for going to the committee. The men that are employed the year around are not many.

Councilman Walsh thought it would be a good thing. The men would be willing to work harder.

Councilman Falconer thought it inconsistent to reduce the appropriation for streets and then add to the expense of the department.

Councilman Brokaw was not against the doliday but it was a financial matter. It should go to a committee.

Councilman Donovan said it should be known what it would cost the city.

Councilman Sawyer did not oppose but it was a question of business as it would increase the expenses of the city.

Councilman Curtin said the men will get out in case of emergency the same as they do now.

Councilman Teasdale did not think it was before the Council in proper form.

In reply to a question by Councilman Pinkham, Commissioner Burke said that it would cost the city about $50 a week. In reply to further question he said that he had about 60 permanent men and in the summer time he had an additional force of about 200 men.

Councilman McKinnon favored the half holiday. The men would make up the time.

It was voted to refere the resolve to the Finance Committee.

Councilman Hull offered an order for $7,000 for macadamizing Farrington street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Upon motion of Councilman Hobbs Rule I was suspended and it was voted whn the Council adjourn it be until June 18.

CALENDER.

The orders granting a location for poles to the Quincy Electric Light & Power Co. on Broadway and the New England Telephone Co. attachments on Faxon road and Sumner street took their second reading. The rules were then suspended and the orders passed.

Adjourned at 10.40 until June 18.

Slight Fire In City Square

As Officer Crooker was passing along Hancock street shortly after 3 o'clock this morning he saw a bright light in the rear of the upper story of the Johnson building on the corner of Hancock and Maple streets.

Realizing that a fire was in progress he lost no time in sounding in an alarm from Box 26.

The fire proved to be at the head of the upper landing in the rear of the building among some boxes of hay. The firemen made a quick job of extinguishing the blaze.

The walls in the particular corner where the fire was, were burned some, and the ceiling of the upper corridor smoked, but the whole damage should not exceed $25.

It appears that some boxes of dishes had arrived Monday night for the Eastern Star entertainment, and after being unpacked, the hay was put back in the crates and left in the corner until they could be removed.

Mr. Remick left the building at 11 o'clock and was the last person out and at that time there was no sign of fire. As the building is always open it is believed that someone must have entered and applied a match to the hay in the box.

How the Rip Roarer Mine Changed Hands.

[Original.]

The Rip Roarer Gold Mining company was an institution of Colorado. There had been a great deal of manipulation in the stock, and most of the original investors had been frozen out. This having been accomplished, the managers were using the original payments to sink a shaft, with a view to striking an immensely rich vein of ore which they had reason to believe extended within the limits of their property. If they struck this vein and it proved as rich as in its other parts, the Rip Roarer mine would be worth many millions of dollars; if not, Rip Roarer shares would continue to sell at 5 cents on the dollar.

Now, the men who had got control of a majority of Rip Roarer stock had no intention that a "strike" should accrue to the benefit of any one except themselves. Consequently they built a high fence around the mouth of the shaft, beyond which they would permit none of their miners to go nor to have any communication with the outside world. The men were permitted to write and receive letters, but every outgoing letter must be read by the company's censor. The object of all this was to prevent news of any probable strike getting out before the managers had picked up all the floating stock there was on the market at minimum prices.

One day a mulatto, ragged, but strong, applied for work at the office of the Rip Roarer company. Several men had been caught the day before endeavoring to throw bits of paper tied to stones over the fence. Their messages contained no information about the mine, for there was no information to convey, but the managers proposed to stop every leak and discharged the perpetrators. They were therefore glad to get the mulatto and took him in at once.

Maggie Benton was the wife of a miner who had saved a nest egg and invested it in the shares of the Rip Roarer mine at $50 a share, par value $100. At 5 cents Benton's savings had been wiped out. One evening when he was out hunting for work Maggie received a letter from him. It was such a letter as he ordinarily wrote her, containing nothing of importance. Benton was an uneducated man, and his letter was perhaps more than ordinarily illiterate. Maggie laid it down to put the baby to bed, ate her supper, washed the dishes, made up a fine fire of logs in her stone and mud fireplace, then sat down to read her Jim's letter over again.

The wind was high, and the fire burned hot. Maggie was tired, discouraged, sleepy. She had but 60 cents in the house, and Jim had not told her that he had got work. One feature in his letter she could not understand. He told her to be sure to keep the baby warm—hot. He'd rather have it hot than cold. Warm everything in the house if necessary to keep that baby from taking cold. Maggie wondered what induced him to write in that way. She, a mother, surely knew more of a baby's needs than a man. She puzzled over these sentences, holding the letter between her and the fire to screen her from the heat till she dropped into a doze.

When she awoke there was the letter still before her eyes, but with a remarkable addition. Brown letters appeared across the face of it:

Tel Critchlow Rip Roarer. JIM.

Maggie was but half awake when these words stared her in the face, but they completed her awakening. She knew Critchlow was the broker at Colorado Springs through whom Jim had bought and sold some mining shares. But how should she tell Critchlow the words Rip Roarer? Then she noticed Jim had spelled tell with one l. Didn't he mean telegraph? Taking her 60 cents, she went to the telegraph office and sent the following telegram to Critchlow:

Rip Roarer. JIM.

The next morning on the Colorado Springs Exchange there were considerable sales of Rip Roarer. The price rose slowly from 5 to 6, then 7, 8, 9, 10, until at noon it struck 12 cents. Early in the afternoon an order came from the managers of the Rip Roarer mine to sell 20,000 shares, doubtless to depress the market. This put the price back a few points, but the shares offered were all absorbed. Then the stock jumped with bounds till it reached par.

The next day when Maggie Benton was washing the dinner dishes she was caught in the arms of a big negro.

"Mag," he cried, "you're smarter than chain lightning. I never believed you'd understand about heating my letter, but you did. We're rich as Croesus. I own one quarter of the Rip Roarer mine. I've got a million and a half."

Jim Benton had played the men who had frozen him out of the Rip Roarer mine a neat trick. Having induced his broker to form a syndicate to buy Rip Roarer stock on news of the management having struck the vein they were looking for, he disguised himself and went to the mine for work. But he could lay out no plan by which to send the news. Finally he wrote his letter and in an acid wrote his secret message. But it is a question if it would have been successful had Maggie not used his letter as a fire screen, for she had not interpreted his hint to heat the letter.

At the next meeting of the Rip Roarer directors it was found that the Critchlow syndicate owned a majority of the stock, and Jim Benton, who got half all the syndicate had purchased, was the largest stockholder.

McLean Barnes Home Wedding

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wing, at Dorchester a very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday evening, it being the marriage of their neice Miss Abbie Gay Barnes to Mr. Henry McLean both of Quincy.

The bride was attired in a white dress of muslin and lace and veil of point d'esprit caught up with white lilacs. The bridal bouquet was of white Brides' roses. The maid of honor was Miss Thornton of Brighton who wore a gown of pink silk and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. W. Field of Wollaston acted as best man, besides whom there were four ushers in attendance.

The wedding music was furnished by Miss L. A. Steffens of Norfolk Downs as violinist and Miss Margaret Carruthers as pianist.

The parlor, in which the wedding took place, was beautifully decorated with palms, hydrangeas and roses. After the ceremony, refreshments were served in the dining room.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs McLean left amid a shower of confetti, roses and many good wishes. The bride's traveling-dress was of gray with hat to match. The happy couple will spend their honey-moon among the mountains of New Hampshire. The presents given to the bride consisted of many pieces of cut glass, silver and china.

A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control.

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twings of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatism Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatism Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

AYRES ROGERS

A Pretty Church Wedding And Reception At Wollaston

The marriage of Miss Nettie Catherine Rogers of Grand View avenue, Wollaston and Dr. Harold Winslow Ayres of Highland avenue, Somerville, took place at seven o'clock Tuesday evening June 4, in St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston. The Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, rector, officiated. The bride who was given away by her father Mr. Hollis G. Rogers, looked charming in an exquisite empire gown of chiffon taffeta with a rounded train and trimmed with point lace. Her tulle veil was fastened with a half wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Henry T. P. Bates, matron of honor, gowned in pink net over white taffeta, and her bouquet was composed of pink sweet peas and maiden hair fern.

Dr. Sylvester of Newton Centre was best man. The ushers were Messrs Hollis F. Rogers of Beverly, brother of the bride, and Frank Moulton of Somerville uncle of the groom. Mr. John Y. Hamilton, the organist of St. Chrysostoms, played Lohengrin Wedding march.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers on Grand View avenue for the relatives and a few intimate friends, Dr. and Mrs. Ayres receiving, assisted by the bride's and groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis G. Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. John Winslow Ayres of Highland avenue, Somerville. The house was beautifully decorated with many palms and cut flowers.

The happy couple left not 'mid the rice and confetti awaiting them at the front door, but by a ladder at the rear of the house, unseen by the guests.

Annual Reunion Class of 1906

The class of 1906 of the Quincy High school, graduated last June, held their first annual reunion on Tuesday evening at Electa hall in the Johnson building. It was well attended and the very enjoyable evening was due in a large measure to the efforts of the committee, Messrs. Eugene Sanders, Clarence Loud, Fred D. Williams, Edward Reardon and Carl F. Prescott.

Teachers of the High school were among the guests of the evening.

The entertainment included a play entitled "A Class Day Conspiracy," admirably presented by the following cast: Miss Beula Loud, Miss Ella Packard, Miss Dorothy Fay, Mr. Eugene Sanders and Mr. Raymond Jordan. Dancing and refreshments followed, the music being furnished by Wilson's orchestra.

Force Exerted by the Heart.

The force exerted by the heart equals 120 tons lifted one foot. In other words, the work of the heart is equivalent to raising its own weight 20,000 feet in one hour. A strong man can raise himself but 1,000 feet in an hour. This enormous force, if exerted by the heart through a fixed rigid pipe, would shoot the blood along with each jerk at a rate of 200 feet a second. However, the arteries, being elastic, are distended by the jerk or beat of the heart, and when the heart pauses after the beat the contraction of the arteries sends the blood along in a steady non-intermittent flow, which averages about one foot a second.

Patmore's Wit.

In the early days of the Franco-Prussian war the Emperor William was in the habit of sending telegrams of a somewhat religious character to the queen. The late Coventry Patmore, the English poet, hit this off in the following skit:

By will divine, my dear Augusta,
We've gained a battle—such a buster!
Ten thousand Frenchmen sent below.
Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

F. A. Robbins Circus Now One of Best

City Square was alive with children and adults this morning out to witness the parade of Frank A. Robbins circus. The parade came up Washington street shortly after 10 o'clock and turned into Hancock street near the fountain in City Square. A few minutes after the head of the parade arrived, hundreds of children from the Coddington school rushed up the street. They missed part of it at that time. The parade, however, countermarched at the corner of Hancock and School streets, so that they had an opportunity to see all the attractions.

There was the usual number of gaily painted wagons. The sides of some of these were raised exposing wild animals to view. There were attendants riding in some of these cages notwithstanding they contained ferocious lions and bears. Then there were three bands, the usual group of clowns, lady riders the whole winding up with a steam calliope.

The Phoenix of Bristol, R. I., says: The Frank A. Robbins menagarie and circus drew large audiences Saturday, the attendance being especially large at night, despite the fact that the weather was cold and disagreeable. The show has been greatly enlarged since its appearance here two years ago, and now takes rank as one of the really large circuses. There were two rings and a central stage, and several times during the performance as many as five acts were going on at the same time. The bareback riding, the tumbling, the bicycle act, and the Lloyds in their casting act on the high trapeze are features that are not surpassed by any of the artists with largest circuses, in fact some of the performers were with the Barnum & Bailey show last season. There were no arrests and no disturbances in connection with the show and the employees were above the average of circus men as a rule.

Frank A. Robbins has been in the circus business practically all his life He is now past 60 years of age, but he travels with his show and personally superintends all the details from the time of arrival in town until departure. He is the son of a physician and when a boy ran away from his home in the west to follow a circus.

After several years of roughing it with various shows he started a small circus which travelled in wagons. This was 37 years ago, and since that time he has been out with his own show every season. In speaking of his experience Mr. Robbins said Saturday morning: "During the first few years of my proprietorship of a show I sometimes had horses to haul my wagons from town to town and sometimes after a bad week's business I was obliged to sell some of my horses and hire animals to draw the wagons to the next town. Then when business was better I bought horses again, and so it went for years. Now I have a show of which I am proud and I have a complete organization which has been built up by years of hard work and experience and which can be obtained in no other way. I have about 300 men on my pay rolls and some of them have been with me a long time. For instance the foreman of the canvas men has been with the Robbins Show for over 30 years, and of course understands how to handle the men in the difficult daily task of erecting and taking down the big tents. All the departments are under capable heads and the result is that, although there is much to do, everything goes like clock work, as every man understands what is expected of him and fills his own place in the big organization. One thing that holds the men with the show is the good treatment they receive. We feed everybody alike, the tent men get the same food as the performers and all is the best I can buy in the town where we show. The men have good appetites and value wholesome food and plenty of it more than they do high wages. I treat my men fairly and the result is satisfactory both to me and them. We have been doing big business so far and it looks like a successful season for us."

RAILROAD WANTS

Improvements Promised by Officials of New Haven R. R.

Henry L. Kincaide, president of the Citizens Association, has received the following letter from the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. relative to certain grievances which is self explanatory. Evidently the railroad intends to make improvements at an early date:

Mr. Henry L. Kincaide, President Citizens' Association, Quincy, Massachusetts.

Dear Sir: Your letter of April 4th in regard to conditions of stations at West Quincy, South Quincy and Quincy was received and the matter has been carefully investigated.

We consider that the station at West Quincy is sufficient for the business if the surroundings can be put in proper shape, which we propose to have done.

We agree that the station at Quincy is not large enough and we will see what can be done about extending the present building so as to make it larger. We do not agree with you about having a smoking room in this station, for such places are simply resorts for street loafers and others who have no business with us. We agree about removing the bootblack stand, which will be attended to promptly.

So far as South Quincy is concerned, the station is old but is in fairly good condition as to cleanliness. We expect within a year to commence work on the four-tracking of this section, together with an elimination of grade crossings, so we think it desirable to let the present station remain until plans for the improvements are fully decided upon.

Yours truly,
(Signed) S. Higgins.
General Manager.

LIBRARY NOTES.

Miss Alice G. White, the librarian, of the Thomas Crane Public Library, is in Asheville, N. C., attending the meetings of the American Library Association at its 29th annual conference. At one of the morning sessions "The Relations between Libraries and the Public Schools" was the theme for addresses by Mary E. Ahern, chairman of the committee on co-operation between the American Library Association and the National Educational Association, and President R. J. Tighe of the Southern Education Association. These addresses presented new views on the subject and brought out helpful suggestions as to the best methods of ensuring cooperation between bodies whose aims are so largely similar altho' their methods are different.

It is a fact that our own library more than twenty-five years ago, under the direction of Mr. Charles Francis Adams, then president of its Board of Trustees, was one of the first, if not the very first, to start this great movement looking toward a closer relation between the library and the schools, by extending the privileges of the library in larger measure to the teachers and scholars. While in the many changes of the years, these privileges do not seem to be taken advantage of as largely as we could wish, it is hoped that when the new "Children's Room" becomes a reality, the city appropriation may be generous enough to allow the resources of the library in this direction to be greatly augmented and that the demands made upon these resources will likewise increase.

Incendiary Fire At Wollaston

What was probably an incendiary fire was discovered shortly before 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in what is known as the old Faxon or Bass house on the easterly side of Hancock street, between Elm avenue and Beach street.

The Wollaston fire station was notified by telephone and the Hose wagon sent down. Upon its arrival the driver found quite a blaze in progress and sent in an alarm from Box 57 at 5.11 as he was unable to contend with the blaze alone.

The fire was in one of the upper rooms and had been started in a lot of excelsior that had been placed in one corner of the room. The door leading to this room was closed and quite a brisk blaze was in progress. A hydrant stream as well as a chemical stream was used in extinguishing the blaze.

The house has been unoccupied for some time and it is understood was about to be torn down. The theory of the firemen is that someone entered the house, started the fire, and closed the door behind them.

While the room where the fire started was considerably scorched, the fire loss was small. Seldom has there been a fire where so many children congregated. They made up most of the crowd.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon denies that he possesses a presidential bee. Well, maybe it's a mosquito.

The Hon. Abe Ruef was a long time finding out that he had a conscience. Pity he did not discover it sooner.

"You can learn more by listening than by talking" says the Baltimore American. And yet some men know no more to-day, than they did the day they were married.

All right-minded boys will envy Mr. Roosevelt as never before now that he has a gold card entitling him to free admission to all baseball games in any one of the 256 American cities.

It is announced that the Pittsburg police force is now on the "military basis." That ought to give the members of the force a reasonable excuse for soldiering on their beats.

After a long search for her missing diamonds and money, a Cleveland woman found them among some dirty clothes. We have often heard of things "coming out in the wash."

The City Council is making a fairly good record this year in curtailing the number of licenses, both to transport liquor, and as common victuallers. The pressure is strong from some quarters in favor of the applicants, but in the past there have been altogether too many stores open for business on Sunday.

It has long been rumored that there would be bills for extras in connection with the enlargement of the High schoolhouse. The Mayor now informs the City Council that the Commissioner of Public Works has received such bills, and intimates that more are expected. The taxpayers are anxious to know just what these bills are for, and also the amount.

If the residents of Crescent street really want that said street shall be continued to Copeland street, independent of the Metropolitan boulevard they now have the opportunity at a cost of only $1,500 to the taxpayers. Now heavy teaming is largely diverted from Crescent street to Copeland street which is paved and better able to withstand it. The extension of Crescent would be parallel to the parkway, taking a strip of land from the estate of Dr. J. H. Ash.

It seems to be difficult to pass a Saturday half holiday order in the City Council which shall be satisfactory to all city laborers, yet they should have the benefit of the half holiday during the summer as well as the city officials and clerks at City Hall. The best solution, in justice to all, including the taxpayers, is in the hands of the Commissioner of Public Works. It is the same plan that is in vogue at the shipyard and elsewhere, and that is, to make the other work days a little longer for all city laborers so that all may have the Saturday half holiday.

Now three hours' work is required on on Saturday afternoons and all afternoons. If these 180 minutes were divided among the other five days, or 36 minutes each afternoon, the men would get through their work at 4.36 on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, and at 12 M. on Saturdays.

In cases where it is necessary that city men shall work Saturday afternoons they can continue as at present on the eight-hour day. City laborers should be willing to give the taxpayers 48 hours each week and not ask for three hours off without loss of pay.

A GIANT CONSPIRACY

Charge of the Prosecution In Haywood Trial

WHOLESALE MURDER PLOTS

"Inner Circle" of Federation of Miners Hired Men to Whom "Murder Became a Trade and Assassination a Means of Living"

Boise, Ida., June 5.—Through James H. Hawley, senior of the group of prosecutors, the state of Idaho made the opening statement against William D. Haywood, who is charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg. Testimony by which it hopes to prove the indictment laid against him was then begun.

The opening statement was a sweeping arraignment of the leaders of the Federation of Miners, who were charged with plotting wholesale murder and hiring assassins, all in a giant conspiracy of vengeance upon those who obstructed their sway, to destroy opposition by terrorism, to control the political destinies of the community covered by their organization, and to perpetuate their own powers within the organization.

It charged a widespread conspiracy, dating in inception from the north Idaho disturbance 15 years ago down to the murder of Steunenberg and whose murdered victims, by bullet and bomb, numbered scores. Hawley declared that wherever in the mining sections of the coast states the federation had been in control, there had been left behind a trail of blood to mark its operations.

After repeating the story of the Caldwell crime, the arrest and confession of Orchard and part of the history of the Coner d'Alene trouble, Hawley said:

"The 'inner circle,' composed as it was of this defendant and his co-defendants to a great extent, brought around them a few choice spirits and to them murder became a trade and assassination a means of living. We will show that a scale of wages was even devised, fixing the amount to be paid for different crimes by this 'inner circle' to parties who committed those crimes and chief among those who were doing the actual work that was planned by the 'inner circle' and paid for by the members of the 'inner circle' was this man to whom I have referred, Harry Orchard, and one Stephen Adams."

Mr. Hawley spoke for nearly an hour and a half. Counsel for the defense opened fire before the statement had proceeded 10 minutes, and the repetition of objections from them led to three or four sharp exchanges. They protested against the charge that the federation was guilty of "scores of murders" and the assertion that the conspiracy extended back to the first trouble in north Idaho, years before the accused was a member of the organization, and they accused Hawley of arguing the case in an opening statement. They dotted the records with exceptions of over-ruled objections and finally got an agreement whereby they could protect their rights as to the entire opening statement.

Judge Wood permitted the wide scope in the opening statement on the assurance of Hawley that the state could show the existence of the conspiracy which it charged and make the necessary legal connection.

Eight witnesses were examined yesterday. They were all from Caldwell and those who did not tell of the crime itself were called to locate Orchard, who went as Thomas Hogan at various hotels and around the Steunenberg home, to show that two months before the crime John L. Simpkins, a member of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners, had joined Orchard and had lived with him for several days in the same room.

Julian Steunenberg, son of the dead governor, was called to tell how Orchard had, three days before the murder, inquired of him about his father's movements. Steunenberg took the stand bravely, but when Mr. Borah began to question him a cloud of pain passed over his face and he evidently tried to keep back the tears.

The defense objected to practically all the day's testimony except that relating to the death of Steunenberg, on the ground that it was immaterial and in no way connected with the defendant.

Harry Orchard was brought to Boise yesterday afternoon from the Idaho penitentiary. For some hours he was closeted with the attorneys for the prosecution. This is the first time that Orchard has been out of the penitentiary since he was brought from Caldwell immediately after the assassination of the former governor. Orchard is looking well and shows little apprehension of the ordeal he will be called upon to face while he is on the stand.

First Degree Murder Charge

New York, June 5.—Salvatore Governale, who slew two policemen April 14, offered to plead guilty to murder in the second degree, which carries with it a life sentence, but Assistant District Attorney Train refused to accept it and was upheld by Judge Rosalsky. Governale was placed on trial on the indictment on which the prosecution relies for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

TRAINMEN BADLY HURT

Caught Under Debris When Thirty Freight Cars Were Wrecked

Worcester, Mass., June 5.—Four trainmen were buried beneath the wreckage of 30 freight cars in a collision between a switching engine and the Hartford freight a mile from this city on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad early today. Three of the men were recovered from the debris, which almost immediately burst into flames, and were taken to a hospital in a serious condition, but they will probably recover. The fourth man was not seriously hurt.

The shock of the impact piled the freight cars high and some of them toppled over a bank on top of some coal sheds. The fire department was called out to fight the flames among the wreckage, and doctors and ambulances were hastily summoned from the city.

The freight, which was due in this city at midnight, was traveling at a good rate of speed to make up for lost time and at Southgate street was supposed to go onto a siding. For some reason the train ran over the switch and, continuing down the straight track, crashed into a switching engine.

Conductor Kingsley, when asked what caused the wreck, said he signalled four times for the engineer to stop and it was his opinion that the engineer must have been asleep. The fire was brought under control within less than an hour by the city fire department.

Alleged Contempt of Court

Boston, June 5.—The Aubrey Hillard company, master teamsters, filed a petition in the supreme court charging Daniel J. Tobin, business agent of the Teamsters' union, with contempt of court, and asking that he be brought before the court for judgment. The petition alleges that Tobin has violated the injunction recently issued by Justice Loring, restraining the Teamsters' union or its officials from interfering with the master teamsters, whose men are on strike.

Went After Delinquent Groom

Malden, Mass., June 5.—Miss Ethel M. Towns, whose wedding was at first postponed, was married last night to Clifford A. Sampson of Brooklyn. On Monday a telegram was received by Miss Towns saying that Sampson was seriously ill in Brooklyn and that it would be absolutely impossible for him to be a principal in the wedding. Miss Towns and a woman friend hurried to Brooklyn and returned with Sampson and the ceremony was carried out.

Curtain Drops on Old Actor's Life

Boston, June 5.—Hiram Davis, the veteran actor and theatrical manager, died last night. Davis was born in Boston 75 years ago. For many years he was prominent in the dramatic world as an actor, advance agent and theatre manager. The past few years he had been in destitute circumstances in Boston, and during the last season notable benefits were given in his behalf. He died of tuberculosis at a hospital for incurables.

Sharp Break In Telephone Stock

Boston, June 5.—On the announcement of an issue of $21,000,000 of new stock, the stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company broke on the Boston Stock Exchange to 108, the lowest point on record since the company absorbed the American Bell company in 1900. The highest price reached for American Telephone stock since the merger has been 185 3-8, in 1902, and the lowest previous to this year 128, in 1900.

Arrest of a Dying Man

Boston, June 5.—Vincenzo Valentino, while in a dying condition, was placed under arrest at a hospital on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Peter Puzzoni. It is claimed Puzzoni was killed as the result of a blow which Valentino intended for Joseph De Laurentiz. De Laurentiz is also under arrest, charged with assault and battery on Valentino, who has a stab wound in the lung.

Thirty Years on the Bench

Boston, June 5.—The resignation of Judge John W. McKim of the Suffolk county probate court after 30 years of continuous service on the bench has been received by Governor Guild. Under the retirement act McKim will draw half his present salary, which is $6000 a year. His retirement is not due to impairment of bodily or mental strength, although he has just passed his 85th birthday.

Sunday Lid Down Hard

Boston, June 5.—The house duplicated its performance of last year and passed a Sunday law bill yesterday, which claps the lid hard and fast on Revere, Nantasket and on all the Sunday shows in every city in the commonwealth. The fight for the drastic amendment which shuts out the Sunday show was made by Representative Luce, who carried it by a vote of 103 yeas to 91 nays.

Strike of Providence Plumbers

Providence, June 5.—Several hundred union plumbers of this city have inaugurated a strike to enforce their demand for an increase of wages of 50 cents a day. The amount paid up to yesterday has been $3.50 a day for eight hours work. The matter of hours does not enter into the controversy.

Cigar Strippers on Strike

Boston, June 5.—About 100 cigarmakers had to suspend work last night on account of a strike of cigar strippers. It is said that all cigarmakers in the factories affected will be thrown out of work by the end of the week unless the difficulty is adjusted.

PROGRAM OF HUGHES

Signs That He Will Insist on Its Being Carried Out

AN INFLUX OF MESSAGES

Governor Names Five Measures That Must Pass Before Legislature Adjourns--Panic In Departments Which Are to Be Investigated

Albany, June 5.—Governor Hughes contributed a new phase to his campaign by sending five messages to the legislature demanding the passage, before adjournment is taken, of five distinct measures. The effect of the messages was to stir up new resentment, but it is generally conceded that the governor will win.

The legislature was asked to pass first the omnibus investigation bill, authorizing the governor to probe all the state departments; second, the direct nominations and official primary bill; third, the amendments to the corrupt practices laws, making a new system of accounting for campaign expenses and generally strengthening the law; fourth, a bill authorizing an investigation of the state waters, with an eye to formulating a plan for the state control of water storage and water power as opposed to the Merritt water storage "grab," which turned this over to private individuals; finally, a bill increasing the taxation on railroad franchises.

Coincident with this action, Hughes sent to the senate the name of C. M. Bissell of Albany to replace H. H. Bender, fiscal supervisor of state charities. Bender was last year convicted by the state civil service commission of collecting campaign contributions from state officeholders and his removal was recommended. Strong political influence saved Bender, but the case was made a campaign issue and now his removal indicates the governor's intention toward all state officials. It indicates his entire disregard of political considerations and panic among the state officials, whose departments are to be investigated, has resulted.

The sudden influx of messages from the governor has somewhat delayed everything, and the possibility that the legislature will not adjourn this week is now apparent. It is obvious that the governor means to insist upon every detail of his program, save the Massachusetts ballot, which seems to have been abandoned.

By a vote of 116 to 11, the assembly yesterday repassed the public utilities bill over Mayor McClellan's veto. The votes cast against the measure were all Democratic. Three Brooklyn and eight Manhattan members voted against the measure, which passed the assembly unanimously originally. The measure now goes to the senate for repassage and then to the governor.

Lottery Put Out of Business

Mobile, Ala., June 5.—Firms and individuals, scattered through the country, entered pleas of guilty in the district court to indictments charging conspiracy to cause the interstate carriage of lottery advertisements. Judge Toulmin imposed fines aggregating $150,000 and the defendants have agreed to surrender to the government for destruction all lottery property. This action practically puts out of existence the Honduras National Lottery company.

Proceedings Against Harriman

Washington, June 5.—After a conference between President Roosevelt and Interstate Commerce Commissioner Lane last night, it was announced that before July 1 legal proceedings will be instituted to compel E. H. Harriman to answer certain questions propounded to him by members of the commission at the recent hearing in New York when the Alton deal was under investigation.

Demurrers Against Jury's Findings

New York, June 5.—Demurrers in behalf of the New York Central railroad and Alfred H. Smith, one of its vice presidents, against the findings of the grand jury in its investigation of the wreck of the Brewster express, in which 24 persons were killed, were filed in the superior court here. The argument of the case will be heard next week.

Carload of Gasolene Exploded

Reddick, Ills., June 5.—Three men were killed here by an explosion of a car loaded with gasoline. The three men, together with several other persons, were watching three freight cars burn that had become ignited from a hot box. The car loaded with gasoline caught fire and a fearful explosion followed.

Motor Explosion Kills Miners

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 5.—The bursting of an air motor in a colliery at Port Blanchard killed two men, fatally injured two others, and caused minor injuries to eight more. Great damage was done to the interior of the mine.

Hess Indicted For Abduction

New York, June 5.—The grand jury has found indictments against Theodore D. Hess, the policeman, who, it is alleged, abducted Elizabeth Grady, and his mother. Elizabeth Grady told the jury all about her relations with Hess.

The Odor She Wanted.

She paused on the pavement and clutched the arm of the woman who was with her.

"I have found it at last!" she exclaimed. "Did you notice it? It was that indescribable violet perfume which I have been looking for all these years. The woman who just passed us had it. Do you suppose she would think I was crazy if I went after her and asked her what the name of it is?"

"She would probably think you were insane," rejoined her companion, "but if you wish to know so much it would not do any harm to inquire."

She with the perfume had stopped for a moment preparatory to crossing the street.

"You will pardon me, won't you," asked the seeker after rare scents, "but would you mind telling me the name of that wonderful extract you have and where you got it?"

"Certainly not," was the response as the woman threw back her cape and showed beneath a great corsage bouquet of fresh double violets.—New York Herald.

Brains and Housekeeping.

"I wonder why a brain no bigger than a salted almond is supposed to be good enough to keep house with," remarked a matron the other day, "while a nimble and comprehensive intellect is supposed to be necessary in a woman who goes in for a 'career.' I find my housekeeping gives employment to every faculty I have. If I don't put out all the brain power I own, things don't go well. Memory, executive ability, observation, foresight—all are demanded in organizing and running a home. Wherever you find the domestic machine moving without a creak or a jar look for the clever brain of some woman behind it all. I've known girls to take the tone that they were thrown away in being obliged to look after the details of a house. Stuff and nonsense. It wasn't too much mind they had for it, but not enough."—New York Tribune.

To Know Oneself.

How can a man learn to know himself? By reflection never, only by action. In the measure in which thou seekest to do thy duty shalt thou know what is in thee. But what is thy duty? The demand of the hour.—Goethe.

The Condition.

"Do you think you could be comfortable on $10,000 a year?"

"Yes, I believe I could if the people next door hadn't more than $9,000 a year and my wife knew it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The greatest pleasure is the power to give it.

Her Advantage.

"A man's vocabulary is always larger than a woman's."

"Yes, but a woman's is more persistent."—Philadelphia Press.

Japan May Ask For It From City of San Francisco

AGITATORS GET TO WORK

Claim That Ministry Is Too Conciliatory In Matter of Persecution of Japanese--Their Consul at 'Frisco Sees "Deep-Seated Race Antipathy"

Tokio, June 5.—The opposition newspapers quote Count Okuma prominently as urging the concentration of Japanese national efforts toward the settlement of what is known as the San Francisco question; that Japan should demand a public apology from the mayor of San Francisco, and also that the Japanese should receive treatment similar to that given to Anglo-Saxons in the United States.

Herein lies the sole hope of definitely settling the question. Otherwise, if necessary, demonstrative measures will be taken which it will be impossible to regard as precipitate in the circumstances.

Seven university professors, famous for agitation in moulding public opinion before the war with Russia and during the period when the peace negotiations were in progress, are again bestirring themselves, although this time in the direction of a generally more stalwart foreign policy, including Japan's' dealings with Korea and China.

It is said that the opposition, by means of public meetings and otherwise, will soon begin a campaign against the Saionji ministry on the basis that it is showing itself too conciliatory and too much disposed to make concessions in the matter of the persecution of Japanese in San Francisco.

Count Okuma, although he has retired from the leadership of the progressive party and from active politics and is now president of the Waseda university, is still a great leader of public opinion. He may even wield more influence than when he was an active party leader. He speaks for the Japanese people, when he does speak, more thoroughly than any other man in Japan. It was he who recently remarked that Chile and Peru were "better suited to be included in Japan's sphere of influence in the future" than was Brazil.

The recent recrudescence of Japanese national sensitiveness, aroused in the first place by the segregation of Japanese in the public schools of San Francisco, but soothed by the united exertions of President Roosevelt and Secretary Root, dates from attacks made last month by San Franciscans upon several Japanese restaurants and a Japanese bathhouse, in the course of which the premises and their contents suffered considerable damage.

The official explanation of these outrages was that they were committed by ordinary hoodlums in the temporary absence of the police, who had been withdrawn from their usual beats to attend to the striking street car men.

The Japanese consul general at San Francisco, Mr. Matsurkbara, made a formal statement of the Japanese side of the case on May 29, giving names, places and details in the matter of the attacks on Japanese and their property, and said that, in his opinion, the attacks were not due to a sporadic outbreak of hoodlum viciousness, but to deep-seated racial antipathy, "to which people of no other nationality are at present subjected."

Mr. Matsurkbara added that the Japanese residents of San Francisco had given no provocation for these outrages. Altogether he made a rather strong showing for his people. This statement was telegraphed to Japan, where it created a sensation, and, taken in connection with Foreign Minister Hayashi's telegram to Ambassador Aoki at Washington, telling him to see Secretary Root and urge the desirability of having Japanese citizens in the United States properly protected, gave the agitators and politicians of Japan the opportunity of which they are now availing themselves so energetically.

Two or three days after the attack on the Japanese bathhouse a band of Japanese assaulted on the street some white men, and stabbed them severely. The traffic in Japanese female slaves and its results are causing the San Francisco authorities much trouble. That Japanese coolies in large numbers are being smuggled into California from Mexico across the Rio Grande is well known. A band of 25 former soldiers was caught in the act on May 29.

Youth Sentenced to Death

Frankfort, Ky., June 5.—Lee Holder, aged 17, on trial at Union City for the murder of his father, was found guilty and was sentenced to be hanged July 12. Holder shot his father in the back and beat his brains out with the stock of the gun. He then attempted the wholesale murder of the family by poison, but physicians saved them.

Won't Be Old Home Attraction

Boston, June 5.—President Roosevelt, who was invited by Governor Guild to visit Boston during the Old Home Week celebration, July 28-Aug. 3, has written that he will be unable to accept the invitation. He will visit this state later in the season, however, on the occasion of the dedication of the monument at Provincetown.

MISSIONARY BEATEN

Receives Severe Wound In Lung In an Attack by Chinese

London, June 5.—A special dispatch received here from Hong Kong says that Mr. Pollard, a Methodist missionary at Chao Tung Fu, has been mercilessly beaten by the Chinese. His lung was pierced by a weapon.

The missionaries are flocking into Hong Kong from the Swatow and Pakhoi districts.

Chao Tung Fu is a city in the northeast part of the province of Yunnan, China, with a population of about 70,000. The Bible Christian Home of Foreign Missionary society, an English organization, has a station there which consists of four missionaries, men and women, a native worker, an elementary school and a dispensary. The China missionary list says that S. Pollard and his wife are stationed there.

Peabody Was Rather Generous

New York, June 5.—Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson questioned Detective Peabody concerning the latter's alleged connection with the Gould separation case, the questioning being particularly with reference to Peabody's trip to Baltimore. Hanson sought an admission that Peabody had received money for his expenses in that three days' trip, but Peabody denied this absolutely, declaring that he had paid his own expenses and said he had taken the time from his vacation.

Head Severed After Death

Philadelphia, June 5.—The decapitated body of a man supposed to be the victim of the "Black Hand" society, which was found in Mount Airy, a suburb, has been identified as that of Tony Lebon, a young Italian, employed as an assistant foreman for a landscape gardener. There was a large bullet hole behind the left ear. The police say the head was severed after death ensued and that the murderers then carried it to where it was found.

Cotton Prices Sag

New York, June 5.—A drop of $1.25 a bale in the price of cotton as quoted on the New York Cotton Exchange followed the announcement of the government crop report showing the estimated condition of the crop to be better than 70 percent. Weakness of the market had already sent the price down about $1 a bale so that, at the low point, quotations represented a decline of more than $2 a bale from closing prices of Monday night.

Willing to Become King

Vienna, June 5.—Dom Miguel de Braganza, head of the line of the house of Braganza, which formerly reigned over Portugal, announces his readiness to fill any vacancy in the Portuguese throne arising from the present constitutional dispute in that country. "Joke" Cost Him His Life

Adams, Mass., June 5.—Michael Deners, a mill hand, aged 32, and three companions were fishing from a boat. Deners rocked the boat, at the same time calling out that he wanted to see if the others could swim. The small craft was upset and Deners sank to the bottom. The others reached shore. The police held the three survivors, pending an investigation, but regard the drowning as accidental.

Guatemala's Future "Brilliant"

Guatemala City, June 5.—The government gave out a statement which says: "Every enterprise in Guatemala for the benefit of the republic is protected by the administration. The future of the country is brilliant. This is shown by the investment of American capital in the railroads. The reports of the persecution of foreigners are false."

Strikers Have Not All Yielded

Paris, June 5.—The strike situation still continues uncertain, but officials of the navigation companies are of the opinion that a general resumption of work is a matter of a short time only. The men at several ports have expressed a desire for the continuation of the movement, but the officers generally are inclined to go back to work.

Test of War Balloon

Washington, June 5.—A test ascension of a big war balloon, with three men aboard, was made from a plateau in the southeastern part of the city. After rising to a height of about 1000 feet the balloon drifted rapidly toward the northeast and finally disappeared in the clouds. The balloon landed near Harrisburg, Pa., 4½ hours later.

Walsh will die.

BOOKS AND BINDINGS.

A Critic's Comparison of the Modern With the Ancient.

"One of the strangest things about the early printing is the fact that the paper and binding were so much better than we have nowadays," said a St. Louis collector.

"I have books on my shelves printed and bound by presumably reputable firms, and yet after six or eight years of careful use the paper is coming to pieces and the bindings are gone, while side by side with them are books 300 years old with paper intact and the bindings as good as new. The difference is of course in honesty of material and work. In the old days a hide was allowed to lie in the tanner's vats for a year before it was thought fit for use. Paper was handmade of real linen rags. Now book leather is ready two or three weeks after the calf has been skinned. Paper is machine made of heaven knows what. Of course there may be honestly made paper and strong binding now, as there were then, but a couple of hundred years ago good binding and paper were the rule. Now they are the rare, also the costly, exceptions. It is true that the high temperatures of the houses, the gases and coal fumes may have something to do with impairing leather bindings, for, as everybody knows, a stout cloth or canvas binding is better than the leather now used. The same influences may also damage the paper, but still the fact remains that neither the temperature nor the gases affect the work of the old printers, so the difference, after all, is one of quality."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A COINCIDENCE.

Peculiar Combination of Events Related by Andrew Lang.

As to "the long arm of coincidence," it may be as long as is necessary. Nothing is impossible to coincidence. An instance of my own experience, said Andrew Lang, convinces me of this fact. I had been reading a foolish book, "Out of the Hurly Burly," and some of the rhymes ran in my head. They began:

Bury Bartholomew out in the woods
In a beautiful hole in the ground.

In the afternoon I drove with a party of friends, and we took the refreshment of tea at a house where there were several other guests, all unknown to me even by name. As two of these lived at a place on our homeward route, they accompanied us in our vehicle. As we passed a wood on a hillside one of these anonymous strangers said to me, "This is the burial place of the Murrays of Glendhubreac." I absently and automatically replied:

Bury Bartholomew out in the woods
In a beautiful hole in the ground.

A kind of chill blight settled on the party, though one of them tactfully asked me what poet I was quoting.

When we had set down our two strangers at their own home I was asked whether I knew the name of the gentleman on whom I had expended my poetical quotation? Of course I did not know, and of course his surname was Bartholomew, while, as he seemed in bad health, my citation had an air of brutal appropriateness. "Thus does fortune banter us," for Bartholomew is a most unusual name in Scotland.

Superstitious.

A well known New Yorker, while dining at his club one evening, observed that his order of oysters on the shell was not complete, there being only eleven bivalves instead of the dozen it was his custom to order. On reflecting that his waiter, an Irishman, was a newcomer, he decided to let the matter pass, but when on the next evening the same thing occurred he became a trifle impatient.

"See here," exclaimed he to the waiter, "what do you mean by bringing me eleven oysters when I order twelve? This is the second time that this thing has happened."

"Sure, sir," quietly responded the Celt, "I didn't think you would want to risk being thirteen at table, sir."

When Life Is Wasted.

Life is wasted every time one gives away to gloomy, selfish angry or revengeful thoughts; when resentment or a grudge against man or fate is allowed to find root in the heart; when the temper is let fly loose over a trifle; when one goes to pieces nervously when obliged to repeat a remark and the voice is allowed to rise in anger; when one forgets that a loose temper is a sign of vulgarity and lack of culture.—Philadelphia Press.

Julius Caesar.

The consensus of learned opinion is to the effect that history's all around greatest man was Julius Caesar, the originator of Roman imperialism. Caesar was great as a general and great as a writer and speaker, but greater as a statesman. Could he have been spared the assassin's dagger and been permitted to live ten years longer he might have set civilization ahead a full thousand years.—New York American.

Misled.

Mrs. Gadsby—I'll get even with Mrs. Gabble. Mrs. Gibby—What has she done to you? Mrs. Gadsby—She told me that Mrs. Guffy wasn't at home, so I hurried over to make a call on her, and she was at home, after all.—Cincinnati Leader.

Friends Now.

Tom—Have you had any spats with your girl lately? Dick—No. We're great friends now. Tom—How's that? Dick—We've broken off our engagement.—Philadelphia Press.

It is less to suffer punishment than to deserve it.—Ovid.

Ladies' Night Of the Elks

One of the most enjoyable of many social events held by the Quincy lodge of Elks was the reception given by them Tuesday evening to their lady friends. The reception was held at the rooms of the Elks club on Foster street.

All of the spacious rooms of the house were profusely decorated with choice cut flowers, and were thrown open to the ladies.

The reception committee included: Frederick W. Tirrell, Henry W. Tirrell, Representative Eugene C. Hultman, Col. Henry L. Kincaide, Charles C. Hearn, William T. Shea and Daniel J. Deasy, the exalted ruler.

This committee looked carefully after the wants of the guests, of whom there were a large number, the rooms being thronged the entire evening.

The entertainment was in charge of Prof. Fouche, and included vocal solos by Miss Angelina McCarthy, Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, Miss Helen Donovan, Miss Mary Dickenson and Walter Fouche; violin solos by Marcus Mahon; piano solos by Prof. Fouche; cornet solos by Arthur Murphy; piano, violin and cornet trio by John Mahon, Marcus Mahon and Arthur Murphy; recitation by Benjamin Johnson.

Aside from this, there was whist for those who desired, and several of the ladies tried their skill at pool and billiards.

OF QUINCY, MASS.

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Conflicting Views On Fire Chief

Representative Sandberg of the sixth Norfolk district writes to the Transcript in dissent from its editoral approval of the movement to place the chiefs of municipal fire departments under Civil Service rules "Undoubtedly," he says, "such a law would tend to take the fire departments out of politics, a consummation devoutly to be wished," but he doubts whether it would be an unmixed blessing in some cases "operating to keep firmly intrenched in office men who, although filling the Civil Service requirements, would be unfitted or undesirable in equally important respects." He thinks the head of the fire department "should be subect to removal or appointment by the mayor. "Such," he says, "has been the rule here in Quincy ever since we were incorporated as a city, and the results have always been satisfactory to the taxpayers. Self-interest would insure fit appointments being made by the mayors of our cities."

Commenting editorially the Transcript says we do not know how much or how little it takes to satisfy the taxpayers of Quincy, but according to general standards of public service a more unfortunate instance could hardly have been quoted. Changes in the head of the fire department are comparatively frequent in that city, from which one of two conclusions is inevitable. Either "self-interest" has failed to "insure fit appointments," or else mayors have made changes for other reasons than fitness, presumably, to the hurt of the fire department and the interests it is organized to protect. The chief of the department there is almost always in politics He has to be. Were he protected by Civil Service he could attend to his important duties and not trouble himself about the band wagon.

Reception of Mothers Association

The Mothers Association meeting was largely attended, Wednesday, June 5, despite the storm, for 125 people were present, even delegations from the "Philergians" of Braintree, the "Child Nurture Club" of Wollaston and a club from Atlantic.

Mrs. W. H. Doble, the president gave a most cordial welcome in her sweet way, and spoke on the "Relation of Parent to Child."

Mrs. E. W. Sheppard had charge of the devotional exercises and carried the thought still farther by speaking on the "Relation of God to Man."

Miss Winnetta Lamson of Jamaica Plain sang a response, "There is a friend for little children," by Hosmer, and later in the afternoon, "The Rosy Morn" by Holland, "O for a breath o' the Moorlands" by Whelpley and "Cherry Ripe" by Horn. Her singing was enthusiastically received, as she has a beautiful voice and attractive manner.

Absent ones missed a great treat in not hearing these solos and also not being able to listen to Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston who spoke on "The art of story-telling," Words cannot describe the manner in which she entertained and instructed those present.

Mrs. Otho Hayward played the "March from De Meistersinger," and as usual her playing was greatly enjoyed.

An entertainment was given for the children under the direction of Mrs. Williams. "A doll drill" and a solo by Robert Davis entitled "The Candy Man."

Refreshments were served in the Ladies' parlor under the supervision of Mrs. A. G. Coffin.

Trolley and Boat To New York.

Last season many thousands of people were carried by the Old Colony Street Railway Co., from Boston to Fall River on its special through car which ran to connect with the boats of the Enterprise Transportation company for New York. It was so very popular a trip that many days three and four cars were sent down, while nearly every day two cars were necessary to carry the people.

This year the plan which, as an innovation, made so many friends will be repeated the cars running daily from Post Office square, Boston, except Sundays at 2.30 P. M. There will be one change in the method of operation, however, in that where formerly it has been necessary to buy a ticket all the way through to New York in order to ride on this car, this year people may use it for a trip just to Fall River.

The combination trolley and boat trip makes it possible to see a beautiful section of the state and have a delightful sail on Long Island sound at a very reasonable price it being but $.75 to Fall River, and $1.75 all the way from Boston to New York.

Base Ball Blanks.

The Daily Ledger will furnish base ball blanks to all local clubs upon application, and particularly requests that these blanks be used when possible in preference to all other blanks. Comments should always be written on other sheets.

Popular Day For Several Quincy Brides To Enter Matrimony

A very pretty home wedding Wednesday afternoon was that of Francis Ramon Burke, M.D., and Miss Jane Childs Reed, both of Quincy. Dr. Burke is a very popular, rising young physician and Miss Reed is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Reed. She is a granddaughter of the late Francis Williams of Quincy and of the late Timothy Reed, a Boston merchant. The Reverend Ellery Channing Butler of First church and Reverend William E. Gardner of Christ church of Quincy officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a simple white satin gown, trimmed with rare, old point lace, and carried lilies of the valley. Her veil was fastened with a pin, an heirloom gift of Dr. Burke, her only other ornament being a beautiful topaz and diamond necklace, given by Mrs. Francis Williams of Quincy. Miss Reed was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Warren Greene Ogden and Miss Grace L. Burke, a sister of the groom, both gowned in white and carrying pink sweet peas.

Mr. Walter E. Burke was best man and the ushers were: L. Dowley Williams, Samuel W. Ellsworth M. D., C. Allen Howland, Jr., Joseph L. Sturtevant, Laurance H. Sturtevant, C. Eaton Pierce, and John Brooks Keyes.

Guests were present from New York, Boston, Salem and Quincy. Music at the wedding was furnished by Odell's orchestra quintette.

The presents were numerous and beautiful and testify to the love and interest of many friends. After a short wedding journey, the young couple will reside in the house now occupied by Dr. Burke, where they will be at home to their friends.

Lincoln—Kittredge.

On Wednesday evening, June 5, at 6.30 o'clock the marriage of Miss Ethel Baxter Kittredge and Mr. Charles Frederick Lincoln of Attleboro Falls, was celebrated at the home of the bride on Washington street, Quincy Point. The double ring service was used and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ellery Channing Butler.

The bride looked charming in a princess gown of white taffeta combined with baby Irish lace, carried white sweet peas, and her tulle veil was caught with the same flowers.

The bride was attended by a little ring girl, Miss Elizabeth May Lincoln, sister of the groom. Mr. Orcut of Dorchester, an intimate friend of the groom, played and sang the Wedding March from Lohengrin as the bride and groom entered the parlor.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln left in a shower of confetti for a short wedding trip and on their return will reside at 10 Endicott street, Quincy.

The Wollaston Free Kindergarten

Editor of the Ledger:

The Wollaston Free Kindergarten closed its first very successful season last week. Twenty years from now many will look back to the opening of the same, as an historic event, for it was the first free kindergarten ever established in Wollaston.

A friend recently said to me, "After all do you think it is really worth while," from my view point it certainly is worth while. At the opening of the season between thirty and forty children from four to six years of age were present. Many of them were practically dumb and speechless. If you enquired their names they would put their finger in their mouth, hang their heads and make no reply. The result of course of diffidence.

After a couple of weeks it was not so; a surprising change had taken place. They would look in your face with sparkling eyes, and tell you, not only their name, but all about their little baby brother or sister at home, and about their dollies and Teddy bears and other possessions.

Why? Because their diffidence was swept away by contact with other children; their vocabulary was enlarged; their imagination stimulated; they began to realize that they were not isolated little creatures bounded by the limitation of home, but were one among many.

They had marched into a wonderful and delightful new world of knowledge; a world of birds, flowers, pictures music, plays and games, ideas of form, color, proportion and harmony, crept gradually into their souls.

The plays and games were a source of intense enjoyment to them; they would hop and croak like a frog, crawl like a caterpiller, swim like a fish, flock in a corner, perk their heads one side and coo like doves, swing a pick in a coal mine, shoe a horse and for practical things they took flour and made bread and baked it; also they made butter in a little churn, and every child took some part in the process. Modeling in clay and painting flowers was a great delight to them and through it all cheerful songs were mingled.

Of course they were fortunate in having exceptionally fine teachers. Miss Parker the principal, Miss Cummings and Miss Hicks were all of them saturated with an intelligence enthusiasm for work, and seemed to fairly radiate a glowing atmosphere of motherly cheerfulness and patient good will. This the children quickly absorbed and the result was the sessions were one of intense enjoyment and were looked forward to with eager anticipation by mothers of the children because they loved the teachers and the teachers loved them and where love is, is contentment.

This is not all; enthusiasm is contagious and when these children went home, in many cases papa, mama and the baby caught it, and by the compelling power of parental love they became kindergarteners and instructed by their child, went down on their hands and knees, and flocked in a corner and cooed like doves, and imitated frogs, fish and caterpillers, while the baby crowed like a rooster.

I have no doubt it done them good. It exercised muscles not frequently used. The absurdity of the situations stimulated and developed their sense of humor, which in many people is sadly lacking. Better still, it drew them nearer together. parent and child anl they realized perhaps more than ever before that God had given into their keeping a rapidly developing immortal soul, and a keener sense of responsibility possessed them.

Through all the long bitter cold winter and the cheerless, dreary, damp spring, one child, the youngest of the kindergarteners, less than four years old, little Elva Hirtle never

FIRE SUSPECT

Is Arrested After Second Attempt to Burn Wollaston House

The fire department was called out again Wednesday afternoon at 4.30 by an alarm from Box 57 for another fire in the unoccupied Bass or Faxon house on the east side of Hancock street between Elm avenue and Beach street.

This time the fire had been started at the foot of the back stairway and was burning briskly when the department arrived. A hydrant stream however soon had it under control.

An investigation after the fire showed that two attempts had been made to burn the building on Wednesday. One fire was started in a closet on the upper floor. A lot of paper had been burned but for some reason it did not set fire to the building. Then the fire was evidently started on the first floor. This fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

After the fire Chief Litchfield learned that William A. Gregory had been seen by two parties coming from the building a few minutes before the fire, and he was the first man seen by the firemen when they arrived. Gregory was also one of the first persons seen at the fire on Tuesday.

As soon as Officer Lyons arrived these facts were communicated to him, and he promptly placed Gregory under arrest and locked him up. When the officer told him that he was under arrest Gregory did not ask what for but went along peacefully.

Our City's Advantages.

What are the peculiar attractions and merits of this city as a place of family residence? A list of model residence cities and towns throughout the United States is in course of preparation for publication in the Good Housekeeping magazine (published at Springfield, Massachusetts,) and the editor asks for information from this community, among others. In addition to the list, there will be printed several handsomely illustrated articles describing the typically best places as these are determined by the facts brought out in the inquiry. Liberal prices will be paid for these articles. Here is an opportunity for girls and boys, as well as their parents, to earn some money while performing a service for their home town and acquiring new information on which to base their loyal and public spirit. Ocean Trip on Morgan Line to New Orleans.

(Editorial Correspondence.)

The steamship line between the great ports of New York and New Orleans has been advertised as the "Sunset route" and the "Morgan line," but may soon be known as the "Bridal route," for there are always newly married people aboard these smooth sailing, high speed, well appointed new steamships, and the prospects of the unmarried are excellent.

On a recent trip South there was a loving couple from Vicksburg, Miss., who occupied one of the four luxurious suites of the Momus, which is a sister ship of the Creole built at Quincy in everything but the motive power. Then there was a charming German miss, an extensive traveller in Europe and America, who was to met her fiance at New Orleans.

These bridal couples are always of interest, but usually exclusive, so that it is well they are not in a majority. With this exception one's fellow passengers on this route are very social, and therefore one always has pleasant recollections of 120 golden hours at sea, and there are regrets when the trip comes to an end. In the five days required to make the voyage, the passengers are sure to become one large family with mutual interests; the New Englander finds it profitable to exchange views with the Southerner, and to hobnob with those who are journeying to and from the Pacific coast, Mexico, and the Orient. Fifteen or twenty States are usually represented on a trip, also European countries.

The writer left New York on Wednesday, May 8, at noon on the steamship Momus, in command of Capt. J. S. Boyd, of Newton, Mass. A letter of introducton, and the fact that we both hailed from the suburbs of Boston, caused a strong tie of friendship to spring up between us. I was always welcome at his quarters and a daily visitor. One could not but admire this veteran commander, and his faithfulness to the great trust imposed upon him. Never before did I recognize that the responsibilities of a commander were so great, but certainly they require constant attention. The ship and its cargo are valued at perhaps $1,500,000, and then there are 200 or more lives aboard. A little inattention or miscalculation would cause a total loss. But mishaps are not frequent.

For a few hours the passengers enjoy the sights in New York harbor and the sail down the bay to Sandy Hook, but the New Jersey shore fades from view before dark, and we say good bye to land until Saturday. Before daylight on Thursday the ship is off the coast of Virginna, and at midnight should be off Savanah, Georgia.

Meals on these ships are served at 8 A. M., 1 and 6 P. M. Lunch comes one hour after leaving New York and we are assigned by the purser (a very popular young man by the way) to seats which we occupy at all meals. There is also at each plate a folder with a printed passenger list, a page of general information relative to bell time, scope of vision, knots, meals, the library, smoking room, decks, etc., a page for autographs and notes, etc., etc.

The passenger list on this particular trip showed two gentlemen from Boston, two from Providence, R. I., (one a clergyman travelling incognito,) a divinity student at New York who was returning to his home in Denver, a physician from Newark accompanied by his wife and daughter, two or three couples from New York who were making the round trip, a New York lady and two charming children who were en route to Los Angeles to join husband and father who was there for his health, also another family bound for California, two Englishmen, a charming young lady returning to the "Blue Grass" state (who soon monopolized the young men,) a couple from Memphis, Tenn., who had been on an extended trip, two enterprising young men largely interested in lumber in Louisiana, two New Orleans business men returning home from New York, several drummers, and others travelling either for business, health or pleasure.

One did not learn all these facts from the passenger list, but it is surprising how quickly one becomes acquainted with his neighbors at the tables, or in the steamer chairs, the game room, or the library or in the promenade on deck which is the proper thing either before or after each meal. I should have stated that the tables are gloriously attractive to our sea appetites, with their spotless damask, their glittering crystal and silver, their flowers and tropical fruits, and the attentive stewards bustling about in the service of the hungry. A full course dinner is served at 6 P. M., Two hours before breakfast and between meals it is possible to obtain hot coffee, fruit. etc.

Here is a sample menu served May 12:

Blue Points
Celery Queen Olives Radishes
Chicken a la Reine Consomme Royal
Boiled Red Snapper, Oyster Sauce
Lamb's Tongue en Fricassee
Compote of Jumbo Squabs
Spaghetti a la Toulouse

The Momus, the Antilles and the Creole are undoubtedly the finest coastwise steamships on the Atlantic. The passenger accommodations are excellently arranged, light, airy and comfortable. Each of these ships is 440 feet long, 53 feet beam and 37 feet deep, with a displacement of 10,000 gross tons. All the staterooms are outside rooms, reached from inside passageways, as are also the dining, saloon, library, smoking room, baths, toilets, etc. The staterooms are large and perfect in details with two berths; couch, closet, running water, heater, electric lights and bell service.

Winter clothes and blankets were comfortable during the first day out from New York, but these gave way to the lightest of summer clothes before Florida was reached. Sea baths are popular, the salt water in its natural temperature of 70 to 80 degrees being pumped directly into the bath tub.

One day the writer accompanied the officers on their tour of inspection of the boat, and found everything clean; also spent a few hours down in the bowels of the ship accompanied by Chief Engineer John Ullberg. The powerful engines, the numerous boilers, the propeller shaft, etc., are all objects of interest. Then there was the fire drill and the boat drill. The writer also received favors from the hands of P. M. Medloe, the first officer; J. F. Scott, the purser; Charles Fleming, the steward; in fact Capt. Boyd has around him an efficient and popular staff of officers who make the trip pleasant for passengers.

The mammoth hotels at Palm Beach, Florida, were the first land seen, and were a welcome sight. This was on the fourth day out. We sailed south along the Florida coast, but it is low land and uninteresting until the Florida straits and reefs are reached. Some of the reefs are large, some small, each a tuft of yellow bordered green, Leaving Dry Tortugas we are quickly out of sight of land again headed straight across the gulf of Mexico for the picturesque entrance to the Mississippi river. It is a run of nearly 500 miles requiring over 30 hours.

The ship is scheduled to reach the South pass of the Mississippi river at 4 A. M. An hour before this the intensely blue water of the gulf gives way to the muddy waters of the river. There is much of the Arcadian in the peace and quiet of the waters into which the ship suddenly glides from the broad open gulf. The run for eleven miles is between low jetties of the famous ship canal before reaching the wider expanse of the turbid river winding down from the city of New Orleans through a hundred miles of southern landscape. The banks are cut by bayous and the great streams making to the right and left to the other mouths of the Mississippi. At every sharp curve as we sailed new scenes opened.

Many would have been content to continue the sail for another week, as it was most delightful. The round trip including berth and meals is only $60 and this "Bridal route" is sure to be more and more popular as it becomes known. In letter number two the writer will tell of the city of New Orleans and the homeward trip.

Frank F. Prescott.

Attack on Japanese Places Was Due to Labor Troubles

BUT LITTLE RACIAL FEELING

San Francisco Police Had Made Special Efforts to Protect Japanese--Mobbing Followed Fight In a Restaurant and Later In Street

Washington, June 6.—Supplementing a telegraphic reply to the inquiry of Secretary Root regarding the most recent of Japanese disturbances in San Francisco, Governor Gillett of California has submitted a mail report, dealing in great detail with the outbreak of the trouble in the Japanese "horseshoe restaurant" and its extension to the bathhouse opposite. The state department has also received advices on the same subject from the adjutant general of California and the police of San Francisco.

These reports seem to establish the fact that the affair was the natural outcome of the labor troubles in San Francisco and that racial feeling had very little to do with it, save in the latter stages. Photographs accompanying the reports show the exact condition of the two Japanese places after the visitation of the mob, which lasted only a few minutes, stones flying in the windows and on the floors and other evidences of violence being observable.

It appears that at the instance of Governor Gillette the chief of police had previously taken special care to protect the Japanese in San Francisco. His force was very much depleted, owing to the necessity of diverting a large part of it to the protection of the street car lines which were being attacked at many points. But he did station as many policemen as he could spare, dressed in plain clothes, in the neighborhood of the place where the outbreak occurred.

The suddenness of the affair prevented these policemen from acting in time to save the property of the Japanese. Two white men who were said to have worn some kind of badges engaged in an altercation in the Japanese restaurant and, according to one statement, a Japanese cook threw a knife at one of them. The fight was transferred to the street, a crowd gathered and the mobbing followed.

Possibly it was more violent than if a white restaurant had been the object of attack, but all through the reports run evidences that in some way the Japanese had offended against the rules of the labor union and that racial feeling was merely an incident to the affair.

The Japanese account, as it reaches the embassy from the consul general at San Francisco, is in conflict with the above-mentioned reports in ascribing the incident principally to an outbreak of race feeling in San Francisco, and it is possible that the issue thus raised can be met by the report of District Attorney Devlin, which is expected to be soon completed.

Creditors Long Dead and Forgotten

Boston, June 6.—A fund connected with the estate of a man who died in 1785 was the subject of a hearing in the probate court here yesterday. In that year Ellis Gray of Boston died, but his estate was never settled, as sufficient money was not available to pay the creditors until 1838. The probate judge in that year found that all the creditors of the estate were dead, and he deposited the money in a savings bank. The fund now amounts to $15,000. The commonwealth of Massachusetts now petitions to have the money turned into the state treasury.

Croker's Ambition Gratified

London, June 6.—Richard Croker won the Derby at Epsom and gained the ambition of his life, his colt Orby, bred from an American dam, ridden by an American jockey, Johnny Reiff, having beaten all the British cracks and captured the blue ribbon of the world's turf by two lengths. Outside of Croker and his immediate following, Orby had but few friends and the sporting prophets estimated his chances as being slight.

Handicapped by Bait Act

St. Johns, June 6.—British Consul Woodhouse reports that the industrial outlook at St. Pierre is dark, due largely to the Newfoundland bait act which imposes many hardships on the French fishermen. The French fishing fleet of 208 vessels five years ago now consists of but 75 craft. More than 10,000 inhabitants of the French islands have emigrated to Canada and France.

But Few Escaped Injury

Nashville, June 6.—A passenger train plunged off a 15-foot embankment at Black Branch, injuring 57 persons out of the 60 passengers aboard. The injured are nearly all residents of Tennessee. Only three were seriously hurt. No one seems to know just what caused the wreck.

Kidnapping and Assault

New York, June 6.—The grand jury handed down two indictments against Theodore Hess, who, it is alleged, took Elizabeth Grady, 14 years old, from her home to Baltimore. One indictment charges kidnapping and the other assault.

STORY OF ASSASSIN

Orchard on the Witness Stand In the Haywood Trial

A LONG SERIES OF MURDERS

Unflinchingly Tells of Diabolical Crimes Committed, He Says, at Inspiration of Federation of Miners --Tense Situation In Courtroom

Boise, Ida., June 6.—Alfred Horsley, alias Harry Orchard, the actual assassin of Frank Steunenberg, went on the stand yesterday as a witness against William D. Haywood and made public confessions of a long chain of brutal, revolting crimes, committed, he said, at the inspiration and for the pay of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners.

An undertaking by the prosecutors that they would, by later proof, make his testimony legitimate, opened the way like a floodgate for the whole diabolical story, and throughout the entire day Orchard went on from crime recital to crime recital, each succeeding one seeming more revolting than the one that preceded.

Orchard confessed that, as a member of the mob that wrecked the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill in the Cour d'Alene, he lighted one of the fuses that fired the giant powder; confessed that he set the death trap in the Vindicator mine at Cripple Creek that blew out the lives of Superintendent McCormick and Foreman Beck; confessed that because he had not been paid for his first attempt at violence in the Vindicator mine he had been treacherous to his associates by warning the managers of the Florence and Cripple Creek railway that there was a plot to blow up their trains; confessed that he fired three charges of buckshot into the body of Detective Gregory of Denver, killing him instantly; confessed that for days he stalked Governor Peabody of Colorado about Denver waiting a chance to kill him; confessed that he and Steve Adams set and discharged the mine under the station at Independence and instantly killed 14 men, and confessed that, failing in attempts to poison Fred Bradley of San Francisco, he blew him and his house up with a bomb of gelatine powder.

According to Orchard's story, he and others were authorized and instructed to kill and slay by the officers of the Western Federation of Miners, among them Moyer, Pettibone and the defendant, Haywood, in the present case.

The blowing up of a big mine was only a pastime to them, according to Orchard's story, and the killing of human beings merely an incidental to such a performance.

One of the most dramatic portions of his story was when he told how Governor Peabody of Colorado was watched and tracked for days by himself and a companion with the object of assassinating him.

And he has more brutal crimes to tell that will bring his bloody career down to its end at Caldwell, where, with a great bomb, he killed former Governor Steunenberg.

Orchard retained control of himself almost from the moment he took the stand, and if he suffered much he did not show it. His eyes were bloodshot and his face mottled in color when he came into the room to confront the man whose life he jeopardized. He was plainly nervous. He had trouble in finding his voice, but quickly steadied himself and was soon talking in the soft, easy tones that characterize his speech. His manner was easy. His eyes blinked a little when he told how he trailed and murdered Lyte Gregory, but his voice altered none in tone. Orchard's eyes met those of Haywood several times and the two gazed fixedly at each other, with honors even in the tests.

Strangers entering the courtroom during the morning were searched for weapons. When Orchard reached the building the doors were locked and extra deputies were posted outside the rail. When Orchard, led by Deputy Sheriff Beamer, and followed by two guards, entered the room, a man stood up to get a better view and a deputy shouted, "sit down." The other deputies instantly started forward, and if the man had not taken his seat quickly they would have jumped for him. A woman inside the rail dropped a parasol. The clatter drew all the attention of the nervous crowd, and the gun-fighting men who were there to shield Orchard grew tense until they understood what had happened.

Haywood leaned down between his counsel so that he might get an unobstructed view of the witness stand and for fully five minutes he gazed steadily at Orchard. The latter, however, was giving his attention to the state's counsel on the other side of the room, and it was not until the first interruption came from the defense that the two exchanged looks.

Looking For Vartarian Murderers

Two members of the New York detective department are here and have been in consultation with the local police.

URGING NEW LAWS

Message From Governor Guild on Big Railroad Merger

AN ADMISSION BY MELLEN

New Haven Road Acquiring Stock Enough to Control the Boston and Maine--Says It Will Be of Advantage to Boston and the Commercial World

Boston, June 6.—Governor Guild late yesterday sent a special message to the legislature in which it was officially announced for the first time that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad is acquiring control of the Boston and Maine railroad, and urging upon the legislature the importance of enacting new laws before adjournment for the protection of the state against watering of stock or excessive tariffs in connection with the proposed merger.

The message consisted of two letters, an official request from Governor Guild of President Mellen of the New Haven road for information relative to the rumored proposed merger, and the reply of Mellen. Mellen says in his letter:

"Interests identified with my company have acquired a large stock interest in the Boston and Maine railroad, and have entered into agreement to acquire such additional stock as may be desired to avail of the terms within a reasonable time in the future. The basis of such acquisition made and proposed has been the exchange of shares of the two companies, share for share, with a commission to be paid by Boston and Maine shareholders of 75 cents a share, a similar commission being paid by the purchasers."

President Mellen says further that the purchases of stock are being made "in the hope and belief that an ultimate union of the two properties will be permitted," under such restrictions and regulations as the commonwealth may deem necessary and desirable.

It is stated the Boston and Maine road will still be handled by its own board of directors; that no stock will be issued in connection with the purchase, against which a charge of stock-watering or inflation can be made, and no reduction in facilities will be made.

"It is our confident belief," says Mellen, "that an increased service, without transfer through the Connecticut valley, through the union of these properties will result in the development of a largely increased revenue through the greater convenience available.

"Similarly a through service by way of Worcester and Nashua through the Merrimack valley cannot fail to benefit materially the public, with resulting advantage to the revenue of the railroad. A through service to and from the state of Maine offers possibilities for revenue not to be lightly considered—possibilities so large with such a field for exploitation so near at hand it seems little doubt should be expressed of the result.

"It is possible," says Mellen, "through this common control to bring the roads in Boston all into a union station, with resulting convenience to the traveling public and economy to the railroad. It is also possible to compel such consideration of Boston's position that the differentials under which its merchants have so long suffered shall no longer discriminate against its importance in the commercial world."

"Having no possibility of becoming a trunk line to and from New York and the west, the influence of the company will be exerted upon the attraction of the largest amount of business to and from Boston as against any other port and a development of the commonwealth property in South Boston for terminal facilities," adds President Mellen.

Governor Guild in closing his message says: "Every approach to monopoly demands a greater measure of public regulation and control, for if the state does not control the railroad the railroad is reasonably sure to control the state. I believe that this session should not close in silence on this question. It should leave behind it some safeguard of the public interest. The promise that there will be no stock-watering is contingent on the life and health of a single man, or at best an existing board of directors. It should be crystalized into law."

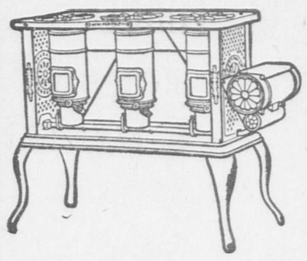

Governor Guild suggested the extension of the statutes relative to the supervision of rates and fares by the railroad commission or the withdrawal or curtailment of any existing privileges.

Says Watering Has Been Begun

Boston, June 6.—Attorney William B. Lawrence, representing the Lawrence family of Medford, among the heaviest stockholders of the Boston and Maine railroad, declared in an interview that the stock watering already had been done by the New Haven road, its stock having been advanced recently from $82,000,000 to $121,000,000, no one knowing what it represents.

Mr. Lawrence charged that Mellen's proposed union of the two great railroad systems of New England would be an ideal scheme to foster stock speculation by merely diverting through traffic from the Fitchburg or some other of the Boston and Maine leased lines to the New Haven line for a year and then diverting it from the latter road the next year.

Barge Lost Off New Jersey

Providence, June 6.—Barge Paotolus was lost off Hog island, on the New Jersey coast, during a recent storm. Captain Deputy and his crew of three men were saved. The barge was bound up the coast in tow of the tug Tormentor. During a southeasterly gale and heavy sea, a big comber swept over the deck of the barge and knocked Deputy down. He was rendered half unconscious, but managed to grasp the bulwark and keep from being swept overboard. The barge sprung aleak, and a few hours later it sank. The captain and crew escaped in the tender and were taken aboard the tug, which arrived here last evening.

Nothing For De Raylan's "Widow"

Chicago, June 6.—Nicholi de Raylan, the former attache of the Russian consulate, whose sex had been a matter of doubt, has been officially declared to have been a woman. The order was entered by Judge Cutting, and as a result Mrs. Anna de Raylan, who lived with de Raylan as "his" wife, will not be permitted to share in the estate, which is valued at about $6000. The witnesses were persons who visited Phoenix, Ariz., where the body was exhumed.

King Edward to Visit Ireland

London, June 6.—Coming on the heels of the widely published stories of disaffection in certain districts of Ireland, alleged to be more serious than in any period of the past 20 years and provoking debates in both houses of parliament, the sudden official announcement is made that King Edward and Queen Alexandra will visit Ireland early in July. It is significant that the king's visits to Ireland are invariably made during times of alleged disaffection.

Part of Stolen Jewels Recovered

Boston, June 6.—The mysterious theft of jewelry valued at $5000 at the mansion of Arthur Hunnewell in Wellesley several months ago was recalled by the finding of part of the stolen jewels in a box. A man employed in protecting trees from the moth pest found a small box almost buried in leaves at the base of a tree. The contents consisted of jewelry valued at about $500.

Railroads Fight Two-Cent Fare Law

Philadelphia, June 6.—Following the lead of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, the Philadelphia and Reading company has filed a bill in equity in common pleas court here attacking the constitutionality of the 2-cent fare law enacted by the recent legislature. Other railroads in this state are expected to take similar action.

Furniture Men Indicted

Portland, Or., June 6.—In the United States district court here, indictments were read against 180 furniture dealers in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and California, for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The list includes every manufacturer and jobber in the states named, and a large number of retail dealers.

Death For Twelve Conspirators

Mexico City, June 6.—According to a telegram received here, 12 of the 19 men condemned to death by court martial proceedings because of an alleged attempt on the life of President Cabrerera of Guatemala will be executed. Eleven of these men are Guatemalans and one a Spaniard.

Passage of Gratuity Bill

Boston, June 6.—The so-called gratuity bill, which provides a gratuity of $135 to every soldier or sailor of the Civil war who has never received a bounty, was passed to be enacted without division or debate in the senate. It now goes to Governor Guild.

Many Saw Man Fall to Death

Boston, June 6.—Passengers on elevated trains and scores of persons in the streets saw William McCarthy fall to his death from the fifth floor of a new building on Causeway street, near the North station. McCarthy was 45 years old.

San Francisco Shaken Up

San Francisco, June 6.—An earthquake shock lasting 10 seconds was felt here yesterday. The oscillation was from the north to south. No damage has been reported.

NEWS IN BRIEF

James Mountfort, a financial man of London, dropped dead on the steps of the parliament buildings at Toronto from heart disease. He represented English mining men interested in Cobalt.

The remarkably cool weather which has attracted widespread attention has given place to summer conditions in the south and west.

The Spring Air Brings Out Buds

Auctioneer Crane will sell household furniture next Monday at No. 91 Cranch street.

The C. E. Society at Quincy Point church hold a business meeting in the vestry, Friday evening at 8.30.

Miss Jennette Isabel Wilson daughter of Henry G. Wilson received the degree of A. M. Wednesday at Boston University.

The New England Telephone Co. has extended its underground conduits through Franklin and Water streets to the Quincy Adams depot.

Sunday, June 9 will be observed as "Children's Day" at the Point church. Supt. Sherburne has his Sunday school give a concert in the morning.

The Boys' club, the Huscarls, initiated four into its membership, on Monday evening, Frank Stone, Joseph Retts, James Waddell and Albert Spencer.

The incendiary fires this week calls to mind the fact that in 1889 Quincy was infested with a fire bug and it was found necessary on June 7 to offer a reward of $1000 for his arrest.

For the first time in twelve or more years Quincy did not have any 80 degree temperature in May. In three years there were 90 degree days in May, and 80 degree days have come in April in four years.

The grounds about the Gridley Bryont school look very attractive. The lawn is nicely kept and the recent rains make it look beautiful. Several floral plots have been laid out, which will later contain flowering plants.

Hon. John Barrett, who delivers the address at the graduating exercises of the Quincy Mansion school next Thursday afternoon, is director of the Bureau of the American Republics. Commencement week begins Sunday.

There is to be a lecture in the Point church, Friday evening, illustrated by the lantern, showing scenes from America, Rome, Turkey, India, Siam, So. America, Hudson Bay and the Philippines. A collection will be taken for the Sunday school.

The funeral of John Q. A. Spear, formerly of Quincy, was held Wednesday from his home on Minot street, Neponset. Services were conducted by Rev. Francis S. Wilson. Music was furnished by the Harvard male quartette. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy.

Friday afternoon the Quincy Point C. E. Society hold a social in the vestry of the Quincy Point church from 5 to 7. The following have recently been promoted from the Junior into the Intermediate Society: Dora Staples, Lulu Moody, Ella Melville, Helen Lee, Mildred Bonney, Catherine Yule, Isabelle Foster, Ethel McIntyre, Elizabeth Beattie, Ethel Joy, Helen Wayer, Joanna Lorenstien, Jabel Aule and Muerrell Sewell.

Two Other Accidents.

There were two street railway accidents on the East Weymouth line Wednesday night, but no one was injured in either case. The first was caused by a box car running into the rear end of an open car. The vestibule of the box car was smashed. The second accident was caused by a car running into a vegetable wagon.

The Q. Y. C. Vaudeville Show

The annual spring smoker under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club was held at the club house Wednesday evening. The weather was rather unpleasant and there were several other attractions, yet these did not prevent a large attendance of the club members and their friends.

The entertainment was given under the direction of Mr. Kelley, the well-known amusement agent, who brought out a bunch of vaudeville artists who furnished a highly appreciated entertainment

Charles Weeks, one of Quincy's well known residents started the ball rolling with a monologue and some difficult card tricks.

Miss Jenie Pendleton, the soubrette of the Jennie June Company, contributed a group of songs, and was followed by John R. Harrington, the mimic and dialect artist, who gave some side-splitting dialect sketches.

Blanche London, late of New York, the celebrated change artist, contributed a group of patriotic songs.

Ben Johnson, the rube from Bell Grade Me., down to Bostin for a time, gave a character sketch and a trick violin act.

The last number on the program was by Margaret Rosen, late of Russia, who is said to have taken leave during the Japanese war. Miss Rosen gave her song, "Ikie Goldstein," for which she has become famous since coming to this country.

During the singing of many of the popular airs during the program, the boys joined in the chorus.

Cigars were passed, and after the entertainment, coffee, crackers and cheese were served in the locker room.

Robbins Circus Largely Attended

Frank A. Robbins' two ring circus has come and gone, but the memory of it will long remain green to the thousands that filled the big tent. Although it rained great guns during the afternoon it was as dry as a bone under the canvas.

At both performances there was something doing from the time of the grand entre until the final act. Not an idle moment, the bare back riders, trained animals, the aerial acts and bunch of funny clowns keeping things moving.

Then there was some clever trapeze acts, high in the air, that were thrilling in the extreme and fancy trick bicycle riding, all combining to make the show ahead of anything Mr. Robbins has presented to Quincy audience in years past.

Of course everybody and his girl was there and he made himself solid by filling her up with pink lemonade and peanuts, for a circus without these accesories would not be a circus.

The audiance was enthusiastic and every act got its share of their shouts of approval.

Taken from Jury.

The case of Kristina Lukkonen, administrix, against the Fore River Ship Building Co., for death of plaintiff's brother, on trial at the superior court in Dedham, was taken from the jury Wednesday and a verdict ordered for the defendants. The case of Michael J. Drohan against the same company for $20,000 has been settled by counsel.

missed one session although she had a long walk. Her dainty little anatomy was so surcharged with enthusiasm that there was no room for cold, or snow, or rain, to enter, and it was she, who taught me this little anthem of thanksgiving which was sung at the opening of every session during the term:

"Father we thank thee for the night,
And for the pleasant morning light,
For rest, and food, and loving care,
And all that makes the world so fair."

It seems to me it is well worth while for a young child to enter the journey of life with the words of that simple song of thanksgiving photographed on some film in their subconscious soul, to swing, and lilt, and sing there, a sweet memory, an inspiration, a consolation long years after you and I have passed on to that blessed country we all hope, where none can enter "Except they become as a little child."

Car Derailed Passengers Hurt

Car number 2536 which left Quincy for Weymouth Landing at 8.55 this morning in charge of conductor John T. Kelley and motorman John P. Brady, jumped the track on Quincy avenue near Scammell street.

The car ran along side of the rail for a distance of fifty feet then turned and brought up head on against a ledge. There were seven passengers in the car at the time. Conductor Kelley was thrown through the door and had his left hand cut and his shoulder hurt.

Paul Madison of Goddard street and Mrs. George H. Norris of 202 Whitwell street were the only passengers who complained of injuries. Madison received a bad fall May 29, while at work on the Creole at the Fore River yards and has been laid up since that time. He was on the way to the Fore River hospital at the time and was severely shaken up.

Mrs. Norris became hysterical and was attended by Dr. Reardon and removed to her home. Her injuries are thought to consist largely of nervous fright, although bruised and shaken up.

Motorman Brady applied the brake as soon as the car left the rail and although the front of the car was smashed he escaped uninjured.

The rear door of the car was so badly jammed that it could not be opened.

It is thought that the derailment of the car was caused by a rock becoming wedged near the rail.

BOARD OF TRADE

In Opposition To Expenditure By City on Crescent Street

The June meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening and largely attended. The principal topics for discussion were the Hancock street widening and the extension of Crescent street to Copeland street.

Representative Hultman for the special committee on the Hancock street widening reported that the committee had been unable to find any law whereby the Old Colony street railway could be assessed for the improvement although required for the purpose of double tracking, but nevertheless the company might agree in advance to contribute a certain sum, and an effort should be made to get together before the louble track location was granted.

The committee had obtained a rough estimate of the cost of the widening to 80 feet wholly on the east side from Elm street to Chestnut street, at $75,000.

A general discussion followed in which John Q. A. Field, Lawyer Thompson, Representative Hultman and others took part.

The report of the committee was accepted, and the committee was requested to represent the Board of Trade before the Committee on Streets of the City Council relative to same.

W. H. Teasdale of Ward Four sprung a surprise when he moved that it be the sense of the Board of Trade that the city should not contribute $1 toward the extension of Crescent street to Copeland.

Mr. Teasdale spoke in favor of the motion, claiming that it was up to the Metropolitan Park Commission to right the wrong especially as a part of the land now claimed by Dr. Ash was formerly a part of Crescent street. Further, the city had given free most of the Willard school lot.

Representative Sandberg said it was a previous City Council and Mayor who gave away a part of Crescent street, and that the Metropolitan Park Commission was in no way responsible. That they were willing to help the city out of the lilemna and hence make a proposition to the Mayor and Council to extend Crescent street.

Charles Foster, T. L. Williams, J. Q. A. Field, J. R. Richards and others favored the motion of Mr. Teasdale and it prevailed.

Charles H. Johnson, the chairman of the Board of Assessors gave a very interesting reading from the diary of Capt. Benjamin Lincoln, late of Hingham, telling of his cature by pirates in the West Indies in 1821, of his treatment and how through the good office of a Masonic brother he escaped. It was a thrilling story, and a rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Johnson.

The Evils of The Circus

Editors Daily Ledger:

I believe in the circus. I like to go and take my children. But my children are just at that age when impressions (especially moral impressions) will be lasting. I can not afford therefore, to take them to an apparently immoral circus.

A circus which permits its women to buy tobacco and its men to show some young boys and girls obsene pictures, must be discriminated against. And such things accompanied the River street circus of Wednesday. Ought such an immoral show to be premitted in our good city.

When I try to make collections I shall be told, "we went to the circus and spent our money and cannot pay you."

A prominent business man of Quincy said to me on the morning of the circus, "I am opposed to this thing; it is not a good thing for our city or for our citizens. Much of our goods are sold on the installment plan.

Does not the cheap circus swoop down upon our people and without giving an equivalent for the money, slip out of town with a large amount of money that ought to have gone to our able, honest and honorable merchants.

Therefore, for both moral and financial reasons, let "the powers that be" carefully discriminate as to what circuses they permit in Quincy.

WILL DEMAND REDRESS

Yankee Fishermen Prevented From Fishing Off Magdalene Islands

North Sydney, N. S., June 6.—What he claims is an act which will result in international difficulties was committed by the customs officials at the Magdalene islands last week when Captain Mallock of the fishing schooner Alert of Boston was threatened with seizure if he fished on the Magdalene Island shores.

The Alert left Boston about two weeks ago for the mackerel grounds. Believing the fish were plentiful, she dropped anchor near the Magdalene islands and began making preparations for lowering traps. No sooner were her actions noticed by the officials of the place than the authorities warned Mallock that his vessel would be seized if he persisted in what the officials claimed was a contravention of the treaty laws.

The captain remonstrated, but to no avail, and when he endeavored to reach the owners in Boston he discovered that the cable was broken. His only course was to proceed to North Sydney. Mallock claims he will demand redress of what he maintains was a direct and flagrant violation of the treaty governing shore fishing. He says this is the first time an American fishing schooner was deprived of this right and he claims the act of the customs authorities at the Magdalenes was a direct breach of international law.

Our Missions Not In Danger

New York, June 6.—No American missionaries are believed to be among those mentioned as fleeing from the Swatow and Pakhoi districts of China to Hong Kong for protection from mobs of Chinese. Neither the Methodists nor Presbyterians have missions in that section of China. Mr. Pollard, who was reported to have been seriously wounded by the Chinese at Chao Tung Fu, is not known at the missionary headquarters in this city.

Czar's Troops In Mutiny

St. Petersburg, June 6.—The fourth squadron of the hussars of the guard, stationed at Tsarskoe-Selo, to which place the imperial family had just removed, revolted against the strict discipline which recently had been instituted by a new commander. The mutinous troops were surrounded and disarmed by other troopers and order was restored without bloodshed. The ringleaders have been turned over to a court martial.

Considering Harriman Case

Washington, June 6.—Frank B. Kellogg, special counsel for the government in the Harriman investigation, was at the White House yesterday and it is understood talked with the president about the case. Attorney General Bonaparte also talked with the president about the proposed proceedings against the coal-carrying railroads for alleged violations in the Sherman anti-trust law and also the Harriman case.

The new division will conduct correspondence with officials of the various states and territories with a view to the best distribution of aliens.

Speaker Cast Deciding Vote

Boston, June 6.—Speaker Cole of the house of representatives sent to the "next legislature" the task of amending and modifying the Sunday laws. The vote to refer the matter to the next general court was 98 to 97. It came to Cole 97 to 97. He had Clerk Kimball "call the name of the speaker," and then he voted with the postponers.

Hanged Himself In Prison

TELEPHONE TALKS.

Believing that exact knowledge promotes co-operation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is publishing a series of brief expositions of some phases of telephony, for the benefit of itself, and, as it hopes, for the benefit of all telephone users.

BIG PUBLISHING "STUNT."

With the possible exception of one, no other book published runs into such large editions as the telephone directory. Neither does any other represent the same amount of incessant labor, and none is more accurate. Though mistakes are liable to creep into every human production in spite of every precaution, the telephone directory is acknowledged to be more free from them than any other list of names complied.

The telephone directory is one of the most important adjuncts to good telephone service. As the telephone system grew, not only in the number of people who made use of it but in the number of times each person employed it, obviously it became impossible for operators to keep the run of subscribers by name. To attempt to do so would not only make all sorts of chances for errors, but would seriously reduce the quickness of the service.

So, for the convenience of the large body of telephone users—there are a quarter of a million regular subscribers alone now in the four northern New England state—and for the sake of uniformly good service, the New England company was compelled several years ago to establish the practice among its operators that they should not undertake to do their work by name, so to speak, but must be told the number of the telephone with which connection was wanted.

With 40,000 telephones added to the New England system each year, it is more necessary all the time that users of the service shall, to save their own time and "Central's," look numbers up before they call the operator. All told, upwards of a million copies of the New England company's different directories are distributed every twelve months. The records of new subscribers, of removals, of changes of number and all the other details that affect the make-up of the directory are corrected each day in every one of the 488 exchanges in the system, and once in so often these corrections are forwarded to the catalogue department, as it is called, where they are transferred to proof sheets of the standing type of the next issue of the book. Thus the list is kept "up to the hour" all the time practically to the moment of going to press. When a new exchange is opened, or a revision of numbers in an old one is necessary special supplements are published so that the public hay have correct information without waiting for the next regular issue of the telephone book to come around.

Sometimes a telephone user is unable to look up the number of the person he wants to speak with. Maybe he has mislaid his directory, or the man he wants is a new subscriber whose name does not appear in the last printed list. In such cases you can always learn instantly the number you want by asking your operator to connect you with the information operator. The "information operators" in every ex-change have special directories arranged by name, by numbers and by streets, so that no matter what inquiry is made about subscribers' numbers they can answer it immediately.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY

New Holder Of Gas Company Will Be In Use This Month

Many changes have taken place at the old works of the Citizen's Gas Light Co., on Brackett street since the new company took over the plant. At that time the old retorts were in use and the supply of gas for consumption was contained in two small holders. That the supply was inadequate for the then antiquated plant is too well known to Quincy people to need any repeating. What then must it have been for the present company, who immediately commenced many extensions of the mains.

That there was an insufficient supply for the city, and that the plant in its present form was not of sufficient capacity to manufacture gas, was at once realized. Work was therefore undertaken for a larger and better supply. Every one knows that this was obtained by laying a main through Beale and Hancock streets from East Milton which gives the present supply from Boston.

It was deemed advisable however, to have a supply always on hand in Quincy so that in case anything should happen to this main the city would not be shut off. The two holders were not large enough, and it was therefore determined to build a new and much larger holder.

The old house adjoining the Brackett street property was taken away and work commenced building the new holder. This work has now so far progressed that it is expected that the new holder will be put in use in about three weeks.

The holder which is being built is what is known as a three-lift holder, and will have a capacity of 500,000 cubic feet or a supply sufficient to take care of the wants of the city for at least three days. That means no matter what happens to the main supply pipe there will always be on hand a three days' supply of gas. In that time any ordinary break can be remedied.

The well in which the holder rises is 95 feet in diameter and 30 feet deep. The outer wall is of concrete topped with granite. This concrete reinforcement, as it is called, is 8 feet thick at the bottom and 2 feet at the top.

On the bottom edge of each of the three lifts is a wide lip which is filled with water forming a water seal through which no gas can escape. As the inside lift rises, the water is carried up with it until the lip fits into a groove on the second lift which in turn rises until the third or outer lift is raised. As each of these lifts are 30 feet deep it will be readily seen that when full the total height of the holder will be 90 feet, or quite well up in the air.

There are two 20-inch pipes entering the holder. The gas supply enters by one of these and leaves by the other. At the start the holder is filled with water. Then the gas is turned on and as it enters the lifts are gradually raised until the holder is full. The dome of the holder is now being put on. Then all that remains to be done to complete the job is to build the frame on the outside by which the holder is guided.

The old retort buildings are to be remodelled and will be used for a distributing office. A high stone wall has also been built on the Brackett street side of the holder.

During the past few days a large gang of men have been at work laying a twenty inch main on Canal and Brackett streets from near the corner of Newcomb street. This is the main pipe which will supply and keep the holder full. When it is understood that up to the present company's taking charge, that two six inch supply pipes only were used from the works to supply the city it will be readily seen that the present company are planning to give the citizens a plant that will meet every requirement for many years to come.

Required of W. A. Gregory Who is Charged With Setting Fire

William A. Gregory, who was arrested by Officers Lyons on Tuesday afternoon at the fire in the old Bass house on Hancock street, on suspicion of having set the fire, was arraigned in court this morning upon a complaint charging him with setting fire to an unoccupied dwelling at Quincy.

The principal witnesses in the case were two boys. These boys testified that on the afternoon in question they saw Gregory come out of the building smoking a cigarette. This was shortly after 4 o'clock. Two minutes later the building was discovered to be on fire.

Gregory offered no defence other than to say he was not guilty.

The court found probable cause to believe him guilty, and held him in $2,000 for the sitting of the superior court the first Monday in September.

When the clerk announced the finding Gregory declared that he had not had a fair trial, and that he would show the court a thing or two when he got Tim Coakley out here. In default of bonds he was committed to Dedham.

EIGHTEEN MURDERS

Awful Record of Orchard, as Testified by Himself

KILLING OF STEUNENBERG

Was Plotted by "Inner Circle" and Financed by Haywood--State Gets Revelations Practically Intact--Objections by the Defense

Boise, Ida., June 7.—Harry Orchard crowned his admissions of grave crimes when, continuing his case against William D. Haywood, he made a detailed confession of the murder of Frank Steunenberg by an infernal machine that directly opens the way for his own conviction and execution for the mortal offense. He swore that the assassination of Steunenberg was first suggested by Haywood, was plotted by Haywood, Moyer, Pettibone and himself, was financed by Haywood and was executed by himself after the failure of an attempt in which Jack Simpkins had participated.

HARRY ORCHARD.

Orchard lifted the total of his own murdered victims to 18, and detailed the circumstances under which he tried to murder former Governor Peabody, Judge Goodard, Judge Gabbert, General Bell, Dave Moffatt and Frank Herne.

Then, under cross-examination, Orchard confessed guilt of the sordid social crimes of deserting his young child and wife in Ontario, fleeing to British Columbia with Hattie Simpson, the wife of another man, and committing bigamy by marrying a third woman at Cripple Creek.

Through the shocking details of murder plots, stories of secret bomb making and tales of man-hunts with sawed-off shotguns and infernal machines as weapons, the witness went on in the same quiet off-hand manner that marked his demeanor Wednesday. His voice dropped to lower keys as the pitiful stories of the long hunt for Steunenberg narrowed down to the last day and he told of the race from the hotel to the home to beat his victim with the death trap and the meeting in the evening gloom as the victim walked unconsciously to his doom. Through it all he winced but once, and that was when the defense made him name his six sisters and his one brother and give their residences in Ontario and New York.

The defense fought the story with a multiplicity of objections and succeeded in heading off an attempt to tell the story of the murder of Arthur Collins at Telluride and temporarily shut out the contents of a telegram received and a telegram sent by Orchard after his arrest. Except for this, the state managed to get in its story intact.

The state began its corroboration of Orchard's crimson tale by producing the lead casing of the Peabody bomb. Orchard identified it, swore that he brought it from Canyon City to Denver and then on to Wallace, where he gave it to a man named Cunningham. It was thrown into the river, and the state promises later to prove its recovery.

There were the same precautions and the same armed guards to protect Orchard and the same courtroom scenes except that among the spectators the women to men were as two to one. There was another rush for admittance and the doors of the courtroom had to be closed at both sessions.

Orchard finished his direct examination at 2:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the cross-examination only reached to the Couer d'Alene days of 1899 when the court rose.

Riddell Suspected of Spying

Denver, June 7.—The Times says: A sensational opening of the convention of the Western Federation of Miners is promised should Harry Riddell, president of the Eureka (Utah) union and an elected delegate to the convention, put in an appearance. The charge made against Riddell is that he has been employed for two years as a spy for a well known detective agency, and has used his office to aid in discovering secrets of the so-called "inner circle."

A Charitable Wish

Walla Walla, Wash., June 7.—In an interview, Mrs. Steunenberg, widow of the former governor of Idaho, says she hopes Harry Orchard will be given an opportunity to lead a good and honest life.

SAILED AROUND BOSTON

Airship Came to Grief After Being Blown Out to Sea

Boston, June 7.—The breaking down of his motor, which allowed the airship he was navigating to be blown out to sea, came near resulting in a fatality for Lincoln Beachy off Revere beach.

Beachy had made a sensational journey from Revere beach to Boston, sailing high over Boston's tallest structure, the Ames building, and passing over the steeple of the Park Street church and the state house dome, finally landing on Boston common, where thousands of people were attracted by the unusual appearance. Beachy delivered a message to the governor and then rose in his airship for the return trip.

When the aeronaut was a mile or more off shore in Boston harbor, after leaving the city, his motor broke down and the airship was fast being blown out into the harbor. Beachy managed to partially fix up his engine so as to get back to the vicinity of Revere beach. Several hundred feet off shore the balloon settled rapidly and it looked as if Beachy would be thrown into the water and entangled beneath his airship.

Men in rowboats and launches nearby seized the aeronaut's drag-rope and started for shore, towing the airship, which was finally beached without damage, while the navigator was taken off in the boat.

Police Say Assault Was Committed

Boston, June 7.—Miss Edith C. Goodrich, aged 32, who was found insensible on the floor in her father's home at 24 Moreland street Tuesday morning, with bruises about the head and concussion of the brain, died last night. The girl did not recover consciousness at all. The family of the woman ascribe her injuries to an illness of long standing in which she may have fallen and received the injuries that caused her death. The police are working on the theory that an assault was committed and an arrest is expected.

Despondent Man Killed Himself

Lynn, Mass., June 7.—After an unsuccessful attempt to kill his wife, Peter Daignon, a shoemaker, shot himself fatally at his home. Daignon had been in poor health for the last two years, and for about a year had been unable to work. It is supposed that despondency due to his ill-health led to his act. The bullet merely grazed Mrs. Daignon's left arm, but was fired at so close a range that the sleeve of her dress caught fire.

Municipal Ownership Favored

Wrentham, Mass., June 7.—All the church bells were rung and all the factory whistles sounded when the announcement was made that as a result of a special town meeting, held last night, the town is to have a municipal water plant and a municipal electric light plant. An appropriation of $50,000 was voted for the water plant, but the appropriation for the electric light system will go over to the regular town meeting.

Alleged Acid Thrower Held

Boston, June 7.—Stating that the crime charged was a state prison offense and out of his jurisdiction to impose punishment, if convicted, Judge Fallon found probable cause against William H. Tobin, charged with throwing acid on a horse of the R. H. Brine Transportation company, and held him in $1000 bail for the Suffolk county grand jury. Tobin was unable to furnish bail and was sent to jail.

School For Teaching Housework

Dedham, Mass., June 7.—The will of the late Frank B. Cotton of Brookline, which provides for a $250,000 industrial school for Boston women and girls, where housework and domestic science will be taught, was filed in the probate court here. By the terms of the will distant relatives and friends will have the use of trust funds for life; then these funds will revert to the founding of the school.

Receiver For Department Store

Boston, June 7.—Lee M. Friedman, an attorney, was appointed receiver in the United States circuit court for the Dodge-Spear company, a large department store doing business in this city. It is understood that there is a large number of creditors scattered throughout the country. The assets are understood to be much in excess of the liabilities.

As to Mrs. Eddy's Sanity

Concord, N. H., June 7.—Judge Chamberlain, since deciding to deny the Eddy trustees their motion to be made plaintiffs, has announced his intention of appointing a master to pass upon Mrs. Eddy's sanity, owing to her advanced age. He will permit Mrs. Eddy the courtesy of having the examination take place in her own house at Pleasant View.

Circus Seats Gave Way

Bristol, Conn., June 7.—While the performance was in progress at a circus here last night, a section of the reserved seats crashed to the ground, carrying with it about 300 people. A score or more were injured, but none fatally. A panic ensued for a time, but the police finally quieted the people and the performance continued.

Massachusetts' Heavy State Tax

Boston, June 7.—The state tax for this year, according to an estimate made by Representative Walker, house chairman of the ways and means committee in the legislature, will be $4,046,597. This is the largest state tax in the history of the commonwealth, the nearest approach to it being the tax of $4,000,000 in 1905.

KNOX A CANDIDATE

Is Willing to Enter Race For the Nomination For President

ENDORSED BY PENNSYLVANIA

Stands For Policies Which Have Endeared Roosevelt to the People--President and Taft Make No Comment, but Foraker Is Glad

New York, June 7.—Senator Knox, who is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, learned last night of his endorsement by the Harrisburg convention, through the press dispatches. Having read these, including an abstract of the platform adopted, he said to a representative of the press:

"I am deeply sensible of the great honor done me by my fellow Republicans of Pennsylvania. In their convention, composed of delegates elected directly by the people, they have increased my many obligations to them by coupling with the endorsement of the administration of Theodore Roosevelt the suggestion of my name as his successor.

"I note the convention's reference to the fact that as attorney general and senator I was privileged to aid in the formulation and carrying into legislation and judicial decision those just policies for the protection of the people which have so greatly endeared President Roosevelt to the people.

"I value the action of the convention approving such public service as I have been enabled to render in the past with a satisfaction not exceeded by my gratitude for the unsolicited pledge of support for higher honors and graver duties for the future.

"I have too profound a sense of the dignity of the chief magistracy and too intimate a knowledge of its labors and responsibilities to have sought this endorsement. If, however, the wishes of Pennsylvania Republicans and the reasons they assign for their action should commend themselves to the national Republican convention, I would accept its action with full appreciation of its import."

Senator Knox added that he would have nothing further to say at present concerning his candidacy. Accompanied by Mrs. Knox, he has been visiting friends here. They will return to their home at Valley Forge, Pa., this afternoon.

The Harrisburg Endorsement

Harrisburg, June 7.—United States Senator Knox was formally endorsed for the presidency by the Republican state convention held here for the nomination of a candidate for state treasurer. The Knox endorsement was embodied in the platform, which also endorsed the policies and administration of President Roosevelt. John O. Sheatz of Philadelphia was nominated unanimously for state treasurer.

The platform commends the work of the Fifty-Ninth congress, endorses the course of the Pennsylvania senators and congressmen, particularly in upholding the hands of the president; declares adherence to the principles of protection to American industries, commends the state administration, and endorses the work of the recent legislature.

No Comment From President

Washington, June 7.—The announcement of Senator Knox in New York that he would be willing to become a presidential candidate in 1908, if the party nominated him, created much interest here. Knox's announcement was communicated to the president, who read what the senator had to say, but he made no comment thereon.

Senator Foraker said: "I am not surprised and am glad to hear it. Senator Knox is a very able and worthy man."

Secretary Taft had nothing to say.

War Craft on Exhibition

St. Petersburg, June 7.—A squadron of 17 torpedo boats, constructed out of funds raised by popular subscription during the war with Japan, has arrived at St. Petersburg. The vessels are lined up on both sides of the Neva, in the heart of the city, in order to give the population an opportunity of inspecting the outcome of their contributions.

Paid $10,000 Fine For Rebating

New York, June 7.—The Western Transit company pleaded guilty in the United States circuit court to one count of an indictment against it, alleging the granting of rebates on shipments of coffee and sugar to western points. A fine of $10,000 was imposed and immediately paid. The other counts of the indictment were dismissed.

To Prison For Displacing Switch

Hartford, June 7.—Edward Pettingill, a railroad man, charged with displacing a switch at East Hartford, thereby putting a passenger train in jeopardy, was placed on trial in the criminal superior court, found guilty and given a sentence of from one and a half to two years in state prison.

Douma's Downfall Predicted

St. Petersburg, June 7.—Diplomatic and political circles still believe the days of parliament are numbered and the reports from inner circles of the government that Premier Stolypin has abandoned its defense continue in most positive form.

MESSAGE ON MERGER

Guild's Views Have Strong Endorsement of Lodge

PROSPERITY OF BAY STATE

Involved More Directly Than Anything Which Has Happened In Senator's Lifetime--Export Trade of Boston at Mercy of Corporation

Washington, June 7.—Hearty endorsement is given by Senator Lodge to the views of Governor Guild regarding railroad consolidation as expressed in his message to the Massachusetts legislature. As soon as the senator had read the governor's message carefully he had this to say on the subject:

"I was extremely glad to read Governor Guild's message to the legislature in regard to the railroad consolidation. He is entitled to the highest commendation for taking action, and will receive, I am sure, in his position cordial support from the people of the state. His recommendations, so far as they were given in the papers, are eminently sound and wise.

"I hope the legislature will make careful provision to carry them out and will not hesitate to take all the time that is necessary to do so, for this railroad consolidation involves the prosperity of Massachusetts, of Boston, more directly than anything which has happened in my lifetime. I earnestly hope that the legislature will also make provision, so far as it is possible, to prevent the diversion from Boston of grain and other through freight which constitute the exports of the port.

"During the past year the Boston and Albany, controlled by New York interests, either intentionally or through accidental conditions, has failed to bring up the grain which we are entitled to have by that route. The result has been that four, and I think, six, steamships have been taken from the port for lack of outgoing cargoes. If we should be deprived of the grain and through freights now brought over the Boston and Maine system the export trade of Boston would be practically ruined and the imports would, of course, disappear.

"It should not be forgotten that under this consolidation the export trade of Boston will be absolutely at the mercy of one great corporation, owned outside of the state. No doubt the intention is to benefit Boston and treat it fairly, but this does not alter the fact that the port would be at the mercy of one corporation owned in New York. The United States has spent and is spending $8,000,000 to give us channels capable of carrying the largest ships. We have the only great ocean harbor, except New York, north of Norfolk. We ought to have a fair share of the export trade. The prosperity of Boston is interwoven with the prosperity of the state and of New England. I sincerely hope that the legislature, following the lines so well marked out by the governor, will do everything in its power to protect the business of the port of Boston."

Voliva Charges Conspiracy

Chicago, June 7.—Wilbur G. Voliva has petitioned for a writ of injunction restraining Deacon Lewis, Receiver Hately of the Zion City property and others from interfering with him as the head and director of all the affairs of the Christian Catholic church of Zion. He alleges a conspiracy exists to oust him as head of the church. The circuit court decided to admit the petition and gave a week's time for an answer.

Numerous Murders at Lodz

Lodz, June 7.—There has been another reign of terror and violence in this city since June 2. Eleven persons have been killed, including two millowners, and 37 have been wounded. The workmen have formed a secret vigilance committee, which every night executes one or more bandits or terrorists. To the lips of the dead men are pinned pieces of paper setting forth the exact reasons for the execution.

Boom In Coke Industry

Joliet, Ills., June 7.—Plans for the erection of 280 coke ovens in Joliet are announced. The Illinois Steel company will expend $2,300,000 on this industry in the next 21 months. The annual output will be 800,000 tons of coke. The ovens will supply coke for four blast furnaces at Joliet.

Lisbon Without a Charter

Lisbon, June 7.—The political crisis continues. Premier Franco has suspended the charter of the municipality of Lisbon and has replaced that body with a council composed of personal friends and supporters. The city and country remain calm.

A Sunday School Celebration

New York, June 7.—More than 135,000 Sunday schoolchildren and teachers of Brooklyn paraded different sections of the borough, celebrating the 75th anniversary of the new organization of the Brooklyn Sunday School Union.

Taft Going to Far West

Washington, June 7.—Secretary Taft will leave here Saturday night on his western trip, which will extend as far as Fort Meade, S. D. Taft is steadily recovering from a severe cold which afflicted him on his St. Louis trip.

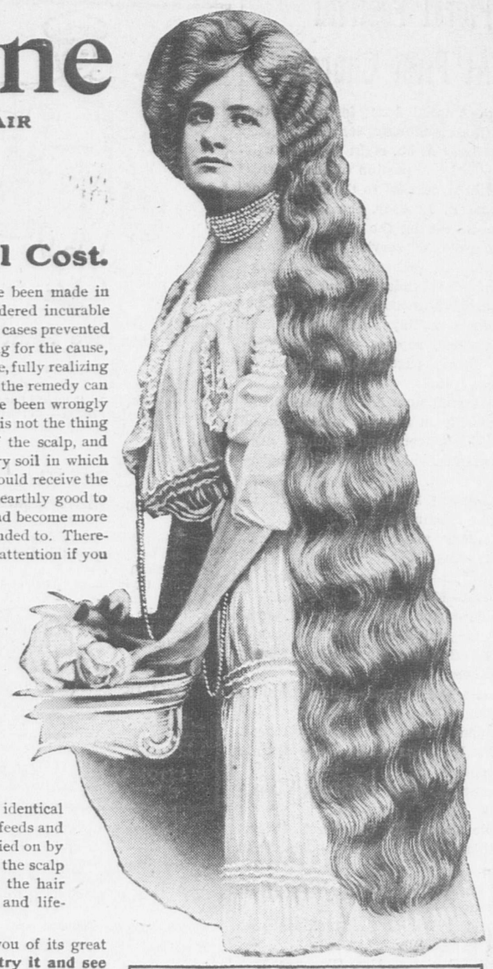

Danderine

GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost.

WITHIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica. Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now cured in a few days, and in many cases prevented altogether. The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause, the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be located. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all of its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One twenty-five-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

THE WHITNEY CAMPAIGN

French Club Organized to Aid Him In His Candidacy

Boston, June 7.—What was considered an important move in the Whitney campaign for the gubernatorial nomination was made last evening when a number of French-American citizens from various parts of the state were entertained at a dinner given at the American house by the Whitney tariff revision committee. As a result of the meeting the "Franco-American Whitney Club of Massachusetts" was formally organized, and the organization is expected to render valuable aid in the campaign throughout the state.

"We want the wheat, the oats, the potatoes, onions, eggs, poultry and other articles that our neighbors can supply," Whitney said, "and we want their lumber and their coal and such of the raw materials as they have that can be used in our manufacturing enterprises to advantage. The nearer we are to the section of country from which these wants can be supplied, the better for us and for all concerned."

Minnesota After Standard Oil

St. Paul, June 7.—The state of Minnesota is about to begin suit to oust the Standard Oil company from the state. The suit will be based upon an alleged violation of a law which provides that the price of oil must be uniform throughout the state, allowance being made for shipping charges. Independent oil dealers have complained that the Standard Oil company was selling in St. Paul a brand of oil known as "water white" for 7½ cents a gallon, while the same oil was being sold in other communities at from 10 to 10½ cents a gallon.

Police Recover Stolen Jewelry

New York, June 7.—Alleged stolen jewelry valued at thousands of dollars was recovered by the police last night, and two waiters, Contas Meras and Emmanuel Cardikes, were arrested as suspects. The police say that Meras had in his possession a diamond-studded jewel case worth at least $10,000 and in a room occupied by Cardikes was found a costly gold-bound handbag and pawn tickets representing many articles of great value.

Vacancy May Not Be Filled

Washington, June 7.—Indications are that the vacancy in the isthmian canal commission caused by the early retirement of Purchasing Agent Ross will not be filled. Secretary Taft is considering favorably a proposition to transfer to General MacKenzie, chief of engineers, the responsibility for the purchase of all materials, save food and hospital supplies, needed for the prosecution of the canal work.

Auto Collided With Electric Car

Albany, June 7.—A 200-mile endurance automobile run ended in the loss of one life and injury to two other persons three miles east of Albany, when one of the automobiles crashed into an electric car. Clarence McKenzie of New York, president of the Standard Brake company, was killed instantly. W. H. Mosher, a bicycle policeman, was badly hurt, and J. Swan, chauffeur, was slightly injured.

Unwritten Law Recognized by Jury.

Columbia, S. C., June 7.—John Jacobs, a negro, was acquitted of murdering his wife and her paramour, John Johnson. Jacobs went home one night and, finding the two in a compromising position, killed both by beating in their heads with a hammer. The jury based their verdict upon the unwritten law, remaining out but 15 minutes. The verdict was cheered by the large number of negroes present.

A Golden Wedding Celebration

Stockholm, June 7.—The golden wedding of King Oscar and Queen Sophia was joyfully celebrated throughout Sweden. In the capital there was a solemn service at the cathedral, attended by the king and queen and the members of the royal family. Subsequently the king and queen drove through the gaily decorated streets and were everywhere acclaimed.

General Rise In Price of Commodities

Paris, June 7.—The increase in the price of bread from 4 to 5 cents a pound, due to the rise in the price of wheat, is already general in Paris and extending to the interior cities. The newspapers complain that the increase in the cost of living affects all commodities and they publish figures showing that there has been an average increase of 20 per cent since 1900.

Japanese Newspaper's Hot Shot

Tokio, June 7.—The Mochi, which is supporting Count Okuma in his position on the American question, says: The San Francisco outrages are worse than the murder of a missionary in China, which resulted in the occupation of Kiao Chow. Who would blame an appeal to the last measure if an impotency to protect treaty rights is proved?

Killing Was Accidental

Royston, Eng., June 7.—The case of Miss Elsie Fox, an American, charged with manslaughter, was heard at the petty sessions here. Miss Fox was motoring and her car struck and killed a laborer. The magistrate decided there was not sufficient evidence to send the case to trial.

The Spring Air Brings Out Buds

New moon June 10.

Miss Clara Von Emden of Botolph street is ill with diphtheria.

The mornings are now at their longest, and will begin to decrease June 23.

The B. T. club met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Edgar James, Rawson road.

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Troupe of Cranch street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.

The Quincy High base ball team went to Weymouth this afternoon to play Weymouth High.

Thomas Borst of Weymouth, formerly of Atlantic, was a guest in town this week, accompanied by his daughter Catherine.

Col. Bigney, recently councillor from this district, is a candidate for delegate at large to the Republican National convention.

William McConnell is spending his summer vacation, from a school in Canada, with his parents on Bromfield street.

The children who gave a sale last week at Mrs. Joseph Bartletts, Willow street, for the benefit of the Floating hospital, raised thirty-five dollars.

A. M. Leatherbee, jeweler of Tremont street, Boston, and family have lately moved into the house on Davis street, formerly owned by Thomas Atkins.

J. E. McIntyre of the Wollaston club made one of the best scores at the opening of the amateur tournament under the auspices of the Woodland Golf Club on Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Fields, who underwent an operation at the Corey Hill hospital, was removed to her home on Muirhead street last Saturday. She is improving as fast as can be expected.

A new fire alarm card with the boxes in large type will soon be issued by Chief Engineer Litchfield. It will also have the running rules for each piece of apparatus in the department.

The Washington Social club and the Suffolk A. C. play ball on the owl field, South street, Saturday afternoon at 3.30. The Socials will try hard to turn the tables on the Suffolk team.

The House of Representatives passed on Thursday without amendments the bill to provide for metering of all water used in the Metropolitan district. The vote was 88 to 54.

Miss Melissa Josselyn passed away at her home on Standish avenue this noon. Miss Josselyn has been in poor health all winter. A few days ago she took cold and her weakened system was not sufficient to throw it off.

The injuries to the persons on the car which jumped the track on Quincy avenue are not as serious as at first supposed. Both Mr. Madison and Mrs. Norris, the two persons injured, are reported as doing well.

George Hinkley of Billings street has purchased a new 22 ft. launch, which has an enviable record for speeding in spite of its name "Nogo." Mr. Hinkley keeps his new possession at the Squantum Yacht club and it is a credit to the club. In a few weeks, the "Nogo" will try the Weymounth harbor, for Mr. Hinkley and his family will spend the summer in that delightful vicinity.

Chance For An Investigation.

Editors of Ledger:

I would like to be informed by some of the readers of the Daily Ledger whether this liquor transportation license is meant for a temperance measure or not. I fail to see any benefit in it to the city or its citizens, unless as a chance for graft.

We have three good sensible men on license committee but after all what have they done for our no-license city with the grand record we made on this question only last election?

We find that our honorable board of councilmen has granted twelve licenses, and to who! Several of them are for people that have never pretended to carry anything but fire water, the very stuff that we went to the polls every election for these many years to vote against. They do not go any further than Harrison Square and there load with the article that makes our citizen brutes. They make several trips a day and when the business is rushing as it is quite often, especially around a holiday a Harrison Square wagon helps along the damnable business.

These people have been selected by the licenseing committee in preference to the old common carriers, that have their business established for years. I cannot see the good of limiting this privilege to twelve for they are hiring others to flood our fair city. It is time and high time for us to wake up.

No License.

West Quincy, June 6, 1907.

MILTON.

William H. Rand has returned from a business trip to New York.

A regular business meeting of the Thursday Evening club was held this week.

Rev. Mr. Roberts, the new rector of the Mission of Our Saviour church is expected to assume his pastorate the first Sunday in July.

Now that the grass is green the possibility of grass fires is over until fall, and the fire department are getting a rest. They have been called out many times this spring by such fires.

When the Milton police arrest a man for drunkenness they do not release him when he sobers off as in many places, but take him into court.

A silhouette party was held at the East Congregational church Wednesday evening, and was very largely attended although the weather was inclement. Silhouettes of many well known East Milton people were shown, and the guesses at who they represented resulted in much merriment. The entertainment was furnished by Miss Rina Bizzozero, pianist, and Mrs. Dr. Rowe, reader.

A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control.

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twings of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatism Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatism Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

Work for Benefit Of Massachusetts

The first public mass meeting ever called for the purpose of booming Massachusetts industries was held in Faneuil Hall, Boston, Thursday and was attended by hundreds of business men. Gov. Guild presided, although the meeting was held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

The subject of the meeting was, "The Greater Development of Massachusetts Industries." Gov. Guild said that he had decided to appoint two dock commissions to look after docking facilities in Boston and this announcement aroused much enthusiasm.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston stirred his hearers to great applause by condemning the big trust companies and banking institutions of the state for not loaning money on good Massachusetts property, and for sending it to build up western cities and develop western resources. "Get busy with Massachusetts money and use every cent our people are saving for the benefit of Massachusetts," he exclaimed, amidst cheering.

Ex-Mayor Quincy of Boston spoke of the development of transit facilities in Boston, and Congressman Weeks said that the national government now has under consideration plans for the development of harbors and other public needs which, when carried out, will add much to the wealth of the Bay State.

In the evening the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange held its regular monthly dinner at the American House where addresses on trade development were delivered by prominent men.

—Tomorrow is Dorchester's great day, for it is the 277th settlement anniversary. Its citizens will give up the day to celebrating. There will be a grand military parade to be reviewed by Gov. Guild and staff, also historical exercises and a series of water and field sports.

—Mme. Lillian Nordica, who is to establish on the Hudson near New York an "American Bayreuth," left for Europe on the Savoie.

Boston Gets Busy For Old Home Week

Boston promises to be one of the most talked about cities in the United States for the next few weeks—and all on account of an idea born in the mind of its energetic mayor, John F. Fitzgerald.

Boston Old Home Week, July 28 to August 3, has been set aside to entertain former residents of the city. Not less than 100,000 visitors are expected and in consequence the Hub is in a bustle of preparation and enthusiasm over the affair. A committee of 1000 citizens was appointed by the mayor, from which an executive committee of 75 was selected. The executive committee holds weekly meetings at the mayor's office. A smaller committee of 16 members, known as the Administrative committee, holds frequent meetings and is really the working force of the organization.

Numerous sub-committees have been appointed, such as committees on parades, decorations, illuminations, baseball, reunion, finance, fishermen's race, historic sites, horse show, hotel and room, music, names and addresses, press and publicity, retail merchants, rowing regatta, transportation, veteran firemen's muster, wheelmen's meet, etc., and are hard at work on their different assignments.

Not less than $100,000 will be expended by Boston in entertaining the home-comers. The city has appropriated $25,000 and the balance is being raised without difficulty by popular subscription. Some of the best known financial men in Boston are serving on this committee.

Probably the feature of Old Home Week which will appeal most strongly to the visitors and linger longest and most delightfully in their memory will be the decorations. This important matter is not to be left to the haphazard judgment of individuals or firms, but a harmonious color scheme and a unity of design will govern all decorations whether public or private. Mr. C. Howard Walker the famous artist and architect has been engaged to take charge of this matter and something unusual, striking and artistic may be expected.

The Old Home Week committee has also been exceedingly fortunate in securing the co-operation of men of such national reputation as Lieut.-General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., and Major General William A. Bancroft in arranging street parades. The civic and trades procession on Wednesday will probably eclipse anything ever given in Boston, while the military parade on Saturday will include the mobilization of the entire state militia.

Historic pilgrimages to Quincy the city of Presidents, and other places, and also dedications will play a most important part and the members of the different patriotic societies are doing most noble work in preparing the way for the notable celebration in this respect.

It is the intention of the committee to send a special invitation signed by the mayor of the city to every former resident of Boston whose name and address can be obtained. The invitation will thus be valued souvenir. All who know the names of any former Boston people or former residents of Boston who now live outside of New England by whose eyes these lines may be read, should send the names and addresses of those to whom they wish these invitations sent to the office of the Old Home Week committee, 950 Old South Building, Boston, Mass.

The Sidewalk Is Appreciated

Editors of Daily Ledger:

Through the columns of your paper I wish to express for the residents of Elm avenue, Wollaston Park, and particularly for the more than 75 members of the Quincy Mansion school family, their appreciation of the new sidewalk which has just been built on the east side of the avenue.

It has been for a long time a much needed improvement. The city fathers at length have realized the necessity and voted the money for a new walk. The Commissioner of Public Works, and Mr. Barry who have had charge of the work, have done it in a most thorough manner, giving us a walk of generous width, well constructed, and covered with a liberal coating of granite dust.

Several things were noticed which struck me as being not only economical but effective. All the heavy stones which are usually screened out and thrown away, were raked in advance, to the bottom of the walk and then covered with the finer gravel which was raked over them, thereby avoiding the time and labor usually employed in screening and giving a good foundation for the draining of the upper part of the sidewalk.

This broad and handsome walk is not only a great convenience but is also a great improvement to the appearance of this historical avenue which from its associations should be held sacred by all patriotic citizens.

It seems just to pay this tribute to the efficient work of the city employees.

The Social Realm

By all means use sometimes to be alone,
Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear;
Dare to look in thy chest, for 'tis thine own—
And tumble up and down what thou find'st the e.
Sum up at night what thou hast done by day,
And in the morning, what thou hast to do.
Dress and undress thy soul: mark the decay
Or growth of it. If, with thy watch, that too
Be down, then wind up both. Since we shall be
Most surely judged, make thy accounts agree.

Police Recover Stolen Clothes

Chief of Police Burrell recovered three suits of clothing in Boston pawnshops yesterday that were stolen in Quincy a week ago, and for the larceny of which a warrant has been issued for Edward J. McNeil, a machinist employed at the Fore River.

McNeil at first boarded at Yule's hotel, Quincy Point. When he left there it is alleged a suit of clothing also left. Last Saturday two suits of clothing were taken from a boarding house on Chestnut street. One was valued at $25 and the other at $35. They belonged to Mr. Shea and Mr. Healey. All three of the suits were found in a pawnshop on Merrimac street, Boston by Chief Burrell.

But $2 had been borrowed on the $35 suit, and $5 on the $15 suit. A small sum had also been borrowed os the suit taken from Yule's hotel.

McNeil at one time occupied one of the dormatory rooms at the Y. M. C. A. While he was there an overcoat belonging to Phyical Isstructor Long was stolen, and subsequent events make it appear as though McNeil might have had a hand in that.

Chief Burrell says that the polce of Waltham and Lynn also have warrants for McNeil for larceny of clothing in those cities. The Chief and Mr. Shea entered the first pawnshop they came to on Merrimac street and Shea described a suit which he told the pawsbroker he wanted to purchase.

The very first suit shown him proved to be his own for which the pawsbroker wanted $15. The suit of Healeys was also found in the same shop while that stolen from Yule's hotel was in the last place visited.

Pratt is secretary of the Standard Oil company, and director in many other corporations, including the Boston and Maine, in the stock of which he is a large holder. His shares are also, it is understood, to be exchanged for New Haven stock. Olney was secretary of state under President Cleveland. He is a director of the Boston and Maine, and has represented it as legal counsel.

In railroad circles here the additions to the New Haven directorate are interpreted positively as the first open step in the coming merger of the New Haven corporation with the Boston and Maine, the latter thus getting immediate representation in the prospectively consolidated company.

Another significant feature is that the Connecticut majority in the corgoing in along with three non-residents. The representation of the Standard Oil group of capitalists in the new directorate is also regarded as extremely significant and with an important bearing upon the future finances of the corporation.

A prominent officer of the New Haven company can be quoted as saying that recent legislation has not, as reported, made any change in the legal necessity that a majority of the directorate must be bona fide residents of this state.

Democrats Said to Differ

Boston, June 8.—It is considered likely that the proposed merging of the Boston and Maine and New York, New Haven and Hartford roads will enter prominently into the Democratic state primaries this fall. The two leading candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor are not strictly in accord on the big railroad deal. Bartlett is out strongly against it, as he regards it as a menace to the commercial progress of the state. Whitney, on the other hand, while not making an issue of the merger, is quoted as believing that it will benefit rather than harm New England. Whitney does not wish for any issues that will overshadow "his greater issue," that of reciprocity.

Douma In the Balance

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The critical moment in the life of the douma has arrived and Premier Stolypin and the Constitutional Democrats are fighting to save the young parliament. The battle within the cabinet between Stolypin's backers and the ultra reactionaries is proceeding vigorously, and each faction is maneuvering for support at Peterhof. No decision has yet been reached, but the latest indications are that the premier is winning out.

International First Aid Planned

Boston, June 8.—The annual meeting of the National First Aid association was held here, upward of 50 delegates from various parts of the country being present. Reports were read, showing the organization to be in a flourishing condition. It was announced that steps were in progress to make the association international in scope. Last night a banquet was tendered Miss Clara Barton.

Belgrade, June 8.—While King Peter was out riding his horse became frightened and the king was thrown from the saddle. He was badly shaken, suffered from pains in the thigh and returned to the palace in an electric car. His injuries are not serious.

PLOT PERHAPS EXTENSIVE

Two Arrests In Connection With Importation of Chinese Women

Boston, June 8.—An alleged plot to import Chinese women into this country for life in the dens of Chinatown has just been discovered by George B. Billings, commissioner of immigration at this port, and as a result Hore Yen, a former resident of Boston's Chinatown, and Robert J. Rodday, a stove dealer at 138 Harrison avenue, have been arrested. Other arrests are expected to follow.

The federal authorities are not aware just how extensive the alleged plot is, but the general opinion is that they have unearthed only a portion of a general scheme to import Chinese women.

The destruction of San Francisco's Chinatown by the earthquake is believed to have stimulated the importation.

Hore Yen, the alleged principal, has already tried to get Chinese women through the port of New York twice, without success, it is said. He was arrested in New York yesterday, and as soon as the report of his capture reached the authorities at Boston the arrest of Rodday was ordered.

Two other Boston men are said to have been implicated with Hore Yen and Rodday. A search was made for them yesterday, but they could not be found.

Plucky Woman Captures Thief

Springfield, Mass., June 8.—Pluckily holding to a man she found under her bed, despite several vicious blows which he administered to her face, Mrs. Mary Lalli clung to him until her brother, who heard her screams, came to her assistance. The intruder gave his name as James Kenney and he had in his possession about $100 worth of Mrs. Lalli's jewelry. He was turned over to the police.

New Dormitory For Dartmouth

Boston, June 8.—The trustees of Dartmouth college having in charge the erection of new buildings at Hanover, at a meeting here, voted to erect at once a new dormitory to accommodate 100 students. In recognition of the fact that over one-half of the students of the college come from Massachusetts, the new hall will be called "Massachusetts Hall."

Mother and Son Sent to Prison

Bridgeport, Conn., June 8.—The unusual spectacle of a mother and son on trial at the same time was afforded in the city police court when Mrs. Margaret Murray was sentenced to 30 days in jail for keeping a disorderly house and her son, James, aged 12, was sent to the state reform school on the charge of being incorrigible.

Providence, June 8.—After a brief trial, Stephen Snead, a negro, was adjudged probably guilty of causing the death of Joseph W. Johnson, also a negro, who was drowned in Mashapaug pond. He did not put in any defense and declined to take the stand himself. He was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $8000.

Chased Cart and Lost Life

Boston, June 8.—John J. O'Keefe, 5 years old, lost his life while playing around a paper wagon. The child lives in B street. A cart loaded with waste paper was passing through the street, and the little fellow, seeing the paper streamers flying in the breeze, chased them. A rear wheel ran over him, killing him instantly.

Old Bank Going Out of Business

Providence, June 8.—The Lime Rock National bank of this city is paying its stockholders their final dividend in liquidation of the bank's affairs, and with the satisfying of this dividend the institution will cease to exist. The Lime Rock bank dates from 1833.

Shot Himself In Heart

Boston, June 8.—Eugene W. Wight, proprietor of the Hotel Marliave in Bosworth street, committed suicide at his home by shooting through the heart. He was 29 years old and lived with his mother. The cause of his act has not been learned.

Two Feet of Snow In June

Lancaster, N. H., June 8.—A report has reached here that a remarkably heavy snowstorm prevailed on the summit of Mt. Washington. The report stated that two feet of snow had fallen and that the wind was blowing a hurricane.

Electrocuted In Mid Air

Boston, June 8.—The body of Patrick Foley, aged 40, a telephone lineman, was found lying across wires high up in the air in the Charlestown district last evening. He had been electrocuted by grasping a live wire.

How Much Could You Get For Your Farm?

You are a farmer. You live near this town. You own land. Let us say that you own more than you need and would like to sell a hundred acres.

How much could you get per acre?

Land values have risen lately. But has the value of your land risen as you think it should?

Your land is good land. You think it is worth considerably more than anybody has offered you. Well, let us see.

A man buying farm land naturally prefers to locate near a thriving, up to date town. He wants good home markets for his crops. He wants good schools.

Let us say your land is three miles from town. A farm that looks very much like yours is three miles from a town twice as big and twice as prosperous as this town.

If you were going to buy a farm for your own occupancy, wouldn't you pay a whole lot more for land near the town that is twice as large and twice as lively?

Of course you would. It would be good business.

Now, what makes a town big and bustling? Money. Money in circulation. Not in circulation in Chicago, for instance, but right in the town that wants to grow.

How much money have you sent to the big Mail Order houses in the city the past ten years? How much have your neighbors sent? How much have all of you together put out of circulation here at home?

It is probably beyond calculation. If all that money had been spent in your own home town, isn't it reasonable to assume that the town would have grown more than it has grown?

Wouldn't this town be a bigger and better town?

Wouldn't it have more stores to buy your produce?

Wouldn't it have more public improvements to make it more attractive to outsiders who might come here to live, to go into business, or buy your surplus land at a good figure?

TO TRADE AT HOME MEANS TO HELP THE TOWN AND THE NEIGHBORHOOD. TO HELP THE TOWN AND THE NEIGHBORHOOD MEANS TO HELP YOURSELF.

The.... Professor's Way.

By HENRY LEWIS.

Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

Professor Sweetzer, naturalist for a certain New England college, was a little man. He was round shouldered. He was awkward on his legs. He wore goggles for his weak eyes, and he arrived at the age of fifty-five without having loved. As between bugs and beetles and women, the bugs and beetles were ahead. It was only on rare occasions and when under the stress of excitement that he took the slightest notice of the other sex. Even when he did sit up and take notice of them he could not have recalled half an hour later what he said or whether they had red hair or black.

On a certain day it came to the ears of Professor Sweetzer that a portion of the vertebrae of a whale had been found on a farm in Connecticut. He arrived on the spot next day and verified the find. On an occasion thousands of years before an old bull whale had decided to take a trip inland and through some error of judgment had left his bones in a gravel pit. A piece of the backbone six feet long had been uncovered. The professor wanted to excavate for the rest. Where there is six feet of whale you can take it that there is more. He engaged board at the Widow Webb's and hired a man to wield the pick and shovel and thus went to work.

The Widow Webb was fat and forty and childless. She was worth a stony farm and $600 in cash. A still older sister lived with her, and the farm work was done by a hired man with the good old fashioned name of Hiram Stebbins. Hiram was thirty-five and drank nothing stronger than cider, but he thought deeply. One of them was that if he married the widow he would become the possessor of the farm and $600. He had been thinking of this and taking the farm work easy when Professor Sweetzer put in an appearance. Hiram looked at him and grinned. If any one had told him that within a week he would be jealous of that little dried up and humpbacked specimen of humanity, he would have roared with laughter.

As soon as the professor had inspected the bone and become enthusiastic, he was a changed man. He became a fluent talker. He became fatherly toward the widow. He called her "my child," and often took her hand and held it while he tried to make her understand that a whale was a cachelot and that a cachelot could stand on his [illegible] as well as on his head.

When Hiram witnessed the hand holding act, he quit grinning. He was mad all that day as he hoed corn. He was mad when he came up to supper. He was mad when one of the cows kicked him at milking time. While the professor took a ramble in search of beetles, Hiram carried the milk into the kitchen and began:

"Widder Webb," how does it feel to have a baboon holding your hand?"

"Hiram, what do you mean?" was demanded.

"I mean that I have seen you and that little runt of a man squeezing hands a dozen times, and neither of you seems to care who stands by. Fell in love mighty quick, didn't you?"

"Look here, Mr. Stebbins, you have no right to talk to me this way. You know who the professor is. He's a great man. He has taught me more about whales in the last three days than I knew in all my life before. He also knows all about birds and bugs and bees. It's twice as interesting to hear him talk as it is to hear a sermon."

"Has a feller got to squeeze your hand to talk to you about whales?" asked Hiram.

"He hasn't squeezed it. That's simply his way. He is a fatherly man. When he gets to talking he don't know whether he has got hold of my hand or the leg of a chair. You ought to be ashamed of yourself to talk as you do. I always thought there was a mean and jealous streak in you, and now it's come out."

"Oh, it has, eh?" muttered Hiram. "Perhaps if I went around looking for the bones of an old whale, I'd be all right."

"I guess it would be better than grunting around. You don't care for educated folks, but I do. I was born that way. If I was to ask you about whales, you couldn't tell me anything."

"But the professor could?"

"Yes, sir, he could. Hiram Stebbins, do you know that the Latin name of whale is Physeter macrocephalus? Do you know that we get spermaceti and ambergris from its body? Do you know that he sometimes reaches the length of seventy or eighty feet? You stand there with a mean look on your face, and yet let me tell you that the sperm whale can swallow a man at a gulp. There are no teeth in the upper jaw, but the lower one has from twenty-five to thirty on each side. The eyes are small and placed far back in the head."

"Well?" grunted the hired man.

"Well, the cachelot feeds upon fishes and cephalopodous mollusks. You probably thought he fed upon turnips. The whale is gregarious. Five hundred or more have been seen in a single herd. Terrible conflicts often take place among the males, and it is not unusual to find the lower jaws deformed. The left eye is said to be smaller than the right, and the whale cannot see behind him."

"All from the professor!" sneered Hiram as he bowed and walked out to fasten the hencoop for the night.

When the professor wasn't assisting his man to dig for bones he was hunting bugs and bees and butterflies. To his great joy, he discovered a seven spot bumblebee. As all of us know, a bumblebee is of dark color, with yellow spots on his back. There are often from five to six spots and only rarely a seven spotter. This bee, along with a dozen others, was placed in a pasteboard box, and when the house was reached the box was deposited on a window sill of the veranda. The professor had told the widow all about whales. As soon as he had a little spare time he meant to tell her all about bumblebees. Two days had gone by when the moment came. The bone digging labors of the day were over and supper disposed of when the professor and the widow took chairs on the veranda. He had found the shell of a small turtle in the gravel that day, and he set out to first explain about that. Hiram Stebbins was greasing his boots and chewing the rag in the kitchen and could hear every word. He also knew all about that box of bumblebees on the window sill.

According to Professor Sweetzer, turtles had hearts and lungs, hopes and aspirations. He would even go so far as to say that turtles loved and were loved in return. They did not sing like a bird nor bellow like a frog, but they were supposed to have musical ears for all that. In his earnestness the man got hold of the widow's hand. It was only his way. If he had got hold of her ear it would have been the same. He had called her his dear woman and his dear child half a dozen times, and in his lecture he had got as far back as the turtle's markings when Hiram Stebbins could restrain himself no longer. He saw red. He thirsted for gore. He rose up to do murder, but checked his onslaught and walked softly into the sitting room. The window was up and the bee box before him, while the backs of the sitters were toward him. He lifted the cover and stepped back.

The dozen bumbles had been hopping mad and calling each other names for the two days. The cover was no sooner off than they swarmed to get room to square off. As they caught sight of the professor and the widow, however, the hatchet was instantly buried. There was a wild swoop, followed by wilder yells. Old seven spot led in the fray. He it was who lifted the professor over the veranda rail and let him drop among the hollyhocks while the rest were paying the widow attentions. The professor ran and was followed, the widow shrieked and was stung again and again. It was not until Hiram rushed out with smoke and flame that she was rescued and a neighbor woman sent for to treat the lumps and bumps and put her to bed. The professor returned not. Old seven spot wouldn't let him. No news came from him as the hours of night wore on, and Hiram wondered, but next morning the widow received a note reading:

"My dear child, please send my satchel by bearer. I'm off after more bones. The turtle, as I meant to have told you, is utterly without ambition."

"Waal," said Hiram to himself as he worked in the cornfield that day, "there was the professor and me and the widder and the whale and the bumblebees, and if I hain't come out top o' the heap, who has?"

The Ship's Log.

The ship's log consists of a log chip and a log line. The log chip is a piece of board, shaped like the fourth part of a circle, loaded with lead on the round side, so that it will stand up in the water. The log line is 150 to 200 fathoms long. It is wound upon a large reel, so held as to let it run out easily. The line is divided into equal parts by bits of string run through it, each marked by the number of knots in it; hence these divisions are called knots. The log chip when thrown into the water stands still and draws out the log line as fast as it unwinds, and the speed of the ship is shown by the number of knots that run out in half a minute. The usual length of a knot is 47.3 feet. When it is known how many of these run out in half a minute, it is easy to calculate how many would run out in an hour by multiplying by 120. The record of the heaving of the log, as well as all important things happening on shipboard, is made in a log book.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Open to Conviction.

No rock was ever more firmly fixed than were Mrs. Manser's opinions, but she considered herself of an extremely pliable disposition, with a mind open to conviction on all sides.

"It's the strangest thing to me, the way the rest of the family talk as if I were set in my views," she said one day to her nephew William's bride, with whom she had been laboring on the subject of calling cards for more than an hour. "It seems to me you're sort of taking the same tone," she continued, looking sharply at the young woman, "and I don't want you to. There isn't anybody in this world that's readier to be convinced she's in the wrong than I am by people who know more than I. All they've got before 'em, ever, is to prove to me that they do know more than I—and I tell you, my dear, there hasn't one of 'em ever been able to in this family!"—Youth's Companion.

The Koran.

The Koran, or Al Koran, the sacred book of the Mohammedans, was written about 610 A. D. by Mohammed. It is a prose poem of 6,000 verses, the object of which was to show that God had told everything that was worth telling to Mohammed and that those who doubted it should be slain in this world and turned over to Allah to be eternally damned in the world to come. There are today some 200,000,000 of human beings who profess to believe in the Koran.

NO EASTERN PACT

France Tendered Her Good Offices to the United States

NOT CONSIDERED NECESSARY

Our Government Considers Relations With Japan Entirely Satisfactory--Our Attitude on Maintaning Status Quo In the Far East

Washington, June 8.—It can be announced that the United States will not accept the offer of France or of any other government to promote the friendly relations between this country and Japan for the very good reason that the Washington government regards its relations with Tokio as entirely satisfactory and not such as to occasion the necessity for accepting such an offer.

Of course, the United States appreciates the desire of France to promote friendly relations between this country and Japan, but the fact that the announcement that such a tender had been made comes from Paris is regarded here as indicating the desire of the French government to counteract the impression that the new arrangement with Japan will in any way weaken France's support of the American policy of the "open door" in the Far East.

If this were the purpose of the French offer it was entirely unnecessary, for Japan has kept the United States advised of her negotiations with France and this government finds nothing in the new treaty to which objection can be raised.

It can be announced emphatically that the United States will welcome aggressive action on the part of China as a surer means of maintaining the status quo in the Far East than any arrangement that Japan may make with France.

Indeed, this country is disposed to encourage a more independent foreign policy on the part of China with a view to strengthening the political status of that empire. Recent assurances from Germany that the Berlin government continues to stand with the United States firmly in support of the open door policy and is ready at any time to lend a hand in its support is regarded here as a more definite expression of loyalty to the Far Eastern policy so closely identified with the administration of the late Secretary of State Hay, than the rather vague expressions from Paris.

Offer Respectfully Declined

Paris, June 8.—One of the immediate results of the Franco-Japanese entente, which is on the point of being signed, has been the tender by France of her good offices to the United States in case she can be of service in promoting a complete understanding between the United States and Japan covering their respective interests in the Far East. The Washington government, while not availing itself of France's services, expressed in its reply its deep sensibility and appreciation of the friendly offer.

Terms of Agreement

Paris, June 8.—According to The Figaro, the text of the Franco-Japanese entente is very short, consisting of a declaration, followed by a statement. The declaration is said to be as follows:

"France and Japan, being mutually desirous of reaching an understanding and strengthening their friendly relations and having examined their interests in the Far East, namely, the sovereignty of France over Indo-China and the occupation of Kwang Chau Win (leased from China in 1898 by France) and the occupation of Port Arthur by Japan and the protection over Korea by Japan, agree that the recognition of the independence and integrity of China is the best guarantee of their interest and proclaim this principle in order to strengthen the interior peace and security of China, so necessary to all European interests.

"In consequence France and Japan mutually guarantee the continental status quo."

Although the entente does not include a commercial treaty for Indo-China, pending the conclusion of such a treaty it guarantees the most favored nation treatment for Japanese in Indo-China and French subjects of Indo-China in Japan.

Sentiment Against Americans

Tokio, June 8.—Popular indignation has reached a degree never before witnessed in the history of Japan's relations with the United States. It is thought by influential Japanese that the quicker the facts regarding the negotiations now in progress here and in Washington are published the better it will be for all concerned, as a stage has now been reached when it may prove dangerous to keep the people in suspense or ignorance of what is being done.

A Second Charge of Murder

Henderson, N. C., June 8.—Dr. D. S. Rowland, charged with the murder of his 11-year-old son by poisoning, was discharged from custody yesterday after a hearing. Immediately after his discharge he was arrested on a warrant from Raleigh charging him with the murder of Engineer Strange, whose widow he married soon after the death of Strange.

HARRIMAN IS IMMUNE

Cannot Be Prosecuted as Result of Testimony In Railroad Hearing

Washington, June 8.—That E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, is immune from criminal prosecution as the result of his testimony before the interstate commerce commission in New York recently; that the question of prosecution of bituminous coal carrying railroads should be left in the hands of the attorney general and that prosecution of the anthracite coal roads will begin in Philadelphia, probably next week, were conclusions reached at a notable conference held at the White House last night.

The Harriman case and the cases of the coal carrying roads were discussed for three hours by President Roosevelt, five members of the cabinet, two members of the interstate commerce commission and special counsel for the government.

Secretary Loeb at midnight issued this statement: "The conference was held for the purpose of affording an ample discussion concerning the matters which have been under investigation by the interstate commerce commission. The interstate commerce commission has not yet formulated its report and all of the discussion was of a purely preliminary kind. After a report has been made the attorney general will, of course, carefully consider it."

American In Hot Water In France

Paris, June 8.—C. W. Gammon of Sacramento, Cal., who was taken into custody here, charged with the misappropriation of $200,000 of the subscribed capital of the American Exploitation company, and is now in close confinement, has appealed to the American embassy and also has telegraphed to President Roosevelt, asking him to intervene. The company of which Gammon is president already has been in trouble in Portugal, Spain, and at Bordeaux.

Probing Alleged Conspiracy

Cincinnati, June 8.—An investigation of the relations of the railroads and the postoffice department by order of President Roosevelt, which has already caused a saving to the government of more than $2,000,000, is declared to be now under way, in an article in The Times-Star. Thirty-two postoffice inspectors are said to be at work in a case of alleged conspiracy of the railroads and the postoffice department.

Express Crashed Into Coal Train

Washington, Pa., June 8.—Two persons were killed and 11 injured in a railroad wreck near here when an express crashed into a coal train on a siding, telescoping the smoker and a Pullman car. The flagman of the coal train, who is said to be responsible for letting the passenger train in on the siding occupied by the coal train, disappeared immediately after the crash.

Bargain Sales In Order

New York, June 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that adverse weather has made the season another week late. Settled warm weather will bring out much business, but so much time has been lost that few merchants anticipate a normal volume in the aggregate, and large stocks will be carried over or sacrificed at bargain sales.

Grief Caused Children's Suicide

Cleveland, June 8.—As a result of taking rat poison with suicidal intent, Margurite Curtis and her sister, Helen, aged 11, are dead. Grief, caused by the death of their mother a year ago, was assigned by the children as a basis for a pact between them to take their own lives. The two children lived with their grandparents.

Late Season Hurts Fishermen

St. Johns, June 8.—About 800 Newfoundland vessels, with nearly 20,000 men, are unable to reach the fishing grounds off Labrador because of ice floes which still blockade the northern coast. Vessel owners fear heavy financial losses by reason of the late opening of the codfishing industry.

Will Remain an American

London, June 8.—With reference to the parliamentary gossip that he would seek election to parliament as a Nationalist, Richard Croker reiterates that there is not the remotest chance of this. He has done with politics, he says, and he does not wish to lose his American citizenship.

Labor Men Sent to Prison

Paris, June 8.—M. Levy, treasurer of the General Federation of Labor, and H. Bousquet, chief leader of the bakers' strike, who have been on trial here, charged with inciting disorder on May day, were each sentenced to two years' imprisonment and 100 francs fine.

A Destructive Tornado

Duqoin, Ills., June 8.—A tornado last night struck Duqoin and wrought excessive damage to residence property and crops. A number of injuries are reported, though none is thought to be fatal. The downpour of rain demoralized railroad traffic temporarily.

Murdered and Robbed

Melbourne, Aus., June 8.—Bernard Bauer, member of a firm of diamond merchants of this city, was found in his office with a crushed skull and died in a few hours. A bag containing 50,000 worth of gems is missing. No clue to the criminals has been found.

Side Lights on Whitney's Gubernatorial Candidacy

GENERAL BARTLETT'S IRONY

Much Work Being Done For Whitney --Attempts Made to Block New Haven-Boston and Maine Merger

Henry M. Whitney of Brookline, who is after the Democratic nomination for governor, has opened his campaign not only in this state but also in Maine. Mr. Whitney has spoken in Abington, where he talked reciprocity to merchants and others and advocated expansion of the commonwealth in the line of her industries and commerce.

It is said by his friends that when General Charles W. Bartlett read this speech of his friend he remarked that Mr. Whitney was not the only man in the commonwealth who desired to see its material interests expanded. Mr. Bartlett is said to have stated that so far as his knowledge went, all the citizens of the commonwealth were of that opinion and were doing in their quiet way what they could to bring about that result. So far as he knew nobody was against that proposition, not even the Republicans.

It is not strange that Mr. Whitney favors free trade with Canada, for a great part of his interests are in that province, and for years he has been engaged in developing her industries and her mines. A great many Massachusetts men have put their whole lives into developing Massachusetts and yet are not making half the talk about the expansion of this commonwealth that Mr. Whitney is.

There was a time when Mr. Whitney was not so fond of free trade between the Canadian provinces and the United States as he claims to be at present. That was the time when he wrote to a member of the Canadian parliament protesting vehemently against the abolition of the Canadian duty on American coal, because he wanted the whole Canadian market to himself and his Dominion coal mines.

Against American Coal

Mr. Whitney did not want American coal permitted to enter the Canadian provinces free of duty, but he did want, and was demanding at home in Massachusetts, that the duty be removed from Canadian coal, so that the product of his mines might come into the commonwealth without payment of duty.

This letter which he wrote was addressed to D. McKeen, M. P., and published in the North Sidney (Cape Breton) Herald, Feb. 5, 1896. In it he stated: "I consider that the maintenance of the present duty on coal by Canada is of the most vital importance to the welfare and continued prosperity of the coal interests of Cape Breton and Nova Scotia. * * *

"I am unwilling to believe that any political party, if charged with the sobering responsibilities of power, could seriously propose at this time so mad and rash an act as to lessen the protection which Canada now wisely gives to the coal industry."

At the time this letter was written, Mr. Whitney was president of the Dominion Coal company of Cape Breton. Today he is demanding that the United States open its ports freely to the products of the Canadian provinces, although a decade ago he could not, if he had tried, have penned a more emphatic protest against the Dominion of Canada opening its ports to the products of the United States. How self-interest warps a man's opinions and judgment.

There are a good many Democrats in Massachusetts who are unable to reconcile his position then with his position at the present time. They think his vast interests in the provinces must influence the position he now takes and that there is at the bottom of it something beyond the promotion of the public good.

Much Work Done In State

It is plainly evident, however, that a good deal of quiet work is being done in the interest of the candidacy of Mr. Whitney. Men are going about the state visiting the various cities and towns and committing as many prominent men as possible to his candidacy. There is every indication that work is being done which is likely to have some effect upon the caucuses and to influence Democratic sentiment throughout the state.

So far as can be seen there is very little of this work being done for General Bartlett. Some of his friends have voluntarily gone to work to boom his candidacy, but there is no evidence of a campaign fund in his interest. Those who are working for Mr. Whitney are men who are accustomed to be paid for their labors and it is apparent that there is money enough for all necessary purposes.

There is every indication at the present moment that the great and general court will reach the end of its work and be prorogued by the 15th of June. The officers of the two branches of the legislature are doing everything possible to bring about this result. Probably another week will see the end of the greater part of the work of the house and senate. All the committees have practically finished their labors. The ways and means committee, which has to pass upon all measures which involve the expenditure of money, has been and is extremely busy. Its members have worked overtime, notwithstanding the passage of the overtime law, for several weeks. They have met at 10:30 in the morning and in some instances have worked as late as 11 at night. It has been practically a continuous performance, so far as they are concerned.

That committee will probably finish its work by Saturday and the legislature is due for prorogation by the 15th at the latest, unless something unforeseen should happen to prevent.

To Block Railroad Merger

A new effort is being made to prevent the merger of the Boston and Maine and New Haven railroads. Representative Meyers of Cambridge has filed a petition in the house asking for the appointment of a joint special committee consisting of four senators and eleven representatives to sit during the recess, with a view to ascertaining whether it is for the best interests of the state to prevent the consolidation of these two roads, or whether it is expedient for the commonwealth to purchase the Boston and Maine railroad. Under this petition the special committee would have authority to send for persons and papers and compel the attendance of witnesses. It is provided that this committee shall report its findings to the incoming legislature of 1908 in January of that year. There is pending in the senate a petition and accompanying bill of the 10 Democratic senators who demand that the legislature prohibit a consolidation of these two roads.

The senate committee on rules has given the subject of this latter measure considerable time and thought, and will have to consider also the petition of Representative Meyers in addition.

Probably a large majority of the business men of the metropolitan district favor the merger. It is looked upon by many of them as inevitable and in quite a different light from the consolidation of the Boston and Albany with the New York Central, as the New Haven, under the management of Mr. Mellen, has developed a very progressive spirit and shown a sincere desire to please its patrons.

OLD VIOLINS.

Reasons Why Ancient Fiddles Are Better Than New.

Fabulous prices are sometimes paid for old violins, and many an enthusiastic musician would part with his last dollar to possess one of the masterpieces of Stradivarius or Guarnerius or another of the famous makers of a century or two ago.

The questioned superiority of these old and often battered instruments has been variously ascribed to the peculiar quality of the varnish used in their construction, to the elasticity of the wood employed and to the ripening and improving effects of age and long use.

Of late years, however, much credence has been given the suggestion of an eminent authority that the real cause of the superiority of the old instruments is due to a peculiar warping of the wood to a higher arch, a buckling caused by the position of the "F" holes and sound post.

It might at first thought be supposed that the same effect could be produced by giving an equal arching to a new instrument, but the effect, if attained, is not permanent, because with age the arching increases until too great a degree of rigidity is the result.—Philadelphia Record.

"Plugging" a Hotel Guest.

The hotel detective stepped out of the elevator and walked over to the counter.

"Well, I plugged him," he said.

"Plugged him? Who? What for? Where did you hit him?" quickly asked a friend who was standing by.

"Didn't hit him anywhere. Just plugged the keyhole of his door. Never hear of plugging before? When we have a guest whom we suspect is getting ready to leave without settling or whose credit is exhausted and fails to settle up, we just wait till he leaves his room and plug the keyhole in his door. Then he has to settle up or leave his baggage. The plug fits over the end of a key. It is placed in the lock and turned. The key is then withdrawn, leaving the plug in the door."—Kansas City Star.

An Oversight.

When Chappie got up the other morning he wandered around his apartments in his pretty pink pajamas, the very picture of woe.

"What's the matter, sir?" inquired his valet.

"I don't know, Alphonse," he groaned. "I passed a most unhappy night."

Alphonse looked him over carefully.

"Oh, sir," he exclaimed, "I know what was the matter! The trouserines of your pajamas were not creased. You must be more careful, sir. Those I had prepared for you were hanging across the foot of the bed."—Bohemian Magazine.

Cannae.

Cannae, where Hannibal won his greatest victory over the Romans, is situated on the opposite side of the peninsula from the city of Rome, on the river Aufidus and about six miles from its mouth. It was from this battlefield that Hannibal sent to Carthage three bushels of gold rings from the fingers of the Roman knights slain in the battle. Cannae is about 200 miles from Rome.

The Worm Turned.

"Am I to understand, then," asked a disappointed poet as the editor handed back his latest productions, "that you do not like my verses?"

"Yes; I don't think much"—

"Ah, you don't think! I see—that explains it."

Violent protests are being made by a number of highly protected interests against the arrangement that the United States is entering into with Germany for the continuance of trade relations pending the formulation of a definite commercial treaty that can be signed by the two governments. The arrangement consists in allowing the manufacturers in Germany to swear to the valuation of certain classes of goods that are made solely for export whose price cannot be fixed by comparison with the home market. It is a small concession and not one that in the opinion of the Secretary of State of the Secretary of the Treasury, both of whom are parties to the agreement will result in any undervaluation of German goods. But of course the howl of "executive usurpation" is being raised by a number of already over protected interests. It is not usurpation at all, but a timely expedient to meet a pressing emergency. It is designed to help American relations not only with Germany but with other foreign countries, and all classes of citizens ought to be glad that the arrangement has been made instead of attempting to decry it.

Confirmation of Class of Sixty

The Most Rev. Coadjutor Archbishop William H. O'Connell visited St. Johns church this morning and officiated at the confirmation of a class of 60 candidates, who received holy communion at the 7.30 mass.

At 10 o'clock the confirmation mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Casey, the archbishop being attended by Rev. John J. Coan and Rev. Julian E. Johnston.

At the conclusion of the mass a sermon on the sacrament of confirmation was delivered by Archbishop O'Connell after which he alministered the sacrament.

His First Surrender

James W. Pierce of Granite street, rounded out his 72d birthday yesterday, and a number of his comrades of the Grand Army thought it a fitting occasion to call and extend their congratulations.

In the evening fifteen or twenty of the old vets marched to Jim's home and charged the house. Surrender is not one of Jim's failings, but in this case the attacking party was too well known and he immediately capitulated.

The evening was passed in an informal manner, recounting incidents that happened during those memorial days in camp. The family who had been made aware of the visit had prepared a feast fit for the Gods to which the boys were invited to partake.

The evening was well along when it was discovered to be almost time for taps and the vets took their departure for their several home camps.

ORIENTAL IN OCCIDENT.

Picturesque Buildings Will Be Reared In San Francisco's Chinatown.

Plans prepared by request of the Merchants' association of San Francisco have been made for a distinctly oriental type of structure that would be available for the rebuilding of Chinatown, says the Architectural Record. The San Francisco real estate board has followed this lead by adopting resolutions approving the idea and asking property owners within the Chinatown district to rebuild "with fronts of oriental and artistic appearance."

The board makes no disguise of its main thought—that such architecture will be picturesque in appearance and hence attractive to tourists and visitors. There is clearly lacking that ethical motive which might inspire an architect of conspicuous merit. But at least there may be a more harmonious result than a row of huge rectangular pigeon holed soap boxes to house swarms of orientals and to stand as the material sign of their presence.

—Graduation will be held by the Milton schools as follows: Belcher school, June 13; Consolidated school, June 14; Tucker school, June 18; High school, June 19.

A man who had evidently looked too long upon the ruby wine was overcome at the power house at Quincy Point this noon one of the workmen saw the man and thinking that he had been overcome with heat called the police ambulance. Refore the ambulance arrived it was discovered to have been a simple case of jag and the man had been quietly taken out of the way before th wagon arrived.

NO PASSES; STAY HOME.

Why Railroads Don't Make Money Out of Former Free Riders.

The abolition of the free pass has not increased the receipts of the railroads enough for their auditors to detect it if the experience of all is the same as that of one of the big railway systems of the country whose general passenger agent was in Washington transacting a little business with the interstate commerce commission, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Times. His railroad used to be extremely liberal with passes and half fares.

"But the change hasn't made the least difference with us," said this general passenger agent. "Our receipts from passenger traffic have not increased, and I don't believe the auditor's books will show that we have made $10 by stopping passes. Of course I don't know about other roads, but so far as I have heard that is the general experience.

"How do I account for it? Simply by the fact that a great many—in fact, most—of those who used to travel on free transportation now stay at home. They quit traveling when they ceased to receive passes. That's all there is to it.

"It all shows that we haven't made anything by the stoppage of passes, and it didn't cost us anything to give them. We have not been able to reduce traveling accommodations, run fewer trains or fewer cars on those we run. The expense is just the same, but we carry fewer passengers—those who used to ride free.

"There's another result of the shutdown, though, that none of us had figured on. In the old days the holder of a pass never attracted the least attention from his fellow travelers. The thing was too common. But nowadays it has become a very suspicious thing to travel on a pass. I was out in Kansas the other day, and when the sleeping car conductor brought me my pass in the morning I couldn't help noticing the way some of the other passengers sized me up. I could not just make out what kind of a criminal they thought I was or what kind of a deal they suspected me of putting up with that road."

World Regeneration.

Vanity.

Little Fred—Why is it that women are always complaining about their servants? Little Elsie—Oh, that's just to let people know they can afford to have 'em.—Chicago News.

THE JAPANESE.

He Is Child, Fanatic and Emotional Savage All In One.

He is a bundle of contradictions, and, measured by American standards, he is a bedlamite, straight from topsy turvy land. He may be a Chesterfield and a cheerful liar one minute and a red Indian the next—a sycophant and a welsher today and a Napoleon tomorrow.

We westerners have been taught to regard the little Jap as an amusing and precocious child given to obstructing sidewalk traffic with his polite contests in kowtowing, to suspending from the branches of the cherry tree his dainty poems addressed to his friends and to dawdling for hours over the ceremonial tea, and when we see him under the tent flap, bowing and laughing and playing checkers, he seems a velvet pawed kitten in khaki. And yet you and I have seen him in battle a ramping, raging tiger, greedy of Slav bayonets and afterward dragging himself to the field hospital, shot to rags, unwhimpering, a mere bull hide wrapped around a will.

We never know a character until we have seen it put to the test under stress—least of all the combination of sphinx and Janus known as the Japanese. So studied, the embattled brown boy strikes me as a strange compound of Little Lord Fauntleroy, Peter the Hermit and Sitting Bull—child, fanatic and emotionless savage, all in one.—Appleton's Magazine.

Secretary Taft's Waistband.

In poking good natured fun at Secretary Taft of the war department and his presidential boom newspaper writers and cartoonists have created a general impression that the Ohio man has a tremendous abdominal development The truth is he can hardly be called fat, says the Boston Herald. He is lighter by fully 100 pounds than he was a year ago, and his girth is little, if any, more than in proportion to his dimensions otherwise. For many months Mr. Taft has confined himself rigidly to a form of diet prescribed by an eminent English physician, the chief feature of which is gluten bread which the secretary calls "dog biscuits."

Statue In Memory of a Battle.

"The battle of Princeton will soon be appropriately commemorated by the erection of a statue which is to cost $75,000," said Representative Ira W. Wood of the Fourth New Jersey district at the New Willard in Washington recently to a reporter of the Washington Post. "At the last session of congress $30,000 was appropriated for the statue. The state has already given a like amount, and, in addition, the citizens of Princeton will give $15,000 The statue, which will be one of the finest in the country, will not be erected on the battlefield itself, but in the college town of Princeton."

May Temperature A Record Breaker

L. A. Wells of the Blue Hill observatory reports that the weather during May, like that of April, was extraordinarily cold and disagreeable. The mean temperature of 49.5 degrees was 6.3 degrees colder than the average and the lowest for May since 1882. On only three days did the temperature rise above 70 degrees the 14th being the warmest day, a maximum of 80 degrees being recorded. The lowest temperature of the month was 29 degrees on the 12th and it fell below freezng on two other days.

There were more rainy days than usual, but the total rainfall was slightly less than the normal amount. On the 11th snow fell for several hours during the morning, accumulating to a depth of an inch on isolated objects.

The prevailing wind was from the west and the average velocity was somewhat higher than usual. The maximum velocity was 50 miles per hour from the northwest on the 29th.

There were more cloudy days and the total amount of sunshine was 22 per cent les sthan the average. It is estimated that vegetation in this vicinity is about two weeks later than usual.

The spring of 1907 has been the coldest for 25 years. In 1882 the temperature of the spring months was very similar to that of this year, a warm March being followed by a very cold April and May. A search of old records shows that only twice in nearly 100 years has May been colder than in 1907. May, 1882, was the coldest month of that name in a century, the mean temperature being two degrees lower than that of the month just past, while May, 1868, was one degree colder.

Quincy High Weak At Weymouth

Quincy High was almost shut out yesterday in its game at Weymouth with the Weymouth High team. In the last half of the sixth innings, after Weymouth had scored five runs, Larkin secured an unearned run. Only two safe hits were made by the visitors. Raymond of the Weymouth team knocked a home run and Doble made a two bagger, and most of the home team hit safely. Fourteen Quincy men struck out.

High School Course At Braintree

At a meeting of the school committee held, May 9 the following courses were adopted for the Braintree High school, and they will be put into effect as soon as possible. The two upper classes, will continue on practically the old course of study, but the second year class, and the entering class of September, will begin the new courses. The technical course aims to prepare students for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and other technical schools as well as for normal schools and other higher institutions, while at the same time it gives a good foundation for a broad general education. The course in modern languages, besides the usual grammar and literature, will devote much time to conversation and correspondence.

The commercial course follows the best recent courses and is intended for those wishing to enter commercial or merchantile pursuits. It should prepare successful graduates for the higher and more responsible positions in business life, and every effort will be made to secure places for them. Typwriting is offered thoughout the four years, instead of the last two, as in the old course, and stenography the second and third, instead of the last two. The latter part of the course in these subjects will be devoted almost entirely to business practice. Commercial ariehmetic and bookkeeping will be made practical, and kept in touch with modern business methods. Much of the work in French and German will be conversation and correspondence, and the same methods will be used in the study of spanish, if there is a demand for it later. The whole course will aim to be as practical as constant suggestions from wide awake business men, and a constant study of present commercial needs and demands can make it.

At the same meeting the committee adopted the following rules to govern promotions:

TECHNICAL COURSE.

First year— English, Ancient History, Algebra, French, German, Drawing, Latin (elective).

Second year— English, Mediaeval History, Elemetary Physics, Plane Geometry, French, German, Drawing, Third year— English, English History, Physics, Advanced Algebra, French, German, Drawing and designing.

Forth year— English, United States History, Chemistry, Solid Geometry, French, German, Drawing and designing.

COMMERCIAL COURSE.

First year— English, Typewriting, Physical Geography, Botany, Commercial Arithmetic, French, German.

Second year— English, Typewriting, Stenography, Bookkeeping, Commercial Arithmetic, French, German.

Third year— English, Typewriting, and Business practice, Stenography, Bookkeeping, French, German, Commercial Geography, (Spanish if desired).

Fourth year— English, U. S. History and Government, Business Law, Banking, Commercial History, Typewriting and business practice, French, German, (Spanish if desired).

Promotions shall be made in all grades only on recommendations of the teachers in consultation with the principals and approved by the superintendent.

Pupils promoted on conditions must maintain a passing average in the new class for each month of the first term, or return to the next class below at the end of any month in which they fail to pass. Conditions may be removed at the end of the first term if the pupil has maintained a passing avarage in each study for the term.

Eighth grade scholars shall be admitted to the high school on presentation of diplomas. None will be admitted on conditions, Those who fail to pass in June, may be given an opportunity to earn their diplomas by study during the summer. The diplomas may be conferred upon the recommendation of approved teachers, or upon examination, as may be determined by the superintendent.

The Death of Josephus Shaw

Master Josephus Shaw passed away Sunday morning, in his nineteenth year, at Houghs Neck, the summer home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie H. Shaw. He had passed successfully through two or more surgical operations upon his head and was taken to Houghs Neck for quietness with the hope that he might recover his former good health. Through all his illness he displayed wonderful grit and hope of recovery.

He was born in Braintree, Sept. 11, 1888, attended the public schools, and Thayer academy. While attending Thayer he was forced to be absent on account of his illness. He was exceedingly popular among his classmates and associates, and will be greatly missed by them.

The funeral was held at his home on Maple street, Braintree, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Thomas Simms of the First church officiating.

A member of the Monatiquot club of which the deceased was a member writes:

"His ready smile and cherry voice has been greatly missed by us these long winter evenings as we have gathered in our club room. The remark—'Have you heard from Joe' or 'I wish Joe was here tonight' has been constantly heard. His tender sympathetic heart and kindly ways makes his memory a loving one to us all. What is loss to us is gain to him."—Braintree Observer.

The Making of a Successful Husband

By CASPAR S. YOST.

In Spite of the More or Less Popular Belief That Married Women Work Too Hard, the Fact Remains That There Is No Real Happiness Without Occupation.

[Copyright, 1905, by C. S. Yost.]

MY DEAR JOHN—Your letter reminds me of a German woman who lived in the little town of Missouri where I was raised. She was a cheerful individual of the Mrs. Wiggs type, and she had a laugh that would roll across the village like a peal of spring thunder. Its reverberations were infectious, and, no matter how worn and tired, no matter how troubled, my fellow citizens would be, they would echo a smile, and peace and contentment would settle down upon the whole community. Why, I've seen town meetings of the most violent character turned into love feasts by the influence of that laugh poured through the open windows of the city hall. But that isn't what I wanted to tell you about. Mrs. Schreider believed in the gospel of work. She was never idle. From sunup to sunset and after she was busy. Everything about her little house shone like new silver from the repeated scrubbing and polishing she gave it. She assaulted dirt with the vehemence of an American and the thoroughness of a Teuton. Rest was a luxury she disdained, and yet she was always healthy and always happy.

She assaulted dirt.

"How is it, Mrs. Schreider," she was often asked, "that you are so happy all the time?"

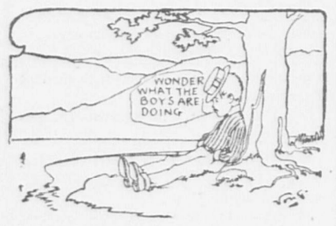

"Ach, Gott!" she would exclaim, with that irresistible laugh. "I haf no time for anyt'ings udder."

Sounds Very Well Indeed.

You say your wife "shall never work if you can help it." That sounds quite heroic and looks very well on paper, but it's ridiculous if you don't mean it and a serious mistake if you do. It isn't original with you. I have heard it a great many times in my life. Some of the men who said it did their best to live up to it, and some of them succeeded, to the sorrow of their wives, but there were several who afterward made their wives work like slaves and occasionally beat them. Between the pampered and miserable doll and the persecuted and equally miserable household slave there is a happy medium, and it isn't hard to find it.

There is an old axiom that "there is no excellence without great labor," and it is equally true that there is no happiness without occupation. Work of some description is as necessary to our mental as food to our physical well being. We somehow cherish the delusion that well financed idleness is the acme of earthly bliss, and yet when we get a two weeks' vacation, no matter how well filled our pockets, we begin to feel weary of it at the end of the first week and are impatient to get back into the harness before our time is up. Some can stand it longer than others, but there are mighty few who can contentedly do nothing for any considerable period of time.

"Oh, but you're talking about men," I hear you say. "Women are different." That's just where you're wrong, my boy. Women in this respect are not different. They must have something to do, and the man who imposes a life of idleness upon his wife, believing he is thereby contributing to her happiness, is making a blunder that he will pay well for in after years. I grant that his intentions are good, but they are of the same character as those used in certain quarters for paving material, and unless the wife is an invalid or is exceptionally constituted his object, prompted by love as it may be, will not be attained, because nature has implanted in every normal human mind a strong and overwhelming desire for action. The world must be kept moving, and it's up to us to turn the crank. The labor of woman is as necessary to progress as is that of man, and it doesn't matter whether it is your wife or my wife or the hodcarrier's wife—each has a definite duty to perform and will find her greatest happiness in its performance.

Now, don't go off half cocked. I don't want to see your wife scrubbing the front steps, although if it is necessary even that probably would do her no harm. I wouldn't have her do anything but that which she is physically able to do and wants to do. Mind what I say now—wants to do. The fact that so many women are useless dolls is mainly due to foolish young husbands like yourself who force their wives to a life of inaction. If given their own way they would choose labor of some character, and 90 per cent of them, impelled by a divinely given instinct, would say housekeeping.

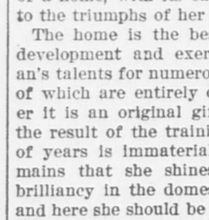

But Not Drudgery.

Among my acquaintances is a young man who has your idea very deeply impressed. When he was married, three or four years ago, he took his beautiful wife to a boarding house and has kept her there ever since. She pleaded for a home, but he would not have her soil her hands. The inactivity of a boarding house was to her unbearable. She has a very fine voice and rare dramatic talent. He reluctantly consented to allow her to give music lessons. Now her income is larger than his own a brilliant future is open to her, and yet she continues to plead for a home, just a little flat where she could do all the work herself, where he and she would be all in all to each other. She just had to do something, but she would infinitely prefer the labors of a home, with its cares and its joys, to the triumphs of her profession.

She has a very fine voice.

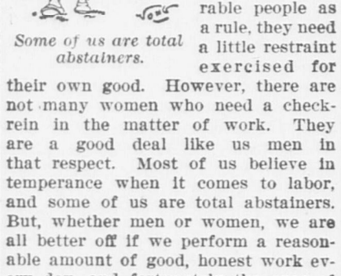

The home is the best place for the development and exercise of a woman's talents for numerous reasons, most of which are entirely obvious. Whether it is an original gift to the sex or the result of the training of thousands of years is immaterial. The fact remains that she shines with greatest brilliancy in the domestic atmosphere, and here she should be allowed to sparkle unshadowed. The majority of women realize their duties and responsibilities and desire to fulfill them. They know that they can best be fulfilled in the home, and if let alone they will derive the greatest amount of satisfaction and contentment from the performance of the tasks which home service brings to them.

I don't believe that a woman should be a drudge. I don't believe that she should be required or allowed to do more than she wants to do. When her work ceases to be a pleasure, then it has passed the limit of expediency and defeats its most important object. Where the line should be drawn depends entirely upon her temperament and her physical strength. Some women can do joyfully and with benefit to themselves an amount of labor that would destroy others, and there are some women, like some men, whose excess energy carries them far beyond their physical powers. Too much work is as bad as idleness. There is a golden mean, and instead of trying to prevent Anna May from doing any work at all you should exercise your authority or your influence, whichever you please to call it, to keep her from doing too much. I say this because I've got an idea that she's a hustler, and, while hustlers are admirable people as a rule, they need a little restraint exercised for their own good. However, there are not many women who need a checkrein in the matter of work. They are a good deal like us men in that respect. Most of us believe in temperance when it comes to labor, and some of us are total abstainers. But, whether men or women, we are all better off if we perform a reasonable amount of good, honest work every day, and fortunately the ones of either sex who are content to do nothing are comparatively few.

Some of us are total abstainers.

Idleness a Menace.

Your wife must have something to do, and your silly pride should not stand in the way of the doing. Idleness provides more cases for the divorce courts than any other single agency. It doesn't usually appear in the evidence under that name, but it's responsible just the same. Most frequently it is disguised as incompatibility of temperament, which means that Mrs. Jones has sat in an easy chair and lolled away her happiness. Discontent invariably accompanies inaction, and in its train are the other mental and physical ills which make life unbearable to herself and bring misery to her mate. Yet if that same woman were given something to do, something that she felt compelled to do, either by duty or from the sheer love of it, the mere occupation would remove the shadows from her mind, bring the blood coursing through her veins, redden her cheeks and brighten her eyes, substitute a smile for a frown and give that zest to life and love which is the mainspring of happiness

You choose a winding road, where curves bring new vistas into view.

No, my boy, let Anna May do whatever she wants to do within the bounds of her capacity. If she takes pleasure in housework, don't hinder her. There is nothing degrading about it. On the contrary, there is no more honorable employment for a wife, and there is none by which she can add so much to the peace and contentment of the home and to the happiness of her husband, her children and herself. Talk as the "advanced woman" may about the enlargement of woman's sphere, she cannot get away from the fact that nature's inexorable laws have given her a field peculiarly her own, a field in which she has no rival, in which she can and does do her greatest work for humanity, and that field is bounded by the four walls of the home. It is true that housework has its cares, its myriad annoyances, that often bring tears of vexation or discouragement, but no method of life has been yet discovered that does not have a few kinks in it, and there never will be. It would be a doggoned monotonous existence anyhow. It's the kinks in life that make existence really worth while, and they are as necessary to the making of a woman's character as of a man's, provided, of course, there are not too many of them. When you start out for a drive you don't care for a straight road unless your only object is the exhilaration of motion. If you want to get the greatest possible enjoyment, you choose a winding road, where curves bring new vistas into view at every turn, and so in life. But, here; if I keep on in this strain I'll be writing poetry in a minute, and of all things on earth deliver me from amateur poetry, particularly when it's maudlin.

Happiest Woman In the World.

As I was saying, the housewife has her troubles, great bunches of 'em, but the woman who pounds a typewriter or who stands up behind a counter and murmurs "Cash!" can never know the joys that mingle with and overlap the cares of the wife who looks after her own household.

I just dare you!

Why, my boy, there never was a happier woman than your mother, and she has worked, worked hard, all her married life, not because she had to, for I've always made enough to take care of her without it, but because she wanted to, because she would have been unhappy otherwise, and I dare you to say that your Anna May is any better than my wife—I just dare you! No, John; let her work; let her do just as much as she pleases to do in reason. It won't hurt her—there is no better exercise in the world than housework—and it will make her a better wife and, please God, a better mother when the time comes.

It is true there are some women—and it pains me to see the number growing larger all the time—who have a strong aversion to domestic labor. I don't believe Anna May is one of them; but, if she is, let her follow her bent if it does not destroy your domestic relations. There is no more pitiable object on earth than a woman of energy and talent compelled to live a life of inaction because her little tin god of a husband would consider himself disgraced if she were to do a little honorable work on her own account. Don't be that kind of a chump. It's pure and unadulterated selfishness. That's all there is to it. If you love your wife, give her freedom. Let her do the work that pleases her best, for therein lies her greatest happiness. But keep her at home; keep her at home! I draw the line there. If her ambition takes her beyond the portal for her labor, employ a housekeeper, but preserve the home. It is her haven and yours. There is no satisfactory substitute for it. It attains its highest glory when the wife is its head and directing force, when her life is mainly devoted to its welfare; but, whether or no, it is home, and nothing else will serve. Your affectionate dad,

JOHN SNEED.

Not Afraid of Assassins.

President Benjamin Harrison used to ramble around Washington at night by himself. Colonel Dan Ransdell, a lifelong friend of the great Indianian, was President Harrison's marshal of the District of Columbia and kept in very close touch with the president all through his term. Colonel Ransdell lived north of Dupont circle, quite a mile and a half from the White House. He ceased to be surprised by the unexpected and unannounced visits made to him by the president at various hours of the night after General Harrison's first few months in the White House. Once when Colonel Ransdell remonstrated with him against venturing out at night unaccompanied, admonishing him of the danger of assassination, General Harrison said:

"An assassin cannot be dodged, Dan. I am as safe from harm on that score while walking from the White House to your residence after dark and alone as I am when receiving callers or going about the city in the daytime under the watchful eyes of detectives and policemen. The assassin always gets his prey when once he makes up his mind to do so. But I have no fear of assassination, least of all am I afraid of being assaulted in a dark street at night."—Washington Herald.

Ideals and Acts.

Ideals are more potent than acts. Let a millionaire give £10,000 to a hospital. The public is for the moment struck, but who save the institution itself remembers the gift next day? Let a "leader of society" start a charity bazaar. Let her gather a little court around her. Let the stall holders be visions of beauty, their coloring perhaps just a trifle "assisted," and under their spell let the buying be brisk and a great financial success be scored. The masses will read the account in their newspapers with wondering admiration, but they will find there no wholesome stimulus for themselves, since the motive of the brilliant function was rooted in display. In charity, as elsewhere, it is, I repeat, not the action, but the spirit of the agent, that permanently tells.—Montague Crackanthorpe in Fortnightly Review.

Recount Ballot Bill Vetoed

New York, June 8.—A bill which provides for a recount of the ballots cast for the office of mayor of New York at the last election was vetoed by Acting Mayor McGowan of this city. The measure will now be returned to Albany, where the legislature will determine whether the bill shall be passed over the mayor's veto. In order that President McGowan of the board of aldermen might act on the bill, Mayor McClellan, who is an interested party in the controversy, left this city, thereby making the president of the aldermen the acting mayor.

Oysters Are Wild Animals

Albany, June 8.—"Domesticated, tame or garden oysters are assessable as personal property," according to an opinion of Attorney General Jackson, written in answer to a query as to whether oyster beds should be assessed as real or personal property. "The courts have held," says Jackson, "that oysters are 'wild animals' and become personal property when they are reclaimed or artificially planted. Such domesticated, tame or 'garden' oysters would be assessable as personal property under the ordinary rules."

Resigned and Killed Himself

San Antonio, Tex., June 8.—Lieutenant Mack Richardson, whose resignation was yesterday accepted by President Roosevelt, was found unconscious in his room at Fort Sam Houston. He died last night. Examination disclosed the use of morphine and prussic acid. Richardson was to have been married some weeks ago, but failed to appear for the wedding. The scandal following his jilting of his fiance caused his resignation.

Alleged Robbery of Employers

New York, June 8.—August Dohm, for many years a confidential bookkeeper in the employ of S. Bauman & Bro., furniture dealers, was arrested and held in $1000 bail on a charge of larceny from his former employers. It is alleged that Dohm stole more than $20,000 from his former employers between February and May 1 of this year.

Steamer Wrecked on Rocks

Halifax, June 8.—Owing to thick fog, coastal steamer Bridgewater, from Halifax for Guysboro and intermediate ports on the eastern coast, struck on the rocks at Nixey's Mate, off Port Beckerton, and became a total wreck. The passengers and crew were saved, reaching the shore in the ship's boats. The Bridgewater was valued at $25,000.

Anarchists' Bloody Deeds

St. Petersburg, June 8—Otto Petlezer, manager of the Narva Spinning mills, was surrounded and killed by a crowd of workmen yesterday. This is the fourth murder this week ascribed to the so-called "syndicatists," or adherents of the rabid anarchial doctrine which is rapidly spreading in Russia.

Mandarins Suppress Newspapers

Amoy, China, June 8.—The Chinese cruisers Hai Chen and Hai Yung have arrived here. The mandarins suppress all native newspapers which publish accounts of the insurrection, and the Chinese telegraph service declines to forward messages regarding the uprising.

Confessed Assassin "Stood In" With Railway and Mine Owners' Association Detectives--More Crimes Are Confessed by Orchard

Boise, Ida., June 8.—Counsel for William D. Haywood continued their attack on the testimony of Harry Orchard at both sessions of the trial yesterday, and centered their strongest assault on the events beginning with the explosion in the Vindicator mine and ending with the earlier meetings between the witness and the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners in Denver. To the extent that traffic with "the other side" in the war of labor and capital in Colorado was descreditable, they succeeded in discrediting the witness.

Taking up the admission that Orchard made in direct examination that he had been treacherous to his comrades in Cripple Creek by "tipping off" a train wrecking plot, they developed the fact that Orchard entered the employ of D. C. Scott, who had charge of the railway detectives.

Orchard said that with Scott he had met K. C. Sterling, a detective in the employ of the Mine Owners' association, and that Scott had paid his expenses and accompanied him to Denver on the trip when he first had met Moyer and Haywood. He said that he had agreed to report to Scott, but that he was lying to him and never did make reports.

The defense also tried to show that because he stood in with the other side Orchard was never molested by the militia in Cripple Creek during the strike. Orchard admitted that Scott had told him that if the militia interfered with him he was to send for him, and that the militia never did interfere with him or search his house. Orchard said he went to Scott first because he had not been paid for his work at the Vindicator mine, and he was jealous because he was given hard work like the Vindicator job, while other men got the simple task of train wrecking by displacing a rail.

More crimes, great and small, were added to Orchard's record yesterday. The Cripple Creek woman with whom he committed bigamy had three sons. Orchard stole high grade ore from a messmate, he stole two cases of powder from the Vindicator mine, he stole powder to make one of the bombs thrown into the Vindicator coal pit, and he told a lie.

The defense endeavored in various ways to throw the shadow of doubt and improbability around the whole Vindicator story and the alleged connection of W. F. Davis and William Easterly with the affair and the circumstances under which Orchard testified he met Moyer and Haywood and was paid for the commission of the crime, and to discredit Orchard's story that he was sent back to Cripple Creek with unlimited credit and orders to commit any act of violence that he cared to.

They confronted Orchard with Easterly and Owney Barnes and paved the way for the contradiction by them of the story told by Orchard and several times during the day paved the way for the controvertion of his testimony on material points. Orchard stood the test and strain very well and held tenaciously to the story he related Thursday and the day before.

Suddenly, toward the close of the day, the defense took up the trip Orchard made to southern Colorado with Moyer in the early part of 1904 and showed that Moyer feared to go south unguarded because "mine owners' official thugs" had beaten innocent union men and had sent for Orchard to aid in protecting him.

It was agreed that they should carry sawed-off shotguns and sit in the center of the railway car so that if they were attacked they could defend themselves. Counsel flared up several times during the day and, in the last passage at arms, Prosecutor Hawley said that Richardson told a falsehood when he intimated that Orchard was a fixed witness. Cross-examination of Orchard, who has been on the stand for three days, will be concluded today.

What Mrs. Orchard Will Testify To

Cripple Creek, Col., June 8.—Mrs. Ida Toney Orchard, the Colorado wife of Harry Orchard, left last night for Idaho. Among other things that she will testify to is that her husband was an employe of the Pinkerton Detective agency when she married him in 1902, and has continued in that capacity ever since.

She will tell how, during the big strike here, the Orchard home at Altman was never searched by the militia or peace authorities, although Orchard was supposed to be a singleader.

Mrs. Orchard will also tell about her trip to the bull pen, where her brother was incarcerated. Colonel Verdeckberg treated her with the greatest courtesy.

"Verdeckberg knew my husband was a detective," Mrs. Orchard said, "and that is why he treated me so nicely and would not let the soldiers annoy us at home."

Isn't This Town A Pretty Good Town? If Not, Why Not?

How do you like the town you live in?

Pretty fair sort of place, isn't it? Otherwise you'd move to some other town, wouldn't you?

But you don't think much of this town, you say? Well, what's the matter with this town? If there's anything wrong, let's all get together and right it.

All of us live here, and we ought to pull together. Nobody living in New York or Chicago or St. Louis or San Francisco is going to do any pulling FOR us.

On the contrary, some of those cities are doing a lot of pulling FROM us. They not only pull away some of our best young men as the boys grow up, but they pull away many of our good American dollars, which ought to be spent right here, where they would do the most good.

What is your favorite book? The Mail Order Catalogue? Ah, so we thought!

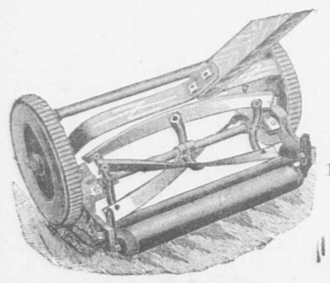

Now suppose, just for a change, you read your local paper carefully, watch the advertisements, and if you don't see what you want ask the home merchant for it. Suppose all of us trade at home a little more regularly. That ought to help make this a better town.

And maybe if we'd keep more of our money at home to build up the town we'd keep more of our boys at home.

In Gardening Time.

By ALICE LOUISE LEE.

Copyright, 1906, by Alice Louise Lee.

THEY lay side by side, two long, narrow strips of plowed land separated by a woven wire fence. Tall, well trimmed hedges at either end screened them from the two parallel streets of the village; tall, well kept hedges at the sides screened them from the houses of their owners. Facing each other in the side hedges were small iron gates, entrances to these prosaic plots of ground.

On May 15, at 5:30 in the morning, the gate in the south hedge opened with a squeak, and a trim figure of decidedly scant dimensions stepped briskly through. A short blue denim skirt, a bit faded and worn, barely reached the tops of stout, thick soled, dew proof shoes. The sleeves of a blue calico shirt waist were pushed above the elbows, while concealed in the depths of an enormous blue sunbonnet was a small tanned face crowned by brown hair coiled tightly in convenient workaday fashion on top of her head. In one hand she carried a tin pail full of pieces of potato, "sets" for planting; in the other a hoe which had seen much service.

Beside the dividing fence she began work on the potato row, digging away so industriously that she did not hear the gate in the opposite hedge open and was unconscious of any disturbing element in her Eden until a cheery "Good morning, Ann," caused her sunbonnet to bob up hastily.

"Good morning," she returned in a faint and wondering tone.

On the other side of the woven wire stood a man, also in blue denim, but it was surprisingly new. So were his big straw hat and his bright tin pail, full of potato sets, and his hoe. So also was his method of preparing for a potato crop on his side of the fence.

"I made up my mind," he began, vigorously thrusting his hoe into the dirt, "that this year I'd get outdoors more. It's not good for me, this staying in the store all day. I'm going to do my own gardening."

"Are you?" came in a faint voice from the sunbonnet. It was a troubled voice. Ann was afraid of Stephen Long because his eyes twinkled and danced to the accompaniment of a fun loving tongue. Belle could cope with him, "giving him back," in the parlance of Bridgeport, "as good as he sent."

For a few moments the only sound heard in the garden was the click of two hoes—one a loud, strong, but uncertain click; the other light, but sure. Presently Stephen wiped the perspiration from his forehead and looked with an exclamation of dismay into the regular, shallow holes, the product of Ann's brown hands.

"Jerusalem!" he ejaculated. "Is that the way you do? See here!"

Ann glanced over the fence, and the sight caused her internal mirth. Next she inventoried the new tin pail, and her mirth became external. Their usual positions were reversed. All the dance and twinkle departed from Stephen's gray eyes, and he sent a look of comic dismay into the capacious sunbonnet.

"I've made every hole deep enough to plant old Hickory in," he said ruefully. Hickory was an enormous cat that played havoc with the rats in Long's hardware store.

"And you've—gone—and cut—the eyes out of your potatoes!" gasped Ann. Then she clung to a post supporting the wire fence and laughed. Her sunbonnet slipped back, revealing two pink cheeks and a small, delicate chin.

Stephen chuckled in sympathy and came nearer. "Why, confound it all, I cut the eyes out because—well, because they didn't look pretty, I suppose. Isn't that all right?"

At this Ann laughed until the sunbonnet collapsed in a heap into a potato hole back of her. Then she checked herself and explained: "The sprouts come out of the eyes. If you don't leave the eyes, you'll get no potatoes. See?"

"Yes; I see." His visual interest centered, however, on the speaker rather than on the eyeless potatoes. "Say," he suggested suddenly, "let's swap work this morning. I'll help you plant, and then you help me cut the sets."

"All right," agreed Ann. She turned to recover her sunbonnet and so failed to see the expression of satisfaction which overspread Stephen's face as he placed a hand on top of the post and vaulted the low fence.

When, an hour later, they sat beside the hedge over a basket of potatoes provided by Stephen, matters grew worse. He did not cut the sets correctly. His fingers were all thumbs, and he came perilously near having one less to get in his way while cutting his fourth potato.

Ann bound up the cut dexterously. Then she "set her foot down." "You hand me the potatoes, and I'll cut 'em," she said decidedly and fell to work with a will.

Stephen obeyed. "Seems to me you are rather little to be bossing your elders," he said, with a flash of his much dreaded fun.

Ann hung her head and blushed uncomfortably. She considered it a disgrace to be so small, an opinion shared by her dressmaker.

"It's much as ever that I can find where Ann Wright's waist begins or ends," complained the latter individual bitterly. "She's all waist. Might's well try to fit a broomstick. Best I can do is to hang her clothes on her and let it go at that. With her sister Belle, now, it's different."

So Ann meekly accepted the dressmaker's hangings and surveyed with longing Belle's plump proportions. She sighed the morning of May 16 as, at 5 o'clock, she donned her short blue denim skirt and looked at her small but muscular arms, white down to the elbows and brown beyond. She took pride and comfort in her garden, but she wished her hands were as white as Belle's.

Her face lighted as she opened the gate in her hedge and saw Stephen leaning on one of the line fence posts impatiently awaiting her. In his new role as gardener, with overalls and big hat and with that odd expression of dependence on his clean cut face, he did not seem to her half as formidable as the Stephen Long who had for ten years gayly sauntered through the hearts of half the girls in Bridgeport, his own untouched; danced at their weddings and stood godfather to their babies.

"I tell you what," he began as soon as Ann appeared, "I'm glad to see some one looming over the horizon who knows a trifle about gardening. What are you going to plant next?"

"Nothing," replied Ann promptly. "This morning I'm going to sow things—onions, for instance."

To her own surprise, her voice was mischievous. A strange feeling of buoyancy possessed her. The sun was sending red heralds up from the east to proclaim a perfect day. Belle was asleep, unconscious of the drama of the garden, and Stephen—well, Stephen's eyes were smiling at her, but not just as they smiled on the public at large.

"Mother isn't up yet," he began hesitatingly, "so I brought along a rag and a string"— He paused and held a hand out to her appealingly. It was the member wounded the previous morning.

Ann promptly dropped her hoe and attended to her surgery.

"Say," began Stephen suddenly, watching the operation, "do you always wear that bonnet in the garden?"

"Yes," returned Ann innocently, "always."

Stephen sighed. "I should think it would be awfully hot away back in there," meditatively gazing within as Ann raised her head.

But the bonnet slowly shaken was the only reply. In some ways its wearer could not see beyond its projecting sides. For fifteen minutes silence reigned in the gardens. Ann worked with her back to the wire fence lest Belle should chance to see her through the little gate. She drew the end of her hoe handle along the smoothed surface of her yard square onion plot and was carefully dropping the seeds when a voice of triumph sounded behind her:

"I've finished mine. Now what are you going to plant next?" There was a step beside her, and the voice of triumph became a voice of dismay. "Jeru-sa-lem! Is that the way you fix 'em?"

Ann turned and glanced into the next garden. "Yes. What have you done?"

Stephen stuffed his hands deep in his overalls pockets. "Me? Why, I sowed 'em broadcast." He removed one hand and motioned as though sowing oats.

Again Ann was convulsed with mirth. "How—how would you weed them if they came up thick all over?"

Stephen wormed a toe into the soft soil. "Weed! Why, I never thought about the weeding. I think," quite humbly, "that I better stick to the store and give up gardening."

Ann's heart unaccountably sank. So did her sunbonnet.

"No, I won't, either," with sudden energy. "If you'll bolster me up with advice, I'll stick to it."

Ann's heart unaccountably arose. So did her sunbonnet.

"Let's swap work this morning," proposed Stephen a moment later, and Ann agreed.

Next morning shortly after five she found Stephen smoothing over her carrot plot just south of the onions. "I thought I'd begin," he explained a little shamefacedly, "in your garden so you would help me. I don't know what to do with the pesky seeds. Either I'd plant 'em in a trench so deep they'd never hear the last trump or else I'd scatter 'em over the top to the four winds and the breezes between!"

After the gardens were planted there was no reasonable excuse for arising at 5 o'clock until the weeds appeared. Therefore, Stephen, released from his early morning duties, often came up on the Wright porch warm evenings and entertained himself gayly with Belle's chatter, while Ann slipped away and wandered in the garden hunting weeds.

At last, after a heavy June rain, they came accompanied by the tender vegetable shoots—potatoes, beets, onions—and Ann arose again at 5 and repaired, sunbonneted, to the garden. Her heart fluttered a little as she unlatched the gate. "He will get some one else to do the hoeing surely," she told herself. But no.

He greeted her with a rueful face. "Say, I'm glad you're here," he proclaimed frankly. "Do you pull these weeds or hoe 'em out or put a charge of dynamite under 'em?"

Ann heard herself laughing happily. The hoeing season had begun.

On the Fourth of July the families Wright and Long enjoyed new potatoes and peas. Stephen's row of vines abounded in peas, while his potatoes were deficient. In Ann's garden the case was reversed.

"We'll swap," said Stephen promptly. Swapping had become a habit with him. Two weeks later both families regaled themselves on beet greens. They came from Stephen's garden, but no one knew save the two gardeners.

"My sweet corn will be ripe in two weeks," said Ann timidly as she took the greens. "There will be enough for us both."

Her predictions were correct, but antedating the ripening of the sweet corn was the picnic in the Bridgeport grove.

"Will you girls ride over with me?" asked Stephen, coming suddenly around the corner to the porch the evening before, as Ann was watering the flowers and Belle swinging in the hammock.

"I thought you had gone to the picnic."

Belle answered promptly in the affirmative, Ann tardily. After he had gone Belle yawned and remarked carelessly: "Three in that narrow buggy! How tiresome! If you'd not happened to be around"— She did not finish the remark. Belle never hurt intentionally.

Ann made no reply, but swallowed hard at a big lump which would not go down. All her invitations were accidents and came because she "happened to be around" Belle. Nothing would induce her to go to the picnic.

Therefore, the following morning, although she donned the denim skirt, she did not repair to the garden until 9 o'clock.

"Belle, I've concluded not to go to the picnic. There's hoeing that must be done in the garden."

"Bother the garden, Ann!" came back Belle's voice good naturedly. "You're wedded to that garden."

Ann did not hear. She had seized her hoe and fled down the walk and through the little hedge gate. No hoeing was needed, but she hoed desperately, checking the sobs and forcing back the tears until she heard Stephen's buggy roll down the road; then she dropped the hoe and retreated to the corn.

The great stalks towering above her head closed protectingly about her. The rustling of their leaves drowned the sound of the released sobs. She sank down and, pressing the sides of her bonnet together over her face, wept as though she were thirteen rather than twenty-three.

There was an ache in her heart which was out of all proportion to its apparent cause. In fact, she would not acknowledge the real cause even to herself until she heard her name from the end of the row in the midst of which she sat.

"Ann, what is the matter? Are you hurt?" Stephen pushed rapidly through the corn and stood looking with perplexed eyes down on the slight figure hiding beneath the big bonnet.

"I thought you had gone to the picnic," replied Ann's muffled tones.

"Yes, I went, but more lemons were needed, and I volunteered to come back after them because I wanted to ask you why you wouldn't go. You see, I knew no work was needed in the— Ann! Why, Ann, dear, you are crying!"

Stephen dropped on one knee beside her and, gently opening the bonnet, looked in on a little wet face.

"What is it, Ann?" he asked tenderly.

Stephen took a firmer hold on the sides of the sunbonnet and, tilting her head farther back, forced her to meet his eyes. "Tell me, dear girl," he pleaded.

"I—thought—you'd rather—take Belle—alone." Ann's tongue tripped in confusion over the words, while the blood reddened her cheeks.

Stephen laughed in sudden relief. His reply was irrelevant. "Take Belle alone! Why, Ann, dear, I confess now that I hate gardening, but I've tried every other way for five years to"—

His face, with the rest of the sentence, was lost in the depths of the sunbonnet.

Flag Day and Story of Flag

Friday, June 14, 1907, will be the 130th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the Flag of the United States.

All American Citizens are again earnestly invited to join in the public recognition of the birthday of the emblem of our nationaliy. In many of the States, pursuant to law, the public schools and also voluntarily in private schools, exercises will be conducted in celebration of Flag Day. Let us extend this practice. Teach the story of the flag, what it represents, and have the young people pledge their fealty and loyalty to it.

On the 14th day June, 1777, Congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The number of the stripes having been increased by the admission of new States, the possibilities of the nation's future development dawned upon our fathers, and the original thirteen stripes were unchangeably restored by act of Congress on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new State into the Union, one star be added to the Union of the flag; and such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission." Since 1818, twenty stars or sovereign States have been added to the Union making forty-five in all.

Since the struggle of 1861-1865, the Flag has become the symbol of a mighty nation. It has been carried to the utmost parts of the earth, carrying liberty wherever it has been thrown to the breeze. Americans cannot fail of a feeling of pride and satisfaction, nor restrain the swelling of patriotism in the breast, when we contrast the meaning, in far distant lands, of ours and other flags displayed together.

The stars and stripes within the recent past have come to possess new beauty for friendly eyes and new terror for the foes of liberty.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Richard Carle's "Hurdy Gurdy Girl" captivated Boston with its first presentation at the Tremont Monday night and is a fixture for the summer. Mr. Carle not only has selected the most capable players for his cast, but he has given them unusual and beautiful scenic surroundings and has furnished costumes that delight the eye. The latest Parisian styles are shown in the second and third act creations worn at the Sausage King's Lawn Party and Ball. "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl" differs from the average musical play in having a plot and a sentimental interest. However as Mr. Carle's enterprises have always had a strong "summer show" element, he has been liberal with his comedy and his chorus work. There are sixteen musical numbers, most all of them lively and several of them characteristic. The principal whistling number is, "The Apple of My Eye" sung at the "black and white" ball. This number promises to fall in line with "I Like You" from "The Mayor of Tokio" and the "Lemon" song from "The Spring Chicken."

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The program arranged for Keith's next week looks as though it will furnish an ideal entertainment for this season of the year, as it is composed entirely of bright, attractive numbers. The principal feature will be "The Stunning Grenadiers," the most ambitious effort in the way of a "girl act" yet presented in vaudeville, simply a perfect production, both artistically and as a spectacle. It enlists the services of beautiful Meredith Meredro and eight pretty assistants. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, the best sketch players of the day, are to commence a three weeks' engagement. The first playlet they are to give is "The Yellow Dragon," one of the most successful of their comedies.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Anxious inquiries regarding the first grand opera of the Castle Square season have besieged the management during the past few weeks, and the public will therefore be glad to know that "Faust" is to be the atraction through all of next week. To describe or to praise this most notable of grand operas is unnecessary. "Faust" was sung to crowded houses for a single week at the Castle Square last summer, and its coming reception next week will duplicate that great success. George Tallman makes his first appearance this season in the role of Faust, which he will share at alternate performances with Harry Davies, and a new prima donna has been engaged in the person of Miss Lois Ewell. She comes to Boston with the highest recommendations as a singer with a fine soprano voice and her youth and beauty will help to emphasize her acting as Marguerite. She has been especially engaged to alternat with Miss Clara Lane in the role. The Mephistopheles will be George Shields, with J. K. Murray as Valentine and Hattie Belle Ladd as Martha.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

If "The Time, The Place and the Girl" was a hit at the Tremont theatre, it has scored a triumph at the Colonial. The transfer was made to that house last Monday evening that the stay in Boston might be extended, and ever since that time the house has been packed in every part and there is no question but the stay here will soon begin to rival that of the original company in Chicago. Such a jolly success as this has proved to be has never been known in Boston, and night after night laughlovers have thronged the place to the doors that they might enjoy all the more the drollery of this fascinating production. It is the talk of all New England, for Boston has been the first place in the East to see the work and the triumph has been so great that nobody else has had a chance to see it yet, and it ought to be a long time to come before any move should be necessary from the attractive stage of the Colonial theatre. This is just the house for a summer season like this and no matter what the weather may be out of doors, it is always comfortable inside the auditorium. The broad promenades, the spacious foyer and the attractive interior of the theatre are exactly suited for the enjoyment of a merry musical comedy, and with "The Time, The Place and The Girl" everything is exactly right for the complete enjoyment of a prosperous season. The rush is so great that an early application for tickets is imperative.

THE ORPHEUM.

Owing to the tremendous success scored by Pauline, the eminent French hypnotist last week at Percy Williams' Orpheum he has been retained for a second week. Pauline has proved the biggest sensation in vaudeville in many years and has been attracting tremendous crowds to the Orpheum. His exhibitions in mental telepathy and hymotism are most remarkable and while scintific in purport Pauline presents them in such a way that many opportunities are given for laughs. Rogers and Deely will appear in a laughable sketch "A Singer and His Valet;" Middleton, Spellmeyer and Company will present a Western playlet "A Texas Wooing" in which they introduce a full blooded Indian actor.

—An exhibition of the Weymouth public schools will be held in the Town hall, East Weymouth, Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15—Friday from 7.30 to 9.30 P. M. and Saturday from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. The public is cordially invited to attend this exhit.

Girl Killed By Falling Derrick

One child was killed and another seriourly injured late Saturday afternoon by being struck by a falling derrick at a cellar on Cranch street. The children were playing about the derrick that had been erected by Albert Holteen to build a cellar. The men were working late and while hoisting a rock, one of the guys snapped and the derrick came down with a crash.

A warning cry was given and all of the children got out of the way except Ruthven Gustafson, aged 8 years, and Mildred Bagen. The Gustafson girl was struck on the head and died shortly after at her home where she was taken. The Bagen girl was knocked down and received painful injuries but will probably recover.

Arawak Wins In Dorchester Race

Several Quincy yachts participated in the open race in Dorchester bay Saturday held under the joint management of the Savin Hill, Dorchester and Boston clubs. There were fifty starters in the six classes.

In class A the Eleanor of Commodore Sawyer of the Squantum club and the Alpha fouled. At that time these two boats were in the lead.

Class D. in which the most of the Quincy boats participated had seven starters and they put up a scrappy race. They approached the starting line well bunched the Arawak leading the way. Once under way the Arawak was never headed and at the finish she had lead enough to make her an easy winner. Corrected time gave her a lead of 3 minutes and 57 seconds over the Almira, Ira Whittimore's new boat. The summary in this class was as follows:

FLORAL FESTIVALS

Children's Day Observed in Several of the Sunday Schools

An interesting service was held by the Sunday School of the First church on Sunday morning, being the annual floral festival.

There was a large attendance of the school and also of church people. About the pulpit were massed a beautiful display of flowers.

The members of the school marched in from the chapel by the southerly aisle and then down the centre aisle, singing the processional.

At the baptismal service, eight children were christened, viz:

Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide.

Frances, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ross K. Whiton.

Clarence Bently, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archer M. Nickerson.

John Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Holden.

Margie Williston Winnifred and Doris Laura Muriel, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Taylor.

Isabel May and Robert Alexander, children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Putnam.

A portion of the service was in memoriam of Gertrude E. Lovejoy, who died Nov. 11, 1906. Supt. Johnson had a tribute for her and also announced that the wreath on the pulpit would be deposited on her grave. He also spoke in remembrance of the late Henry H. Faxon, and said the roses on the pulpit would be placed on his grave.

The report of the secretary showed 210 enrolled and an average attendance of 142.

The treasurer reported receipts of $565.11 including gifts of $151.50 and penny collections of $162.00. Checks for $50 each will be sent to the Peabody Home for Crippled Children and the Floating Hospital.

Supt. Johnson in his report had a tribute to the teachers for their work in building up the Sunday school. He then presented diplomas to 20, for perfect attendance, viz: Ella Packard, C. Abbott Johnson, Walter Nichols, Herbert T. Dewhurst, Harry Glover, Dorothy Mueller, Richard Blackmur, Ralph Merritt, Eliot C. Johnson, Hazel Dewhurst, Paul Blackmur, Allen Miller, Dorothy Edwards, Edgar Nichols, Jack Pfaffmann, William Edwards, Doris Taylor, Alice Arnold, Marjorie Taylor, Frank Johnson and Marion Nichols.

Books were also presented to the following seven who have had a perfect attendance for four years, viz: Alice Arnold, William Edwards, Ralph Merritt, Herbert T. Dewhurst, Eliot Johnson, Hazel Dewhurst and Dorothy Edwards.

Rev. E. C. Butler, the pastor, spoke briefly, especially to the children. Songs and responsive readings were interspersed in the services, and the offering was for the annual picnic. The flowers were distributed among the sick.

BETHANY CHURCH.

The Bible school of Bethany Congregational church observed Children's day on Sunday morning, with an interesting program. The members of the kindergarten department were grouped upon the platform and the floral decorations completed a pretty picture.

The program included recitations, songs, and solos, and the following children were christened:

Ernest William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest D. Gourd.

Mildred Pratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest V. Fitts.

Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Horton.

Richard Medlin, Doris Anna, and Evelyn Louise, children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Clark.

Esther Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bishop.

Kenneth Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Chaddock.

Robert Archibald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Parsons.

Ellis Llewelyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hughes.

E. E. Craig the superintendent of the Bible school, spoke briefly to the children.

AT QUINCY POINT.

The unusual large congregation was present at the Point church, Sunday morning, to hear the Sunday School concert. The church was prettily trimmed by the young ladies, the Percillas. The choir, under the direction of Miss Beatrice Adams, rendered two anthems. The children's day program included: Anthems by choir, baptismal service, exercises by Miss A. Newcomb's class, song by Jennie Gibb and Doris Carter, exercise by Miss Barnard's class, recitation by Master Homer Melville, exercise by Miss Evelyn Hayden's class, songs by the Kindergarten department, recitation by Effie Waddell, exercise by Miss Emma Hayden's class, recitation by Catherine Yule, solo by Miss Eleanor Crane, exercise by Mrs. Pollard's class, address, "The work and opportunity of the Sunday School" by pastor, violin solo "The Holy City," by Miss Ermine Cain.

The concert was in charge of Superintendent Charles Sherburne and Miss Margaret Thomas. They were ably assisted by Miss Amy Newcomb, Miss Phillips, Miss Barnard, Miss Hayden and Mrs. Rolland Newcomb. The school has present enrollment of 253.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Children's day was observed in the First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning. Before the hour of service the church was filled and it was found necessary to place chairs along the aisles. The whole time of the morning service, beginning at 10.30, was given to the children and a very pleasing program had been prepared and was given by the scholars of the Sunday school. A large number of the scholars took part in the exercises by either songs or recitations appropriate to the day, and not the least enjoyed was the part taken by the younger members from the primary class.

The members and friends of the church were especially interested in the knowledge of Bible history and general Bible information shown by those who have attended the half hour children's prayer meeting class which is conducted by the pastor of the church.

What speaks well for Presbyterianism and for the First Presbyterian church of Quincy was the baptism of the following fourteen children: Alice Olivie Gray, Ruth Cumming, Elsie Bremner Smart, William Harold Watson, Clarence Alexander Watson, Albert Davidson Watson, Everett Amos Harvey, Huena Margaret Dawson, Jessie Fraser Graham, Charles Neil Ross, Joseph Bishop, Margaret Dawe Stevens, Archie Donald McEachern, Jeanie Maver.

Church Wedding At Wollaston

The capacity of St. Chrysostoms church at Wollaston was taxed Saturday evening at the wedding of Miss Grace Gertrude Coles of Atlantic and Mr. George Knoblauch Snow. The bride is the attractive and pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Coles of 52 Faxon road, Atlantic, and the groom was formerly an Atlantic young man, and has many friends in the city. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Snow of New York.

A special car conveyed the guests from the train to the church. The edifice was decorated with palms and potted plants, and the family pews were tied with white satin ribbon which made an attractive and effective decoration. The ceremony was performed at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Edwin Clattenburg, the rector. Mrs. Cecil Marble of Atlantic at the organ played "O Promise Me," by DeKoven, softly during the ceremony.

The bride looked extremely pretty in a white silk gown cut en train with trimmings of Oriental lace and gold and pearl ornaments. She wore a long veil caught up with lilies of the valley, and carried a large shower bouquet of the same flowers.

In the bridal party were a maid of honor, and two bridesmaids. Miss Laura E. Coles, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and was attractive in a princess gown of white chiffon trimmed with cluny lace; she carried a bouquet of daybreak pinks. Miss Laura Stewart of Roslindale and Miss Annie E. Collins of Watertown, the bridemaids were gowned alike in gowns of pale blue tulle with elaborate trimmings of valenciene lace; each wore a wreath of forgetmenots in hair and carried large shower bouquets of roses.

The bride was given away by her father. The groom's present to the bride was a jeweled pendant, and the bride gave her bridesmaids gold brooches with pearls.

The ushers were Mr. Louis W. Coles of Atlantic, Mr. Clifford Snow of New York, Mr. Benjamin W. Foster of Jamaica Plain, and Mr. Samuel Grueby of Atlantic.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, the couple being assisted in receiving by their parents. The house was beautifully decorated with palms, potted plants, flowers and asparagus vine. The Hungarian orchestra played during the reception. Among the prominent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Caleb S. Spencer of New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Curtis of New Haven, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Wales of New York, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Williams of Attleboro, Dr. and Mrs. Fred J. Peirce, and others from New York, Bridgeport, Providence, Lynn, Swampscott and other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Snow will spend their honeymoon in a camp. Their future residence will be at 123 Mill street, Dorchester, and they will be at home to friends after September first.

Keyes—Clapp

Mr. John Brooks Keyes and Miss Muriel Clapp were very quietly married Saturday evening, at the residence of Mrs. Emma C. Keyes of this city, the Rev. Ellery Channing Butler officiating. The bride was simply dressed in a brown traveling suit, and was unattended. Only the immediate family were present. After a short wedding journey, the young couple will reside at No. 15 Alleyne terrace, where they will be at home to their friends.

Homans—Adams

The marriage of Miss Abigail Adams and Mr. Robert Homans will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. John Quincy Adams at Mt. Wollaston. Rev. William E. Gardner of Christ church is the officiating clergyman. Only the immediate families have been invited to the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Homans will go abroad for their honeymoon.

—Wareham's stone crusher plant that cost the town a considerable sum of good money several years ago and was located out on the Marion road, was sold the other day at public auction. The small crusher was disposed of to W. H. H. Ryder, of Marion, for $106, the engine went to D. C. Keyes, for $17. Mr. N. R. Besse got the scales for $7.

PROBABLY FATAL

Young Lady Shot By Gun Which Was Accidentally Discharged

Miss Annie Witherell, 25 Thayer place, South Braintree, was accidently shot at her home Sunday night, abut ten o'clock by the discharge of a shot gun, which stood in a corner of the sitting room and happened to be loaded. She had returned about an hour before from the home of her sister, Mrs. Willis H. Martin, at Braintree and was playing with the pet dog by throwing a ball. At last the ball went behind a door where the shot gun was kept and as Joseph E. Hayden reached to get the ball for her, the gun fell over and discharged.

The shot struck Miss Witherell just over the ear tearing away a portion of her scalp and crushing her skull. Dr. R. F. Burleigh, a neighbor, was hastily called and as soon as a hack could be obtained took her to the Homeopathic hospital, where an operation was immediately performed. At nine o'clock this morning she had come out of the ether and was conscious. Her chances of living are very doubtful and her sisters are at her bedside.

Miss Witherell lived with her sister, Mrs. Joseph E. Hayden, and held an important position as assistant clerk in the Braintree Savings Bank. She was exceedingly capable in that positon, very popular among the citizens, and an active member of the Pine Tree club.

Beside Mrs. Martin, she has another sister, Mrs. Charles Geddes of Roxbury and an aged father, Mr. Whitfield Witherell. Until about five years ago, Mr. Witherell lived on Middle street, Braintree, close by the old ungraded school.

BACKWARD SEASON

It Is Severely Felt by Farmers In Northern New England

SPRING WORK IS FAR BEHIND

Cloudy Weather and Excessive Rains Probably Rotted Much Seed Planted In May--Hay Crop Alone Will Be Ready to Be Gathered on Time

Concord, N. H., June 10.—Serious damage and delay to crops has resulted from the unprecedentedly cold weather of the past month in all sections of northern New England. Government records at points where weather observers are stationed indicate that the average mean temperature for the month of May was lower than in any other year since these official records were started, more than 30 years ago. Five frosts occurred here during the month, three of which are recorded as "killing," one "heavy" and one "light."

Farmers, therefore, are badly behind with all their spring work. Peas and potatoes are the only vegetables which have been extensively planted, as the constantly recurring frosts have led the farmers to choose late harvests in the more tender crops rather than run the risk of more serious loss through the freezing of the young shoots. Indeed, some farmers who were so venturesome as to plant peas in the early part of May found that even their leaves, more hardy than those of any other vegetable, were unable to withstand the withering effect of the frost.

With the warmer weather of the past few days there has been a great rush to get corn and other seed under ground. In many places damage to fruit is reported, although the apple trees, which furnish the principal fruit product of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, blossomed so late that it is believed they did not suffer greatly. Still another cause of loss is feared through the probable rotting of much seed planted in May, as a result of the almost continuous cloudy weather, accompanied by considerable rain, during the latter half of the month.

The only crop which will be ready for gathering on time will be the hay. The cold weather had had little effect on the grass, and the rains have given it a thick, luxuriant growth. Two or three weeks of warm weather now will bring it to the cutting point. And here the farmers will face another difficulty, for the late planting will mean that the growing crops will have to be hoed at the time when haying must be begun, and the combined work will be almost more than many of the farmers can handle. The shortage of farm help, of which complaints come from all sections, will be felt with particular keenness at that time.

The greatest actual shortage for the entire season is likely to be in the tomato crop. The plants having been necessarily set out very late, a large percentage of the tomatoes will be still green when the first frosts come in the fall, and as they are very susceptible to the cold, they cannot be ripened.

PLOT OF JAPANESE

Important Facts Are Brought to Light at Washington

SAN FRANCISCO QUESTION

Faction Hostile to Saionji Ministry Using It as a Basis of Systematic Campaign to Create Anti-American Demonstrations In Japan

Washington, June 10.—That the Japanese of the Pacific coast and the Progressives, a political party of Japan, have entered into an alliance, which has the earmarks of an international conspiracy with the overthrow of the present ministry in Japan and the annulment of the clause in the immigration bill excluding Japanese coolie labor from continental United States as the ultimate objects, is learned authoritatively here.

The preliminary steps in this scheme, it is said, will be to induce the Tokio government to recall Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador to the United States, and to demand an apology and perhaps an indemnity from this government for the alleged acts of violence against Japanese subjects residing in San Francisco.

With this end in view, representatives of the faction hostile to the Saionji ministry have been in Washington to consult with the Japanese ambassador and the state department officials regarding the objectionable clause in the immigration bill, the California school question and the recent attack on Japanese in San Francisco. The report which they have sent to Tokio, it is alleged, will form the basis of a systematic campaign to bring about anti-American demonstrations in Japan and to force Foreign Minister Hayashi, if possible, to demand indemnity and an apology on account of the Japanese disturbances in San Francisco.

These facts became known yesterday for the first time when it was learned that T. Takahashi, O. Noda and K. Kawakami came to Washington on April 27 and remained until May 17, during which time they were negotiating with Aoki looking to the annulment of the Japanese immigration limitation law. This delegation failed in its purpose and, it is stated, after charging Aoki with treachery to the Japanese of the Pacific coast and with misrepresenting conditions to his home government, they telegraphed to Ototaka Yamaoka, the personal representative of Count Okuma, who was awaiting their report in Seattle, with the request that he communicate with the anti-administration leaders in Tokio.

Takahashi, Noda and Kawakami had an interview with Assistant Secretary of State Bacon on May 8. They then telegraphed Yamaoka that they were dissatisfied with the attitude of the state department and the Japanese embassy and urged the necessity of carrying the fight to Japan. Acting upon this suggestion, Yamaoka sailed for Japan on May 14, and it is pointed out that the renewal of the anti-American agitation in the Japanese press has begun since his arrival in Tokio on May 28. It is also believed here that he prompted the deputation of Progressives to call on Foreign Minister Hayashi for an explanation of the government's "apparent inaction and want of efficiency in the presence of the grave diplomatic questions with the United States."

The report which Yamaoka carried to the elder statesmen, it is further believed here, is responsible for the attitude of the opposition newspapers in urging the concentration of Japan's national efforts toward the settlement of the San Francisco question by forcing an apology from this government for the alleged insults growing out of the school question and the recent attacks on the Japanese restaurants.

Yamaoka, who brought about the alliance with the Japanese of the Pacific coast, is now one of the recognized leaders of the Progressives. He is described as one of the shrewdest politicians in the empire and it is said that he will, as leader of the anti-administration forces, continue his fight against the Saionji ministry, with the view of getting control of the reins of government for the Progressives.

It is stated here that he will make the charge that Foreign Minister Hayashi has allowed Aoki to pursue too conciliatory a course and to make too many concessions in dealing with the American government regarding the San Francisco questions.

While in Washington Takashi, Noda and Kawakami were in frequent conferences with Aoki until finally there was an open rupture which caused the delegation to make the threat to the ambassador that they would report his "treachery" to the home government and demand his recall.

Tani's Warlike Utterance

Tokio, June 10.—Viscount Tani, leader of the opposition in the house of peers and head of the defense of Kumamoto in the Satsuma rebellion, is reported to have said anent the American question: "The persecution of the Japanese in San Francisco is a most wicked act. Should diplomacy fail to bring about a satisfactory solution, the only way open to us is to an appeal to arms. Our mind is firmly made up. It is certain that America will yield, for its people are radically commercial in their sentiment."

CRIMES OF ADAMS

Will Be Recited by Prosecution In the Haywood Trial

WAS PARTNER OF ORCHARD

Latter Has Three Years More of Terrible Tale to Tell--Defense Will Try to Prove That Wholesale Murderer Was the Agent of Miners

Boise, Ida., June 10.—Steve Adams, another prisoner-witness for the state in the case of W. D. Haywood, will come today from the jail at Wallace, where he is held pending trial on the charge of murder. Adams, according to Harry Orchard, was a partner of the assassin in many of the "bumping off expeditions," successful and unsuccessful, to which Orchard has confessed.

Adams also confessed last year, but he repudiated the document when he faced the gallows. The confession is, however, sworn to and in writing. It shows careful correction and interlineation in Adams' own handwriting. The list of Adams' alleged list of victims is not as long as that which Orchard credits himself, but this is said to be because Adams still-hunted a single quarry, while Orchard, to use his own words, "did not care whether he killed one man or 50," as he "felt at that time."

Cross-examination of Orchard, by his own confession the slayer of 18 men with bullet and bomb, is likely to last through today and tomorrow and possibly longer. Orchard has told a horrible tale of crime that spread over the last 11 years of his life, the first 30 years being the commonplace story of a Canadian farmhand. But beginning with 1897 he unfolded a career in which, to use the language of the leading counsel for the state, "assassination was a trade and murder a means of livelihood."

Orchard spared no incident of his more recent life, under the questioning of the state, that might prove to the jury his readiness to slaughter for low wage and how indifferent he had been as to the number or condition of his victims. The story brought out by the state was, however, merely a synopsis of the play whose acts cover the years since 1899. In every act the climax sent a shudder through a crowded courtroom.

Under cross-examination by E. F. Richardson, counsel for W. D. Haywood, Orchard has so far developed this series of tragedies up to the year 1904. Three more years and many murders are yet to be analyzed. For purposes of its own, not so far revealed, the defense is determined that Orchard shall retell his life story to the most diabolical or the most squalid detail before the men who are to pass on the question whether W. F. Haywood is guilty of hiring Orchard to murder former Governor Frank Steunenberg. Slowly but surely the defense is developing the lines by which it hopes to break down the story of Orchard, so far as it affects Haywood. If it is possible to heap further obliquy on the witness they have done so by proving him capable of petty crimes.

By his own admission, Orchard is a bigamist, a thief, a liar and an incendiary, as well as a murderer. He has played the traitor to his employers. He has deserted two wives and his children. All of these offenses he has been forced to confess, but under a gruelling examination by Richardson he has stuck to his story and given chapter and verse.

By questions the defense has plainly indicated the intention to prove that Orchard was the hired agent of the miners who, harrassed by the Western Federation of Miners and determined to wipe union labor from the mines of Idaho and Colorado, planned assassination, train wrecking and mine explosions that could be laid to the door of the federation and keep militia on the ground while non-union men worked the mines.

It has been shown under the cross-examination that Orchard trafficked with railroad detectives in the mining region of Cripple Creek during the great strike there, while almost at the same time he was in the confidence of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners. Led on by Richardson, Orchard has stated that he was hired by Moyer, president of the federation, to act as his guard against alleged thugs said to have been hired by the mine owners to attack and terrorize Moyer.

From half a dozen states witnesses will be called to deny Orchard's assertions. Already two men, accused by Orchard of complicity in the plots he says were hatched with the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners, have been called to the stand in open court. Orchard has identified them as the men he named and William Easterly and Owney Barnes have openly sneered at the testimony.

Mrs. Orchard Not a Witness

Cripple Creek, Col., June 10.—Mrs. Harry Orchard, who left her home in Altman and was reported to have stated for Boise to be a witness in the Haywood murder case, has returned. She said she had been visiting friends in Cameron and had no intention of going to Boise. She had been asked by both sides to be a witness in the case, she said, but had refused, as she did not think she could give any important testimony.

SMUGGLED WOMEN

Many From China Said to Be In the Suburbs of Boston

Boston, June 10.—It is likely that another arrest will be made today in connection with the alleged smuggling of Chinese women into this country, which will bring the number up to four since the federal authorities began their investigation.

It is said that in the suburbs of Boston at the present time there are several Chinese women, brought here from the Orient by way of Canada and Vermont, and whose entrance was made possible by the statements of certain Hub merchants who, it is charged, signed papers to the effect that the Celestials who brought the women here were merchants. Chinese are privileged to bring women of their immediate family to the United States, providing that they are able to get several Americans to swear that they are merchants.

Hon Yen, who was arrested in New York, charged with having illegally brought two women into this country by his declaration that they were his wife and daughter, is well known here.

According to the federal authorities, it was while here that he became acquainted with R. J. Rodday and H. E. Prescott, the two local business men now under arrest on the charge of assisting Yen to bring the women in.

A Narragansett Bay Mystery

Bristol, R. I., June 10.—An unknown naphtha launch is believed to have burned and sunk last night in Narragansett bay. The fate of her occupants has not been learned. About 9 o'clock persons at various points on shore heard an explosion and soon a column of smoke was seen arising about four miles off Pappoochesquaw point. This was followed by a fire. The light of the flames suddenly disappeared as if the craft had sunk. A searching party in a launch could discover nothing, and returned here at midnight with the mystery still unsolved.

Found Dead In Bathtub

Haverhill, Mass., June 10.—Albert C. Jenkins, aged 25, engaged in the retail leather business here, was found dead in a bathtub at his lodging house. A medical examiner found that death had been caused by heart failure. The body had been boiled by the water, showing that Jenkins must have fallen into the tub while preparing for his bath. He was engaged to be married to Miss Mabel Baker and the woman is prostrated by the death.

Arm a Mass of Patchwork

Bangor, Me., June 10.—Miss Marie Burgoise of Westbrook, whose arm was crushed and burned in a laundry accident three months ago, is out again after a remarkable experience. Over 500 pieces of flesh and skin have been grafted upon her arm within the past three weeks. From 30 to 50 small pieces a day were used, her mother and brothers furnishing the cuticle from their own bodies cheerfully.

Important School Proposition

Boston, June 10.—Plans calling for the construction of schoolhouses in the parks on the borders of the city, instead of in the congested tenement house sections, and the free transportation to and from the schools of the children of the densely populated localities, are under consideration by the Boston school committee. It is expected that action will be taken upon the proposition at an early date.

Faith In Mrs. Eddy

Boston, June 10.—At the regular yearly communion service of the First Church of Christ, cientist, yesterday, a message of greeting was sent to Rev. Mary B. G. Eddy, pastor emeritus. The message was adopted by the congregation by a unanimous rising vote. It conveys to Mrs. Eddy "assurance of steadfast devotion and love in days of good or of evil report, in the hour of trial or of triumph."

Fatality on Golf Links

Boston, June 10.—James Kirraine, aged 11, a caddy at the Brookline Country club golf links, while illustrating some shots which he had seen made by players on the links, accidentally struck another caddy, William Strain, aged 13, in the head with his club, killing him instantly. The mishap was purely accidental, but the police arrested Kirraine. Later he was released on bail.

Absorbed by New Haven Road

Worcester, Mass., June 10.—The Uxbridge and Blackstone electric street railroad has passed into the control of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad interests. The exchange of stock will be on a share for share basis. A trunk line express electric service between the two cities is promised as a result of the deal.

Burned Under Queer Circumstances

Philadelphia, June 10.—Margaret Chance, aged 18 years, was riding on an open trolley car when her light summer dress caught fire in some unknown manner. The thin material burned fiercely. The young woman screamed and the passengers stampeded. By the time the motorman stopped the car Miss Chance was burned from her waist to her feet, every particle of her clothing having been consumed by the flames. The girl has but small chance of recovery. It is supposed her dress caught fire from a match or cigaret stump thrown aside by a smoker.

Ice Wrecked Fishing Vessel

North Sydney, N. S., June 10.—Schooner Fauvette arrived here with Captain Bleboudais and crew of the fishing vessel Loraine, which was crushed between immense ice clampers and foundered 30 miles off Low Point, C. B. The vessel went to the bottom so quickly that the captain and 18 men had barely time to escape with their lives, losing everything except the clothes they wore.

Dervish Made Good Time

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 10.—The schooner yacht Dervish owned by H. A. Morse of Marblehead, Mass., was the first to finish in the yacht race from New York. The Dervish completed the run of 650 miles in 91 hours and 50 minutes. As the Dervish is compelled to give all the other racers a time allowance, her arrival first does not necessarily make her the winner of the race.

Big Hauls by Highwaymen

St. Petersburg, June 10.—An official of the Koppel factory was attacked by five armed men in this city and robbed of $3400. The men escaped. The cashier of another large firm was attacked by two men here. He was stabbed and robbed of over $2500 destined to pay off the firm's employes. The assailants of this man were captured.

To Lay Cables In Boston Harbor

Boston, June 10.—The United States cable steamer Cyrus W. Field has arrived here and will remain in this vicinity about a month, laying cables connecting the different fortifications in the lower harbor. When the vessel completes her work all the fortifications will have been connected by telephone and telegraph.

King Opposed by Daughter

Brussels, June 10.—Countess Lonyay and Princess Louise, daughters of King Leopold, have announced their intention of contesting the right of their father to turn over the Congo Independent State to Belgium, on the ground that the state forms part of the personal estate of the king.

Aeronaut Killed

Granite Falls, Minn., June 10.—John Puepuera, an aeronaut, met death by drowning in the Minnesota river. When the aeronaut detached the parachute his arms and legs became entangled in the ropes and when the parachute struck the water Puepuera was unable to save himself.

In an uninteresting but one-sided contest, South Quincy defeated the Fort Warren team at the Ward Three playground on Saturday by a score of 14 to 3.

The management of South Quincy were led to believe that Fort Warren was a fast club, as they possessed the reputation of having defeated the strong team from the battleship Missouri, champions of the navy, but against the home club they never had a chance to win.

So. Quincy secured one run in the opening inning. Duggan the first man up getting a single to left, stole second and scored on Duffy's hit to centre. The visitors got two runs in the third but after that were unable to get a man across the plate until the eighth.

The home team added three more runs in their half of the third and four in the fifth. Duggan, Duffy and Birnie got hits and Dunn smashed the ball to left making a complete circuit of the bases.

The visitors had up to this time used two pitchers and in an effort to prevent the home team from further scoring put in Flaherty. This change however did not help the situation, for the home team took kindly to his delivery and slammed the ball to all parts of the field. Duggan got a hit over third and scored on Duffy's two bagger to deep centre. Birnie planted a single back of second and Dunn kept up the good work by getting a drive to left. Forbes was out on a high fly to third and Burke reached first on a base on balls. Oswald tried for a hit between first and second, but his fly was gobbled up by the right fielder. Flynn got a single between third and short, scoring two runs and Kolson closed the inning with a long fly to centre. When the inning closed the home team had scored six runs.

The features of the game was the pitching of Kolson, who allowed the visitors only four scattered hits, the catching and throwing of Forbes, only one man being able to steal second; the hitting of Duggan, Duffy and Dunn. The fielding of Birnie, Duffy, Oswald, Dunn, Duggan and Flynn, and the fielding of Flaherty, Perry and Stoppford for the visitors.

Following is the score by innings:

Hits—South Quincy, 13; Fort Warren, 4. Errors—South Quincy 2; Fort Warren, 4. Batteries—Kolson and Forbes. Stoppford, Flaherty and Coleman.

Makaria 16; Galahad 4.

On the front field at Merrymount park Saturday afternoon, Makaria Fraternity won their seventh game this season by defeating the Galahad club 16 to 4.

Makaria playing gilt edged ball all the time, Penley holding the Galahads down well, getting 12 strike outs while Euoen at first played a snappy game, making several fast plays. Smith behind the bat captured several hard fouls and McKenzie on third was kept busy.

McKenzie is Makaria's star batter and in this game 4 hits out of 5 times at bat, two of them for two bases. Penley got a two bagger also and Smith rapped it out in the seventh for three bases.

In the seventh, Makaria hit the ball at will, getting 8 runs in the inning. Miller was unable to hold them down.

For Galahad, Harkins played the star game at first and at the bat, getting two good hits, while Spargo drove it out for a two base hit and also got a single.

Other features were the batting of Avery, Artis and A. Taylor and a double play by "Pete" Sullivan and "Billy" Fields. Marshall and Brickley played best for the losers. The full score:

Merrymounts Win.

The Merrymounts won the their scored game of the season on Saturday at Merrymount Park by defeating the Library Bureau of Boston. Gram pitched gilt edged ball until the eighth inning, when he relaxed, passed several men and was touched for a few hits, which coupled with errors netted the visitors four runs. With nobody out and two on bases he then framed three more.

Consistent hitting and fast base running gave Merrymount most of the tallies. For Merrymount Moxie, Leach and Foley excelled, while Luce fielded his position excellently.

The Submarine Octopus Stands Difficult Test Without Leak

Again with marked success on Saturday the submarine Octopus, built by the Electric Boat Company of Quincy, fulfilled all requirements in a difficult test, when she was lowered to a depth of over 200 feet at a point about four and one-half miles east of the Boston lightship.

This test, says the Herald, which with a boat the size of the Octopus was conidered a practiclary exacting one, completes a series of trials and tests which far outstrip anything called for by the government, and there is very little question about the success of the type of submarine represented by the Octopus.

All that remains now before the new boat is put into commission are the navy acceptance trials which will be run off, it is expected, next week at Newport, when a special board of naval officers, will watch the Octopus, and probably the Cuttlefish as well, perform a stated programme of trials.

The Octopus, with the steam yacht Starling as escort left Quincy Point about 5.40 A. M., on Saturday, several newspaper men being in the party.

Tw miles outside of Boston light the Octopus and her tender picked up the tug Peter Bradley with the big lighter Alfred Sorensen, carrying the special falls and tackle for lowering the submarine. Capt. Sorenson put off in a dory and boarded the Starling for a conference. The weather seemed perfect, but there was even yet some fear of too violent undertow.

The strange procession of craft passed Boston lightship close in just at 8 o'clock and two miles beyond it the Octopus forged ahead and led the way to the vicinity selected for the trial.

Eleven miles out from Boston light all four craft slowed down and the Starling's lead reached bottom at a little better than 200 feet. The sea was calm with the glossy smoothness of tropic waters, but a long ground swell rolled the vessels about uncomfortably. Mr. Ewertz with Capt. Sorenson rowed off to the dredge and it was decided to wait until the undertow moderated to some extent.

The lighter Trilby dropped a "mud hook" and stood by while the dainty little Starling swung her nose up to the point east by no' and settled down patiently to wait.

Hours later the Octopus came up under the stern of the Trilby, Capt. Sorenson and Mr. Ewertz directed the first steps of securing her.

Light lines were run out and made fast to steady her and then began the task of hooking the great falls to the triple strands of wire cable which had been placed about the hull of the submarine fore and aft, before she left the yards.

The task was accomplished at last and half a million dollar's worth of steel frame and mechanism hung lightly from $800 worth of specially constructed steel hawsers.

After a preliminary trial the Octopus disappeared at 5.20. Minutes of anxious waiting followed, and then the cranking of the cranes sounded again and slowly the monster began her voyage to the surface. Just at 6.06 the periscope pipe showed above the water and simultaneously a cheer rang out from the lips of the crew on the lighter, a cheer which was caught up and echoed back from the Starling. The conning tower followed and then part of the superstructure. The fine, brave old Octopus had made the trial without a quaver.

Immediately she was secured, her crew swarmed up to her superstructure and fairly patted her inanimate sides in their gleeful welcome. At 6.15 Capt. Momm lowered himself inboard, followed by Inspector Ryan and the crew, in order. Then came the jubilant verdict, "Fit as a fiddle and tight as a bung." The Octopus had withstood the pressure and leaked not a drop. The test was wholly satisfactory.

Inside of 20 minutes the submarine was headed toward the Boston lightship and home tooting her whistle and followed by the proud little tender and a cheering, dancing army of joyous maniacs.

Both Starling and Octopus made the run up the river in the dark and tied up at Fore River shortly before 10 o'clock.

Lieut. Courtney, who has been assigned command of the Octopus, is expected to arrive today to begin a study of the craft. He will accompany her to Newport for her acceptance trials. It will then remain to him to perfect a system whereby the submarines will become intimately acquainted with every nook and corner of the seaboard.

Three Burglaries At South Quincy.

The offices of F. H. Crane & Sons, McGilvray & Jones and Birnie & Diack at South Quincy were entered sometime between Saturday night and this morning. The only thing taken was some coppers from the money drawer at F. H. Crane & Sons.

At the office of Birnie & Diack 100 two-cent stamps and some pencils were taken. Stamps were also taken from McGilvray & Jones office. It was probably the work of boys.

HOMANS ADAMS

The Bride A Direct Descendant of Two Presidents

Every effort was made to keep from the public the particulars of the wedding on Monday of Miss Abigail Adams of Quincy and Mr. Robert Homans of Boston, but the fact that the bride is a great granddaughter of President John Quincy Adams and a great great granddaughter of President John Adams, and the accomplished daughter of Mrs. John Quincy Adams of Mount Wollaston, would have it otherwise.

The wedding was really marked with great simplicity. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. William E. Gardner, rector of Christ church of this city. The house was decorated throughout with asparagus vine, laurel and white carnations.

The bride wore white satin trimmed with old family lace, and a lace veil which was worn by her mother, formerly Miss Fannie C. Crowninshield, and by her grandmother at their weddings. Her brother the Hon. Charles Francis Adams 2d, formerly Mayor of Quincy, gave the bride away.

The groom was attended by his brother, John Homans. The bride was unattended and there were no ushers.

Mr. Homans, who is a son of the late Dr. John Homans, whose wife was a Perkins, is a Harvard '94 man and one of the younger Boston lawyers. He is a member of the Tavern, Somerset, Tennis and Raquet and Union clubs. Dr. John Homans is a younger brother, also Mr. William P. Homans. There are three sisters, the Misses Katharine, Helen and Marian.

The bride is a member of Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution of this city, and interested in the preservation of the birthplaces of the Presidents, and the objects of the society. She is also a member of the Vincent Club, was its vice-president, and was acting president after the resignation of Miss Dorothy Forbes and until Miss Hannah Stevenson, who is also a June bride, was elected to the office. Miss Adams is also fond of athletic sports and especially of hunting and horses.

She is very pretty, with bright, fair complexion and brown hair, and has a charming, gracious manner. Her quaint old-fashioned name is an heirloom from Abigal Smith Adams, who was the wife of one president (John Adams) and the mother of another (John Quincy Adams.)

One of the bride's favorite cousins is Mrs. Frederic Russell Nourse, and these two girls when seen together were not only noticeable for their charm, but because they bore such historic names, as Mrs. Nourse was the 20th century "Dorothy Q," whose ancestor was made famous by Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem.

The bridegroom's father, the late Dr. John Homans, was one of the most skilful surgeons of his day.

Present at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, 2d, of Concord; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln; John Adams, Harry Adams, Mrs. Elizabeth Adams and Mr. Grafton L. Adams of Concord; Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams, Henry Adams, Mrs. Henry Parker Quincy (Mary Adams); Mr. Frederick Russell Nourse, Miss Elenor Quincy, Dr. John Homans and Mrs. Homans, William P. Homans, Misses Catherine, Helen and Maria Homans.

Following the wedding an informal reception was held, and later Mr. and Mrs. Homans drove to Boston. Today they will sail on the steamship Saxonia for Europe. After an extended tour of the continent, they will return to reside in Boston.

Salem Interested In Launching

The next launching at the Fore River shipyard in this city will be the United States scout cruiser Salem in a few weeks. Two school girl friends of Miss Lorna Pinnock, daughter of Mayor Thomas G. Pinnock of Salem, who will christen the Salem on the occasion of her launching, have been chosen as maids of honor at the ceremony. Miss Janette Lee, daughter of the late William S. Lee, and Miss Doris Lougee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Lougee, are the girls who will assist in the christening.

The citizens of Salem will do their part to make the affair interesting, and the sum necessary to secure a handsome silver token has already been subscribed nearly every resident of the city having donated his mite toward the fund.

Massachusetts Welcomes All

Gov. Guild has taken a great personal interest in the plans for Old Home Week from the beginning and on Monday issued an address to the sons and daughters of Massachusetts urging them to take part in the exercises.

"The commonwealth, always interested in the fortunes of those of her children who wander abroad as well as those who sit by her fireside, particularly desires to call them to the old home during the week extending from July 28 to August 3. Special arrangements have been made this year to make the home coming even more delightful than usual.

"Let every city and town in the commonwealth be prepared to give a hearty welcome to those who return to the ancient landmarks. Let the hospitality of Massachusetts, always gracious, be overflowing in greeting to our own.

"May all be made to feel that the old commonwealth is indeed a good home, a happy place in which to spend a life, a fortunate place in which to seek a living, a place of opportunity and resourcefulness, a field for investment and for enterprise.

"Rich in historic tradition and with a noble past, Massachusetts welcomes her guests, old and new, to no abandoned farms nor settlements in ruins, but to a land whose memories have proved the inspiration to a modern, hopeful and progressive commonwealth."

Base Ball At Houghs Neck

The Houghs Neck base-ball season opens on the afternoon of June 17, when Houghs Neck will have as apponents the Cambridge A. A.

The team itself has been greatly strengthened, but is handicapped somewhat by the lack of a first class field. The field on Centre road which has been used for a number of years has been cut up into house lots. A new diamond, however, is being graded at Manet Beach upon which the team will play this season. Plans are now in projection for an enclosed field which will be completed within a year.

The line up of the team is exceptionally strong. Riley and Delaney, both of the Dorchester High team, which bids fair to capture the Interscholastic championship, will be the regular battery. Joe Harkins, a local player will cover the first cushion with Thorne of Roxbury at second. Sullivan of Norfolks will knock down the warm ones at "short," and Rice who played with last years champion Somerville High will be at the third sack. The field will be ably taken care of by Ryan of Boston College, Taber another local man and Prescott of Dorchester.

Manager "Charlie" Mullaly has been assured of the support of the "natives" and Summer folks, and the business men have already shown signs of interest in a financial way.

East Milton Congregationalists Rejoice on Their 60th Anniversary

The 60th anniversary of East Milton Congregational church was observed on Monday. The services opened at 3 P. M. with scripture reading by Rev. A. R. Atwood, of Washington street Congregational church, Quincy. Prayer was offered by a former pastor, ordained there 55 years ago, Rev. Edwin Leonard of Melrose Highland. The address of welcome was given by Rev. Geo. H. Credeford the pastor, and the response by Rev. A. H. Muluix of Brighton, a former pastor.

Greetings from the seven churches of Milton were given by Rev. H. S. Huntington of Milton, who spoke of the Christian sympathy and similar work of Milton churches.

Greetings from the forty Congregational churches of the Norfolk conference were given by Rev. H. W. Kimball who spoke of the fraternal feeling of fellowship among the churches in our conference.

A historical sketch of the church was read by Mr. A. W. Greene.

Rev. A. J. Dyer of Sharon delivered an inspiring address upon "Fellowship in the Lord's House," mentioning in a feeling and pathetic manner, the fellowship of the home, school and church.

Rev. H. C. Alvord spoke concerning the service in the Lord's house, that the church service is to help men to see, speak and stand for spiritual things.

Rev. Thomas Simms spoke of the future of East Milton church.

The afternoon service closed with a prayer by Rev. John L. Sewall of Randolph. During this session, a choir of twelve voices rendered two anthems, "O Lord How Manifold" by Barnby, and "Glory be to God on High" by Chandler. Mrs. Stephen Heard also sang the beautiful solo, "Lead Kindly Light."

After a short intermission, the 200 people gathered at 6.30 about the banquet tables to partake of strawberries with powdered sugar, potato, cold sliced ham, buttered rolls, chicken salad on lettuce, ice cream, cake and coffee. The tables were prettily decorated and the service was excellent.

At 7.30 Rev. George H. Credeford held the people's interested atttention while he read several letter from former pastors. He then introduced as toastmaster of the evening, the chairman of board of selectmen, Mr. Jesse Baxter, who called upon A. F. Pierce of Campello. Mr. Pierce spoke upon "The spiritual side of the church of the future." He showed to the audiance how the future church would interpret the great spiritual truths of the Bible in deeds and service to mankind.

Rev. Alan Hudson of Brockton addressed the people upon "The church and moral reform" indicating the work of the church as that of holding up before the people ideals of absolute honesty and honor.

Mr. A. W. Greene, chairman of the Finance committee told of the long standing debt of $3,000.00 upon the meeting house; of the offer of the Congregational church union to give dollar for dollar $1500 toward the debt; of their own effort to raise the debt by letter and subscription with the result of $400.00, leaving $1100 to be raised in order to cancel the debt.

Rev. W. H. Allbright of Boston, by the help of a blackboard, called for contributions of $50, $25, $10, $5, $2 and $1,—and so enthusiastically did the people respond that the names could not be taken fast enough. Then came the promises of aid from neighboring churches and from the churches of the conference, till the debt was raised; the people rejoicing, dispersed to their homes at a late hour, and will always remember the "lifting" of that $3000 mortgage on their 60th anniversary June 10, 1907.

Miraculous Escape For Bicyclist

The escape of Armon Evason of 75 Cranch street from a serious accident on Sunday was miraculous It seems that at the time of the accident he was riding a bicycle. He came down the hill of Whjtwell street at a rapid speed and turned into Adams street toward East Milton.

Coming in the opposite direction, and also moving fast was an automobile. Both saw that an accident was unavoidable. The auto driver ran his machine hard to the left in the hopes of clearing the bicycle, but was unable to do so. The bicycle struck the front of the car and Mr. Evason was thrown clear over it, landing in the street beyond.

The bicycle was smashed and the automobile brought up with a bang against a tree, smashing in the front. Fortunately, Mr. Evason escaped with a few slight bruises. It was a very narrow escape.

Union Picnic of Wollaston Churches

All sorts of water and land sports will be in oredr for boys and girls and in the afternoon there will be a ball game, married vs. single men. Special cars will leave Wollaston about 9 A. M., returning at 7 P. M. The entire expense will be thirty cents per individual, and it is earnestly desired all will make arrangements as early as possible so as to enable the committee to know how many to count on. PLANS OF DEFENSE

Will Try to Show Counter-Conspiracy Against Union Men

ORCHARD FURTHER GRILLED

Denies That He Has Mania For Confessing Uncommitted Crimes--Not Testifying Under Control and Suggestion of Detective McPartland

Boise, Ida., June 11.—Into the further cross-examination of Harry Orchard, counsel for William D. Haywood repeatedly threw the suggestion of a great counter-conspiracy, formulated and carried out by the enemies of the Western Federation of Miners, and indicated a determination to construct their main line of defense on that field. They carried Orchard by slow steps through the minutest details from the dynamiting of the Independence, Col., station, down to the attempt on the life of Fred Bradley and his family in San Francisco.

In addition to a series of particular attacks on the credibility of the witness and the general probability of his stories, and preparing the way for their own testimony in rebuttal, the defense sought to show that Orchard has a mania for boasting of the commission of crimes non-existent except in his own mind and that he is testifying under the control and suggestion of Detective McPartland.

The defense began by making it clear that, as far as Orchard knew, Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone had nothing to do with the inspiration, planning and execution of the Vindicator mine explosion, and that Haywood and Moyer had nothing to do with the planning of the murder of Detective Gregory.

Passing then to the dynamiting of the Independence station, the first crime with which the testimony of Orchard directly connects Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, they endeavored to show that Orchard, in springing the mine, had purposely sought to spare the oncoming train and the non-union men who were expected to entrain, and that the whole plot was engineered by agents of mine owners and railway managers, who wanted a comparatively harmless "outrage" to injure the union miners who were on strike.

Getting down to the Bradley crime, the defense devoted itself largely to the story of Orchard's attempt to poison Bradley, endangering the entire Bradley household, including an infant and the cook, with whom he had made friends. Orchard swore that while in San Francisco he repeatedly received money from Pettibone, who used the name of "Pat Bone" in transmitting it. In making this clearer, the defense gave evidence of a plan to show that this money was sent under Pettibone's disguised name by persons plotting against the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners.

Orchard denied that mine owners or railway men had any part in the Independence station outrage, denied that he had a mania for confessing uncommitted crimes, and denied that he is under the influence of McPartland. He showed some spirit in answering many of Attorney Richardson's questions, but he firmly held to all of his first stories and was calm and cool throughout the long, trying examination.

Counsel for the state let the examination take its course without serious objection, and at the close privately signified their entire satisfaction. Orchard has been on the stand five days and has fully two more to serve.

Quake Causes a Panic

Guayaquil, Ecuador, June 11.—A violent earth shock of considerable duration was felt in this city last evening and caused panic among the people. The quake is attributed to the activity of Mount Cotopaxi, which is throwing out great quantities of stones. Flames are also shooting up from the volcano. The disturbance is accompanied by loud explosions that are heard at a long distance.

Railroad Man Gives His Views

New York, June 11.—No more railroads will be built in the undeveloped parts of the United States except at the risk of and with the capital of existing lines, if the government's plan to fix rates based upon a railroad's valuation is carried out, in the opinion of Stuyvesant Fish, who expressed his opinion in the course of an address at Columbia university.

Feared Surgical Operation

New York, June 11.—Samuel L. Bear, head of the firm of S. L. Bear & Co., insurance agents, committed suicide in his rooms in the Hotel Netherlands. It is said that ill-health and fear of an impending surgical operation was the probable reason for suicide.

Twenty-Eight Passengers Drowned

Barbados, June 11.—The French schooner La Jalouse, from Cayenne for St. Lucia, sank off Barbados. Her commander and 21 men reached Barbados. Twenty-eight passengers, including 12 women and children, were drowned.

Lottery Material Destroyed

Wilmington, Del., June 11.—Agents of the federal government destroyed the lottery printing material of the late Honduras Lottery company at the John M. Rogers printing office in this city.

BIG JAPANESE FUND

It Will Be Used to Arouse Anti-American Feeling In Japan

Washington, June 11.—Thousands of dollars are being raised by the Japanese of the Pacific coast to carry out the compact they have entered into with the Progressive party of Japan for the overthrow of the Saionji ministry, the annulment of the exclusion clause in the immigration bill, and the guarantee of the naturalization rights of the Japanese subjects residing in this country.

These additional facts in the international plot are vouched for in semi-official circles. The enormous fund which is being collected will be used to arouse a feeling in the Japanese empire antagonistic to the American government.

Nothing For Newspaper Men

Washington, June 11.—Continuing his policy of adding nothing in the way of comment or facts to the discussion of Japanese-American incidents, Japanese Ambassador Aoki denies himself to newspaper men. Aoki is understood to take the view that there are no matters of difference between the United States and Japan which are not capable of adjustment if allowed to be considered on their merits.

Will Have No War With Japan

Milwaukee, June 11.—Secretary Taft, in an interview here, said that there would be no war with Japan. He had faith that the United States and Japan would continue their way along most peacefully together. The secretary said: "Never mind the news that keeps coming. It does not always mean all that it seems to mean on the surface. We will have no war with Japan."

Auto Makes Two Miles a Minute

New York, June 11.—A speed of more than two miles a minute over Long Island roads was made by the car which Walter Christie will drive in the Grand Prix race in France next month. The trial was made over a measured course which had been placed at the disposal of Christie by Nassau county supervisors. The car was sent away to a flying start and crossed the finish line at the fraction in her favor.

Speed a Secondary Consideration

New York, June 11.—A new steamer, to be named the George Washington, has been ordered by the North German Lloyd Steamship company for the line between Bremen and New York. This steamer will be 720 feet in length, 78 feet beam, and 54 feet in depth. Her speed across the ocean is to be 18 knots. She is intended to meet the demand of those who prefer comfort and room to record trips.

Government Charges Fraud

Tulsa, I. T., June 11.—The United States government has filed three suits against 15 citizens of Tulsa, alleging fraud in connection with the purchase of town lots. The government alleges that "dummies" were used by the defendants to obtain large holdings of town property contrary to the spirit of the Creek agreement of 1901. The suit involves the title to property to the value of $1,000,000.

Orange River Colony Government

London, June 11.—Letters patent establishing a responsible government in the Orange River Colony were issued last night. With a few modifications the new government follows the lines laid down in the Transvaal constitution. McDonald, all members of the survey, were drowned by the capsizing of a canoe. The three men were cousins.

Deliberate Attempt to Wreck Train

Bridgeport, O., June 11.—An attempt was made by train wreckers to wreck a passenger train at Crescent. The train had over 100 passengers aboard. When it reached Crescent the engine left the track, the train having slowed down, a fact which prevented a disastrous wreck. A spike had been driven in the switch.

Children Are to Become the Nation of the Future

ROOSEVELT'S SUGGESTIONS

Legislation Needed For Control of Great Corporations--Would Have Burden of Litigation From Accidents Lifted From Laboring Class

Norfolk, June 11.—Brought back to the Jamestown exposition by the formal opening of Bulloch hall, the ancestral home of his mother, at Roswell, Ga., and reproduced here as the Georgia state building, President Roosevelt was for the second time the central figure of an attractive exposition program.

In his Georgia day address the president said in part:

"During the last quarter of a century this nation has made astounding strides in material progress, and in no other section has this progress been more noteworthy than in the south.

"In the south, as everywhere through the Union, we need to see a good education given free to all children, no matter what may be their race or color. Nor can we wisely permit this education to be of a merely literary type.

"The factory is a very poor place for a child; indeed, personally I think the factory a poor place for a woman—certainly for a married woman, or for an unmarried woman for more than a very few years. In any community organized on really healthy lines the average woman will have quite enough to do in her own home, whether she is rich or poor.

"The nation's most valuable asset is the children; for the children are the nation of the future.

"There is increasing need that the welfare of the children should be effectively safeguarded by governmental action; with the proviso, however, that this action shall be taken with knowledge and in a spirit of robust common sense.

"We need laws for the control of vast corporations such as were not needed when the individual fortunes were far smaller than at present, and when these fortunes were not combined for business use. In the same way, we need to change our attitude toward labor problems.

"It is neither just, expedient, nor humane; it is revolting to judgment and sentiment alike, that the financial burden of accidents occurring because of the necessity exigencies of their daily occupation should be thrust upon those sufferers who are least able to bear it, and that such remedy as is theirs should only be obtained by litigation which now burdens our courts.

"When the employer, the agent of the public, on his own responsibility and for his own profit, in the business of serving the public, starts in motion agencies which create risks for others, he should take all the ordinary and extraordinary risks involved, and, though the burden will at the moment be his, it will ultimately be assumed, as it ought to be, by the general public.

"Congress should adopt legislation providing limited but definite compensation for accidents to all workmen within the scope of the federal power, including employes in navy yards and arsenals. Similar legislation should follow throughout the states. The old and inadequate remedy of suit for negligence would then gradually disappear.

"Such a policy would mean that with increased responsibility of the employer would come increased care, and accidents would be reduced in number. The temporary burden involved will not hamper our industries.

"As a corollary to the above, let me point out the extreme unwisdom of the railway companies in fighting the constitutionality of the national employers' liability law. No law is more emphatically needed, and it must be kept on the statute books in drastic and thorough-going form. The railroads are prompt to demand the interference and to claim the protection of the federal courts in times of riot and disorder, and, in turn, the federal government should see to it that they are not permitted successfully to plead that they are under the federal law when thereby their own rights can be protected, but outside of it when it is invoked against them in behalf of the rights of others.

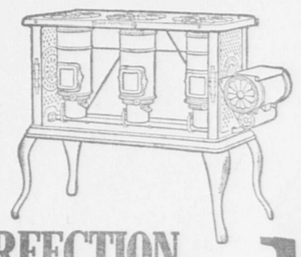

"If it is proper for the federal courts to issue injunctions in behalf of railroads, it is proper that railroads should be held to a strict liability for accidents occurring to their employes."

President Roosevelt addressed the National Editorial association in the afternoon. He said that taxation and reclamation are two great questions which must be considered carefully and that our natural resources must be conserved for the people and not go to private owners, who want it only for profit. The president favored inheritance and income taxes, but believed the former the better system.

OPPOSED TO MERGER

Many Witnesses Before Bay State Legislative Committee

TWO BILLS ARE OFFERED

Claim That Passage of One of Them Would Absolutely Prevent Proposed Consolidation of New Haven and Boston and Maine Railroads

Boston, June 11.—Numerous private, business and political interests were arrayed before the legislative committee on railroads in opposition to the proposed merging of the Boston and Maine railroad with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. The committee held two sessions and heard 17 witnesses, 16 of whom spoke either in opposition or urged legislation to guard Massachusetts interests and it was hoped that other speakers would appear at an evening session.

Both sides, however, decided to hold back their heaviest guns until today, when it is expected that the position of the New Haven road will be laid before the committee by President Mellen of the road, while the committee may ask for the opinion on the question from the officials of the Boston and Maine railroad.

While the committee were either urged to report against the merger or safeguard the interests of Massachusetts and Boston, only two witnesses, L. D. Brandeis of Boston and Representative Luce of Somerville, came forward with definite propositions in the way of bills. Luce's measure provides for a controller of railroad accounts and seeks to give publicity to the financial conditions of Massachusetts railroads.

On the other hand, the bill of Brandeis is one of the most drastic measures that has been presented to the legislature for many years. Brandeis, in laying the bill before the committee, stated his conviction that the proposed merger could be stopped and in this he was supported by several speakers who followed him.

Mr. Brandeis, who appeared in the interests of the Lawrence estate, which holds several thousand shares of Boston and Maine stock, explained the eight sections of his bill and endeavored to show to the committee that its passage would absolutely prevent the proposed consolidation.

Nearly all the speakers who opposed the merger declared that if the consolidation was permitted it would be a glaring example of stock watering, in that the recent increase in stock by the subsidiary companies—the New England Navigation company and the Consolidated company—had all been made without any actual payment of money and that the mileage indebtedness of the New Haven was many times that of the Boston and Maine.

President Crocker of the Boston Chamber of Commerce related an interview which he had with President Mellen in which the recent increase in the capital stock of the New England Navigation and Consolidated companies was discussed, and Crocker told the committee that he was unable to understand Mellen's explanation of such increase. Several of the speakers hoped that the interests of Boston would be particularly conserved.

The political speeches were made by former Representative Kiley of Boston, G. S. MacFarland and F. G. Brown of Brockton. All three pointed out that there was danger of corporate control of the legislature and Kiley was vehement in his denunciation of the New Haven road for what he said was its habit of controlling the legislature of Connecticut and the election of the senators of that state.

Shortly before the close of the hearing one of the speakers, A. P. Edgerly of Boston, in opposing the merger, suggested that the remedy for better service and fair treatment was for the state to cancel, condemn and take over 51 percent of the stock of the Boston and Maine and allow any other company such as the New Haven to have 49 percent. The state would then reap the benefit.

"How much would such a plan cost the state?" was asked. "Just the indebtedness, $97,000 per mile," was Edgerly's reply.

The hearing will continue today and the committee are in hopes that one day will suffice to take testimony and hear arguments.

Not Wanted In Switzerland

Geneva, June 11.—As a result of the attempt made at Zurich by five Russians to rescue a countryman who was in jail awaiting extradition to Russia and a number of other incidents of a similar nature, the general assembly is considering what steps should be taken against the intolerable actions of revolutionary refugees in Switzerland. The press of all parties advocates their wholesale expulsion.

Naval Officers Must Retire

Washington, June 11.—The navy department has finally decided that in order to carry out the provisions of the naval personnel act of 1889, 24 officers must retire on June 30 next. The voluntary retirements this year are confined to captains and commanders, and unless 24 of these apply for voluntary retirement, a certain number must be selected for unvoluntary retirement.

POINT FOR DEFENDANTS

Court to Appoint Master to Determine Mrs. Eddy's Competency

Concord, N. H., June 11.—The defendants to the suit brought by the "next friends" of Mrs. Mary B. G. Eddy, asking for an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property, were successful in carrying a point when Judge Chamberlin announced that he would, within a week, appoint a master to conduct hearings and take testimony to determine whether Mrs. Eddy is competent to manage her own affairs.

The proceedings were scheduled to be a hearing on a motion on the part of Mrs. Eddy and her three trustees to have the equity proceedings brought by the "next friends" against Mrs. Eddy's secretary, Calvin A. Frye, and nine other Christian Scientists dismissed, on the ground that the action was not brought in good faith.

Mr. Streeter, who represented both the trustees and Mrs. Eddy, announced that he would agree to the immediate settlement of the matter of Mrs. Eddy's competency, inasmuch as he understood that the court wished that phase of the case disposed of.

Mr. Streeter asked that a master be appointed to conduct the hearings on the matter of Mrs. Eddy's competency, while the attorneys for the "next friends" argued that Mrs. Eddy's competency be established before a jury, or, as counsel for the "next friends" expressed it to the court: "We wish her competency to be tried as that of any humble person would be tried."

Guild Vetoes Gratuity Bill

Boston, June 11.—Governor Guild sent to the legislature his veto of the so-called veterans' gratuity bill. The veto marked the second time Guild has returned the bill without his approval, while the bill was also formerly vetoed by Governors Douglas and Bates. The bill proposed a distribution of money raised by taxation to the extent of $125 to every living veteran who enlisted in the Civil war without being paid at the time and who has not been paid since his patriotic impulse.

New Record as Dog Catcher

Boston, June 11.—Official Dog Catcher McCarthy has broken all records as Boston's biggest, best and busiest dog killer. He succeeded Dr. Schenck on July 1, 1906, and up to Feb 1 of this year he killed 2648 dogs, making a total of 3425 for the year. Schenck had killed 777. McCarthy's average is 10 dogs a day. McCarthy receives $1 apiece for the dogs which he kills.

Dividend on Ubero Claims

Boston, June 11.—Judge Dodge, in the United States circuit court, authorized Receiver Smith of the Consolidated Ubero Plantation company to pay a dividend of 25 cents on the dollar on claims aggregating $58,701.56. This is the company which was promoted and manged by F. E. Borges, now serving a sentence in state prison as a result of his swindling operations.

Hotel Destroyed by Fire

Norway, Me., June 11.—The Glen Mountain house, a hotel with accommodations for 100 guests, stables, a store, two dwellings, an icehouse and automobile garage at Bryants pond were burned, entailing a total loss of $15,000. The fire started in the hotel kitchen and spread with such rapidity that some of the guests did not have time enough to save their personal effects.

Acquitted of Killing Chum

Boston, June 11.—As the result of a hearing held by Judge Perkins at the Brookline municipal court, James Kirrane, 12 years old, who accidentally killed a fellow caddy on the golf links of the Country club, was acquitted of the charge against him and discharged by the court. The parents of the dead boy attach no blame to Kirrane.

Arson Charge Against Boys

Boston, June 11.—George M. Nelson and Henry E. Radtke, two boys who thought they might escape from the Martin Luther home by setting fire to the buildings, were arraigned in court, charged with arson. Radtke pleaded not guilty, while Nelson pleaded guilty. Both boys were held in the sum of $500 for the grand jury.

Auto Driver Held For Manslaughter

Cambridge, Mass., June 11.—Edward S. Harriman of Boston, who was indicted by the Middlesex grand jury for manslaughter in causing the death of Frank Needham through the alleged reckless handling of an automobile, pleaded not guilty to the charge and was placed under $3000 bail for trial.

Not to Blame For Boy's Death

New Haven, June 11.—Motorman John J. Murphy, whose car was in collision with a locomotive at the Shelton avenue crossing, was found not guilty after a hearing on a charge of manslaughter. The charge was due to the killing of Fred Behler, aged 15, as a result of the crash.

Negroes' Conduct Flawless

Washington, June 11.—Superintendent Scott of the military academy, in a special report to the war department, says that the conduct of the negro troops since they have been at West Point has been admirable and flawless. Indeed, he says, it has been much better than that of the white regulars who preceded them at the post.

To Recount Mayoralty Ballots

Albany, June 11.—The assembly, by a vote of 82 to 17, repassed over the veto of Acting Mayor McGowan of New York the bill providing for a judicial recount and recanvass of the ballots cast at the mayoralty election of 1905 in New York city. The bill was repassed practically without debate.

No News Concerning Cabrera

Panama, June 11.—All efforts to secure confirmation or denial of the reported assassination of President Cabrera of Guatemala have proved unavailing. St. Petersburg, June 11.—The amnesty bill, the second great peril of parliament, was brought up in the lower house of parliament and was shelved, a motion to refer the matter to a committee to decide on its legality being adopted by 200 to 165 votes. The bill provides for legislative pardoning of all political crimes perpetrated by revolutionists, but excluding crimes committed by reactionists.

Heads of Families At First Census

Congress recently authorized the Dircetor of the Census to publish during the present fiscal year the names of heads of families and accompanying information, shown on such schedules of the Census of 1790 as are in existence. Unfortunately the appropriation for the Bureau does not permit the publication of this information for all the states the schedules for which are still in exsistence, but the returns for the states of New Hampshire, Vermont, and Maryland, are now in press and will be issued as parts, or pamphlets. Each of these parts will form an attractive publication consisting of about 150 pages, fully indexed, printed upon laid antique paper, sewed, and bound in especially handsome and durable semi-pamphlet binding. Each part will contain as a frontispiece a map of the state represented, 11 by 17 inches in size, reproduced by lithography from an atlas published in 1796.

The First Census of the United States (1790) comprised an enumeration of the inhabitants of the present states of Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, and Virginia.

A complete set of the schedules for each state, with a summary for the counties, and in many cases for towns, was filed in the State Department, but unfortunately they are not now complete, the returns for the states of Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee, and Virginia having been destroyed when the British burned the Capitol at Washington during the War of 1812.

These schedules form a unique inheritance for the Nation, since they represent for each of the states concerned a complete list of the heads of families in the United States at the time of the adoption of the Constitution. The framers were the statesmen and leaders of thought, but those whose names appear upon the schedules of the First Census were in general the plain citizens who by their conduct in war and peace made the Constitution possible and by their intelligence and self-restraint put it into successful operation.

In accordance with the law these pamphlets are offered for sale by the Director of the Census, and the price has been set at $1 each.

TODAY'S COURT.

Margaret Denwood, John Denwood, Thomas McCarthy and John Maloney were fined $15 each; and Timothy Sullivan and William H Claffey $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Francis J. Sheehy of Weymouth and Michael Peligrini of Milton were fined $10 each for drunkenness.

Carl Hanna and Arthur Flowers was fined $10 each for disturbing the peace at Weymouth.

Charles Koponiccles was arraigned for larceny and assault at Weymouth. He was fined $15 for larceny and $50 for assault.

Elizabeth Laycock was sent to the State farm for trespass at Milton.

—Now that the savings bank insurance bill is before the Senate, its friends are hopeful that it will be enacted into law in a few days. The great majority which the bill won in the House marked the climax of one of the shortest, but liveliest, campaigns in the history of Massachusetts legislation.

Walker street is being piped for gas and work is going on rapidly. Residents who would sleep after six A. M. have to so with the windows closed, for the Italian conversation added to the ring of the picks make an alarm clock of powerful intensity.

—Don't be down-hearted, in 1861 there was practically no summer, frost and ice being coming in New England in every month.

Narrow Escape For Milkman

Frank Johnson, driver of one of Hunt Bros.' milk wagons, had a narrow escape from a serious accident on Miller street this morning. He had just come from a house and attempted to get in his team while it was in motion. He missed his footing and fell under the wheels of the wagon. He shouted whoa to the horse, and the animal stopped, but Johnson was pinned to the ground by one of the wheels. Just at that time driver Lyons of the West Quincy fire station, who was out exercising his horse, came along and rescued Johnson from his dangerous position. He was taken to the office of Dr. Reynolds, where it was found that he had been severely bruised but had escaped without any broken bones. He was taken to his home in Braintree.

Was Skeleton Of a Cow

Saturday afternoon during the excavation for gas pipes on Walker street, a curiosity was laid bare in the unearthing of a huge skeleton. At first it was believed to be that of an Indian, and Harry Kolseth of Walker street was called out to pass judgment upon the remains. Mr. Kolseth, who has had wide experience in Cuba in work of this sort, found the skeleton to be that of a cow, which animal must have been buried some fifty or sixty years ago. The discovery created a stir of excitement and interest.

—The trolley express service between New Bedford and Brockton began last week, and is an extension of the business already existing between Brockton and Middleboro via Taunton and Bridgewater. There will be one round trip daily, and the people along the line are much pleased over the establishment of the new service.

—The Falmouth Board of Industry is endeavoring to raise by subscription a fund of $600 for the erection of a monument to be inscribed "Dedicated by the Citizens and Public School Children of Falmouth in Loving Memory of a past Generation of Seamen." At presen t the fund amounts to about $240, but it is growing.

Fruit Peddler Pays Heavy Fines

Two Greek fruit peddlers from Quincy got into a lively row at North Weymouth Monday afternoon. It was claimed that one peddler encroached upon the others hunting ground. During the row Nicholas Kokonis got worst of it. He claimed that Charles Kaponiceles knocked him down, jump upon him and bit his lip. He also claims that during the row five dollars in money dropped from his pocket which Kaponiceles got.

After the battle was over, Kokonis had his lip sewed up by Dr. Chase, and then notified the police. In court Kaponiceles was fined $50 for assault and $15 for larceny which he paid.

A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control.

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation or cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twings of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatism Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatism Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

Why Some Cannot Attend Graduations

Many who might have been favored this year with a ticket of admission to the graduations of the grammar and High schools, will be debarred because it is probable that the seats for the new High School hall will not be here. Why these delays at the High school nobody but the Commissioner of Public Works seems to know, and that official does not enlighten the public.

The graduation exercises of the grammar schools will be held next week Friday, when about 435 boys and girls will be graduated.

The High school graduation will be held in the same hall Wednesday evening, June 26.

There seems to be no good reason why the High school building is not completed and furnished. The delays continue to be very aggravating to the school authorities, the pupils, and their parents.

Picked Crew For Submarines

The submarine boat Octopus is now being tuned up at Fore River for her official tests off Newport next week.

Incidentally, a class of picked men, who will form her crew, is getting instructions under Ensign Daniels. There are 14 of these men, and more to come, in order that the three other submarines, the Viper, Tarantula and Cuttlefish, all of which are smaller than the Octopus, may also have trained crews ready for them when they go into commission.

Lieut. Charles E. Courtney is expected to arrive at the Fore River yards today. He will command the Octopus when she goes into commission, and it is expected that Ensign Daniels will command the Cuttlefish.

The Newport trials will include a four-days' trip at sea, and as soon as this and the other tests prepared by the government have been successfully undergone the Octopus will be commissioned. It is believed the Cuttlefish will go into commission at the same time.

Miss Josselyn.

The funeral of Miss Melissa Josselyn was held Monday afternoon at two o'clock from her home Standish avenue, Wollaston. The Rev. Ellery Channing Butler conducted the services which were impressive tho' short in accordance to the wishes often expressed by Miss Josslyn. It included a favorite poem of hers. The beautiful flowers which covered the top and sides of the casket were silent tokens of the esteem, in which the one who has passed beyond was held by all who knew her.

HOT WEATHER

The Dates Of Hot Waves In Quincy In Past Years

In 1899 Quincy had its maximum temperature of the year before June 12, and in 1902 it came on June 16, but thus far in 1907 the highest temperature recorded is but 79.

The four summaries below will be of interest showing the earliest dates on which Quincy had 70 degree temperature, 80 degree, 90 degree and also the date of the maximum temperature.

In the eleven years, 1897 to 1907 inclusive, we have always had 70 degree temperature before May 5, and two years (including this year) in March, as will be seen below:

FIRST 70 DEGREE DAYS.

In 1897,	April 6
In 1898,	April 17
In 1899,	April 23
In 1900,	April 21
In 1901,	April 29
In 1902,	April 21
In 1903,	March 20
In 1904,	May 4
In 1905,	April 10
In 1906,	April 30
In 1907,	March 23

The second summary shows that 80 degree temperature in April has not been uncommon and that with the exception of 1907 it has come before June:

FIRST 80 DEGREE DAYS.

In 1897,	April 25
In 1898,	May 20
In 1899,	April 29

In 1904,	May 5
In 1905,	May 6
In 1906,	May 13
In 1907	(?)

The third summary shows that 90 degree temperature may also be expected in May or June, but not always:

FIRST 90 DEGREE DAYS.

In 1897,	June 24
In 1898,	June 9
In 1899,	June 6
In 1900,	May 15

In 1904,	June 26
In 1905,	June 16
In 1906,	Aug. 6
In 1907,	(?)

Quincy highest temperature in eleven years was on July 3, 1898, when 101 degrees was recorded. In 1900, however, on three successive days the mercury climbed to 100. There are usually a few 90 degree days each summer, but this is a year without a summer, as will be seen:

MAXIMUM FOR YEAR.

In 1897	94 on July 5
In 1899	97 on June 6

Mrs. C. P. Grimmer of Adams street had the misfortune on Tuesday to lose her pocketbook containing a large sum of money, estimated from $1,000 to $1,500. She went to Boston and drew the money from the bank and then took the train for Quincy arriving at 1.50. She drove immediately to her home where she discovered that the money was gone. The route taken from the depot to Adams street was gone over and searched, but no trace of the money could be found.

Universalist Conference

The summer conference of the Old Colony association of Universalist churches is being held today at the Universalist church on Washington street.

The morning session opened at 10.30 with an attendance of over one hundred delegates, representing the different churches in the Old Colony district.

Several large bouquets of fragrant cut flowers adorned the front of the platform, and the session was a very interesting one.

Rev. L. W. Alvord of South Weymouth, president of the association, presided and the paper of the morning was by S. H. Rhoades of Malden, whose subject was "Some needed reforms in Sunday school work."

The paper was followed by a discussion during which addresses were made by Rev. F. R. Griffin of Braintree, Rev. Howard Perkins of New Bedford, Rev. William H. Morrison of Brockton, Rev. Charles Conklin, D. D., State superintendent of Universalist churches, and Rev. W. S. Perkins, pastor of the local church.

An adjournment was taken at noon until 2 o'clock. During this recess, an appetizing dinner was served in the vestry by the ladies of the church.

The session this afternoon was in the interest of the women's mission of Universalist churches.

Mrs. E. L. Houghton of Cambridge, the president, presided, and Mrs. S. H. Wilkins of Salem gave a paper on the "National organization of the Universalist Women for Christian work."

Mrs. Houghton followed with a paper on "Local Missionary circles in Universalist churches."

A disoussion followed in which many of the clergymen and delegates present took part.

The convention was a most helpful one.

Three Men Killed At the Forge At Shipyard

Were at Work on Huge Steel Shaft When There Was a Deafening Explosion

Two men were killed outright and a third so seriously injuried that he died later in a peculiar accident at the Fore River shipyard on Tuesday afternoon. The men killed were Charles Haag, aged about 34 years, of 7 Nelson street, and John Casey aged about 30 years, residence at present unknown. The man who was seriously injured, and who has since died was Charles Sandeen of 320 Granite street. Haag is married and leaves a widow and a young son. Sandeen had a wife and 16-year-old daughter.

The accident happened a few minutes past 4 o'clock, and the explosion that followed was heard for a long distance. It was a peculiar sounding explosion, and sent a crowd of workmen hurrying to the big forge shop.

The cause of the accident is said to have been due to moisture gathering in a shaft that was being heated in one of the furnaces. The shaft was one that was made for the battleship Rhode Island, but was condemned and never used. It had been lying about the yard for a year or more. The shaft was 25 feet long and 17 inches in diameter and had a bore of 10 inches. The ends of the shaft were capped with brass.

Tuesday afternoon the shaft was taken to the forge shop to have these brass caps taken off. The shaft was then put into a blast furnace to heat, being suspended on the outer end by a chain. In order to counter balance the shaft, which weighed several tons, a plug was screwed to the outer end. By this plug the workmen were enabled to handle the shaft as easily as if it had been a light rod.

While the shaft was being heated, John Bell, the foreman, noticed steam coming from the shaft. He knew what this meant, and immediately ordered the furnace shut down and the shaft withdrawn.

The three men,—Haag, Casey and Sandeen,—took hold of the plug to withdraw the shaft from the furnace, when suddenly there was a blinding flash and a loud explosion. The air was full of flying bricks and dust, and for a while it could not be seen what had happened.

When the air cleared the three men were out in the yard badly mangled. Two were dead and the third badly battered and bruised.

The moisture that had gathered in the hore of the shaft had probably caused the explosion. The shaft was of nickel steel, and withstood the pressure. The pressure formed, however, separated the plug from the shaft.

The plug on which were the three men was shot through the air as though fired from a ten inch gun. In its flight it wrecked part of the travelling derrick and other machinery, and landed fifty feet away in the yard. The shaft went in the other direction and wrecked the furnace.

As soon as the men at work nearby recovered themselves, stretchers were produced, and the three men taken to the hospital on the grounds Dr. Hermann W. Gross pronounced two of them as dead, and the third man was so seriously injured that he ordered his removal to the City Hospital.

The police ambulance was called and the man removed to the hospital where his wounds were dressed by Medical Examiner Jones who happened to be at the hospital. It was found that the man had sustained a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain, a broken shoulder, and that he was badly bruised about the body. So severe were his injuries that it was thought he would not live through the night.

The man was unconscious and remained so until about 3.30 A. M., when he passed away.

The two men that were killed outright were badly mangled about the head and probably suffered no pain, their death came so suddenly.

Friends of the man known as Casey say that was an assumed name and that his correct name was Jerry Fitzgibbons. He came to Quincy from Cambridge about three weeks ago. Prior to that time he had been employed by the Cambridge Boiler Co.

There were quite a number of men in the shop at the time, and it is remarkable that more men were not killed or injured. The counter balance plug flew through the air like a projectile from a ten-inch gun carrying death and destruction with it.

It landed in the yard beneath the car on which a crane was located, tipping it up and almost overturning it.

Aside from the loss of life the damage to the machinery and building will be considerable.

The accident was a very rare one and hard to explain. The first rumors that reached City Square were that dozens had been killed and injured, and it sent a large crowd to the works. They were not admitted to the yard however.

Mrs. Hagg was one of the first to reach the yard and when she saw the mangled remains of her husband she collapsed and had to be carried home.

Judge Avery will hold an inquest on the deaths as soon as Medical Examiner Jones makes his report.

MELLEN AND TUTTLE

Heads of Two Great Railroads Testify at Merger Hearing

NO LEGISLATION NECESSARY

New Haven Road's President Says Interests Favorable to His Corporation Hold 100,000 Shares of Boston and Maine Stock--Snubs Counsel For the Opposition

Boston, June 12.—The merger hearing at the state house yesterday brought before the legislative committee on railroads the two greatest authorities in New England on transportation, President Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine railroad, both of whom gave their ideas of the causes, direct and indirect, leading up to the control of the Boston and Maine by the New Haven road.

Both men said that Massachusetts laws were sufficiently drastic to safeguard Massachusetts interests and at the present time no legislation was necessary. Later, say next year, the New Haven road may ask the legislature for its approval of the merger.

The two railroad presidents were heard after William B. Lawrence of Medford made a vehement and lengthy speech in opposition to the merger, during which he claimed that the stock of two of the subsidiary companies of the New Haven road were considerably "watered."

At the conclusion of the addresses of the two presidents L. D. Brandeis, the attorney for Lawrence, again addressed the committee and, at the conclusion of his remarks, at the request of some of the members, presented a second bill of a general nature which he claimed would prevent further consolidation of Massachusetts railroads or even their being controlled by outside companies. Brandeis told the committee that it was better to pass no law at all than one approving of the merger, but if any bill was favored it should be of the most drastic nature.

Mr. Mellen told the committee in response to questions that if the New Haven road had not secured control of the Boston and Maine a few weeks ago through the efforts of interests that were identified with or favorable to the New Haven road, the control of the Boston and Maine would have been secured by the New York Central Railroad company.

Interests favorable to the New Haven road now control approximately 100,000 shares of Boston and Maine stock. Mellen was exceedingly sarcastic in some of his remarks and claimed that the opposition to the merger was of a vindictive nature and he showed his resentment by refusing to be examined by Brandeis and in deliberately turning his back on him and walking out of the room.

President Tuttle told the committee that the indirect cause of the passing of the control of the Boston and Maine road to the New Haven road was the hostility of Massachusetts laws to invested interests. Tuttle saw no dire results arising out of the consolidation, and said that the future of Boston depended more upon the hustle of her citizens than in the policy of the railroads. Tuttle went further and said that the prosperity of the country depended upon its transportation facilities.

Mr. Tuttle's speech seemed a valedictory to his railroading in New England. At the close of his remarks only one question was asked him and that was whether he would say definitely if he approved of the merger, which he said he did. Even Brandeis showed no desire to place Tuttle on the rack which the lawyer had evidently prepared for Mellen.

Mr. Mellen told the committee at the outset, in answer to the stock watering arguments of Lawrence, that there was not one dollar of the capital stock of the New Haven road that did not represent more than 100 cents. He said that since July 1, 1903, the New Haven road had expended over $150,000,000 in improvements and in the securities of other companies.

Senator Vahey was permitted by the committee to ask Mellen a number of questions relative to the relation of these interests of the New Haven road. Vahey tried to obtain from Mellen a promise that no further effort would be made by these interests to obtain additional Boston and Maine stock until the New Haven road had asked the legislature to permit the merger. Mellen did not see how he could control the action of individuals, although he admitted that those interests would not have acted in connection with the Boston and Maine if he (Mellen) had not requested it.

Mr. Brandeis began to ask Mellen a question. Mellen interrupted him abruptly and with considerable warmth said that he would not supply the other side with ammunition. Then, bowing to the committee, he turned his back on Brandeis and, pushing his way through the crowd, left the room and the state house.

Russian General Assassinated

Ashkabad, June 12.—General Ulyanine, chief of the Central Asia railroad, was assassinated here. His murderers wore the uniform of soldiers. They escaped.

Baby Apparently Uninjured After Fall From a Third Story

Worcester, Mass., June 12.—Julia Walinsky, 2 years old, fell from the third floor of the tenement house at 133 Millbury street and escaped without injury. The mother and neighbors who witnessed the fall expected to pick up a dead child. Physicians who examined the child declared there were no broken bones and but a few scratches. The baby is apparently none the worse for its fall.

Little Julia was left to play on the coal bin. She wandered to the piazza railing and struck one of the rounds which was weatherworn. It broke and Mrs. Walinsky saw her little girl disappear head foremost over the edge of the piazza. With a shriek the mother called for help. Some of the neighbors who were working on the lower floors rushed to the ground. The child was still, and for a few seconds none dared approach.

Then one neighbor touched the little girl. She looked up as though she did not know whether to laugh or to cry. The neighbor picked up the child, and a hasty examination showed that excepting for the fright the child was as lively as when it was at play on the piazza.

Bad Conditions In Almshouse

Bath, Me., June 12.—A special committee of the board of aldermen which investigated conditions at the Bath almshouse reported that the committee found that the 14 inmates were "crowded into filthy quarters, their clothing in the foulest condition possible, while some had no shoes to wear, their feet being covered with worn-out overshoes." The committee recommended a more rigid investigation by the city council and the mayor will appoint a joint committee to continue the investigations.

Fighting Bounty Bill Veto

Boston, June 12.—The fight over the veto by Governor Guild of the veterans' gratuity bill is on. Never once has the bill, when vetoed, failed to be passed over the veto in the house. The veto has come three times before, but this time there are indications of a big fight to sustain the governor. It takes a two-thirds majority of either branch to pass a bill over the veto of the governor. The veto message will be considered tomorrow.

Strike of Papermakers

Bellows Falls, Vt., June 12.—The campaign of the union papermakers for the three-four system or an eight-hour day developed a strike of 600 men employed in four mills here. The four mills are shut down. The two-four system now prevails in the mills, but the union desires three shifts of men in 24 hours. The shutdown of the local mills removes about $7000 weekly from circulation.

Fatal Stabbing Affray

Waterville, Me., June 12.—Costas P. Larkavithis, a Greek, was stabbed in a grocery store here and died on the sidewalk in front of the store 10 minutes later. The alleged stabber, John Tharapsis, was arrested. Owing to the inability of the witnesses of the crime to speak English, the motive for the deed and the circumstances connected with it have not been learned definitely.

Defaulter's Home Sold at Auction

Woonsocket, R. I., June 12.—The home of Levi C. Lincoln, formerly treasurer of the Woonsocket Electric Machine and Power company, was sold at public auction to George L. Mowry for $13,961. The property had been assigned by Lincoln to the directors of the electric light company in partial restitution for the heavy defalcation to which he had confessed.

Pipe Smoker Burned to Death

Boston, June 12.—Henry Lamburn, aged 38, was burned to death as a result of smoking a pipe in bed at his lodgings last night. Smoke being seen issuing from the window of his room, the fire department was summoned by an alarm and the firemen found the man enveloped in the flames of his bed clothing. He died shortly afterwards.

Death In Auto Collision

Bridgeport, Conn., June 12.—Alexander Thompson of New Haven, one of four occupants of the machine, was almost instantly killed when an automobile was in collision with a carriage here. None of the other occupants of the vehicle was seriously hurt. Thompson having been thrown against a telegraph pole.

Minister's Wife Divorced

Boston, June 12.—Claiming that her husband, Henry H. Wonde, a well known Unitarian minister, had been cruel and abusive to her, Mrs. Abbie C. Wonde appeared in the divorce court and received a decree of divorce from her husband. The prominence of Mrs. Wonde brought a large crowd to the court.

Woman Suffrage Bill Downed

Hartford, June 12.—The bill to give women the right of suffrage in presidential elections and the right to vote in municipal elections was defeated in the house. The senate is expected to reject the bill also.

The Poor and the Rich.

Not long ago a London preacher indulged in a little bit of sarcasm over a small collection. He did it very neatly in a preface to his sermon on the following Sunday. "Brethren," he said, "our collection last Sunday was a very small one. When I look at this congregation, I say to myself, 'Where are the poor?' But as I looked at the collection when we counted it I exclaimed, 'Where are the rich?'"

"CLOSED INCIDENT"

Japan So Disposed to Regard Recent Attack at San Francisco

THE CITY WILL BE SUED

Not the Least Danger of Even a Breach of Friendly Relations Existing Between America and Japan--Okuma's Party Will Be Defeated

Washington, June 12.—Regardless of the anti-American attitude of some of the Japanese people, the government in power is determined that it will maintain friendly relations with the United States. To accomplish this the Tokio government is disposed even to be conciliatory. As an evidence of this is its determination to regard as a "closed incident" the recent attack by a mob upon a Japanese restaurant and bathhouse in San Francisco.

On behalf of his government, Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, has given his approval to the suggestion of his government that the Japanese injured by past assaults sue the city for damages. Aoki has decided to postpone the trip he had planned to the Pacific slope for the purpose of ascertaining personally the relations existing between the Japanese and Americans.

Secretary Root positively declines to make any statement respecting the Japanese situation. This is done with the full knowledge of the uneasiness which exists in financial circles as the result of circulation of war rumors.

It may be said, however, that the secretary's refusal was based solely upon his unwillingness to accord the rumors official notice, and not upon any belief on his part that there is the least danger of war or even of a breach of the friendly relations that now exist between America and Japan. The fact is that in the official mind the present agitation is nothing more than the working of international Japanese policies. A strenuous opposition party in Japan, in seeking for weapons to attack the party in power, is appealing to the populace and to the pride of the Japanese to affront the United States.

The ground of complaint, it is stated here, might easily be made popular in view of the over-population of Japan and the demand for admission to foreign countries for the coolie class. In view, however, of the assurances that have been conveyed to the officials here that Count Okuma's party in Japan (which is behind the present agitation) is not likely to secure control of the government in the immediate future, not much apprehension is felt here.

The situation was summed up by a very high official in the following response to the question as to what could be said to allay the uneasiness in this country:

"If the administration has any fear of trouble with Japan growing out of the disturbances in San Francisco, no responsible official is willing to admit it. On the contrary, state department officials profess to feel hopeful that everything will come out all right and that the situation between the two countries will gradually become normal. Japan has made no complaint to the United States and there is no trouble between the two countries, and there is no danger of war.

"The greatest fear is from the agitation carried on by certain newspapers in both countries, and from this, officials admit, there is constant danger. Aside from this officials will not admit there is anything which cannot be adjusted in the ordinary diplomatic way."

Police Routed by Raiders

Dublin, June 12.—The grazing war is spreading rapidly and becoming popular. Near Athenry, Galway, a large posse of police opposed a crowd of persons who were driving cattle off a farm. The people stoned the officers, several of the latter were badly hurt and the sergeant in command ordered the posse to fire. The latter fired repeated volleys at the crowd, but the raiders returned the fire, finally compelling the officers to retreat, when the graziers finished their raid.

Will Discuss Senatorship

Providence, June 12.—It is generally supposed that at a meeting of the Republican state central committee, a call for which has been issued for next Tuesday, that the senatorial situation will be discussed. The Democrats and Independents are already in the field and therefore it is expected that the Republican campaign will be launched at this meeting.

Held For Stealing Launch

Ellsworth, Me., June 12.—Lester F. Hall, who, at the point of a revolver, is alleged to have driven W. E. Whiting, a lawyer, from the latter's gasolene launch, was arraigned here on charges of stealing the boat and assault with a dangerous weapon. Hall was held for the grand jury under $3000 bonds, in default of which he was committed to jail.

HIS ACTS COWARDLY

An Admission of Orchard on the Witness Stand

WAS OFTEN WITHOUT FUNDS

Defense Tries to Show That Murderer Received No Pay From Miners' Federation--Story of Plot Against Non-Union Men

Boise, Ida., June 12.—The attack of the Haywood defense on the testimony of Harry Orchard goes on unremittingly, and the witness will probably be continued on the stand two full days more. Orchard withstands the strain with remarkable fortitude and at the end of six days shows no indication of mental or physical flagging.

Yesterday began with the dynamiting of Fred Bradley in San Francisco. The defense made a long and determined effort to expose several features of it to doubt and improbability, and to vitiate it all by revealing the hand of the Pinkertons.

Then the play went back to Denver for the winter of 1904-05 and in the spring that followed, and there was an extended effort to show that Orchard had practically no communication with the leaders of the federation; that he received no pay for the Bradley crime or anything else, and that with Steve Adams, in a period of extreme poverty extending over a period of several months, he was reduced to the necessity of stealing a sheep from the Globeville stockyards that he might have food.

Orchard confessed that he stole the sheep, but stontly denied that it was because of want. He insisted that all through that supposedly hard winter and spring he continued to draw money from Pettibone through Adams, and explained that if he did not see the federation leaders often it was because he was "lying low to avoid capture."

This Globeville inquiry developed a diabolical plot at the Denver suburb. Orchard swore it was inspired by Max Malich, but the defense claimed that Orchard was its author. The plot was to dynamite a boarding house where 150 non-union men lived, and in preparation for the murder enbloc, Orchard, Adams and Joe Malich broke into two magazines and stole 600 pounds of dynamite which they lugged home at night and buried in their cellars. The crime was abandoned, Orchard said, in one of the flashes that makes his testimony remarkable, because Haywood intervened and forbade him to have anything to do with it.

Carrying out the lines of testimony tending to show that Orchard, regardless of the great hold which it is presumed he had on the federation leaders, was frequently without funds, the defense showed that from late in 1903 until the middle of 1904 Orchard continually drew strike relief supplies at Cripple Creek and then dramatically invited Orchard to explain the inconsistency to the jury. Orchard replied that Haywood, Moyer, Parker and Davis all advised him to draw the supplies, because if he displayed money he would excite suspicion.

The examination next reviewed the earlier attempt on Governor Peabody and the making of bombs to kill him and the plots against Judges Gabbert and Goddard, with an effort everywhere to lighten and cast doubt upon the testimony. Orchard told a dramatic story of the first attempt to assassinate Peabody—an early morning drive through the snow to place the bomb and wait for the victim, who was spared by the unexpected appearance of two coal wagons, which, coming from an alleyway, were driven across the trigger string at the moment that Peabody was crossing the mine.

Orchard brought Mrs. Steve Adams into the play yesterday. He said that while he and Adams were watching Goddard's house Mrs. Adams went with them a couple of times as a blind to divert suspicion from them. Mrs. Adams, who had a seat among the witnesses, laughed when Orchard told the incident.

Orchard, who confesses that he hesitated at no crime and took a hundred desperate chances in those he committed, made an interesting contribution to the physchological study of his personality when he called himself a coward. He said he was too cowardly to openly kill Gabbert and that he regarded all his acts as cowardly.

In five minutes yesterday Orchard showed more emotion than at any time since he began his testimony. It was when the defense in a roughshod digression asked him if he had not deserted his Cripple Creek wife and left her in poverty that compelled the sale of her washtub to buy bread. Orchard's lips quivered and, with tears near, he falteringly denied that he had done so and said that the federation leaders had promised to care for her in his absence.

Pistols Bought by Pettibone

Denver, June 12.—It is announced here that two pistols found on Harry Orchard when he was arrested have been traced to the George Tritch Hardware company of Denver, where they were purchased by George A. Pettibone. This information, it is said, was given to a detective by an officer of the Tritch company.

Launch Goes Down In Hampton Roads With Eleven Men of the Navy

Norfolk, June 12.—Eleven men of the navy, comprising six midshipmen and five seamen, who left Discovery landing at the exposition grounds in a launch of the battleship Minnesota, are missing, and it is believed that the launch with the men on board has gone to the bottom of Hampton Roads.

The men are Midshipmen Field, Stevenson, Holcomb, Holden, Murfin and Ulrich, and Seamen Dodson, Conn, Plumber, Vandorne and Westphal.

A box belonging to the launch was found floating near here and, as the last seen of the launch was when it pulled out of the Exposition pier, officers of the fleet have given up all hope of ever seeing the men. The six midshipmen came ashore Monday night in a launch of the Minnesota to attend a ball on the exposition grounds. It was after midnight when the party got away on the return trip.

While the launch carried a good sized party, no one has been found who can say exactly how many occupants the launch contained. The coast on all sides of Hampton Roads is being patrolled for bodies that may possibly wash ashore. Naval officers are using every effort to ascertain who was in the launch. A large number of men are reported missing from the various ships.

The Daily Ledger learns of no reason to change its report concerning the death of Miss Witherell of Braintree on Sunday. The story of accidental shooting, as reported, is generally accepted.

Isaac Freeman Hall, formerly principal of the Washington school in this city, was on Tuesday elected for the twelfth year as superintendent of schools at North Adams, at a salary of $2500

A Washington dispatch says: Director Barrett of the bureau of American republics left Tuesday for a trip in Massachusetts, during the course of which he will deilver several addresses on the general subject of our political and commercial relations with Latin-America. Alden Jameson.

Alden Jameson of Elm avenue, Wollaston passed away on Tuesday afternoon in his 71st year, after an illness of sometime. Until five or six years ago he lived in Waltham where at one time he conducted the largest milk business in the town. He served upon the board of selectmen, and in other elective offices. He leaves a widow in poor health, and two sons, Edward E. Jameson of Wollaston and Charles S. Jameson of Ohio. Funeral service will be held Friday at Waltham.

Sudden Death From Poisoning

Lieut. Daniel R. Mcay of the police department has the sympathy of his brother officers in the loss of his son, John T. McKay, who died this morning, aged 9 years. It is said that the little fellow, who was a remarkably bright boy, ate strawberries and other fruit, Monday night and in some way they poisoned him. He was taken ill shortly after and a physician summoned, but could not save his life.

Three Killed At Shipyard

It is scientifically explained says the Post, that the accident was brought about in this manner: The water in the shaft was decomposed by the heat Its constituent gases were then combusted by the white hot metal with which they came in contact and the result would be similar to exploding a few hundredweight of lyddite, cordite, dynamite or another of these giant explosives.

A Tribute to Alexander Scarborough

The funeral of Alexander Scarborough was held from his late residence, No. 43 Trafford street, last Friday afternoon, June 7, at 2.30. Mr. Scarborough died very suddenly from appendicitis after an operation at the Quincy Hospital June 4 at the age of 47 years.

He was a prominant member of the Calvary Baptist church of Quincy and also one of its deacons, and was always ready and helpful in every department of church work. He was known by a host of friends for his christian hospitality in his home and church and with the public announcement of his death, his name seemed to be on all lips.

By the mouth of many witnesses it was made manifest that he was a good man and a faithful servant of his Lord and Master. The many tokens of heart felt grief, and the great concourse of people that assembled for the funeral were a significant tribute of the esteem in which the deceased was held. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, among which was the gates ajar from the church of which he was a devoted member.

The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, the Rev. D. W. Stoddard, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Sproul of the Presbyterian church, with singing by the choir of the Calvary church. Mr. Stoddard spoke very tenderly of the deep sorrow his departure had occasioned "in the home, in the church, and in the community." We say he has gone, "but he still lives." The influence and work of a good life will not die. Of him it may be said "he is not here for God took him to dwell on that shore where storms are hushed, where tempest never rage.

He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Eva, besides three sisters and one brother, who have the deepest sympathy of all in this sad bereavment.

ADVISE SELLING OUT.

An Unusually Frank Statement of Failure by a Board of Public Service.

In an exhaustive report to the city council the board of public service of Bellefontaine, O., recommended the selling of the municipal gas plant on the following grounds:

"The gas plant is no longer necessary to and does not furnish any public service.

"The mains in the principal streets are very old and will require in the future expensive repairs.

"The plant is in as good condition today as it is possible to put the present system, and to change the system will require another bond issue.

"The average price received from the sale of gas is very little if any lower than a private corporation would give to our people, but is as low as any governing board the people may elect can make and keep the plant in its present condition and meet all the requirements and pay bonds and interest, as has been the policy of the present management.

"Four years ago it was necessary to issue $15,000 of bonds to build a new holder and install coal gas bench and necessary machinery, and another issue of bonds to the extent of $12,000 to pay overdrafts in the banks, and $5,000 more to put new mains in Sandusky street before it was paved. These bond issues should have been unnecessary if the plant had been operated with a view of self support, but gas was being furnished part of our citizens for much less than cost, and the remaining citizens, even if they did not use gas, were compelled to stand a bond issue for which each taxpayer became equally responsible to get the plant on its feet. And, as history repeats itself, you will find a request in the future, as in the past, for bonds to keep the plant in condition if the price of gas is lowered, and we wish to say in this connection that with the election for members of this board almost a year in advance there are candidates who are grooming themselves today with a view of catching popular favor and riding into office on the promise of cheaper gas, and if elected on that issue and their promises and pledges are carried out you may expect a request for a bond issue, and when we realize that we are now bonded to our legal limit, how will the money be furnished? And if the plant is permitted to get in the condition it was in four years ago, what would it be worth if compelled to sell it?

"Is it right or just to tax those people who do not use gas to keep up this plant, either by taxes or bond issues, when they derive no service, either personally or as citizens from public service, from the plant? Is it right to tax any citizen to keep up something that gives him no return as a taxpayer? And, on the other hand, is it right to compel the gas consumer to build up a plant from revenues derived from the sale of gas for the people? As the people own this plant, would it not be more equitable to all the people to dispose of the plant and with the proceeds furnish a necessity by installing water mains and sewerage accommodation for all citizens? This, in our opinion, should find favor from both factions, both of whom at present have just cause for complaint."

SEVENTEEN PER CENT A YEAR.

Depreciation of the Electric Plant In a Minnesota Town—Interesting Holdup.

The burning down of the municipal electric light plant of East Grand Forks, Minn., has probably settled the question of its abandonment, which was under discussion prior to the fire. A well informed correspondent writes that "the plant has furnished a somewhat indifferent service and did not earn enough to pay the fuel and labor accounts, to say nothing about interest on investment, depreciation, etc.," in spite of its charging private customers $120 a year for 1,200 c. p. arcs on moonlight schedule.

As East Grand Forks is a border town and right across the line in North Dakota (a prohibition state) is the city of Grand Forks, about 90 per cent of the business houses in East Grand Forks are saloons. Many of these got their electric lights from a private company in Grand Forks, because the service was better and the price lower, until the council passed a resolution to the effect that no saloon would be licensed unless it patronized the municipal plant.

There is a curious discrepancy between the various reports as to the value of the plant. In January the city authorities reported that the plant had cost $32,000. Three months later they estimated the fire loss at $10,000, although we understand that the plant is entirely destroyed, and adjusted the loss at $5,060, the plant having been insured for $8,400. As it was installed in 1902, it looks as though the depreciation amounted to 84 per cent in five years, or 17 per cent a year. The plant will probably not be rebuilt.

Medford's Plant Out of Date.

F. H. Farrar, superintendent of the city electric light plant, states that the plant is out of date and practically useless. According to his statement, the plant is worth about $10,000, and it would require an expenditure of $15,000 to make it serviceable, while a new plant would cost about $20,000. The majority of the council favor the employment of an electrical expert to make a thorough examination of the plant and report on the same.—Electrical World.

The country has learned that after the tumult and the shouting of a popular election cry comes the still small voice of a treasury deficit, to be made good by increased taxes. — Trenton (N. J.) Times.

The Tenderfoot.

[Original.]

I confess that when I went to Colorado to look up mining property I did not like the term "tenderfoot" that was applied to me in common with all who came from civilized countries. I had been an athlete, a soldier and a mountain climber both in South America and Europe. Therefore I did not see any propriety in the term for me.

I met some royal good fellows at Colorado Springs and soon after my arrival there was entertained by a party at supper. At the table opposite me sat Mark Dykeman, who had evidently been long enough in the country to be entirely careless of his dress, for, although from his language and his manners it was easy to see that he was at least fairly well bred and educated, he was dressed in the trousers, boots and woolen shirt of the region, to say nothing of the revolver and cartridges strapped to his waist. He had a pair of cold gray eyes with bushy brows over them and wore a perpetual sneering expression on his face. I mentioned having climbed the Matterhorn, in Switzerland. Dykeman's sneer intensified.

"Did you go up tenderfoot style," he asked, "with a lot of men to hold you up with a rope and cut your steps for you, or did you do it yourself?"

I confess I was irritated when I replied:

"Oh, the Matterhorn is not to be climbed like these hills about here. It's a mountain."

"I don't doubt," he retorted, "that it's a mountain, and a steep one. I only doubt your ability as a climber."

"I'm going up Pike's peak tomorrow," I said, endeavoring to speak without a show of choler. "I shall climb it alone."

"Do you know the way?"

"Never was on the mountain in my life."

"And you consider yourself able to go to the top within a reasonable time?"

"I do."

"Tut, man!" he snarled. "You're no climber. You're a tenderfoot."

"I'll bet you," I retorted, losing my caution, "that I climb the mountain alone and in a reasonable time—what a reasonable time is to be fixed by the members of this party, you and I excepted."

"What do you take me for? Do you think I'm here to make a sure bet with a tenderfoot to get his money unfairly? I know a blind man that can beat you on a race."

"Blind?"

"Stone blind. I'll bet you $100 he can climb to the top of Pike's peak sooner than you."

"It seems to me," I replied, "a bet like that would be all in my favor."

"Do you take the bet or take water?"

There was a cold blooded, disagreeable look in the man's contemptuous glance that irritated me beyond measure.

"Of course I take the bet. He who dances must pay the piper. If you insist in calling me a tenderfoot, you must hand out the cost."

It was then arranged that I and a half dozen others were to start from the base of Pike's peak the next morning and that if a blind man beat me to the top I was to lose the bet. The money was put up, and we broke up to go to bed.

The next morning we met at an appointed rendezvous. Dykeman was there, and a good nap had evidently taken away his disposition to taunt me, for he treated me very civilly. I vainly endeavored to discover from the looks of others of the party whether they considered the contest in a serious light or not and made some remarks to draw them out, but every man seemed to have bottled himself upon the subject, and I got no satisfaction. The umpire permitted each person who was to join in the race to take position wherever he liked, provided he was in sight, the umpire and I being in the center. Then at the firing of a revolver we started.

I soon found that I had been put on the usual route taken by those who ascended the peak. Why this had been done I could not imagine, but inferred that it was to give me every advantage in order that there should be no warrant for blame on the part of those conducting the contest for taking an unfair advantage of a stranger. Surely if after having been started right I couldn't beat a blind man to the summit I deserved the opprobrious epithet of tenderfoot. One thing my experience in climbing did for me—it was easy for me to detect the natural route before me. Only once or twice did I delay in selecting the best ground to go over, and not once was I obliged to retrace my steps. I was in fairly good condition, with a springy step. I knew I was making good time, and when I saw the goal a short distance above me was sure I would do the feat in as few hours as any one could do it.

As I approached the highest point I looked up to see if any one was there. Not a person was in sight. I felt a thrill of pleasure at having punished Dykeman for his incivility and pushed on till I stood on what I at first thought was the summit, but glancing aside saw that I needed to go a little higher. Then for the first time I saw a man lying asleep on the ground. It was Dykeman.

Something within me collapsed. I went to him and spoke. He didn't hear me. I woke him up.

"Well," I said, "who won?"

"I've won."

He reached out for his revolver, which he had laid aside, and I noticed that he was obliged to feel for it. He was stone blind.

PRETTY WEDDINGS

Nickerson--Waldron
Leavell--Doble
Campbell--Bonney
And Others

First church was prettily decorated in green foliage and white flowers Wednesday evening for the wedding of Miss Abigail Baxter Waldron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Waldron of Granite street, and Mr. Nathan Gorham Nickerson, Jr., son of ex-Councilman and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson of Wollaston.

Long before eight o'clock the church was filled. Miss Haskell, organist of the church, presided at the organ, playing while the guests were assembling.

In the bridal party were the ushers: Lowell Baker of Wollaston, Dr. Sidney Hardwick of Quincy, Howard Cole of Dorchester, and Charles Smith of Brookline; the bridesmaids: Miss Mary L. Rodgers of Quincy and Miss Georgana Brook Waldron of Quincy; the maid of honor, Miss Harriot Monroe Waldron sister of the bride and the bride who was attended by her brother-in-law, Mr. Leonard M. Dresser of Georgetown, who also gave her in marriage.

At the altar the party was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. George Lewis Anderson of Wollaston, and Rev. Ellery Channing Buttler, pastor of the church, who solemnized the marriage.

The bride's gown was of Venetian lace over white taffeta, her only ornament being a necklace and pendant set with pearls a gift from the groom. The maid of honor wore white point d'esprit over pink taffeta, as did also the bridesmaids.

As souvenirs of the happy occasion the bride presented her maid of honor with a ring and the bridesmaids with pins; and the groom remembered the ushers with scarf pins.

Following the ceremony a very pretty reception was held in the chapel from half past eight until half past nine, Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson, Mrs. Waldron and Mr. and Mrs. Dresser assisting the young people in receiving.

The reception was a very informal affair. The chapel looked very attractive with its decorations of green and white as a background for the receiving line, and dainty gowns of those attending.

Both bride and groom are very popular and they have congratulations and best wishes from hosts of friends. They are to reside at Wollaston.

Leavell--Doble.

One of the most beautiful weddings ever solemnized in Quincy was that of Miss Rachel Mary Doble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Doble of South street, and Mr. John Holland Leavell of El Paso, Texas, on Wednesday evening, at the home of the bride.

The house was beautiful with palms, ferns, hydrangeas, snowballs and foliage and lighted by candles. The ceremony was solemnized by candle light, which gave a charming effect. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of Bethany church officiated and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bridal march and grouping for the ceremony was unusually pretty. In the party were the ushers: George T. Glover of Grand Island, Nebraska, John Mayer Frank of Natchez, Mississippi, and the bride's brothers, Charles French Doble and Ralph Nelson Doble; the bridesmaids: Miss Alice C. Dennis of Medford, daughter of the late Frank G. Dennis, ex-consul to Guatemala, and granddaughter of ex-Governor Garcelon of Maine, and Miss Kate Etten, of Kingston, N. Y., neice of Mr. Edgar Van Etten vice president of the B. & A. Railroad; the maid of honor, Miss Clarice Burrell Doble, sister of the bride; and the best man, Mr. Charles M. Campell of Temple, Texas.

Following the reception a large reception was held, the spacious grounds as well as the house being necessary. Five or six hundred Japanese lanterns, were used to illuminate, making it a scene of beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Leavell were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents and Mr. Charles M. Campell. There was music by Odell's orchestra and an elaborate supper was served. The presents were beautiful, consisting of choice silver, cut glass, china, ornaments, etc.

The bride, who is a remarkably pretty girl with rich coloring and vivacious manners, was most attractive in her bridal robe of white satin messaline with pearl trimmings and diamond ornaments. The veil was caught with lilies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet. In charming contrast was the maid of honor in white net with green ribbons carrying white sweet peas; the bridesmaids, one in blue crepe de chene with bouquet of forget-me-nots the other in pink crepe de chene carrying pink sweet peas. It was a perfect blending of soft colors

Mr. Leavell is president of his class, being just graduated from Technology. His classmates were present to give not only their congratulations but a fitting send off. The groom was, however, too clever for them. They left the parental home amid a shower of confetti going as far as the gate in a hack which they quickly changed for a speedy auto and were out of sight before the Tech boys recovered their wits. The hack blocked the way so that the autos could not get out of the yard and give chase, so the idea of escorting the pair to Boston had to be abandoned.

Mr. and Mrs. Leavell are to spend several months in Europe, and on their return will make their home in the far southwest.

Hearty congratulations and good wishes go with them in their travels and to their new home.

Campbell—Bonney.

There was a pretty wedding at 377 Main street, Everett, at 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. Robert F. Campbell of Everett and Miss Mary A. Bonney of 7 Glenwood way, Quincy, were united in marriage by Rev. A. R. Atwood, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church, Quincy.

The bride was handsomely dressed in a white gown of organdie trimmed with valenciennes lace and wore lilies of the valley. The groom wore the customary suit of black.

The immediate relatives only were present. The bride's grandfather, an octogenarian, was among the relatives present; he is still hale and hearty and happy, and has reason to be proud of his grandchildren.

The presents were both useful and beautiful. The dining-room furniture quartered oak and leather upholstery, was the gift of the groom's parents. The chamber furnishings were the gift of the bride's parents. A silver tea service was the gift of Mr. Campbell's business associates. Other gifts consisted of silver, linen, cut glass etc.

The marriage took place at the future home of the happy couple. The best wishes of their many friends of Quincy, Bath and eleswhere, attend them.

HAMLIN—PEABODY.

Miss Rosamond Peabody daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Peabody, Jr., of Milton, and Mr. B. Nason Hamlin of Dedham, were married at the Mattapan Episcopal church on Wednesday. Bishop Lawrence performed the ceremony assisted by Rev. Endicott Peabody. Miss Peabody wor white satin and old lace. She was attended by her two sisters Misses Sylvia and Martha Peabody, who were gowned in white muslin. The best man was Ritchie Simpkins. A largely attended reception followed the ceremony.

CITY OF NEW ORLEANS

The Attractions Are Unique And the People Hospitable

(Editorial Correspondence.)

It was not the intention of the writer to devote a whole letter to New Orleans, but he found so much of interest in the Crescent City during his stay of ten days from May 13 to 22 inclusive, although an off season, that it is necessary.

The Sunny City, as it is often called, reminds one of European cities. Its importance as a shipping port is realized before our vessel docked, and if one lingered about the ship he was surprised at the large tonnage of freight on the boats of the Morgan line, and also the short time in which it is handled. The city has 15 miles of river front and six miles of wharves. Steamers arrive or depart daily for such foreign ports as Havana, Panama, San Juan, Liverpool, London, Antwerp, Hamburg, Porto Rico and South America.

Canal street, the Broadway of the South, is a business street of which to be proud. It is 182 feet wide lined with enterprising business houses, and has four street railway tracks in the centre. The street railway service of the city is very good, there being several belt lines. The rear seat of each car is reserved for colored people.

There are many points of historic interest, but of greater interest is the French and Latin quarters where Creole business houses and homes hold sway.

The City Park of 160 acres is a beautiful tract with artificial lakes and live oaks draped with gray Spanish moss. A particularly pretty scene was presented at the park on Saturday when thousands of children in summer attire held picnics. The city has many smaller parks.

Picnics and excursions are also held on Sundays. On Sunday, May 19, the Ancient Order of Druids, composed of prominent citizens, held their annual festival atended by 10,000. Among the features were horse trotting, children's sports, dancing, etc. The lieutenant governor and others were guests, and it was an enjoyable occasion.

New Orleans is a gay city, and probably has more clubs than any other American city of its size. There are three race tracks with trots daily for several months of the year. West End is "the Wonderland," situated on the lake, and there is also the White City, several theatres and other attractions. However, New Orleans is a city of churches, with a larger number than the city of Brooklyn. Most of these are of the Catholic denomination.

The hospitality of the South was shown when a fellow passenger on the southern trip sought out the writer after his arival in the city and extended the privileges of the Boston Club during his visit of ten days. The best citizens are numbered among its members and in their commodious building with three floors are large reading, billiard and pool, domino, and card rooms richly furnished, also a chef, secretary and several attendants.

Other courtesies while in the city, were extended by the officials of the Southern Pacific company, including Capt. Worthy and Port Steward Fish, also Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Pennock, David Jung and family, A. L. Jung, the publishers of the Daily States, Masons and Odd Fellows. The Elks and Druids are very strong in New Orleans, the former having an elegant club house.

In recent years much has been done for the health and attractiveness of the city by the establishment of a system of drainage. It was a difficult problem because the city is only a few feet above the sea level, the highest point of land having an elevation of less than eleven feet. It is in fact below the level of the Mississippi river at most seasons of the year, so that levees are maintained to keep the water of the river within its banks. The drainage is from the river instead of to the river, and the fact that the city is extremely level makes the problem the more difficult. The mosquitoes are not now the torments that they once were.

The cemeteries of New Orleans are of peculiar interest because most of the burials are in family tombs built wholly of marble or granite. A few all-polished granite tombs of Quincy granite were noticed in Metairie cemetery, but there should be more. It is a good field for Quincy granite manufacturers to exploit, as most of the memorials cost hundreds of dollars. The custom house and post office building of the city is of Quincy granite but was erected many years ago. Upon a tablet to the memory of the army of Tennessee were these words: "They loved their land because it is their own, and scorn to give ought other reason why."

The writer took an electric car to the stock yard, and slaughter houses but could not muster up courage to seek admission. He was content to visit in that vicinity the United States barracks, the gigantic plant building for the Sugar Refining Company and also the slip where the Frisco Railroad Company is expending millions of dollars for a terminal.

Freezing temperature and snow and ice are unknown in New Orleans, but it was not uncomfortably hot in May. The season has been backward and rainy as at the north. Grass is green throughout the year and flowers grow out of doors at all seasons. Beautiful large palms of the fern leaf and fan leaf style grow about the houses and also along the sidewalks. As in some of the western cities there are some private streets or place reserved for rich estates and Aubudon place is one of these beautiful streets.

Passengers on the Momus on the southern trip will be interested in the following event concerning the charming German miss who was a fellow passenger:

ORSINI—AZZALINO—At 3221 Esplanade avenue (Maurepas,) by Rev. J. J. Hoffman of the Helping Hand Mission, on Tuesday, May 28, 1907, at 8 o'clock P. M., Signor Lorenzo Orsini, head designer with Weiblen, born in Imola, Italy, to Fraeulein Gertrud Azzalino, born at Magdeburg, Germany.

The writer heartily congratulates Signor Orsini, and hopes to visit the happy couple at some future occasion for he will not be satisfied until he has seen New Orleans at the Mardi Gras season.

The concluding letter will tell of the homeward trip by the Morgan line to New York, a very popular route for people of the South and West.

WANT A SECOND MESSAGE

Men Opposed to Great Railroad Merger Appeal to Governor Guild

Boston, June 13.—Hearings on Governor Guild's so-called "merger" message were finished by the legislature's committee on railroads yesterday afternoon. The final session of the hearing was taken up by several business men opposing the combine or favoring restrictive legislation and by Representative Dean and ex-Representative Daniel J. Kiley, both of whom were strongly opposed to the combination of the Boston and Maine and the New Haven in one control. It was decided to postpone the appearance of Attorney General Malone and Chairman Jackson of the railroad commission before the committee's executive session until today.

In the fear that the legislature may not pass legislation aimed to prevent the absorption of the Boston and Maine by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, those who are fighting the merger are preparing to make a final appeal to Governor Guild to take drastic action along the lines of the anti-merger message which he sent to the legislature last year.

Governor Guild, it is said, has already been strongly urged to send another message to the legislature, in view of the facts brought out at the hearings, and Attorney Brandels, who represents minority stockholders of the Boston and Maine, predicts that the governor will send a message urging the legislature to do all possible to block the merger.

Result of Family Row

Boston, June 13.—In a family row at 989 Bennington street, John Scori, 35 years old, was killed and his brother-in-law, Joseph Tortorella, 35 years old, has a bullet wound in his abdomen which will prevent his recovery. Scori was away from home all day and when he returned his wife scolded him for his absence. He struck her on the head with a revolver; she ran to the home of her brother; Scori followed and tried to break in the door. Finally when Tortorella opened the door Scori fired the shot at him and the wounded man fired four at Scori, who returned three before he got a fatal one in the heart. Both men had three children.

Fear of Public Sentiment

Boston, June 13.—Attorneys representing Lewis Harris, charged with the murder of Michael J. Cunningham, applied for a change of venue in the superior court. Harris was a non-union teamster and is charged with shooting Cunningham during a demonstration against strikebreakers. The change of venue was asked for on the ground that public sentiment in Boston was such that the defendant could not reasonably expect to have a fair trial. Judge Lawton took the matter under consideration.

Bounty Bill Veto Sustained

Boston, June 13.—The house leaders, by a little missionary work yesterday, performed the feat of defeating the veterans' "gratuity" bill upon the question of passing the bill over the veto of the governor. It is the first time that the bill has been defeated in the house, which sent it through with the necessary two-thirds over the veto of Governors Bates, Douglas and Guild last year. The vote yesterday was 109 in favor of passing the bill over the veto and 75 against.

Peculiar Accident Results Fatally

Boston, June 13.—Miss Ann G. Witherell, who was shot in the head last Sunday night during the playful antics of a pet dog at the home of her sister in Braintree, died last night at a local hospital. The animal was chasing a ball across the floor when he bumped against a loaded shotgun leaning against the wall, knocking it down. The buckshot with which the weapon was loaded entered the young woman's head.

Long Sentence For Firebug

Winsted, Conn., June 13.—In the case of Edward L. Goldsmith, charged with having twice attempted to set fire to the Northfield Knife works, the jury returned a verdict of guilty on both counts. Goldsmith was sentenced to state prison for not less than two nor more than four years on the first count and for two years on the second count. In a previous trial the jury was unable to agree.

Jewels Stolen In Hotel

Boston, June 13.—Four rings and a watch valued at $500, and because of their associations worth many times that sum to the owner, were stolen from a room in the Hotel Brunswick, occupied by Mrs. Ellen H. Stoddard, a Boston woman. Headquarters inspectors have under suspicion a negro employe of the Hotel Brunswick.

Municipal Ice Bill Vetoed

Boston, June 13.—Governor Guild vetoed a bill which was designed to permit the city of Holyoke to own and operate a municipal ice plant and to sell ice at wholesale. The governor thinks that as the supreme court has held that it is illegal for a city to sell fuel the ice bill would be unconstitutional.

ORCHARD AS THIEF

Defense In Haywood Trial Brings Out New Points

POVERTY AND HARD LUCK

Effort to Show That He Did Not Get Money From Federation of Labor Officials--Plan to Kidnap In Which Former State Official Is Dragged In

Boise, Ida., June 13.—The defense has carried the cross-examination of Harry Orchard down to the actual crime charged against William D. Haywood, the murder of former Governor Steunenberg.

Counsel for the defense directed their efforts in an attempt to cloud the earlier purposes and movements of Orchard with uncertainty and indefiniteness. Then they emphasized the abandonment of all effort to kill after Orchard first tracked Steunenberg to a hotel in Boise and with a skeleton key gained entrance to the room in which the governor was living.

Here they delayed for a moment to prove that Orchard twice wrote and once telephoned to Bill Easterly at Silver City to urge him to come and join in the crime, and the direct implication was that Orchard was endeavoring to inveigle another federation man into the crime which would bring discredit and dishonor to the organization.

Then the witness was carried over his long journey into north Idaho, and his crimes there, including a plot to kidnap and hold for ransom August Paulson's child, were emphasized. Orchard swore that David Coates, formerly lieutenant governor of Colorado and later a publisher in Wallace, Ida., first suggested the kidnapping to Pettibone and himself at Denver. Paulson, once a poor miner, had made a fortune in the Hercules mine in which Orchard held an interest when the property was not paying, and it was believed that if Paulson's child were stolen he would "come through" with $50,000 or $60,000 in ransom. Orchard said that when he went to north Idaho he got Jack Simpkins to enter the plot, and together they went to Coates to renew the scheme.

Coates was asked to stand up in court and Orchard said he was the man. Orchard was then asked whether he had not himself proposed the crime to Coates, who immediately rebuffed him, and whether Jack Simpkins had not warned Paulson the minute he heard of the plot. Orchard denied both suggestions, and, reiterating his first story, he insisted that Coates had consented to stay in the plot and handle the money they hoped to get from Paulson.

Then the defense showed the witness in the commission of a series of mean crimes and reduced to poverty in which he had to resort to pawning, borrowing and stealing to live for a long period.

Summing up this period of crime, poverty and hard luck, the defense wanted to know why, if he were in Idaho on a mission of murder for Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone and with unlimited credit from them, he did not send to them for money instead of borrowing and stealing. Orchard replied that he did send a letter to Moyer at Butte and got $100, but that he did not send to Haywood for more because he was temporarily off the Steunenberg murder errand and away from where Steunenberg lived.

Lastly, there came a showing that Orchard had borrowed $300 from Paulson on the strength of a fraudulent story that he was going to Los Angeles to sell mining stock for Coates, and that this was the money that actually paid his expenses when he went back to Caldwell on the final mission of murder.

Swiftly reviewing his meetings with his old partner, who had meantime become rich, the defense asked the witness if, disappointed and angered at his own hard luck in selling out of the Hercules mine, when Steunenberg sent troops into north Idaho, he had not suddenly decided to borrow enough money from Paulson to take him to Caldwell, where he would murder the man whom he blamed for his misfortune. Orchard strenuously denied that this was his motive.

Soon after Orchard left the stand David Coates said: "I do not care at this time to discuss the statement made by Orchard. I will have an opportunity to reply in full when I go on the stand for the defense. I will say, however, that Simpkins never talked to me of the kidnapping of Paulson's child. Orchard did not speak to me about it in Denver, but he did come to me in Wallace and outline the plot. He said that he wanted to kidnap Paulson's child and get a bunch of money. I told him that he was a fool and that if he attempted to do so I would denounce him publicly and that he would be run out of Wallace."

Coates served a term as lieutenant governor of Colorado, having been elected on the Populist ticket. After leaving Colorado he went to Wallace and until a few weeks ago was proprietor of a newspaper there.

Ruef Divided With Schmitz

San Francisco, June 13.—Abe Ruef was allowed to testify in the trial of Mayor Schmitz yesterday. Reuf swore that he gave the mayor $2500 out of the fund gathered from the French restaurants in 1905, directly contradicting Schmitz' testimony.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST

No Doubt That Eleven Men on Battleship's Launch Were Lost

Norfolk, June 13.—The 11 men of the navy who sailed from the exposition grounds in the early morning Tuesday on the return trip of their steam launch to the battleship Minnesota have been given up for lost. All day yesterday and until late last night the search and dragging instituted by the naval authorities for any signs of the launch and its occupants progressed, but the bodies of the victims of the catastrophe have not been found.

While an investigation has been ordered, no arrangements have been perfected for it and no statement has been made as to its trend. In maritime circles it is not believed that any steamer or vessel that fouled the launch is aware of it. The night was rough, and a drizzling rain and the imperfect light on the launch are believed to be responsible.

Admiral Evans admits that there can be no further question that the disaster occurred. The finding of the portion of the canopy of the launch and a coat and cap has confirmed the supposition that the launch went down and all on board were lost.

Fighting In Salvador

Mexico City, June 13.—Salvador, with a force of regular troops, yesterday defeated a body of Nicaraguans and revolutionists that on Tuesday captured Acajutla and later attempted to move on the Salvadorean capital. The invading forces were driven back to Acajutla and are now making a stand there. The battle was fought near Sonsonata, which the invaders endeavored to capture. Sonsonata, which is well garrisoned, is about 12 miles from Acajutla on the Salvadorean railroad, which connects Acajutla and the capital.

Nakens and Ilaria were sentenced to nine years' imprisonment, while Ferrer and the others were acquitted.

STRICTLY RETICENT

Japanese Ambassador Has Nothing to Say to the Press

SAN FRANCISCO INCIDENT

May Pass From Realm of Diplomacy to Civil Courts--Straus Going to Pacific Coast to View Situation For Himself--Aoki's Visit Is Postponed

Washington, June 13.—Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, and his subordinates at the embassy, have apparently decided that the best way to prevent the development of further friction between the people of Japan and America is to observe strict reticence as to the San Francisco incident.

The ambassador is seldom visible to members of the press and it is not possible to confirm the report that he has approved the plans for settling the matter of damages sustained by the San Francisco Japanese during the recent disturbance through a civil suit directed against the municipality. It is known, however, that such a course has been suggested to him by persons whose positions made their opinion worthy of consideration, so it is believed that the ambassador would gladly allow the San Francisco incident to pass out of the realm of diplomacy into the quiet waters of the civil courts.

Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor will soon visit the Pacific coast for the purpose of viewing for himself the situation surrounding the restriction of Japanese and Chinese immigration. The immigration service is under Straus' jurisdiction. The question of restriction of Japanese immigration will figure in the new treaty with Japan, and as the department of commerce and labor will have a vital influence in shaping the policy of the United States in the negotiations, Straus desires to take a close view of the problem.

The announcement made that Secretary Taft on his coming visit to the Philippines will take time to go to Japan is regarded with considerable significance.

Mr. Miyaoki, counsellor of the Japanese embassy, authorizes the statement that Viscount Aoki has decided to postpone his proposed visit to the Pacific coast until later in the summer. "The ambassador has reached this decision," said Miyaoki, "because of the present agitation in both the American and Japanese press. If he should visit the coast at this time the newspapers would magnify the importance of the visit, and might place the ambassador in the embarrassing attitude of trying to adjust through diplomatic channels grave diplomatic questions which do not exist."

Viscount Aoki had announced his intention of visiting San Francisco this summer before the recent disturbances occurred in that city. The purpose of the proposed visit, as he explained at the time, was to talk with the Japanese of San Francisco and the Pacific coast, and to satisfy himself as to the true conditions existing in that section of the United States where thousands of Japanese subjects reside.

"Time For Action"

Tokio, June 13.—Several papers today print photographs of the wreckage caused by the attacks on Japanese restaurants in San Francisco. This appeal to the eye, coupled with strong words describing the sufferings of compatriots, has further inflamed popular indignation. The Nichi Nichi, commenting on the photographs, says: "The situation is doubtlessly grave and calls for the prompt measures on the part of both governments."

The Hochi says: "The stage for negotiations has passed, and the time for action has been reached."

War Outbreak Inconcievable

London, June 13.—"Such a contingency as an outbreak of war between the United States and Japan is regarded by educated Japanese as almost inconceivable," cables the correspondent of The Times at Tokio. "If the progressives are inclined to stir up agitation for the defense of Japan's treaty rights, it will be aimed solely at discrediting the ministry and in the interests of party politics. The progressives themselves would take the lead in denouncing such a war if there was any real danger thereof."

Indignation Again Aroused

Tokio, June 13.—The Asahi's correspondent at Washington reports an attack upon a Japanese horticulturist at Berkeley, Cal., resulting in the destruction of a greenhouse and other property. This has fanned the flame of indignation already strong here, and has served to confirm the popular belief that violence of the kind is not accidental, but the result of a deeply-rooted feeling against the Japanese.

Not a Serious Affair

San Francisco, June 13.—Referring to an alleged attack on a Japanese horticulturist at Berkeley, Thomas G. Walker, representing the Japanese Association of America, states that it was a trivial affair. Some boys had thrown stones at a greenhouse belonging to a Japanese, but the damage was slight, and the association would take no action in regard to the incident, leaving the local authorities to deal with the offenders.

Why Dundonald Retired

London, June 13.—"I have retired because the British authorities offered me no employment since I was turned out of the Canadian militia for paying attention to political corruption in the appointment of officers," is the published explanation made by the Earl of Dundonald, whose retirement from the post of lieutenant general led to the recent promotion of Major General Baden-Powell. The earl says the fact he was given nothing to do was not due to old age, because 13 years remained before the old-age clause effected his present rank.

Awarded Over $100,000 For Death

New York, June 13.—One of the largest verdicts for damages ever given in the supreme court in this judicial district was awarded by a jury when Sarah L. E. Read was awarded $101,789 for the loss of her husband, who was killed by a New York Central and Hudson River railroad train at the Van Cortlandt Park crossing while riding in an automobile. The testimony showed that the approaching train was hidden from view by a stationary one and that the warning bell at the crossing was out of order.

Bath, Me., June 13.—Following the report given by a special committee of the board of aldermen describing the conditions at the city almshouse as filthy and generally wretched, both branches of the city government appointed a committee last night to make a thorough investigation of almshouse affairs. It was also voted to expend a sum not exceeding $2500 for improvements at the almshouse.

Stolypin Has Not Resigned

St. Petersburg, June 13.—Last evening's papers published prominently a report that Premier Stolypin had resigned. It has been learned, however, that this rumor is without foundation. Eighty Degree Temperature

The 80 degree weather for which th Daily Ledger advertised for on Wednesday arrived today, the thermometor at noon registering just that degree of heat. It is the first time this year that the mercury has climbed as high. People have been experiencing so much cold weather that few have laid aside their heavy underclothing. Last years straws were brought out this noon, and those who did not possess a straw hat lost no time in equipping themselves, and the local stores are doing a thriving business.

Pine Tree Club To Hold Picnic

The Pine Tree club wound up its winter's meetings on Wednesday evening by a social gathering at Colonial hall. During the first part of the evening there was a short business session when the subject of a picnic was talked up. The scheme met with favor and an old-fashioned outing will probaby be held sometime during July or August. It is proposed to invite the friends of members and to charter special cars. Everybody will take their own basket of lunch and a grand good time will be enjoyed. The time and the place and the girl have not been settled as yet. The evening closed with a social dance.

Proved Fatal.

Miss Anna G. Witherell of Braintree, who was accidently shot, died Wednesday at the Homoeopathic hospital Boston, where she was taken immediately after the shooting. She did not regain consciousness after being shot. The State police who made a thorough investigation of the case have officially stamped the tragedy as an accident.

LOOP LINE

All In Favor At Hearing On Petition Before Council

That some connecting street railway line between the Fore River works and Washington street and Quincy avenue is almost a necessity was brought out at the public hearing given by the Committee on Streets of the City Council to petitioners for such a line on Thursday evening.

The hearing was held in the Council chamber and there were representatives present from the Fore River Co. and from the Central Labor Union many of whose members are employed at the works.

J. A. Sedgwick, treasurer of the Fore River Co., said that his company heartily endorse the proposition for a loop line, as petitioned for. Something should be done for better service than at present, which was not satisfactory. Under the present arrangements delays are frequent, and it is a great inconvenience to workmen. It was impossible for the street railway company to give the service desired with the present trackage.

He estimated that over 900 workmen used the cars every day. If the service was better more would use them. The distance from some points of the works to the cars is three fourths of a mile and this walk meant a great deal to the tired workmen who were anxious to get home. If the street railway petition for a location to the plant he hoped favorable action would be taken by the City Council.

He preferred a loop line but would take what he could get, and hope for the loop later. The Fore River Co., will do all in its power, and if land is needed the company would be glad to cooperate. He hoped too many restrictions would not be put on the franchise.

H. G. Smith, general manager of the Fore River Co., said he could only second what had been said. The need of a line as suggested was unquestionable to any one who knew the drawbacks. He was glad that the workmen had taken up this matter, and hoped the street railway company would take action.

We lose good men at the works simply because of the difficulty in getting to and from work. It would also tend to the development of Quincy. On stormy mornings he had known of men coming to Newcomb Square and then turning and going back home rather than to walk to the works and get drenched. He favored a loop line, as the spur track was only half the question. Of the two routes he favored Washington street.

Councilman Donovan said that he had met Assistant General Manager Reynolds of the street railway that afternoon, who had informed him that the street railway company was ready to petition for a right to lay tracks to the Fore River. He said that a loop line probably would not be built, as it would be necessary to widen East Howard street. The company however would give service to the Fore River, and if granted a location the line would be built before winter.

H. Marr of the Central Labor Union said this was not a new question. A spur track would suit a large number but not as many as a loop line. The number of men who used the cars was more than had been stated. The Central Labor Union had taken up this matter and had circulated the petition. Signatures were obtained from all parts of the city. He could substantiate what had been said of the present service. It was impossible for men to leave work and get to the cars in time. A loop line would be of great benefit to the men. There are hundreds who now walk that would ride if there were cars to the works. He was glad to see the Fore River Company act as they had in this matter. He hoped the location would be granted without too many restrictions. There were nearly 3000 names on the petition.

Charles W. Hanscom, president of the Central Labor Union, endorsed all that had been said. From 85 to 90 percent of the signers of the petition were workmen at the Fore River. While the street railway had not yet asked for a location he believed it the duty of the City Council to demand that a loop line be built. If the City Council has not the power the Railroad Commissioners have. Before securing a grant for a double track location on Hancock street, the company should be compelled to build this line.

Fred L. Eastman of Wollaston, who represented many of the government employes at the works, favored the loop line suggested. He came to add his mite in favor. It was a long walk on stormy mornings.

William Walters of the Central Labor Union said the company had long promised better service. He told of his experience in getting from Weymouth and the frequent delays. He believed it would be money in the pockets of the railroad to build the loop line.

Chairman Hobbs of the Committee said that there was no action the Committee could take on the petition in its present form. This hearing was to get the sentiment of the people so that if the railway company petitioned they should know what was wanted. The hearing was then closed.

Quincy Mansion Graduation

Dr. and Mrs. Horace Mann Willard are heartily congratulated on this the eleventh annual commencement of the Quincy Mansion school.

The graduation exercises were held Thursday afternoon in Livermore hall, which was completely filled with alumnae, parents and friends of the students and teachers.

The Hon. John Barrett, director of the bureau of American Rupublics and ex-minister to Columbia, Siam, Argentina and Panama, delivered the address to a most enthusiastic audience, and the way in which the Misses Weller, Cate, Briggs, Foster, Scott and Colegrove introduced the speaker before his formal presentation by Dr. Willard was very unique and Mr. Barrett began his talk by replying to each one individually to the amusement of all.

Mr. Barrett's richly varied career gives him a wealth of information and his reminiscences where charmingly told. The writer wished he might have been able to have taken it all in shorthand. Mr. Barrett told about the time when his father took him to Saxton River, Vt., to become a pupil of Dr. Willard in Vermont Academy and was loud in his praises of Dr. and Mrs. Willard, saying their names should be written high and engraved deep in the college of education.

His theme, "The ideal American Girl"—He told how he was questioned about her in other countries; how when loved and respected, she is such a mighty power for good. The best of service could only be gotten from healthly bodies and he cautioned then to continue the physical part as well as the mental.

The program was:

Orchestra,
Processional, Angel of Peace, 'Keller
Prayer
Salutatory Address, *Essay: Violins, Miss Atwood
Chorus, O Come, Let us Sing, Thayer
A Word from Japan, Miss Yamada

Presentation of Diplomas,
Class Song, words by Miss Paterson, music by Mr. Cutler,
Presentation of Class Picture, *Essay: The Triumvirate, Miss Moore
Benediction,

*Omitted.

The processional, which included all the studends as well as the twelve graduates was exceptionally pretty, as they marched down the aisle singing, "Angel of Peace."

Miss Atwood's voice as she delivered the salutatory address told even more plainly than her words how her class were pained at leaving Quincy Mansion school.

It was marvelous to listen to Miss Yamada of Yokohama as she delivered her paper on "A word from Japan" expressing herself so well in the English language.

The "Current Events" of Quincy Mansion School for the past year, by Miss Patterson, was interesting.

Miss Palsey's paper verified her ability for the honor of delivering the farewell address.

Mrs. Willard presented the diplomas.

The Class song was enjoyed and all the singing showed the careful training of Prof. Marceau.

Miss Dorothy Mills, president of the Alumnae, replied to Miss Moore's presentation of the class picture, and the long to be remembered afternoon was ended with the benediction pronounced by Dr. Willard.

The graduates: Helen Estelle Atwood of Wauregan, Connecticut; Sally Leonard Briggs of Springfield, Massachusetts; Dora Lane Cate of Weymouth, Massachusetts; Elizabeth King Colegrove, of Morristown, N. J.; Nana Elizabeth Foster of Milton, Massachusetts; Lois Chadwick Moore of Rochester, New York; Margaret Madaline Muller of New Britian, Conn.; Henrietta Frances Patterson of St. Louis, Mo.; Mabelle Lillian Polsey of Meriden, Connecticut; Frances Maud Scott, Las Animas, Colorado; Gwenydd H. M. Weller, Montreal, Canada; and Chiyo Yamada, Yokohama, Japan.

TO LOSE MR. HARPER

Is Elected Principal of High School At Syracuse

Telegrams were received in Quincy this morning from Syracuse, N. Y., announcing the election Thursday evening of Charles F. Harper, head master of the Quincy High school, as principal of the High school in that city. It has been known to a few that the school committee of that city have been considering Mr. Harper for some weeks. They have been in search of the man needed since early last January, and the country has been thoroughly canvassed, and it is not only a great compliment to Mr. Harper, but to the city as well, that he should be the one selected.

It is with reluctance that Mr. Harper will sever his connection with the schools of Quincy, and it was not without careful consideration that he has decided to accept. Several offers were made him at an increase of salary only to be turned down by him. Then an increase was suggested that was so much larger than the salary paid in Quincy that he could not readily refuse and it was practically understood some weeks ago that if he was elected at the salary named he would feel bound to accept. This means that Mr. Harper will complete his work in Quincy at the end of the present term, this month.

The school to which he goes is practically a new building, having been erected in 1902, at a cost of $340,000. It is one of the largest High schools in the country, having an enrollment of 1800 pupils.

Mr. Harper, when seen by a representative of the Ledger, said that he should accept the position offered with reluctance, as his relation with the pupils and people of Quincy had been very pleasant, not a thing to mar the harmony having arisen since he came here in 1899. He felt under the circumstances that he could not do otherwise.

Mr. Harper was born in Woonsocket, R. I., in 1869. His education he received at the High school in his native city and at Brown University. He also took courses at Harvard and Cornell. While at college he taught night school at Woonsocket. His first school was the Walpole High, where he taught from 1892 to 1895. From 1895 to 1897 he taught at the Bridgewater High, and from 1897 to May 1899, at the New Britain, Ct., High, coming to Quincy that year.

At that time there were about 400 pupils enrolled in the Quincy High. The school has grown rapidly since then however, and there are now enrolled 742 pupils.

During the past few years the position held by Mr. Harper has been a difficult one, owing to the inadequate accommodations. Perhaps, however, the most trying times were during the remodelling of the present building when sessions were held at the High building and at the Woodward building, late in the afternoon. The year was much broken up and his position was a most trying one. Throughout it all he did not complain but only worked the harder for his school. It was up-hill work, but he persevered, and conquered almost unsurmountable difficulties, which many would have given up.

Since his residence in Quincy he has frequently been sought as an after-dinner speaker and has read papers on educational work and other matters before the Men's and Unity clubs of Wollaston. He was also president of the High School Masters club of Massachusetts, and an officer of other educational societies. Mrs. Harper has also been prominent in women's clubs and church affairs. Early this year they completed on Putnam street in this city a pretty home.

The High school at Syracuse has a corp of sixty teachers.

Valuable Haul Made by Boys

The house of Miss Laura J. Jones at 24 South Central avenue was entered by burglars Wednesday night and a large lot of jewely and other goods all of the value of $400 taken.

The house is undergoing repairs and the family were temporarily absent. It is supposed that when the carpenters left the house it was seen where they put the key.

The articles taken included two watches, field glasses, opera glasses, diamond breast pin, Masonic charm, stick pins, glassware and gold trinkets.

The police have learned that the work was that of boys and they have succeeded in recovering a greater part of the goods taken.

The same night the Christian Endeavor Society was holding a monthly social at the Wollaston Baptist church. At the close of the evening when refreshments were about to be served, it was discovered that everything prepared for the feast was missing. This also is thought to have been the work of boys.

Not to Force Scheme.

Louis D. Brandeis, author of the bill to permit savings banks to establish insurance departments in answer to a question put to him Wednesday by Treasurer Francis A. Shove of the Malden Savings Bank, during the hearing on the bill before the Senate Committee on Ways and Means, stated that there are already enough banks in the state in favor of the bill to give it, if it becomes a law, a thorough trial. Mr. Brandeis was asked whether the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League, with its large membership, planned to force the scheme upon all the Savings banks of the state, and he replied that such action would be contrary to the spirit of the movement. In his opinion it was not desirable at the outset that even a majority of the savings banks should establish insurance departments. It would be better that the plan should at first be confined to a small number of banks, and there are already enough willing to take up the work to prove whether the great expectations of the friends of the movement will be justified.

MAKE REPARATION

Orchard Gives That as Reason For Confessing Crimes

CRIES ON WITNESS STAND

Defense Endeavors to Show That Motive Was the Saving of His Own Life--Has Been a "Pampered, Petted, Hero-Like Prisoner"

Boise, Ida., June 14.—The men who are battling to save the life of William D. Haywood and the good name of the Western Federation of Miners made their greatest assault upon Harry Orchard yesterday when, carrying the review by cross-examination of his life of crime down to his confession, they bitterly assailed his guiding motives.

Six days they spent in stripping him before the jury of every shred of morality, and then, suddenly turning upon him in final fierce attack, they fought to convince the jury that Orchard was committing a crime in falsely swearing away the lives of innocent men in the hope of saving his own.

Orchard failed when they recited to him the tale of David and Uriah that Detective McParland related to him when he came seeking a confession. He fought to save himself, but tears filled his eyes and he rocked unevenly like a fainting woman. His voice lowered to huskiness, and he hid his face in a handkerchief.

Then he steadied himself and went on strongly to the end. He defended his motives by saying that he had finally experienced conversion and penitence and had resolved to make all possible reparation by freely confessing all. McParland had told him that he was doing a great service for the state and that states were kind to men who served them. There was no other promise. He said he knew that if he confessed to the Steunenberg murder the state would put him out of the way. After he had been sent a Bible and read it some, he said, he began to think that the grave did not end everything and he made up his mind to tell the truth about the whole thing.

"So you thought you would make your peace with the future by having someone else hanged?" asked Richardson.

"No sir. I think any man can make his peace with the future if he wants to. I believed it was my duty to tell the truth. I did not see any other way, regardless of the consequences to myself or anybody else. I owed it to my society, I owed it to God and to myself."

For hours the defense hammered at Orchard's motive of saving his own life. They sought to show it in the force of example drawn from the immunity of informers in the Mollie McGuire cases, but this the witness would not admit. Next they sought for it in Orchard's effort to bring Steve Adams to the state and then in the subsequent meetings with McParland and Governor Gooding. They emphasized the fact that the witness had twice written his testimony out, but Orchard repelled the suggestion that it had been changed by McParland, Attorney Hawley or anybody else.

After that it was suggested that Orchard had placed his future in the keeping of McParland, that the Pinkertons had sent money to his family in Canada, that he had been supplied with dates to strengthen his story, and that McParland had trained him as a stage manager would for his appearance on the stand. But all this Orchard denied.

Then they tried to show him a pampered, petted hero-like prisoner, fed from the table of the warden, addressed as "Harry" by Governor Gooding and Warden Whitney, given freedom and liberties that no other prisoner ever had, and all this consideration implying that he would never be hanged for killing Steunenberg. Then came a showing as how the prisoner had been dressed and groomed for the trial, and lastly, for climax, they showed Orchard pleading for and saving the life of Bob Wetter, condemned to death for murder. Orchard admitted that he had appealed to Gooding about Wetter and that later Gooding first reprieved Wetter and then commuted his sentence of death to life imprisonment.

Orchard left the stand, after having occupied it for 32½ hours. Just before he was excused and remanded he went back to the hands of the prosecution and identified the casing of the bomb he planted at the gate of Judge Goddard's house in Denver.

Immediately after the noon recess former Governor Peabody of Colorado met Orchard in the office of the counsel for the prosecution. The meeting was unexpected, as far as Orchard was concerned, and when he saw Peabody advancing toward him, with hand outstretched, he blanched and began to tremble. "I am ashamed to speak to you, governor; I am ashamed to look at you," faltered Orchard.

"Oh, that's all right," said Peabody, laughing. "You need not be ashamed to speak to me now."

Orchard began crying and when Peabody succeeded in reassuring him, he said: "I am glad that I did not kill you and that I am spared the thought of that crime at least."

Orchard and Peabody afterward spent about 20 minutes together and departed in a friendly way.

AOKI BREAKS SILENCE

But It Is to Repudiate, Remarks Credited to Him In Alleged Interview

Washington, June 14.—Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, last night requested The Associated Press to publish the following statement:

"What purports to be an account of an interview with Viscount Aoki having been published today, the Japanese ambassador desires to state that he has given no interviews to anybody. The viscount would not have felt called upon to point the baselessness of the alleged interview if it were not for the remarks therein contained, which are directed against a power (Russia) in friendly relations with Japan."

Masuli Miyakawa of San Francisco, a Japanese lawyer, who filed the injunction suit against the San Francisco school board in the now famous case, says he greatly deplores the continuous agitation in the American and Japanese press. Miyakawa is a personal friend of Count Okuma, leader of the Progressives, and Marquis Ito.

Sensible View of the Situation

Tokio, June 14.—The Jiji this morning, in its leading editorial, which is evidently inspired, says that the recent assults on Japanese in San Francisco were merely incidents growing out of the industrial troubles in that city and that they do not constitute a cause for diplomatic action. The editorial advises that the authorities be trusted to mete out justice and deprecates the outcome of the affair.

"Woman In Blue" at Oyster Bay

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 14.—Aside from the three hours he was occupied with Secretary Loeb in the dispatch of official business, President Roosevelt spent yesterday in unpacking, arranging and settling the household belongings which were brought from the White House. The "woman in blue," understood to be Mrs. Lucy Lee of Brooklyn, who received considerable notoriety two years ago, arrived here in the afternoon. She made a thorough inspection of the waterfront and then went to the executive offices. She contented herself by inquiring after the health of all her friends and leaving her compliments to the secret service corps.

Jealousy Will Jeopardize Conference

The Hague, June 14.—Although no actual news developments are anticipated until the peace conference gets under way and the powers begin to show their hands, it is increasingly apparent that the chief interest will revolve about the jealousy and antagonism between Great Britain and Germany, and there are plenty of pessimists who predict an open clash, which will peopardize if not wreck the work that the conference meets to perform.

Close Call For Four Hundred Miners

Canonsburg, Pa., June 14.—Two men were fatally injured and 400 miners were imprisoned in the Manifold mine for three hours without ventilation by the collapse of an engine house roof, which broke the air compressor connections. The two injured men were pinned beneath the wreckage and escape for all the others cut off. Considerable excitement resulted while the 400 men were entombed, but all were taken out without injury.

Longshoremen Give Up the Fight

New York, June 14.—Nineteen branches of the Longshoremen's union last night declared off the general strike of the longshoremen in this city and vicinity. The strikers returned to work today at the wage rate received before the inauguration of the strike against the trans-Atlantic steamship companies for more pay. The old rate was 30 cents an hour for day work and 45 for night, overtime, Sunday and holiday work.

Panama In Peace Conference

Panama, June 14.—In order to enable its representatives to obtain admittance to the peace conference at The Hague, which for some time seemed doubtful owing to Panama's previous declination of the invitation, the Panama government has cabled the government of Holland its adherence to the agreement arrived at by the last conference.

Sleeping Man Shot Down

New York, June 14.—Nichola Culius of Stamford, Conn., is in jail, charged with shooting and probably fatally injuring Tony Bounks, a Greek restaurant keeper, while the latter lay asleep. Culius was captured after a long chase and is said to have admitted the shooting, saying he did it for a reason which he would relate at the proper time.

Stray Fishermen Rescued

Liverpool, N. S., June 14.—Schooner Onato, from Boston, picked up on the Banks Lemanure August and Brocker Joun, two of the crew of the fishing bark Fauvette de St. Severn. The men strayed from the vessel in a fog and had been adrift in a dory several days without food or water.

Fatality In Auto Contest

Homburg, June 14.—The elimination heats for the Emperor William automobile cup were run off here. One automobile was demolished and a man in the car was killed instantly and the other had both his legs broken. Minor mishaps caused several of the competitors to drop out.

DRIVEN FROM STATE

Bucket Shops Cease Doing Business In Massachusetts

TWO SCORE CLOSE DOORS

Headquarters In Boston Had Various Branches Throughout the State--Futile Efforts to Secure Membership In Consolidated Exchange

Boston, June 14.—The anti-bucket shop bill, which originated in the Massachusetts legislature as a result of a local paper's fight to close out the bucket shops in Boston, and was fostered in the house by Representative Higgins of Somerville and in the senate by Senator Vahey of Watertown, became a law at midnight last night, by virtue of the statute which provides that all bills carrying a penalty, unless otherwise provided, become a law 30 days after enactment.

As a result about 40 so-called bucket shops in Boston, with their various branches throughout the state, yesterday closed up their business entirely or moved outside the state, the penalty of $1000 fine or one year's imprisonment being more than the more venturesome cared to brave.

The legislation of recent years and the agitation against bucket shops has tended largely to reduce the number of these shops in Boston in recent years, and the last measure closes out all houses which cannot show bona fide written statements giving full information as to every sale or purchase executed, with the names of the parties from whom such property is bought or to whom sold, the place where the transaction took place and the price obtained. Under the new law a refusal to furnish such statements to a party doing business is to be considered prima facie evidence that the transaction is "bucketing."

One of the largest concerns affected has already sought to make its headquarters in Providence and will do a telephone business from this city. Other houses will endeavor to connect in a similar way with the Boston offices of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange.

An endeavor has been made to sound the sentiment for a local exchange similar to the New York Consolidated Exchange, but the outlook does not appear to be promising for its establishment. A number of the local brokers have been seeking membership in the New York Consolidated Exchange, but it is said that President Budd has expressed himself as opposed to receiving such Boston members.

The closing of the houses in Boston throws 50 telegraph operators, as well as a large number of clerks and boys, out of employment.

"Invaders" Put to Rout

New York, June 14.—New York's harbor defenses, forts Wadsworth and Hamilton, were called upon yesterday to show what they could or would do in case of an invading foreign fleet. Several small vessels, supposed to represent the giant machines of war, worked inside Sandy Hook, and started for the Narrows. In a few seconds the range finders in the forts had done their work, and for nearly half an hour the guns threw imaginary shells all over the invaders. The fire got so hot that the ships turned tail and retreated. The umpires announced no decision.

"Innocent Visit" Near Midnight

Harrisburg, June 14.—A sensation was caused here by the discovery that William L. Mathues, former state treasurer, who figures in the new capitol scandal, was detected looking over the books of the treasury department about 11 o'clock at night by one of the clerks of that department and a political lieutenant of Mathues from one of the other departments. Mathues insists that his visit was an innocent one, as one of the clerks had offered to show him the system of bookkeeping now in use.

Hopeful Signs In France

Paris, June 14.—The government has secured the adoption by the chamber of deputies of the first clause of its bill intended to provide relief for the winegrowers. It is announced that the disaffection of the troops has been exaggerated and it is established that the strike of the municipalities in support of the winegrowers' demands at present involves only about 10 percent of the disaffected area.

Bomb Outrage on Farmer

Washington, Pa., June 14.—What is believed to be a Black Hand outrage occurred at the home of James Kefover, a farmer, when a glycerine bomb exploded, partially wrecking the building and tearing a large hole in the ground. Nobody was injured. Kefover had received letters threating to blow up his house unless he left $1000 at a designated spot.

Bakers Driven Out of Business

Warsaw, June 14.—This city is suffering from a bakers' lockout, which promises to be the beginning of a general anti-socialist movement. Employers declare that the exaggerated demands of the socialists, the continual strikes and bloodshed and terrorism make it more profitable to quit business than to continue under present conditions.

SCHMITZ IS GUILTY

Mayor of San Francisco Shown to Be a Grafter

VERDICT MEETS APPROVAL

General Handshaking In Court When Foreman of Jury Announced Decision--Conviction Secured Through Testimony of Abe Ruef

San Francisco, June 14.—Mayor Eugene A. Schmitz was last night found guilty of extorting money from keepers of French restaurants in this city. This is the first formal conviction in the anti-graft campaign inaugurated several months ago. Abe Ruef, who was indicted for a similar offense, pleaded guilty to the charges and appeared as a witness against Schmidt.

When the verdict was announced Schmitz sat unmoved with his left hand to his chin. He apparently did not understand, and asked Attorney Barrett: "What is it?"

"Guilty," said Barrett.

Schmitz' hand dropped to the table, but he showed no other signs of emotion.

Judge Dunne announced that judgment will be pronounced June 27. Motions regarding the case will also be entertained on that date. The jury was out 90 minutes.

When Foreman Capp said "guilty" the silence was broken in a hundred places at once. A long-drawn "ah" ran through the crowd and there were many cries of "good." Rudolph Spreckles, whose wealth made possible the whole bribe graft prosecution, was walking swiftly down an aisle as the sentence fell from the foreman's lips. He sank into a nearby chair as though arrested by some sharp command. All over the house people were jumping up now and some of them turned to the strangers at their elbows and thrust out their hands in the enthusiasm of a long-looked-for occasion and cried "shake."

The morning of the last day of the mayor's trial was taken up with Attorney Campbell's closing address of the defense. The afternoon was consumed by Assistant District Attorney Heney in a fierce closing speech for the state. The reading by Judge Dunne of his charge to the jury occupied nearly an hour. Throughout all the afternoon the unprecedented crowd that filled every seat and nook in the audience room and galleries of the synagogue where the trial was held sat or stood tight-wedged, tense and unweary.

Judge Dunne, in defining to the jury what the law means by a threat in connection with extortion, said it must be such a threat as would naturally cause a man of reasonably firm mind to give up his property in fear. He cautioned that a threat in extortion need not be verbal or direct. It may be unspoken and merely implied, and yet come within the meaning of the law. He charged that even if Schmitz received part of the money paid to Ruef by the French restaurant men, but did not know at the time of receiving it that it had been paid under threat, the defendant must be acquitted.

London, June 14.—Addressing the international Red Cross conference, Baron Ozawa, vice president of the Red Cross Society of Japan, said the Japanese ambulance corps during the Russo-Japanese war had to deal with 622,688 cases, and the number they succored in hostile camps and on hostile ships raised the total to far above a million. This was all done on less than $2,500,000. The small cost was due mainly to the strict centralization of the Japanese system.

Wanted In Cleveland

Boston, June 14.—Ernest H. Meyer, who calls himself a manufacturers' agent, was arrested at his office in this city on a charge of being a fugitive from justice from Cleveland, where he is wanted on a technical charge of the larceny of $2000. Meyer was formerly connected with the firm of H. H. Heffler in Cleveland as auditor. It is alleged that he stole several thousand dollars from the firm.

Manchuria Now Up to Date

Mukden, June 14.—On the arrival of Viceroy Hsushik Chiang yesterday Mukden became the viceroyal capital of Manchuria. At the end of a year devoted to the modernizing of its three provinces, Manchuria now possesses a centralized government and after 2½ centuries of Manchu administration becomes, under a Chinese viceroy, the most important province in China.

Guatemalans Fear Intervention

Guatemala City, June 14.—In diplomatic circles here it is rumored that Mexico is determined to interfere in the affairs of Guatemala. Even if the Mexican citizens charged with being connected with the attempt on the life of President Cabrera are exonerated it is stated that another pretext will be found.

No Known Cause For Suicide

Auburn, Me., June 14.—The body of Onesime Olivier of Lewiston, aged 29 and married, was found last night in the Little Androscoggin river. Olivier had been missing from his home since Wednesday night. It is thought to be a case of suicide, although nothing to cause such an act has been learned.

BOUND AND PENNED

Contractor Attacked by Gang of Men Who Wanted Their Back Pay

Westboro, Mass., June 14.—A. E. Dorey, a contractor, who had been laying water pipe for the state insane hospital here, was sued by the state last week for non-fulfilment of his contract. Since then several individuals have served writs on him on account of bills which it is alleged he owed them. Meanwhile the work on the water pipes was tied up, and the Italian laborers were forced to remain idle, with three weeks' back pay due them.

Dorey yesterday sent several men with teams to remove his tools from the place where the work had been carried on. Scarcely had these men placed the boxes of tools on the teams when the 34 Italians, a number of them being armed with rifles and shotguns, forced the drivers to throw the boxes off the wagons and then mounted guard over the tools.

A little while later Dorey arrived and started to move one of the tool boxes himself. Instantly he was seized by several of the Italians, who bound him hand and foot and placed him in one of the shanties. When Dorey made an attempt to escape he was told that if he persisted in his efforts he would be shot.

Meanwhile word of the affair had been sent to Deputy Sheriff Magner, who swore in five special deputies and went with them to the Italian camp. The deputies released Dorey, who went away with them. Dorey swore out warrants against the two ringleaders of the Italians and they were arrested and locked up on assault charges. Dorey suffered no serious effects from his experience.

Burial of Human Brick

Boston, June 14.—It was because Herman Unger was a suicide, and not because his ashes were cemented into the form of a brick, as decreed in his will, that the cemeteries of the orthodox Jewish church in this vicinity declined to allow him to be buried within their precincts. Unger, in brick form, was buried yesterday in the Hand-in-Hand cemetery (liberal Jewish). Unger was a German Jew and a traveling salesman for a firm in Pittsburg. Unsuccessful in business he became morbid and on Memorial day drank poison in his room in a Boston hotel.

Alleged Misapplication of Money

Portland, Me., June 14.—Alpheus L. Hanscome, a lawyer, formerly secretary of the Falmouth Loan and Building association of this city, was arrested on a complaint that he fraudulently converted to his own use $4000 of the association's money. Melville W. Kent, a real estate dealer, was also arrested on a complaint alleging that he aided Hanscome to fraudulently obtain the money. Hanscome and Kent furnished bonds in the sum of $5000 for their appearance before the municipal court.

Must Stand Trial In Boston

Boston, June 14.—Judge Morton, in the superior criminal court, refused to grant the change of venue asked for by Lewis Harris, a strikebreaker, who is charged with the murder of Michael J. Cunningham, a union teamster. Harris' attorney had asked that the trial be held in another county on the alleged ground that an impartial trial could not be obtained here.

Fatal Elevator Accident

Boston, June 14.—Making a misstep while attempting to board a moving elevator, Louis Pomponio, 16, a stock clerk in the employ of the A. S. Morse company, hardware dealers, plunged two stories to the bottom of the elevator well and was almost instantly killed at his place of business. Landing on his head, he sustained a compound fracture of the skull.

Combination of Fish Dealers

Boston, June 14.—In order to carry on its business in this state as a foreign corporation, the Massachusetts Fish company, an organization of fresh fish firms on T wharf, Boston, with a capital under the laws of Maine of $3,000,000, has filed with the state commissioner of corporations the necessary papers.

A MUNICIPAL STRIKE

Serious Deadlock Created In Towns of Southern France

PREMIER ISSUES A WARNING

Public Services Will Be Completely Suspended and Local Treasuries Bankrupted If Municipal Authorities Continue to Refuse to Serve

Paris, June 13.—The government appears to be determined to refuse to accept the resignations of striking municipal officers in the wine district so long as their resignations are not accepted by the prefects, and as no representatives of the central government can be appointed to carry on the duties of the officials who have resigned, a deadlock has thus been created and so long as it continues all municipal acts and works are suspended.

In a letter to the mayors, Premier Clemenceau warns them of the serious results to the people they represent if the officials carry out their determination not to perform their duties. He points out that the law of 1884 gives him a month in which to decide whether he will accept their resignations or decline them and that in the meanwhile the resignations would not become definitive.

The premier, therefore, was not called upon to appoint administrative commissions until the expiration of a month, and under the law the municipalities are responsible for properly carrying on the duties of their offices. Should the municipalities continue to refuse to perform their duty the public services will be completely suspended, marriages cannot be celebrated, nor can permits for burials be issued, as only the municipal authorities have power to grant them.

M. Clemenceau further reminds the mayors that the local treasuries will be bankrupted by their refusal to pay taxes, the communes will lose their share of the taxes and, in the event of the taxes not being collected, the government will refuse to make the advances necessary to meet the local expenses.

Specially summoned to Paris in order to discuss the best means of dealing with the abnormal situation in their departments, the prefects of Herault, Aude Pyranese-Orientales and Gard had a long conference with Clemenceau, who gave the prefects full instructions as to their course of conduct toward the striking municipalities, counselling conciliation so far as compatible with the proper maintenance of the law.

Up to the present the prefects have declined to accept the proffered resignations of the mayors and the premier is trying to arouse the patriotism of the mayors by means of a circular pointing out that the interests of their fellow-citizens are bound to suffer if they persist in rupturing relations with the central government.

In the meanwhile the municipalities continue to join the anti-tax strike, and altogether some 50 local bodies in the four departments most concerned have handed in their resignations. Except in isolated instances the strike is merely a form of passive resistance. No disturbances of any moment have been reported among the civilian population, though the attitude of some of the regiments recruited in the south occasions anxiety.

In some of the towns the outgoing mayors and town councils are taking the precaution to wall up the doors of the town halls with the object of keeping out any temporary administrative commissioners which the prefects might appoint to carry on the local administration.

The time set by the general wine growers' committee at Argeliers for the handing in of the resignations of the municipal officers expired last night. If the movement is to become general today should see a large increase in the number of towns left without local government.

The annual garrison maneuvers at Narbonne, department of Aude, which ought to commence today, lasting 10 days, have been abandoned. General Pailloud, in issuing the order, added significantly: "Regiments must not even be permitted to enter the town. All drills and exercises must be carried out in the barracks." The object of the order is to keep the troops from fraternizing with the discontented wine-growers.

Out of 100 odd communes in the four departments involved, more than 120 already are in a state of municipal anarchy, and fresh resignations are pouring into the prefectures. The quitting of municipal officers is usually attended with much ceremony. Generally a crepe streamer is hoisted at the flagstaff and the mayor burns his official sash in public.

Fast Mail Train In Smashup

Huron, O., June 13.—A fast mail train struck the caboose of a freight train here last evening, throwing it upon the pilot of the engine of the passenger train. Two freight cars were derailed, but no one was injured.

No War Upon Guatemala

Benefit Game For Stahl's Widow

Boston, June 14.—The Providence Eastern League team defeated the Boston Americans, 3 to 2, in 16 innings. The receipts of the game, which are to be turned over to the widow of the late "Chick" Stahl, formerly manager of the local team, amounted in all to $3140.50.

Drowning Men's Cries Were Heard

Norfolk, June 14.—The body of Coxswain Dodson of the battleship Minnesota's ill-fated launch, which, with its 11 occupants, went to the bottom of Hampton Roads in the darkness of Tuesday night, was found floating in the roads yesterday. It now seems to be accepted in naval circles that the launch was run down by a coal barge shortly after the frail boat left Discovery landing. Commodore Evans' yacht Chilhowee, with a party of Baltimoreans, was anchored off the exposition grounds, and cries of the drowning midshipmen and sailors were heard coming over the water, though the party at that time believed that the noises were made by jubilant parties returning from the army and navy ball.

Rate Law's Constitutionality Attacked

Washington, June 14.—An important answer has been filed by the Pullman company to a complaint recently filed with the interstate commerce commission, alleging that the Pullman company exacted excessive and unreasonable charges for its sleeping car accommodations. The company insists that the charges are entirely just and proper and denies the authority of the commission to issue an order to reduce fares. The Pullman company also attacks the constitutionality of the railroad rate law.

Our Army Needs Building Up

Minneapolis, June 14.—A note of warning because of the inadequacy of the land forces of the United States was sounded here last night by Secretary of War Taft in a speech before the Minneapolis club. He said that the present army is deplorably weak. The fortifications on either coast are only half-manned. He said one of the great needs of the army, in addition to more men, is a large addition to its officers, so that volunteers might be properly handled in war.

Torpedo Boat Badly Damaged

Washington, June 14.—The following dispatch regarding the collision between the torpedo boats Whipple and Blakeley came to the navy department from Norfolk: "Whipple rammed Blakeley in coming to wharf, cutting completely into the after fire room, driving the Blakeley against the sea wall and flattening in her bow. Whipple uninjured. The accident due to errors in engine room, going away full speed when signalled to back."

Rate Law Strikes a Snag

Kansas City, June 14.—District Judge McPherson has granted the petition of 18 Missouri railroads for a temporary order restraining the state officials from putting into effect both the maximum freight rate and the 2-cent passenger law.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Local Budget In a Nut Shell

Rev. A. R. Atwood delivers the address this evening at the meeting of the Clark C. E. Union at the Second Congregational church at Cohasset.

On Saturday, June 29, the McGregor football team of this city will play in the semi finals with the Andovers for the Massachusetts cup, the winner to play latter the Fore Rivers of this city.

The Quincy Historical society holds its annual meeting this afternoon at four o'clock at the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams, to be followed at five by a reception and tea, given by the president, Mr. Brooks Adams.

The Universalist Dorcas Society took a well earned pleasure trip on Thursday evening. "The Girl I Left Behind Me" was the object of interest, and they enjoyed it as only the Dorcas know how. Each one was armed with her specs and a box of fudge, and time passed all too quickly, leaving each and all eagerly looking torward to another such time in the early future.

Edmund G. Hayden of 58 West street made a very daring capture of a runaway team belonging to Mr. McPherson of Germantown Thursday evening, near corner of Franklin street and Independence avenue. The horse had run from Houghs Neck and came through the streets in a wild career. Fortunately no damage was reported. It was a miracle that through the business section no accident happened.

Remains a Tie.

Fighting gallantly every foot of the way, Miss Fanny C. Osgood, Brookline and Miss Mary B. Adams, Wollaston, tied again in their 18-hole play-off for first place in the championship tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf Association at Atlantic City on Thursday. Each made a score of 94, giving the the total of 283 for 54 holes. The committee has ruled that the pair go another 12-hole round Friday.—Herald.

An inquest will be held before Judge Avery next Friday, June 21, on the death of Charles Hagg, John P. Sandeen and and Gerald G. Fitzgibbons, the three men killed by the explosion at the Fore River shipyard on Tuesday afternoon. The body of Fitzgibbons has not been claimed as yet by relatives.

MUST MARRY OR PAY FINES.

Iowa Bachelors in Dismay While Spinsters Seem to Feel Relief.

Consternation reigns in the ranks of of bachelors and spinsters at Fort Dodge, Ia., because the city council has passed unanimously an ordinance that all bachelors and spinsters must be married within sixty days or pay fines. There is a certain contingent of the spinsters, however, which views the situation with grim satisfaction. It is made up of old maids who have been waiting for years for desirable men to "pop the question" and who now feel that the ordinance will put an end to the period of weary waiting. This is the text of the ordinance:

"That all ablebodied persons between the ages of twenty-five and forty-five years whose mental and physical propensities and abilities are normal who are not now married shall be required to marry within sixty days.

"Any person or persons failing to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100, according to the criminal negligence of the person or persons unmarried."

Bachelors and spinsters who do not want to marry already are organizing to test the legality of the ordinance in the courts.

"If there are any who desire to escape the penalty provided I shall be at my office all day to perform marriage ceremonies free of charge or can be reached by telephone at my residence at any hour of the night," Mayor Bennett said. "The ordinance represents the most enlightened thought of the day and is a precedent which will be widely followed before the end of the present decade."

VANISHING PUBLIC LANDS.

End Would Have Come Soon if Hitchcock Had Not Stopped Frauds.

At the beginning of this government the public lands amounted to 2,295,000,000 acres. The quantity of land that has passed in the last twenty-four years from the government to states, individuals and corporations is equal, says the Outlook, to a strip of territory across the continent including all of New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Washington and Oregon.

Since 1862 there have been 100,000,000 acres taken up in homesteading. Where has the remainder of the public lands gone? To railways, lumber companies, cattle companies and speculators, and large portions have been allotted to the states.

It is generally admitted that if the depredations upon the public lands had not been checked in 1903 by Ethan Allen Hitchcock, backed by a courageous president, the end of the present administration would have seen the nation despoiled of all of its remaining agricultural, forest and mineral lands.

Fishing Fever.

Oh, the spring is calling, mother,
Calling me to fields and wood,
To the sparkling little streamlet
Where the early fishing's good!

Oh, the whippoorwill is calling,
Mother, calling me to come,
For it says in song ecstatic
That the fish are biting some.

So call me early, mother;
I'll be Johnny on the spot,
For I'm bound to go a-fishing,
Whether Thaw gets off or not!

A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control.

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation or cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twings of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatism Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatism Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

Believing that exact knowledge promotes co-operation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is publishing a series of brief expositions of some phases of telephony, for the benefit of itself, and, as it hopes, for the benefit of all telephone users.

"THEY DON'T ANSWER."

It is always annoying when you are trying to get somebody on the telephone to be told that "they don't answer." And if you are in an unusual hurry, or are particularly disappointed, or are a little excited—for the moment you have waited seems like an age sometimes—you may think that "Central' is to blame. If you are specially irritated you may even accuse the operator of not having tried at all to get the person you want.

Look into your exchange some day—the manager will be glad to see you any time—and watch how its work is done. Then you'll feel differently about it. You can rest assured that if "Central" says "they don't answer," they don't. She has tried her best to get them, but without success.

The first thing the operator does when you give her a call is to "test" to see if the number you ask for is busy. If the line is not in use, she connects with it and rings the subscriber's bell. If nobody answers her first ring within 15 seconds she rings again. If there is still silence after another quarter of a minute she rings a third time. If there is no response in the next 15 seconds she reports to you "they don't answer." Then she will ring again, and again, and again, if you ask her to. It is a good deal like ringing someone's door-bell. If nobody comes to let you in after you have rung two or three times you make up your mind that the family is out and go away. The telephone company has to stop somewhere, and it gives up at the end of a minute and a half to two minutes, after ringing three times, unless it is asked to keep on.

Most often, you will notice, it is when you call up a residence that you are told "they don't answer." The reason is simple when you come to think of it, but probably it doesn't occur to everybody. In a business place the telephone is pretty sure to be located where the bell can be heard easily and there is someone whose business it is to answer calls. At any rate, there is always somebody near the instrument to answer promptly in business hours. There are lots of times, of course, when there is nobody at home to answer a residence telephone. Besides, a good many people insist on having their house telephones put in out of the way corners. The result is that the ringing of the bell is not always heard, and, even when it is heard, answering it means a trip into another room or upstairs. Then, too, it is not always convenient to drop housework or leave company and go to the telephone instantly, and that makes a delay which gives the impression that there is nobody on hand to answer your summons.

These things no doubt have a good deal to do with your being told "they don't answer." In many cases they account for your meeting a friend every now and then who says, when you tell him you tried to call him up and couldn't get him, that he "was there all the time." They also go to explain why, when you answer your own telephone after delay, you are sometimes told by the operator that "there is nobody on your line now." The person who was calling you has given you up and gone away.

Submarine Disasters

Inventors of the submarine boats in foreign countries do not seem to be as successful as the Electric Boat Company of Quincy. The Boston Heralds prints a dispatch from Portsmouth, Eng., today which reports that Lieut. Hart of the royal navy was killed and three sailors were injured by an explosion of gasoline Friday on board a submarine boat.

The submarine was a vessel of the latest type and was manoeuvring in the harbor when the explosion, which was caused by an accumulation of gas, occurred.

The explosion makes the third accident to British submarine boats since Feburary, 1905. On that date the submarine A-5 sank off Queenstown after a gasoline explosion killing Lieut. Skinner, the commander, and three of the crew. Fourteen others were seriously injured.

On June 8, 1905, the submarine A-8 sank off Plymouth from a similar gasoline explosion, and 14 lost their lives.

On Oct. 16 last another English submarine was sunk by an explosion off Plymouth, but all on board were rescued.

The British submarine A-1 on March 18, 1904, while submerged, was run down by a vessel near Partsmouth and all her crew were lost.

A French submarine boat sank to the bottom off the coast of Tunis on July 6, last, with a crew of 13, 12 of whom were lost. An open port hole caused the disaster.

On Oct. 16, 1906, the French submarine Lutin failed to rise after making a descent off the coast of Tunis, and all on board were lost.

The accidents in England, says the Herald, has drawn attention to the recent trials of new submarines here. In these new boats the gasoline and sulphuric acid tanks are protected by a special arrangement, so that there is only the veriest minimum of danger.

"The greatest danger beneath the surface is a leak,' said Engineer Daniels, who is in charge of the submarine navy school at Fore River. "In many of the accidents to submarine boats the cause can be traced to negligence on the part of her crew or officers. If the proper precautions are observed there should be little or no danger.

"So very often officers have paid with their lives the penalty of carelessness," he continued. "A submarine boat is the last place for one who is inclined to be careless. Each member of the crew is intrusted with some particular duty, and on his performance of that duty at the right time perhaps the lives of the entire crew depend. In some accidents kingstons have been left open, or the tower hatch has not been properly secured. In the case of the British submarine A-1, which was run down by a liner while rising, it was evident that the officer was not sweeping the entire horizon with his periscope, as he should have been. Otherwise it is likely he would have seen his danger in time."

Secretary Colton's Work in the West

The Daily Ledger has received from Fort Collins, Colorado, a copy of the Evening Couier of June 6, containing an account of the corner stone exercises of the new Y. M. C. A., building where Oscar C. Colton, formerly of the Quincy association, is secretary.

The building will consist of three stories and basement. The basement itself stands almost on the level of the street, so as to give the effect of a four story building. Those who have been responsible for the plans of the building have endeavored to introduce only those features which have been tried and proved of value. They have tried to plan for future needs and yet they realize that at the present rate of growth it will only be a few years until the building will be too small. This has been the experience of all associations.

In the first plase, the committee has endeavored to provide adequate quarters for the boys from twelve to eighteen years of age, entirely separate from the men except in the physical department. Consequently the entire east end of the basement is given up to this department. The boys will enter their department through a separate door under the porch.

The building is about 130 by 70 feet and will stand upon a corner lot. It will have reception hall, reading room, social room, club room, gymnasium, running track, swimming pool, assembly hall, class rooms, kitchen toilet and bath rooms, lockers, exercise room, dormitory rooms, etc.

On June 9, 1906, a call was extended to Mr. Colton. He began his duties Sept. 1, and appears to be making good. The cost of the lot and building will be about $60,000 and subscriptions for the full amount have been received.

SURPRISE FOR JAPANESE.

Omaha's Cowboy Mayor Frightened Oriental Visitors by Lassoing Them.

It came to light recently that James Dahlman, the cowboy mayor of Omaha, "roped" M. Takagi and M. Ogiko, editors of the Law Journal of Tokyo, who are studying jurisprudence in the United States and who stopped over in Omaha for a day and were entertained by distinguished citizens, says an Omaha special dispatch to the New York Times.

The Japanese had heard that Mayor Dahlman had been a cow puncher on the western plains. They asked him about it, and for answer the mayor picked up a rope, and before his visitors knew what had happened he had stepped across the room and thrown it over the head of M. Takagi, immediately afterward picking up another one and lassoing M. Ogiko.

The Japanese did not know anything about roping cattle, and the mayor's stunt not only astonished, but frightened them, causing them to jump to their feet, their faces pale, and cry out. Their fears were dispelled when the mayor laughed heartily and took the ropes off their necks.

"Do you lasso people and tie them down when they break your laws?" asked M. Ogiko.

"No; we only lasso cattle," said the mayor, and then he told them all about roping steers, much to their delight.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Hold Annual Meeting And Plan for Old Home Week

An increasing interest in the Quincy Historical Society is noted, the annual meeting of yesterday, being attended by over fifty ladies and gentlemen. It was held at the cottage of President John Adams, where President John Quincy Adams was born in 1767.

At the business meeting the old board of curators was reelected, viz: Brooks Adams, Emery L. Crane, James L. Edwards, Rev. E. N. Hardy, George W. Morton, W. G. A. Pattee and Fred B. Rice. The secretary is a member ex officio.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Alden, the very efficient secretary, declined a reelection to that office, much to the regret of the members. The secretary reported a membership of 135.

James L. Edwards, the treasurer, reported all bills paid, and a surplus in the treasury.

Mrs. R. R. Freeman, one of the delegates to the Bay State league which met with the Medford Historical Society Nov. 4, 1906, reported at length. The subject discussed was the "Elements of success in local historical societies."

During the social hour President sandwiches, delicious ices, fancy cakes, frappe, Russion tea, etc. Mrs. Emery L. Crane presided at the frappe bowl, and Mrs. George W. Morton at the tea urn. Mr. Adams was also assisted by Emery L. Crane, James L. Edwards, H. H. Schumacher, Fred B. Rice and others.

Maddalena of Boston was the caterer, and the banquet table was attractively set and adorned with bouquets of tiger lilies. There were also in the rooms bouquets of beautiful columbine, peonies, snow balls and other flowers.

At the meeting of the curators, which followed, these officers for 1907—1908 were elected:

President,—Brooks Adams.
Vice President,—Fred B. Rice.
Secretary,—Emery L. Crane.
Treasurer,—James L. Edwards.
Librarian,—H. Houghton Schumacher.

Twelve ladies and gentlemen were elected as members.

There was a general discussion on the work of the society and especially in connection with Old Home Week. Mrs. Emery L. Crane, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Alden and Mrs. George W. Morton were appointed a commitee on hospitality for Old Home Week, and Rev. E. N. Hardy, George W. Morton and James L. Edwards were appointed a committee on publicity, souvenirs etc.

The society will also place an appropriate bronze tablet on the front of the Adams birthplace.

Premier Stolypin Demands Suspension of Socialist Deputies

ULTIMATUM TO THE DOUMA

Referred to Committee Whose Decision Will Be Adverse to Government--Means Speedy Dissolution of Lower Branch of Parliament

St. Petersburg, June 15.—The dissolution of the lower house of the Russian parliament appears to be a question of only a few hours, or at most of a day or two.

With only 130 opposing votes, the lower house last night rejected Premier Stolypin's ultimatum for the immediate suspension of 55 deputies for membership in the Social Democratic party and referred the subject to a committee. Although the committee has been instructed to report today, it is known in advance that the decision on the main question will be adverse and that the douma will accept the recommendation.

In order to keep strictly within the legal limits, the committee may recommend the suspension of 16 leaders on condition that the government disclose the evidence against them, but there is not the slightest expectation on either side that this will save the situation.

An extraordinary session of the council of ministers is being held to discuss the decision of the lower house. No report has been received of the doings of the council, and no decree of dissolution has been issued. The general impression is that no edict will be promulgated pending final action by the lower house.

The session of the St. Petersburg committee of the Social Democrats was attended by a large number of the accused deputies. The committee is discussing a proposal to proclaim a general strike in the capital. This meeting is being held in secret, the police having occupied the headquarters of the party.

Remembering the fiasco of the strike called after the dissolution of the last douma, the committee is hesitating to adopt this measure, although delegates from the workmen in all quarters of the city report that the conditions are ripe for a successful industrial strike and that there is a possibility of extending the movement to the several railroads centering in St. Petersburg.

The situation, however, is not considered propitious for the spreading of the strike throughout the country, and the possibility at the present moment of an open revolutionary movement or armed uprising is regarded by the committee as entirely excluded. The prestige of the military organization has been particularly affected by recent arrests, which have almost entirely nullified the effects of the propaganda in the army.

The demand of the government for the surrender of the 55 deputies in question came as a complete surprise. During the past fortnight it has been persistently and positively reported in government reactionary circles that it had been decided to abolish the present douma as a pernicious element in the life of the state, and that the cabinet was determined to seize upon or manufacture a pretext for dissolution at the first favorable opportunity. The Constitutional Democrats, however, had been lulled into complete security by official denials, and they refused to credit the statements of the reactionary deputies.

The reactionaries are openly jubilant. They have no hesitation in avowing that the demand for the suspension of the Social Democratic deputies is only a provocation, made without the slightest expectation that it will be granted. Should the douma yield in the matter of the Social Democrats, Prosecutor Kameshansky is ready with a similar complaint against certain Social Revolutionary representatives. The present step is regarded by the reactionary deputies as a turning back of the hands of Russian history to an hour before the promulgation of the famous October manifesto.

It is a foregone conclusion that no new douma will be convoked on the basis of the present election law. A new law, restricting the suffrage by educational and property qualifications and throwing more power into the hands of the conservative landowners, is ready for promulgation. It is admitted that such an act is a flat breach of the fundamental law, which expressly forbids any alteration of the electoral statutes under any circumstances without the assent of the douma, but it is justified by the argument that what the autocrat has given the autocrat can retract.

Professor Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, said to The Associated Press:

"It looks as if the battle must be fought all over again. The promulgation of this new election law will deprive the douma of every element of popular representation and put the country back just where it was before the manifesto of freedom. It may be a long and hard struggle, but we count, as before, on the assistance of the government to shorten it by injudicious measures."

BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Possible Light on Manner In Which Eleven Naval Men Were Drowned

Norfolk, June 15.—After many hours of dragging of the waters of Hampton Roads in a systematic search by the navy for the bodies of the 11 victims of the sinking of the battleship Minnesota's launch early Tuesday morning, a grappling party located the launch and bodies of the men in 27 feet of water off the Ripraps. The search had been kept up in the vicinity of the course likely to have been taken by the party on its return from the exposition grounds to the warship lying at anchor in the Roads.

With canopy frame crushed, but canvas still tightly fastened down, the missing launch was located about 1600 yards west by south of Fort Wool. Across the little craft was a tell-tale piece of towing line, serving to convince the naval officers that they were right in their theory that the launch was run down by a float of some kind in tow of a tug. The diver who went to examine the launch reported that the heads and arms of three men were protruding from beneath the canvas covering, the men having made a desperate fight for life when they were carried down like rats in a trap.

Naval officers are convinced that the boat ran into a towline and was thrown under a square-end barge or float. If this happened the launch must have been literally mashed beneath the water, and its occupants had no chance to escape.

Several expressions of sympathy have been received from representatives of foreign governments, who mourn with the American navy the loss of the six midshipmen and the five seamen drowned.

Taft Temporarily Knocked Out

St. Paul, June 15.—After recovering from an attack of acute indigestion, the result of a long series of banquets, Secretary of War Taft last night braved a dollar dinner to which he sat down with 2000 diners whom he had kept waiting from 6 o'clock until 7:45 in order to recover from the illness that attacked him during the afternoon at Fort Snelling. When Taft reached the banquet hall the 2000 diners and 2000 spectators arose and cheered lustily.

Relieved His Mind on Gallows

Atlanta, June 15.—Standing on the gallows, Will Johnson, a negro convicted of criminally assaulting a white woman, confessed his crime, as well as several other assaults and murders that have mystified the police of Fulton county for the past year. When he had finished he warned his hearers to avoid his example, and the trap was sprung. Another negro was sentenced to 40 years' imprisonment for one of the crimes that Johnson confessed.

Celebration of Flag Day

New York, June 15.—Six hundred thousand little pupils of the schools of New York celebrated Flag day with appropriate exercises. The story of the Stars and Stripes, and how Betsy Ross, seamstress, put them together in her little Philadelphia house in 1777 to form the national flag, was told by hundreds of school principals and teachers.

Tobacco Is Not a Luxury

Washington, June 15.—The government officially declares tobacco to be not a luxury but a necessity, in a decision by the comptroller of the treasury. The question arose through a number of laborers employed for the construction of the Panama canal, who had been held in quarantine demanding tobacco during confinement.

Suppression of Church Services

Paris, June 15.—The archbishop of Bordeaux has decided to suppress all church services in a number of communes of his diocese because the municipal authorities have ordained that the bells of the churches must be rung on the occasion of civil marriages and funerals, although unaccompanied by religious ceremonies.

New York, June 15.—George Burnham, Jr., former general counsel for the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance company, whose conviction on a charge of grand larceny was set aside, was restored to the list of practitioners in the supreme court. He had been disbarred from practice after his conviction.

End of Long-Drawn-Out Hearing

Old World And New.

.....By W. S. ODLIN.

Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"He looks as if he were one of the statues, just a part of this wonderful picture of the old Italy and the new rolled into one," mused Penelope Gardiner. "He is really more than life size—six feet four if he is an inch."

Her aunt, Mrs. Hammell, swung around sharply.

"Who? Oh, that guard? It is his helmet, my dear child, and his high heeled boots. Wouldn't you think he'd be ashamed to pose like that at the head of the grand staircase? Did you ever see so much gilt braid and shiny leather on one human being?"

Mrs. Hammell's voice had executed a gradual crescendo, and Penelope reached forth a protesting hand.

"Don't speak so loud, auntie, dear. He might understand."

But the great, square shouldered figure in glittering uniform stood as impassive as the knight in the old Gobelin tapestry before which Mrs. Hammell stood enraptured, though she continued to criticise the king's guard.

"That's just the difference between our soldiery and what we see abroad. Every one of our lads holds possibilities of doing big things. Foreign soldiers are mere puppets."

Penelope replied with conviction:

"I don't agree with you. That man has the face, the bearing, of one who will some day do things that are worth while. He makes me think of that tapestry knight, setting out to fight for his true love."

Mrs. Hammell gasped and closed her Baedeker with a snap.

"My dear Penelope, I am amazed! If you behave this way over the first handsome man you see in uniform, how will you feel by the time we have attended a few receptions and met the real nobility, rising young diplomats and all that sort of thing?"

"Thoroughly disgusted, I presume," said Penelope coldly, "and I hope we shall not go to any receptions where tiny men, with waxed mustaches and mincing steps, will look through my backbone to daddy's newly acquired bank account. It is because that man is so big, so strong and looks as if he could move heaven and earth to achieve for the woman he loved that I was studying him. It is so seldom that I meet a man whom I could look up to," ended Penelope, with a sigh for her five feet eleven inches of graceful slenderness. "I was considering him only as an abstract quantity, a hypothetical man, so to speak."

"I should hope so," was her aunt's indignant reply. "Why, these special guards of the king are gathered in the north of Italy solely for their height, the guidebook says, and no doubt he was found grubbing in some wretched farm or vineyard. In New York he would be working in the subway."

Penelope turned and started to cross the great throne room where through an open window the soft Italian sunlight beckoned to her. The martial figure at the entrance so close to the Gobelin tapestry had not moved the half of an inch, but above the gold braid on his collar and rising up the peak of his helmet was an unmistakable flush.

Penelope paused, frozen in her tracks, but the man looked straight ahead. She crossed to the window, resting her head wearily on her gloved hand. Her glance traveled over the great courtyard of the palace, while Mrs. Hammell completed her tour of the tapestry hung walls.

"He understood English—every word we said. How intolerably stupid of us! And auntie said he probably grubbed on a farm! No wonder these foreigners think we Americans are rude. We are so secure and snug in our ignorance of their language that we cannot believe they understand ours."

The sunlight waned, and Penelope knew that out on the Appian way tender amethyst shadows were settling. Why could not her aunt be satisfied with Rome's beautiful outdoor life, its drives and walks? Why must she spend days and days in musty churches and hideously garish palaces? She looked back into the room. Lovely shadows softened the gilt frames and furniture, red and blues blended into purple, and the uniformed figure right faced abruptly. He had dared to watch her as she stood thus at the window! Well, it served her right for talking about human beings as if they were statues or curios.

That night she wrote in her diary:

"Spent entire afternoon in the royal palace. Tapestries remarkable, but rather boring. Bedrooms reserved for various royal guests reminded me of Waldorf-Astoria. Were not permitted to enter royal suit, of course, but heard laughter of royal children through folding doors, and a hurdy gurdy playing in what must have been the nursery. Italy is a place of disillusions. The natives are learning English, the better to do you, my dear!"

* * * * * * *

Penelope Gardiner held off the plate card at arm's length and studied it critically.

"It's lovely, Pen—you ought to charge more for your work. You could get it, you know. Rich women love to patronize girls like you"—

"Who once ate off their plates, instead of painting plate cards for them? I think I will charge Mrs. Fitch half a dollar more for each of these cards. They were done to match her Italian villa dining room, you know."

"What I do know," pursued Penelope's caller, "is that you are going with me to Archie Hunter's studio tea this afternoon. The way you have shut yourself off from all of us, just because your father dropped money in the wrong copper mine, is inexcusable, Pen—there are so many who loved you in spite of your money and love you more now because you haven't any—won't you come?"

St. Anthony himself couldn't refuse you, Kathie," said Penelope, pushing aside her work. "I am going, and what is more, I shall wear my new spring frock, made over from one that last year I might have given to my maid."

Penelope could say such things without a touch of bitterness. She seemed rather to glory in the fact that she was self supporting, able to face the world which had promised her so much and then withdrawn its hypocritical smiles.

Through the open door of Hunter's studio came the click of teacups and a confused murmur of well bred voices.

"Jolly glad to see you," exclaimed Hunter, looking up into Penelope's gray blue eyes. Sometimes he had thought that if he could have looked down instead of up, she might have said "Yes," instead of "No."

"Isn't it a good crowd today? You see, I had something special to bring them. You haven't met Lecca yet, have you? Hello there, old chap! I want you to know Miss Gardiner. You wouldn't think he was an Italian, eh, Pen?" Hunter rattled on. "Who ever heard of a six foot Italian, with blond hair at that?"

"My friend Hunter said that he would not make of me either a lion or yet a curio, but listen how he talks." Some one turned on an electric light and before its flash the soft shadows of the studio disappeared. Penelope gave a little gasp and slowly from Lecca's face every vestige of color faded.

Penelope recovered first.

"Ah, there is Dorothy Kent pouring tea. I know it will be worth drinking." And Lecca, dazed, watched the trail of a shimmering ciel blue voile skirt across Hunter's priceless rugs to the tea table. There for several minutes she stood with her back turned full upon the group around her host and his guest of honor.

She was the center of another laughing group when she felt his compelling gaze drawing her away from the chatter. Hunter was speaking to her in a tone which the tense, nervous girl did not realize was one of renunciation.

"Lecca has been unpacking some of his traps in my farther room. He wants to know if you would like to see them. It's an honor, Pen. Even I have not seen the picture he expects to exhibit at the academy next month. He's a fine fellow. Met him last year in Paris. Awfully glad he has taken a shine to you."

Without speaking Penelope passed through the door whose hangings Lecca drew aside for her. He crossed to a canvas and threw back the drapery which hid it.

"I have named it 'The Old World and the New,'" he said simply.

Penelope looked with widening eyes. There was the tapestried wall of the throne room in all its old world colorings, faded, in places almost obscure, while against it, vital, full of grace and vigor, was the figure of an alert American girl clad in navy blue broadcloth, a velvet picture hat on her soft brown hair and a great bouquet of Roman violets at her belt.

"You see, I have done wh..t you said—something worth while—and, having done it, I have come to show it to you and your people. I wanted you to know that you had made it possible—it is not for sale"— He drew himself up proudly, and she reached out her head pleadingly.

"And if it was—I—I could not buy it. Much has happened to me since the day—in the throne room. We—we have lost everything."

"Ah!" The man drew a long, deep breath. "Fate has indeed been kind, otherwise I might not speak! I was a foolish boy, unworthy son of a gifted father, proud of my authority in the royal guard and my toy uniform—faugh—until you came and the man in me cried out in shame. You said I could do it. Have I done it well enough to please you?"

She bowed her head and then raised it again. Yes, without the helmet and the high heels, he still towered above her, and then her eyes fell before his earnest gaze.

"That day—it was the same, the glance, the flash, you will forgive me, the message of love. In our country love does not wait. Yet for five years I have worked for you. All I am you have made. Today I may be artist to our king. Will you come?"

"To my king—yes."

And, though his next words were of his own country, the girl understood, for the language of love is the same in the old world and in the new.

Men as Boarders.

A woman who has made a modest competence by running a private hotel says she would rather have women as boarders than men. Perhaps they are a little inquisitive about one another's affairs, she admits, and disposed to find fault oftener than they are justified in doing. On the other hand, they usually voice their complaints either directly or in such a manner that the criticisms soon reach the landlady's ears. Men, on the contrary, don't lodge so many open complaints, but they make bitter remarks to one another, and it is seldom that remarks are repeated to the hostess until too late to offset their bad effect. This woman puts herself on record as saying that when men are inclined to be at all disagreeable they are much more difficult to deal with than women. One can always soothe disgruntled women by a little extra attention to their comfort, she says, but the male boarder or hotel guest who undertakes to criticise a place harshly is a hopeless case.—Kansas City Star.

DEVIL'S TOWER A RESERVE.

A Queer Rock Formation In Northeastern Wyoming.

President Roosevelt has issued an order setting aside the Devil's tower, a peculiar geographical formation in northeastern Wyoming, as a national monument and a federal reserve, writes a Deadwood correspondent of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. Nearly 2,000 acres of land also are set aside with the tower. This reserve will be under the care of the general land office of that district, no entries will be allowed on it, and every effort will be made to protect the tower from injury.

This Devil's tower is a chimney-like mountain of rock that rises 800 feet above the surrounding country and for almost 500 feet is nearly perpendicular and devoid of any growth of vegetation. The top of the tower is large enough in area for a baseball team to play a good game and is covered with a scant soil formed from the disintegrated rock and bearing moss, cactus and ferns.

Two men are known to have climbed this tower at the risk of their lives. One of them was Jack Rogers, an old cowboy, and the other was Arthur Jobe, a young engineer for the Homestake Mining company.

The tower stands on the bank of the upper Belle Fourche river and has been for years one of the landmarks of the country. It was at one time included in an entry made by Miss Kent, an Englishwoman, who filed on a homestead including this mountain. This entry afterward was canceled.

WELLMAN TO TAKE DOGS.

Sledding Equipment to Go In North Pole Explorer's Balloon.

In a letter recently printed in the Chicago Record-Herald and bearing a Paris date Walter Wellman tells of the novel features and his changed plans for his dash to the north pole this fall. The greatly increased amount of food that will be carried necessitated a big increase in the weight of the airship which he will use, for the voyage in the air and the details of changes and the provisions made for sledging operations are told at length. In his letter Wellman says:

"We are glad to be able to announce that when the America starts northward from our headquarters in Spitzbergen, as we hope and believe she will start late next July or in the early part of August, the grand total weight carried in the air or dragging over the surface of the earth, gliding on the ice or swimming in the water, will be upward of ten and a half tons, or more than 21,000 pounds."

While firmly believing that the big balloon will carry the party to the pole and southward again in safety, Wellman says that to provide against every possible contingency a complete sledging equipment, dogs, sleds and all, will be carried on the aerial voyage. Then if the big balloon should fall when, for instance, within fifty miles of the pole, the journey could be continued over the ice—that is, if the journey from a dizzy height in the air to the ice is made without mishap.

ELECTRICAL ROUTE FOR HIM.

Maine Man Says That 12,000 Volts Is Like "Sailing, Sailing."

"If I was born to be killed it's the lightning route for mine every time," said Michael Clisham, a roofer, after he had rubbed against a live wire carrying 12,000 volts, rolled off a pitch roof, bumped on a flat roof and landed on his head on the ground badly battered, but still in the union, says a Bangor (Me.) special to the New York Times.

Clisham and a fellow workman were recently repairing some slates on the gashouse at Bangor. Clisham knew the wires were there and also that his partner was a bit careless and so took the risk himself. He made a slip and barely touched the wires. That was about all that he remembers until he woke up in the Emergency hospital with his hands bandaged.

"Take it from me, it's the easy way," said Clisham. "There was a buz-z-z-z, like a planing mill. Then a dreamy, don't you care kind of feeling—sailing, sailing like, and that was about all. If the dose I got was anything like the real thing they serve up in the electric chair it's the slickest route to the great beyond."

Popularity of Submarine Boats.

Within a year England will have fifty-two submarine boats, while France will have eighty-two. Russia has twenty-nine and Japan ten.

To King Alfonso.

Congratulations, Alf; I'd like to shake your hand!
May blessings fall upon the people of your land;
May every peasant's heart be touched with love today
For her and him and you—long may you live to sway,
And may she long be spared to bless you
more and more,
And may you never be compelled to walk
the floor.

We smashed your navy, Alf; but that was years ago
And just an incident of cruel war, you know,
So let's be friends again; in truth we wish you joy,
For you a cheer and six for her and for the boy;
May happiness for all your subjects be in store,
And may you never be compelled to walk
the floor.

Though seas between us roll and foemen
we have been,
The touch of nature still has power to make us kin;
Oh, may the little hand so fragile and so weak
Ne'er strike a blow to bring a tear to any cheek!
May she who brings you joy keep bringing more and more,
And may you never be compelled to walk
the floor.

BOSTON LETTER

General Bartlett Is Absolutely In the Field For Governor

WHITNEY CAMPAIGN OPENED

Governor Guild Tackled Merger of New Haven and Boston and Maine Fearlessly--He Is Bound to Protect Interest of People and State

Politics this year are much more forward than the season. It is time for warm weather, but until recently the breezes have been very chill, and any candidacy which was ready to put forth leaves and blossom was liable to a heavy frost.

But in a state which is nominally considered Republican, Democratic candidates, in order to make any sort of a show with the voters, ordinarily have to begin their campaigns much earlier than Republicans inaugurate theirs. For Massachusetts is still reckoned by outsiders among the Republican states, and there is no doubt that it still has a prejudice against the Democracy.

There are plenty of reasons why this is so. The Democrats made large promises of what great things they would do in case the country turned the government over to them in 1892. But its promises were only bluffs, and while they fooled the people, the rosy dawn of prosperity, pledged in the Democratic platforms and speeches, was only a nightmare, and what really came of Democratic success was panic, disaster, and industrial ruin.

When William A. Douglas was a candidate for governor he painted glorious pictures of industrial prosperity in Massachusetts if he were elected. Not a single additional spindle was installed by reason of his election, nor a loom, a shoe machine, or an electric motor. His election and inauguration as governor had no more effect upon the expansion and development of the material interests of the commonwealth than the advent of the birds in springtime.

Douglas Set the Pace

William L. Douglas of Brockton set the pace in the matter of spending money for an election and broke all records in the history of the commonwealth in that regard. Over $60,000 was officially reported as contributed to his campaign, practically all of it coming from him and from subordinates in his factory. No one presumes that they personally contributed out of their own pockets a single dollar toward the election of their chief. If every penny of it did not come from Brockton, wiseacres in Brockton do not know what they are talking about.

But as a matter of fact, if Democratic sages have any knowledge of what it costs to run such a campaign as he carried on, at least twice as much money must have been spent to elect him governor of Massachusetts.

The greatest previous record in the line of money spending in a campaign in this state was made during the years when William E. Russell was running for governor. In some of those years between $60,000 and $70,000 was collected and used. Old campaigners say that there was more money at that time than there was any real use for.

There are some men who would rather never be governor of the Puritan commonwealth than to attain that position if it must be secured that way.

Bartlett In the Field to Stay

The canvass on the Democratic side for the gubernatorial nomination has been recently enlivened by a public statement from General Charles W. Bartlett of Boston. The general declares he is a candidate for the nomination until the convention. He does not think it worth while, because of his candidacy, to write a tome on state or national government, or deliver a thesis upon the legitimate functions of the tariff. He seems to be willing to get into the fight as a Democrat, and to accept the general Democratic program as his own.

This statement of General Bartlett settles once and for all his status in the gubernatorial contest. He is a candidate on his own account for the Democratic nomination. He has been put into the fight for the reason that there are no antagonisms against him. So far as is known, he has no enemies and he would undoubtedly be acceptable to the great mass of the Democratic voters.

Those who are behind him believe there are cogent reasons why the Democracy should not tie up to a man who has so many enemies and who has had such a legislative past as Henry M. Whitney. They do not believe the Democratic party should be put in the position, immediately after the nomination, of making a defensive campaign. They feel that if Mr. Whitney is nominated, it will be necessary, not only to apologize, but to defend his record in a number of particulars, while with General Bartlett there would be no occasion for any such course.

Whitney Starts Campaign

Mr. Whitney is already starting his campaign. He opened it in Abington, continued it in Newburyport, and is scheduled to make speeches on reciprocity and various other subjects in divers parts of the commonwealth from now until the state convention. There are some Democrats who have a feeling that Mr. Whitney's continual reiteration of his reciprocity views is getting to be a good deal of a chestnut. They are afraid he will find that the question is falling flat. For several years now he has been about the state making reciprocity speeches until he knows them by heart, as do many of his hearers. Coming from a new personality and treated in a slightly different way these sentiments might hold attention.

A good many of the close personal and political supporters of General Bartlett's nomination do not look kindly upon Mr. Whitney. They regard him as the incarnation of the monopolistic idea, and his extremely close connection, through his late brother-in-law, William C. Whitney, with the Standard Oil company, places upon him in their estimation a brand of suspicion. Some of these men openly declare that they will not support him, even if nominated. They feel the utmost assurance toat while Mr. Whitney may possibly have voted for District Attorney Moran last year when he was a candidate for governor, he did nothing for him, and was not in sympathy with him or his ideas.

The Moran following and the Independence League are a doubtful element. Many of the Independence League men declare that it would stultify them as well as the league to vote for Mr. Whitney. It would do violence to all their principles as well as to the principles of the league and they declare it to be impossible for the league to endorse Mr. Whitney under any circumstances, even though the Democratic convention might nominate E. Gerry Brown of Brockton as its candidate for lieutenant governor, in recognition of the league. A great many league men believe the only thing for that body to do in order to maintain its integrity and strengthen its following is to nominate an entirely separate and independent state ticket from top to bottom. It is possible that this may be done.

Governor Guild Acts

Governor Guild has promptly taken action in the matter of the merger of the Boston and Maine and the New Haven and Hartford Railroad companies.

The governor proposes, if there is to be a merger, that the rights of the citizens and of the commonwealth shall be thoroughly safeguarded. If there is to be such a consolidation of railroad properties, he stipulated to President Mellen of the New Haven that there should be provision made that freight and passenger rates should not be increased under it, and that there should be no stock watering in connection therewith. Mr. Mellen was brought to these terms and decided to accept them in view of the attitude of the governor. The alertness of the governor to the interests of the commonwealth and her citizens was never better illustrated than in this transaction. Governor Guild does not talk as much as some men in the way of promises, but in the way of performances he is right on deck all the time.

GYROSCOPE FOR BALLOONS.

Inventor Brennan Says His System Will Help to Solve Flight Problem.

Louis Brennan, who exhibited to the Royal society in London the other night a working model of his new monorail railway, the trains on which are balanced on the gyroscope principle, was interviewed by a London correspondent of the New York Sun and expressed the opinion that his system of gyroscopes would go far toward solving the problem of aerial flight.

By means of it a stability could be imparted to a flying machine which could not be secured by any other known means. The machinery would be so adjusted that the strongest wind would be powerless to set up an angular movement. Complete control in all directions, said Mr. Brennan, would be in the hands of the aeronaut, who could tilt his machine to any angle and be assured that nothing could shift it from the desired position. In a word, so far as steadiness was concerned, the aeronaut would be as much master of the situation as if he had a cigar box under his arm.

Asked whether there would be any difficulty as regards the weight of the apparatus, Mr. Brennan replied: "None at all. The mechanism in the case of flying machines would be extremely light, and the tilting effect of the air is so slow that it requires very little power to counteract it. Once you are in the air you become part and parcel of the hurricane and are yourself enjoying almost absolute calm.

"There is no such thing as the wind rushing against you. If you are in a hurricane you move bodily with it, and with gyroscopes at work your flying machone would not be able to play any pranks, but would remain perfectly steady."

Sweet Potato Pie.

Take several sweet potatoes, and when they have boiled themselves tender peel and slice them. Line the bottom and sides of a deep dish with crust—the dish must be fully three inches in depth—and upon this arrange a layer of the potatoes, buttering them liberally, sugaring them freely and sprinkling them with nutmeg. Add next a layer of very thin slices of dough, sprinkle with hot water, then follow with another layer of sliced potatoes and repeat until the pan is full. The top crust follows, and the pie must then be baked for an hour or more.—Miles Bradford in Bohemian Magazine.

Install Officers In New Hall

Wednesday was a red letter day in the history of Granite lodge, Order Sons of St. George, as on the above date they celebrated two most interesting events. Granite lodge has increased so much in numbers, that they have been obliged to look around for more spacious and convenient quarters in which to hold their meetings, and having decided on Plumer's hall, Hancock street, they held their first meeting there on Wednesday evening. The second event of importance, was the installation of officers for the ensuing term, when the following, having been duly elected, were installed by Deputy Grand Past President Dalton, and District Grand Messenger P. President Pools:

President,—Joseph Wardle.
Vice President,—William Wanless.
Secretary,—Arthur H. Dunstan.
Assistant Secretary,—John Pierce.
Treasurer,—James King.
Messenger,—Charles Vanner.
Trustee,—Thomas J. Smith.

After the meeting a smoke talk was held, when songs were given by several of the members, and in all, a most enjoyable evening was passed.

Sent to Truant School.

Officer Bishop picked up two smal boys on Washington street at 1 o'clock this morning, who after some questioning admitted they belonged in North Weymouth. They were taken to their homes by Officer Dinneen. This morning it was learned that the boys were sent to school but instead of going there they played truant and were afraid to go home. The boys were brought into court this morning and sent to the truant school at Walpole.

Superior Court.

In the Norfolk Superior court this week, Stewart Graham of Quincy secured a verdict of $1,000 against the Old Colony street railway in an action to recover for personal injuries received by being thrown from a wagon on Crescent street in September, 1905.

A verdict for the defendant was given in the case of Mrs. Henrietta Tabb of Wollaston vs. the Old Colony street railway for injuries.

The case of Michael J. Drohan of West Quincy vs. the Fore River Shipbuilding Company will be settled by agreement of the parties at issue in favor of plaintiff.

Reckless Chaffeur Fined $75

Lewis D. Mezzey, chaffuer for Geo. W. Maccauley of Dorchester, had a severe sentence imposed upon him in the district court this morning, for operating an outomobile in a reckless manner at Milton, yesterday, while under the influence of liquor.

That morning Mezzey, after taking Mr. Maccauley to his place of business in Boston, was told to return to his residence in Dorchester. Instead of doing so, Mezzey picked up a companion and proceeded to fill up with Boston stimulants. Unaccustomed to Boston liquors he was soon overcome, and it was alleged that while in that condition he went to Milton and drove his machine through the streets in a reckless manner.

Officer Fallon spotted him and locked him up for safe keeping. This morning in court, Mr. Maccauley said that Mezzey had come to him from New Hampshire three weeks ago, and was evidently unfamiliar with the power of Boston rum. The court looked upon the matter as a serious one and imposed a fine of $75.

JOLLY UNCLE BILL KNOWS A THING OR TWO

Pretty Romance of the West Which Had a Charming Chapter in Quincy Among Quincy People—Story of Bride and Groom.

Two Very Sentimental Young Folks Paid "Bill" a Friendly Visit and What He Did for Them Proved His Extreme Generosity, His Astounding Cleverness and That His Kindness Was Equaled by His Welcome.

"Miss Duncan—Hattie—de—dear I?"

But the speaker took a header over bashfulness only to hear a sweet "Yes, Harry."

"Oh, if I could only hope to—er-er."

Another failure of language. It was seemingly a hopeless case and it might have only been a demur.

"Harry, I've said yes twice and if you mean it, I mean it too, and—and—and."

And to this day the young man will insist that he popped the question and it wasn't long before there was a wedding. Not much longer before a letter came from Hettie's Uncle Bill in Quincy, Mass., who wrote effusively of her grit, and proposed that if the young people would locate in Quincy would give them a start in life. Of course they accepted and they were soon bidding their friends adieu. A few days subsequent to the above conversation a travel stained party arrived in Quincy. Our friend, Uncle Bill was in charge and he led the party straight to his home.

"To guard against any unforseen misfortune, "says Uncle Bill to Harry, "I would suggest that you insure your life to provide for your family in case of death, and for yourself in old age. We have a first class company representated in this city. It is the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, Mass., of which M. T. Sullivan is agent with office at room 12, Durgin & Merrill block. The New England Mutual Life is one of the most reliable life insurance companies in the country, and I have frequently heard some of the best business men in this city and elsewhere speak of this company in the highest terms, and it can always be taken as a favorable sign when a man is insured in a company for a long period to hear him speak well of his insurance. It shows that he has been well treated, and has not been disappointed in his expectations. The New England Mutual Life is a Massachusetts Company, and issues all the standard forms of policies, and at the lowest rates. Notwithstanding the agitation and discussion relative to life insurance in all parts of the country, the progress of the company for the year 1906 has been eminently satisfactory. Its new paid for business was $19, 694,704.00 and the company closed the year with $173,396,-203.00, a gain of $8,668,056.00. The gross assets of the company were $42,-826,918.80, and increase during the year of $2,124,227.25. Its liabilities were $38,824,520.39, leaving a surplus over all liabilities of $4,002,398.41. The New England Mutual Life Insurance Company offer the most liberal policy contracts of any company transacting the business of life insurance. Every policy issued by the New England Mutual Life is safeguarded by the thoroughly protective laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. I would advise you to call on M. T. Sullivan at his office, and he will demonstrate to your satisfaction why you should insure in the New England Mutual. M. T. Sullivan has had nearly fifteen years experience in the life insurance business and now represents the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company exclusively.

"And next comes the builder, "says the old gentleman to Harry. "One of the leading men in this line in Quincy is W. R. Lofgren, with office and residence at 19 Cottage street. The builders occupy one of the most important branches of industry of which this country has reason to be proud, for it is principally on them that the fame and popularity of our large cities depends. W. R. Lofgren is an excellent example in his chosen line, and every little detail is carefully looked after from foundation to roof and at the same time he offers inducements impossible to be secured elsewhere, his connections being as widespread as his facilities are perfect. W. R. Lofgren believes in the old proverb: "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well." Since embarking in business he has shown himself to be a thorough master of the most complicated plans and exacting specifications. He cheerfully furnishes estimates, and when quoted they are invariably found to be as low as the usage of good material and workmanship will allow. He can also furnish you with plans for your house, having nineteen years experience as an architect and supervisor of buildings. He makes a specialty of executing plans on any style or kind of buildings from residences to churches, factories, etc., at moderate prices. W. R. Lofgren is a general contractor and builder, and superintends all work personally."

"After careful thought, "remarked the old gentleman to Harry, "I have decided on the man to do the mason work on your house. My selection is Charles B. Huston, 4 High School avenue. He is held in high esteem in building circles, and many of the handsomest buildings in the city have been erected by him. Whatever contracts have been executed, the utmost satsfaction has been given. His fair-dealing methods justly entitle him to the enviable reputation he has attained in his chosen field of endeavor. Charles B. Huston is capable of doing the mason work on any kind of building, from a plain structure to a business block. He uses only the best materials to be purchased regardless of cost. The best workmen are employed, and he gives all his work his personal attention. I assure you that you could not select a better man to do your mason work than Charles B. Huston, he being thoroughly competent. He furnishes estimates for everything in the line of mason work."

"The many large buildings, "says Uncle Bill "which have been erected in Quincy, and neighboring cities have done much toward advancing the stone cutting industry to its present prosperous condition. No better illustration of the facilities of the trade can be han than by referring to the business conducted by The Granite Railway Company, with office and works on Bates avenue, West Quincy. Their company was incorporated in 1826 and have capital of $250,000.00. They are also proprietors of the Railway Quarry, the business being conducted under the personal supervision of Luther S. Anderson, manager. The Granite Railway Co., are manufacturers and dealers in rough and finished granite, and commands a wholesale and retail trade. They conduct a large business in building and monumental work, having blocks, curbing, and everything in the granite line, making a specialty of architectural work, and very many of the handsome buildings throughout the city are the result of the artistic work executed by the Granite Railway Co. The stone supplied by them for building purposes has a high reputation for quality, durability and substantial elegance, throughout this section, and is preferred by many architects and builders to any like material. The Granite Railway Co., have every facility for handling large stone and have the most skilled workmen that can be produced, so they can guarantee satisfaction, and prices as low as you can get elsewhere. They furnish estimates and designs for anything in the line of granite, and guarantee excellence in material and workmanship."

"In the matter of heating and plumbing, "says Uncle Bill to Harry, "you cannot exercise too much care. The health, comfort and happiness of your family depend largely upon the sanitary conditions within your dwelling, and nothing contributes so much to this end as good modern plumbing coupled with perfect apparatus for heating and ventilating all departments. In connection with this work, there are many points of a practical nature that go unconsidered by your architect, and I should advise you to consult a good authority before commencing this work, so that you may avoid the trials and compromises that so frequently follow the postponement of this work until the last moment. Now I have had a wide experience in this line which has cost me many a hard earned dollar, and I want you to have the benefit of this outlay, and I say go to the William A. Bradford Company, 1376 Hancock street, for this work. They have every facility, the best materials and competent help. Others will tell you that they can do it as well as the William A. Bradford Co., and at less cost. I was caught on that bait, but it was a delusion. I finally had to go to the William A. Bradford Co. and have the work done over, and at a largely ncreased cost, and I find many others in the same boat. Plumbing and gas fitting, steam and hot water heating, are specialties of the William A. Bradford Co., so be sure and patronize them in this line.'"

"The most important feature of your house, "says Uncle Bill to Harry. "is the electric wiring, as all houses erected at the present time are lighted by electricity. The convenience and excellence of incandescent lighting are every where conceded. Its brilliancy and softness makes it an ideal light for the libary and office, as well as the parlor and sitting room. The readiness with which the light can be turned on and off, establishes it in public favor. Besides electric light is cheap when you consider what it saves, and how much useful light it affords per candle power. I would advise you to consult Arthur L. Maynard,127 Hamden Circle,Wollaston. He will furninsnh you estimates as to costs of runing your house. He is thoroughly acquainted with the most modern results in electrical matters, and can demonstrate the exceptional value of the improvements he offers. He is a contractor of electrical construction of all kinds, making a speciality of incandescent lighting for residences, stores, offices, and in fact everywhere that light is needed. Arthur L. Maynard gives special attention to the installing of electrical bells annunciations, speaking tubes, batteries, etc. Arthur L. Maynard can give you new ideas for cutting down your electric light bills and can show you many recent and valuable specialties. He is prepared at all times to do any class of electrical work, making a specialty of electrical signs and the construction of private lighting and telephone plants. He has telephone connection."

"For your painting, "says Uncle Bill, "secure the services of A. A. Murphy, 1625 Hancock street. Paint serves two important services which property owners who consult their own interests can never afford to overlook. Apart from its purely decorative mission, which is one of these, it posesses preservative qualities deprived of which the hardest building materials cannot long withstand the effects in the changes of temperature to which thic climate is especially liable. All paint, however, is not equally valuable in thns respect, any moe than every painter is qualified by experience or inclination to apply the materials at his command so as to give the best-results at the smallest cost. But when you secure the services of A. A. Murphy, you have not only the assurance that the best materials will be used, and that the work will be done well, but you will be convinced that he is not only a veritable artist, but that he has reduced home ornamentation to a beautiful science, and that under his brushes your home will be made a palace of neatness and delightful effects. A. A. Murphy makes a speciality of beautifying homes and painting in colors that are up-to-date. His business has gained the highest approval for the uniform thoroughness and excellence of his work."

"For your sidewalks, "remarked Uncle Bill, "in many respects a well made cement walk leaves but little to be desired. In all the principal cities cement walks are in general use and give the best of satisfaction, and although the severe frosts in the most northern states necessitate special care, yet they can be so constructed so as to be perfect in every respect. Therefore, I would advise you to get the services of Thomas Whelan, 243 Fayette street, Wollaston. He has made a special study of cement work, and with a varied practical experience is thoroughly familiar with the subject in every detail. In all his work none but the best materials are used, and I have heard it said that he uses none but the best grade of Portland cement. Thomas Whelan is in a position to fill all orders in a most satisfactory manner, and at the lowest possible cost, and where haste is required also. He makes a speciality of all concrete work, including sidewalks, curbings, carriage house floors, driveways, porch floors, building foundations, cellar bottoms, bridges and basements, etc. Thomas Whelan makes everything that anyone makes of Portland cement, and what is more they say he guarantees his work.

"In recent years," said Uncle Bill, "'the country has been flooded, so to speak, with cheap, ready-mixed paints, which are apt to prove attractive to those acquainted with their real character. While all are not deficient in merit, the vast majority of them have no lasting property whatever. If you want the real article, I would advise you to use none but "Chilton" ready-mixed paints, sold in Quincy exclusively by William Westland, 1597 Hancock street. "Chilton' ready-mixed paints are strictly first-class, and are unequalled for richness, permanency of color and durability, while the character of the materials used in their manufacture guarantees superior quality. They are strictly pure linseed oil, ready-mixed paints and are absolutely pure, and are the best for inside and outside use on any surface, wood, stone or plaster. "Chilton" ready-mixed paints have no equal anywhere, as they wear longer, cover more surface, rub out better under the brush, fade less and more uniformly, and prove more economical to the customer than any other paint. "Chilton" ready-mixed paints are the best, and are put up in cans for family use in all colors. When you buy "Chilton" paints you are not experimenting. They have been sold for years and have constantly grown in favor. When you buy paint ask for "Chilton," because you take no chances. William Westland conducts a large business in white lead, varnishes, brushes, buggy paints, varnish stains, kalsomine, painting materials, glass, putty, etc."

"And next in order is to have your goods transferred from the station, "says Uncle Bill to Harry. "I will telephone Gallagher's Express 14 Faxon Block, opposite depot. They are the parties who will do it at once, as they make it a business exclusively. They are highly endorsed by merchants, manufacturers and citizens generally for the prompt anl efficient manner in which they perform all work entrusted to them. They are the owners of several good horses and a number of light and heavy wagons, and are always ready to move baggage, machinery, safes, pianos, and household goods, employing for this purpose careful and experienced men who are under the personal supervision of F. E. Gallagher, manager, having wagons ready at all times for any orders left at their office, or by telephone, which will receive the attention that their importance demands. Gallagher's Express make a speciality of family moving. Pianos, furniture and crockery are packed, boxed, crated or moved, shipped or stored: their facilities in this line being the best in Quincy. They will put a piano in or take it out of a window if the stairs are too small. They do out-of-town moving with the greatest care and on the best ferms, and guarantee satisfaction. Gallagher's Express is popular in business circles and is doing a large business, and is thoroughly alive to the demands of the public, and always ready to fill all orders in the most satisfactory manner."

"The question of where to get your furniture to settle your new home, "says Uncle Bill to Hattie, is one that should be carefully considered, for it is perhaps the most important part of the whole undertaking. For handsome and artistic furniture, you will find at the store of W. G. Shaw, 1-2 Hancock Building, Hancock street, exquisite novelties, designed especially for the adornment of a town or country home. Models so daintly fashioned, so artistic in conception and treatment, that they are superior in beauty and effectiveness. Although W. G. Shaw carries the best assortment of medium priced furniture in the city, he has constantly on hand as well, the latest and most elegant designs, the most complete variety of fine furniture, ever displayed in Quincy, which represents the latest productions of the manufacturers art, and appeals to the most refined taste for service in the whole house, from the parlor to the den. Aside from the advantage of price, style, refinement, and artistic merit, his great stock represents a limitless variety and choice no matter matter what the article wanted may be. W. G. Shaw shows the smartest furniture that the foremost designers of the country and the most expert manufacturers of America know how to produce. Absolutely dependable in quality and material, in freshness of style, and thoroughness of workmanship, and sold for cash or credit, at prices that are as correct as the goods themselves."

"There is one thing I have almost forgotten," remarked Hattie. "You know how particular I am about my table supplies. I want fresh eggs and prime butter." "Exactly" laughed the old man, "I am acquainted with your notions my dear, and fortunately know where to recommend you. By all means patronize the Miller Co. 1381 Hancock street. Pleasing meals will result from buying your groceries from them—questionable goods have no place in their store at any price, and you will find qualities just as represented, thereby saving money as well as worry. Every counter and shelf is heaped up to the limit with the necessities of life, and the seasons newest dainties, yes, the best in fine groceries and all at lower prices than such goods are sold for anywhere in Quincy. The stock is the most complete and varied in the city, and embraces all the lines of staple and fancy groceries, including delicious breakfast bacon, fresh and smoked meats, and the best brands of flour. The choicest creamery butter and cheese can be found at all times with them. They have the choicest grades of sugar and are headquarters for everything in the line of hermetically sealed cans and bottled goods of all the leading brands, dried fruits, cooked cereals, condiments and sauces in great variety. The Miller Co. is also noted for their carefully selected stock of fragrant coffee from Java, Mocha and South America, and their fine crop of Oolong, English Breakfast, Young Hyson, Gunpowder, Japan and other standard teas, all renowned for their purity, flavor and high quality, and as to prices, you will always find the Miller Co.'s correct. Their store contains everything that a careful housewife needs to satisfy the demands of the table."

"The demand for pure and unadulterated ice by the people of Quincy, says the old gentleman, "has assumed immense proportions of recent years, owing to the fact that it enters largely into home consumption, which effects their health, comfort and well being. It is a necessity of modern life especially during the heated term, and it is no longer a luxury, as it formerly was, but it is found in the modest home of mechanic as well as that of the millionaire. Purity is the prime requisite of this cooling commodity, but it is not always found, for there is no question that a considerable proportion of the ice that finds its way into the market is polluted to a greater or less degree. It is a pleasure, therefore, to know that the Crystal Spring Ice Co., E. B. White, Proprietor, corner School and Franklin streets, furnishes their patrons with a pure article of which there is no need to fear that it is in the slightest degree contaminated, as it comes from a pond which is fed by large streams of pure running water, and costs no more to the consumer than ice manufactured or cut from the stagnant ponds. The Crystal Spring Ice Co., maintains a first class trade, their family trade being of the best in the city. Their system of wagon delivery has been perfected and no pains are spared to insure the most complete and uniform satisfaction to patrons. In very few cities of the United States is the demand for quality of ice and service as great as it in Quincy. When you have "Crystal Spring" ice you have the best. An order by mail or telephone will bring their wagon to your door."

"If there is one thing that I dislike about our orthodox domestic economy, "continued the old gentleman, "it is that of expecting our women to stand over a hot oven burning their faces and worrying that their bread may be heavy, when bread of such excellence is mode by Gifford's Bakery, 1587 Hancock street. It is manufactured in a uniformly high standard of excellence, and none but skilled workmen are employed. G. F. Gifford exercises close supervision over all departments which are thoroughly equipped with the most complete appliances for furnishing bread, the staff of life. "Gifford's" bread is sweet, rich and moist. Mr. Gifford's process of baking holds the steam in the bread, and retains all the aroma, flavor and nutriment of the wheat. By Mr. Gifford's process every bit of the gluten in the wheat is utilized and the result is a loaf as "Mother used to make," delicious to the taste, and does not try out and get stale after it is baked or cut. "Gifford's" bread is the most healthful economical and the longest keeping bread ever made. It is devoid of all deleterious ingredients, and can be relied upon as nothing but the best materials are used in its manufacture, and it is noted for its smoothness and sweetness. There are other makes of bread sold in Quincy, but none as good as "Gifford's." It is the best made at any prices. Don't you believe anyone who says another kind is just as good; it isn't. "Gifford's" bread is made to eat. The best grocers sell it. An order by mail or telephone will bring his wagon to your door."

"I want to introduce you to the National Granite Bank," says Uncle Bill to Harry, "Every successful man should establish banking relations and cultivate a banking acquaintance and it is important in doing this to select a strong bank where his money will be safe, and where his wants can be taken care of. The National Granite Bank is just such a place. Its capital and undivided profits amount to over $290,000,00. That the people of Quincy have recognized the sound and liberal methods of this institution is demonstrated by the fact that the business of this bank has largely increased during the last year. Connected with this bank, officers, directors, and stockholders, are a large number of wealthy people. The National Granite Bank does a regular banking business, accepting deposits, making loans and collections, purchasing high class commercial paper and engaging in all transactions that are a legitimate part of its charter. Deposits are received subject to check and upon certificates. The bank offices are at 1374 Hancock street, being in the very center of business. The directors include some of the most successful business men of the city of Quincy. The ability of the officers and directors give every guarantee of intelligent conservatism and careful management of all interests committed to the care of the bank. The management is scrupulous in all representations made to the public and take care of their business along safe and conservative lines. They take special pride in furnishing the best banking accommodations to their patrons that good business principles will permit. The business of the bank are conducted under the personal supervision and management of Theophilus King, president, Rupert F. Claflin, cashier.

"The teeth, the most sensitive part of the human body, "said the old gentleman, "can now be absolutely desensitized by an anaesthetic applied only in this city by Dr. J. P. Murphy, with dental parlors in the Durgin-Merrill Block, rooms 5 and 6. So effective is Dr. Murphy's process that the most difficult operation causes no pain. He can draw out the whole live nerve without the patient having the slightest sensation. Such an operation would be physically impossible without the anaesthetic used by him. With its aid the most broken down and sensitive teeth can be treated without hurting the feelings of the patient. At Dr. Murphy's parlors all diseases of the teeth, gums, jaws, etc., are treated with an intelligent and thorough knowledge of the dental profession. An instance of this, teeth are successfully filled, as well as inserted without plates, and plates of all kinds are made and warranted to fit and do excellent service, making a specialty of crown and bridge work. Dr. Murphy is one of the most expert in his profession, and adds to a natural adaptability for his work, a thorough professional training and long experience in practice, a delicacy of manipulation, and a faculty of execution which calls forth praise from all who have subjected the care of their teeth to him. He also pays special attention to the sterilizing of all instruments used. For painless extracting and filling, Dr. J. P. Murphy can't be beat in Quincy."

"Now my dear boy, "says the old gentleman to Harry, "I have left a duty and a pleasure for you to perform, and would suggest as a handsome and ornamental wedding present for your wife a good piano. The fair sex appreciate a gift of that kind more than anything else. Music hath charms to sooth the savage breast, and melody is doubly divine and entrancing when produced by a "Weser Bros." piano, for those who have one would not exchange it for the world. They are sold exclusively in Quincy by Joseph A. Keating, 1357 Hancock street, and you can buy them on terms to suit your convenience. The "Weser Bros." pianos are endorsed by the leading musicians, and are known as the queen of instruments. They combine purity of tone, sweetness and power, in a manner attained by no other piano, and are known the world over for their durability and workmanship. The magnificent tone and exquisite action is responsive to the touch. Qualities such as this piano possesses certainly indicate thorough knowledge in piano building. Years of patient study and toil have developed a delightful softness of touch and beauty of tone afforded by no other piano. The tone should be the first consideration, and the "Weser Bros." piano has been aptly termed, "the piano with the singing tone." No sweeter quality of tone could be produced, and yet behind the sweetness is rich depth and resonance. The "Weser Bros." piano will delight and satisfy you."

"Let's see, I promised you a gold watch, didn't I?" said Uncle Bill to Hattie. "The place of all places in Quincy to buy one is the store of T. L. Williams 1473 Hancock street, and I will guarantee the quality to be the best. His stock embraces all kinds of jewelry, and here is displayed a fine assortment of imported and American watches, in gold and silver cases, plain and decorated; clocks of all grades from the best finished American or imported to the lowest priced New England clock. Here you will find jewelry, as rings, neck and vest chains, necklaces; odd scarf pins of great varieties and richly wrought bracelets; diamonds and precious stones in modern and antique settings, and is headquarters for novelties in gold and silver wedding and birthday presents, including solitaire and cluster engagement rings in diamonds and pearls; and novelties in cut glass and china. T. L. Williams has a large assortment in the best makes of sterling silver flatware and table service, innumerable choice and desirable pieces at moderate prices in every pattern of a late design. He makes a specialty of fitting lenses for all cases of defective vision, engraving on gold and silver, and repairing, cleaning and adjusting fine watches and clocks, and jewelry repairing in all its branches, and the prices quoted will average as low as the lowest."

"The great increase in the demand for flowers of late years,'" said Uncle Bill to Harry, "is one of the most noticeable indications of the pronounced gain in culture which is so evident on every side, and which is so astonishing to foreign critics of this country, who are unable to understand how culture can be so general in a land where practically every one is working for a living, and where there is no recognized aristocracy. Flowers are now in demand for all occasions, whether of joy or of sorrow, and everyone who gets into society at all, will find it very useful to know where appropriate designs can be obtained without delay, and at a moderate cost. Many residents of Quincy and vicinity are already acquainted with the establishment conducted by Arnold & Johnson, 1361 Hancock street. They supply a large demand for flowers, shrubs, plants, including the rarest variety, both of foreign and native, and their trade is broadly distributed throughout the entire section. They also furnish palms, floral decorations, bouquets, and all kinds of cut flowers and emblematic designs for weddings, parties, balls funerals, in new and original conceptions of artistic forms, and orders by mail, telephone, or in person, receive prompt attention. Arnold & Johnson makes a specialty of delivering flowers to all parts of the country."

"Many people," says Uncle Bill, "do not appreciate the fact that they waste a great deal of time by throwing away of garments that are practically as good as new in everything but appearance, but they make no effort to have them look as good as new because their experience with dyeing and cleaning establishments has been decidedly unsatisfactory. Cheap dyeing and cleansing is dear at any price, high price dyeing and cleansing is beyond the means of many people, but such work done by L. Warshaw, 1503 Hancock street, is fully equalled to the best in every respect, and such prices as are quoted by him are low enough to suit the most economically disposed, provided they appreciate the dyeing that dyes, and cleansing that cleans. L. Warshaw guarantees the finest class of work in all branches, using none but the brightest and fastest dyes, which he warrants not to smut or stain clothing. His clothes cleansing is performed with the steam and French process of dry cleaning, which brightens up all colors, completely takes out all stains and grease spots, which is not effected by the sponge cleansing process. L. Warshaw can tint your lace curtains any shade you want them, and also dye your laces and trimmings to match your dress goods. All orders sent by express will receive prompt and careful attention."

"Who is a good horse shoer, Uncle?" asked Harry. "You know how particular I am about my mare.'

"Just so, you want no botch about her," said Uncle Bill. "WeWll there is only one first class horse shoeing establishment in this city to my motion, and that is known as the City Shoeing Forge, 12 Quincy avenue, and is conducted by Daniel Desmond. He understands perfectly the construction of a horse's foot, just what kind of a shoe is needed, and how to make it and how to put it on. To shoe a horse in the best form is something requiring much greater skill and experience than most people imagine. Bad results from inferior work may not be shown at once, but it is certain in the long run to materially effect the health and power of a horse. It is one thing to make a shoe and another to apply it so that the animal will be benefited by the wearing. Veterinarians tell me that more horses are unfitted for service by shoes that have been improperly adjusted than from any other cause. Horse owners therefore realize the importance of having their horses shod by men who thoroughly understand their business, and have had long experience. Such you will find Daniel Desmond. He is a specialist in practical horse shoeing, giving individual attention to difficult cases, and guaranteeing the highest satisfaction on every class of work."

"Respect for the dead," said the old gentleman, "is observed by all nations of the earth, and although the ceremonies adopted differ widely, they are all calculated to pay some fitting tribute to the memory of departed life. Of course, civilized nations consider their burial services the more appropriate, and no doubt the more impressive. In considering this subect, there is no more difficult role to fill than that of funeral director or undertaker. It requires a natural aptitude as well as a thorough training, both in skill and deportment. Edward L. Bean, 21 Franklin street, possesses all of these and seems to have been born with all knowledge of the requirements of the business. Edward L. Bean gives his attention to all improvements in his profession which may enable him to perform the very delicate duties which devolve upon the care of the bodies of the deceased and their preparation for burial.

As an undertaker, Edward L. Bean occupies a leading position in Quincy, and is thoroughly conversant with every feature of the business and is prepared to do undertaking in all its branches, including embalming according to the most improved scientific methods."

"Now, said Uncle Bill, "we will call upon the Quincy Daily Ledger, "You want a newspaper every day, and this is the favorite one. "I'll subscribe for it."

Upon joining Hettie, she began volubly to express her thanks. "You have bought me everything, she exlaimed. "Only forgot one thing," remarked Uncle Bill, reflectively, "but I can remedy that, W. G. Shaw has a fine line of them, and you can get one when you need it; "I'll pay for the best," "W-h-a-t?" exclaimed Hettie, with great curiosity, "whatever can it be?" "Well it's a-a-a-a-a baby carriage and a-" but Hettie had fainted."

THE DOVE OF PEACE

Has Evidently Ceased to Hover Over Central America

NICARAGUA LOOKS FOR WAR

Will Be Accommodated, and Two Wars and as Many Revolutions Are Expected to Occur--Washington Discouraged Over the Situation

Washington, June 15.—A sanguinary war, perhaps two wars or more, with as many revolutions added for good measure, is what the state department officials expect to mark the summer of 1907 in Central America. They are much cast down over the sudden and unexpected failure of the joint order of the governments of Mexico and America to bring about a condition of permanent peace between the turbulent southern republics.

Official news of this failure reached the state department from one of its representatives in Nicaragua, who forwarded the explanation of the president of that country of his participation in the attack on Acajutla. The exasperating feature of President Zelaya's message, according to the state department, was the way in which he sought to place upon America and Mexico the responsibility for the attack upon a friendly state by claiming that it was a necessary step in the execution of the plan for a union of the Central American republics.

As a matter of fact, as one of the officials pointed out, certainly the United States and probably Mexico would welcome a combination of the little states into one republic under some capable executive, but it has never for an instant been contemplated that such a union should be brought about by force.

Indeed, the purpose of Mexico and the United States in securing the inclusion in the treaty of Amapala, signed less than two months ago for a general conference of the Central American republics, was to have them all join in a peace pact which might in the end result in a re-establishment of the one time "greater republic of Central America." As one of the parties to the treaty of Amapula now attacks the other, officials here feel discouraged and have decided to refrain from active intervention in the present disturbance.

Ambassador Creel talked the matter over with Secretary Root at the state department and it can be stated that, while both America and Mexico stand ready now, as heretofore, to use their good offices to terminate hostilities and mitigate the horrors of war, neither is at present disposed to take any step in advance of an invitation from one of the belligerents.

A dispatch received from Captain Mulligan of the gunboat Yorktown, now at Acajutla, says that everything is quiet. If any vessel is sent to the scene of trouble it probably will be the Milwaukee. The purpose of sending her, if at all, will be as a relief to the Yorktown, and not necessarily to increase the American naval force in Central American waters. A determination whether to send the Milwaukee will be reached today.

A private letter received at the navy department reports a scarcity of fresh meats and garden truck, the latter in Nicaragua, due, it is suggested, to the fact that many of the people of Central America are performing military service and neglecting to cultivate the land. Coal also is very high, some recently having sold at the rate of $22 gold a ton.

Repulsed by Salvadoreans

San Salvador, June 15.—The United States gunboat Yorktown, now off this coast, is expected to capture as a pirate the Nicaraguan gunboat Momotombo, which recently landed a force of filibusters on Salvadorean territory, where they were defeated and fled. President Zelaya of Nicaragua is said here to have sent other vessels to land troops in this republic, but they did not succeed in accomplishing their mission, as the coast is well guarded by Salvadorean troops, mobilized within the past few days.

Italian Autoist Captures Race

Homberg, Ger., June 15.—Nazzaro, an Italian, driving a Fiat racing car, won the first race for the trophy offered by Emperor William over the Taunus circuit. The course was about 212 miles, and Nazzaro's time was 5 hours, 34 minutes and 26 seconds. Hautvast, a Belgian, driving a Pipe, was second, his time being 5:39:10. Michel, a German, who piloted an Opel car, finished third, completing the course in 5:39:49.

Close of Chinese Famine Fund

Shanghai, June 15.—The general famine relief fund here is closed. The committee is using the provisions brought by the United States transport Buford. A large section of the harvest is a failure. Mr. Faris, an American, and two English missionaries died recently of famine and fever.

Robbed of $8000 In Cash and Jewelry

Chicago, June 15.—Mrs. Bethina Germilla, who came from Pittsburg to Chicago to be under the care of Dr. Eda Miller, reports to the police that her nurse has disappeared with jewels valued at more than $3000 and $5000 in money.

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, Timothy Reed, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, Richard D. Chase, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, William F. Cummings, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, Ernest G. Gay, will be happy to answer inquiries.

RAISING CHURCH FUNDS.

The Kaffirs Mix In a Lot of Fun With Their Generosity.

The gentle Kaffir when he does become Christianized has his own ideas of the best method of raising funds for the support of the "cause." From the subjoined description of a native meeting sent home by a missionary it would appear that native generosity, although of a rough and tumble character, is distinctly productive of ways and means:

"Recently I attended a native tea meeting, at which more than £12 was raised by this very poor congregation. Their way of doing it was characteristic and amusing. They paid 2 shillings to sit down to tea. Then some one would pay 3 shillings for such and such a man to be required to get up again and leave the table. The man thus assailed would pay 3s. 6d. for leave to sit down again. There was a special table at which six could sit, paying an extra shilling each for the privilege. They had just got seated when a man paid 7 shillings to clear them out, and they paid another 8 shillings to sit on, and so it went on. They arrange all this themselves, and this is their way of giving to the cause. One man had a tin of sirup. He said he would pay 2 shillings to pour it over another man's head who had got himself up well in a large collar, etc.; this man paid 3 shillings to be let off, the first man 4 shillings again to do it, the other 5 shillings to escape, the first 6 shillings to do it—and did it, and, oh, the laughter and the mess!"

THE SACRED CODFISH.

Famous Emblem That Adorns the Massachusetts Statehouse.

A codfish carved in wood hangs on the white mahogany wall of the Massachusetts hall of representatives in the statehouse in Boston. Between two classic pillars it occupies a place of honor, directly opposite the desk of the presiding officer. This wooden fish is the renowned original sacred codfish of the Old Colony, and it has assisted at the deliberations of the lawmakers of Massachusetts for more than a century and a half, gathering sanctity year by year. It is a relic of the old building which preceded the present statehouse, and great is the dignity of this souvenir of colonial art and industry.

The following account of its origin is given in a Boston paper:

"Captain John Welch of Boston was the creator and carver of the celebrated fish. He was a wood carver of renown for his time and in 1747 established his business in Dock square. He belonged to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company and afterward became its captain. He was called upon to contribute to the decoration of the colonial assembly hall, and as at that period codfish was the colony's main article of export Captain Welch conceived the idea of immortalizing the king fish of the Massachusetts waters. When completed the carving was finished off and colored so as to be a fac simile of life and was hung on the wall of the assembly hall."

A Fool's Identity.

Some of the best known people pass unrecognized by those to whom they should be known. Harold Frederick sat one night at dinner next a man whose very silence and taciturnity caused him the more closely covertly to survey him. Not a word was exchanged between the two. "Who was that hopeless idiot that I sat next to at dinner?" asked Frederick at the close of the meal. "That hopeless idiot was Cecil Rhodes," he was answered. It was the fact. The Colossus had been in one of the moods in which he would not talk, and Frederick, though he had seen his portrait a hundred times, had not recognized him.—St. James' Gazette.

Sagacity of the Ancients.

Many quotations came from the works of Thales, the Greek philosopher and one of the seven wise men. It was he who said, "Know thyself," "Few words are a sign of prudent judgment," "Search after wisdom and choose what is most worthy," "There is nothing more beautiful than the world," "Time is the wisest thing, for it invents and discovers all things." He also said that it was the hardest thing in the world to know oneself and the easiest to admonish another. In his youth Thales was urged to marry, but he said, "It is too soon," and later in life upon being urged again he said, "It is too late."

Where the Relief Would Be.

Dr. Story, the late principal of Glasgow university, taking a holiday in the country once, was met by the minister of the district, who remarked: "Hello, principal! You here? Why, you must come and relieve me for a day." The principal replied, "I don't promise to relieve you, but I might relieve your congregation."

Coming and Going.

"What kick have you against married life?"

"Well, if I don't keep my wife dressed in the height of fashion I have trouble with her, and if I do keep her dressed in the height of fashion I have trouble with her dressmaker."—Houston Post.

Something Coming In.

Life is a bolted chamber where we dwell
Till Fate unlocks the doors to heaven or—well,
Don't mention that! So long as we can raise
The wherewithal we needn't fear the knell.

So let's be up and doing, and we'll win
The prize Success, which vulgar folk call "tin."
So long as we're awake and ADVERTISE
For trade, there's always something coming in.

Railroads Disregarded New Laws

Kansas City, June 15.—Conflict between state and federal courts has arisen over the enforcement of the Missouri maximum freight and the 2-cent passenger fare acts, which went into effect Thursday night. Yesterday forenoon the circuit courts, both in Kansas City and in St. Louis, issued injunctions against the railways, compelling them to obey the laws. On Thursday Federal Judge McPherson issued an order restraining the railroads from complying with the rate laws, and yesterday, when the complication of the circuit court's action arose, he continued his order in effect. The railways ultimately respected the order of McPherson and did not comply with the new laws.

Schmitz to Apply For Bail

San Francisco, June 15.—Mayor Schmitz, who was convicted of the crime of extortion, is still in the custody of the sheriff. His application for bail comes up before Judge Dunne today. The principal ground on which Schmitz will ask for release on bail is that it is necessary for him to be free to transact public business. In the event that he is denied bail, the duties of mayor will devolve on Supervisor Gallagher, chairman of the finance committee, who has been granted immunity in the "graft" cases.

Railroad Agreement Dssolved

New York, June 15.—The agreement between the Harriman interests and the Rock Island company, entered into in 1904, for their alternate control of the Chicago and Alton railroad, has been abrogated by mutual consent. In future the Chicago and Alton stockholders will manage the property. The Rock Island company and the Harriman interests alternately controlled the Chicago and Alton, the Rock Island being in control one year and the Harriman interests the next. The plan would have lapsed in 1914.

Brace of Yeggs Disposed Of Aiken, S. C., June 15.—William McKinley and Edward Duggan, members of a band of yeggmen which operated extensively among South Carolina banks and postoffices in 1902, were convicted here yesterday for safe-blowing and robbery in this county in that year. They have recently completed a four years' term in prison. They were sentenced yesterday to 10 years each in the penitentiary.

Fishery Negotiations Held Up

London, June 15.—Foreign Secretary Grey recently submitted to the American secretary of state a plan by which he expressed hope that the Newfoundland fisheries question might be settled, but negotiations have been discontinued temporarily on account of the mass of questions occupying the foreign office. It is believed that the suggestions made by Grey have not quite satisfied Premier Bond.

Attempted Mutiny on Warships

Sebastopol, June 15.—Details of the attempted mutiny of the Black sea fleet are difficult to obtain. The rifles and cutlasses of the crew were so strongly fastened up in the arm racks, the keys of which were in the captain's hands, that the mutineers were unable to gain possession of them. Both battleships have arrived here and landed 30 of the ringleaders of the mutiny. The position is extremely serious.

FUNDS FOR ORCHARD

Furnished by Pettibone to Accomplish Murder of Bradley

TESTIMONY TO THAT EFFECT

Attempt to Get Contents of Telegram From Adams to Haywood Before the Jury Headed Off by Defense—Orchard's Story Confirmed

Boise, Ida., June 15.—The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder trial, entering in earnest on the corroboration of Harry Orchard's testimony, showed a continuous thread of evidence connecting George Pettibone's store in Denver with Orchard at San Francisco while engaged on the Bradley murder plot, partly developed another direct line by which it is hoped to show that Haywood engaged and paid Steve Adams for the same desperate work, and added special touches of confirmation to Orchard's general story.

Officers of the postoffices at San Francisco and Denver produced original records showing that in August, 1904, a registered letter was sent under the name of "J. Wolff" from the address of Pettibone's store in Denver to "J. Dempsey" at the Golden West hotel in San Francisco. Orchard swore that he stayed at the Golden West hotel under an alias that was either "Dempsey" or "Hogan," that Pettibone used the aliases of "Wolff" and "Pat Bone," and that, under the name of "Wolff," Pettibone, in the month mentioned, sent him a registered letter containing $100 to pay his expenses while attempting to kill Bradley.

Police officers of Ogden established the arrest there in June, 1903 of Steve Adams and A. T. Williams. They were sealed in an east-bound car loaded with fruit. When arrested for trespass each had a brace of revolvers. When released through the influence of a detective, to whom Adams appealed as a Mason, they went straight to the office of the Western Union and sent a telegram to Haywood in Denver.

The defense headed off an attempt to get the contents of the telegram before the jury, but the state indicated that it would reurn to the charge later and further develop the incident when it had broadened its foundation.

The state, through an official of the Western Union, produced the original of a telegram supposed to have been sent by Attorney Miller of Spokane, now recorded as one of Haywood's counsel, to Harry Orchard before the latter was arrested at Caldwell for the Steunenberg murder, but did not introduce it because its identification is still insufficient. The state also got an order to court directing the Western Union to produce its records showing that Haywood sent money to Adams at Ogden.

When the Ogden testimony was introduced, Steve Adams was brought into court under guard to be identified. Adams' name has run all through the trial, but this was his first appearance in person. Adams seemed in a defiant humor and walked to a point directly in front of the jury and gazed steadily at the witness confronting him.

The state also produced several witnesses who confirmed features of Orchard's story as to the Bradley affair, the first descent into the Vindicator mine with the object of doing violence, the final success of the Vindicator plot and the circumstances under which Detective Gregory was killed.

Aside from its fight against the admission of all the evidence offered by the state, on the general ground that it was in no way connected with the accused, the defense contented itself with showing that all of the witnesses had been found and interviewed by Pinkerton detectives.

No Chinese Miners In Transvaal

Pretoria, June 15.—Premier Botha announces that the government intends to send home all the Chinese miners when their contracts expire. Sixteen thousand will go this year. In their places the government proposes to secure native workers.

London, June 15.—The mining magnates here believe that the withdrawal of Chinese labor from the Transvaal will prove disastrous and result in a stagnation of business and heavy losses.

Current Trade Not Satisfactory

New York, June 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Despite some improvement, weather conditions have continued adverse for retail trade at most points, and business is only stimulated by bargain sales. Prospects for fall distribution are brighter, because of the better crop reports. Current conditions, however, are not satisfactory.

Will Continue on Good Terms

London, June 15.—The relations between the American and Japanese officials in London continue to be most cordial, and diplomatic circles generally regard the San Francisco incident as being unlikely to lead to strained relations between the two countries.

Theatre Destroyed by Fire

Chicago, June 15.—Fire last night destroyed the Olympic theatre, causing a loss of $100,000. There was no one in the playhouse, which was devoted to vaudeville. Guests of the Union restaurant and hotel, next door, were driven into the street.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

ORDER IS HELD UP

Effort to Compel Mellen to Testify Relative to Merger Question

Boston, June 15.—Representative Buckley of Boston attempted to present an order in the house to summon President Mellen of the New Haven road before the committee on railroads and require him to answer questions put by citizens or attorneys representing citizens. He stated that he wanted to have the order read for the information of the members. Speaker Cole refused, saying that he was entirely within the rules of the house, which gave him three days to consider papers before they were presented.

Attorney General Malone thinks that the Brandeis bill, which would compel the New Haven road to dispose of its Boston and Maine stock and would prevent it from acquiring it in the future, is constitutional.

Speaker Cole of the house declares that he has been unable to secure any legal advice that would lead to a belief that the New Haven road can be made to return the stock it has purchased.

These two views are the most recent contribution on Beacon hill to the complicated merger situation. They came out of the developments of yesterday.

Lynching Cry at Boston

Boston, June 15.—Much excitement was created and a large crowd was attracted by a fight between two Greeks in Spring lane. It seemed to be a case of simple assault, but someone in the crowd cried "Lynch him!" and immediately others took up the cry. One of the combatants attempted to dodge into a shoe-blacking parlor, but the crowd would not let him, and reiterated the cry of "Get a rope!" "String him up!" A policeman then arrived on the scene and led one of the men up the street.

Gifts to Battleship Rhode Island

Newport, R. I., June 15.—Battleship Rhode Island received from the state today a bronze tablet of Hope, the presentation being made by Governor Higgins. The people of the state also presented a silver service to the officers, and the enlisted men received a piano. The Daughters of the American Revolution presented two silk flags to the battleship. The gifts were formally received by Captain Bowman

Three Thousand Men May Quit Work

Boston, June 15.—"Unless the strike of the 250 trackmen on the Providence division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad is settled by Sunday next, we shall call out the 3000 railroad laborers," said Organizer Alessamdro of the Railroad Laborers' union at a meeting of the strikers last night. The men have been working 10 hours a day for $1.50 and struck for a nine-hour workday at $1.75.

Trolley and Auto Collided

Taunton, Mass., June 15.—A trolley car struck an automobile here last night, throwing out all the occupants of the machine. One of them, Mrs. Noah Strange, was probably injured fatally. The others escaped with less severe injuries, although all were severely shaken. The collision occurred just as the automobile swung in front of the electric car to make a turn.

Tobin Not In Contempt

Boston, June 15.—Daniel J. Tobin, business agent of the striking Teamsters' union, is not guilty of contempt of court, as charged by Aubrey Hilliard, master teamster, according to the decision of Judge Braley of the supreme court. Hilliard accused Tobin of having violated the terms of an injunction against the officers of the striking Teamsters' union.

Money For Y. M. C. A.

Burlington, Vt., June 15.—The city council voted last night to buy the property known as Fort Ethan Allen park for $10,000. The owner of the park, W. J. Van Tatten, has pledged himself to give the amount of the selling price to the Young Men's Christian Association to assist in paying off the debt on the association building.

Boy Perished In Fire

Nashua, N. H., June 15.—Before the firemen could reach him, Telesphore Dufour, 10 years old, was burned to death in his bed in an attic room at his home last night. Fire damaged the dwelling to the amount of $1000. The other members of the family were unable to rescue the boy on account of the dense smoke.

Shot Woman In Hotel

Boston, June 15.—In the superior criminal court a jury returned a verdict against Frank Rafferty, a chef on steamer Zealandia, who was charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon upon Margaret Kingston while the latter was in a hotel on Beach street. Rafferty will be sentenced later.

Fire Caused by Lightning

Island Falls, Me., June 15.—Lightning struck a barn and shed connected with a tenement house occupied by four families and started a fire which destroyed the entire set of buildings. There were 10 persons in the house when the bolt struck, but no one was injured. The loss is $5500.

Renewal of Bicycle Railway Charter

Boston, June 15.—The Massachusetts senate granted E. M. Boynton of West Newbury, the aged inventor, a renewal of his charter for the Boston, Quincy and Fall River bicycle railway by a vote of 31 to 4. The bill passed the house several weeks ago.

Stromboli Again Active

Catania, Sicily, June 15.—After a period of quietude, a somewhat violent eruption of Stromboli occurred yesterday and terrified the countryside.

PRAIRIE DOGS' DOOM.

Texas and Oklahoma Try to Exterminate the Pest.

LAUNDRY SOAP KILLS THEM.

But Department of Agriculture Is Looking For Some Contagious Malady With Which to Inoculate the Nuisance—President's Comment.

A systematic organization of the homesteaders along the Oklahoma-Texas border has been in progress during the past three years looking to the extermination of the prairie dog, a pest that is still a menace to crops and orchards throughout western Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle country, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. This organization extends from Beaver county, Okla., down into the Texas Panhandle and numbers hundreds of farmers in its membership. In one vicinity last spring three tons of poison was used in this campaign of extermination, and a similar amount will be fed out this spring in the dog villages.

The campaign has been carried even into the Texas and Oklahoma legislatures, where bills have been passed providing for the placing of bounty on scalps. In the Oklahoma legislature such a bill was passed in 1905 through the efforts of Representative Tom Robinson of Greer county. It gives the township trustees the power to authorize a levy by the county commissioners, the fund to be used in bounties. The operation of this law, which is similar to the Texas statute, has been very successful in several portions of this locality.

It has been found by the homesteaders that the only way in which results can be obtained is to carry on a campaign over a considerable territory at the same time, as the dogs, if driven out of one locality, will merely move to another "town." The little animals migrate frequently and often appear suddenly in large numbers in localities where they have not been seen before in many years.

Following his hunting trip on the Red river President Roosevelt in describing the wolf and coyote chases said: "There was a certain element of risk in the gallops, because the whole country was one huge prairie dog town, the prairie dogs being so numerous that their new towns and their abandoned towns were continuous with one another in every direction. Practically every run we had was through these prairie dog towns, varied occasionally by creeks and washouts. But as we always ran scattered out, the wonderfully quick cow ponies, brought up in this country and spending all their time among the prairie dog towns, were able, even while running at headlong speed, to avoid the holes with a cleverness that was simply marvelous."

John F. Braun, a farmer residing near Miltonvale, Kan., has discovered that common laundry soap kills prairie dogs with great rapidity. Braun had about 100 dogs on his farm, and, although he had used traps, catching about thirty, the rest of the colony became wise and would walk around the traps, ignoring them. One dog was caught in a trap and only slightly injured, and this animal Braun took to the house for his children. It was placed in a cage, where one day the children fed it a small piece of laundry soap. Within five minutes the dog was dead. This decided Braun to experiment, and, cutting a bar of soap into small squares, he distributed them freely throughout the town. The next day there was not a dog left to tell the story. He maintains that 10 cents' worth of soap will clean out the biggest dog town on earth.

All manner of schemes are tried by the western farmer, however, to rid his place of the dogs, only to see them return, probably in greater numbers, at a later date. In recent years the department of agriculture at Washington has been trying to secure a fatal and contagious malady that will wipe out the prairie dog and similar pests, including rabbits and gophers, but thus far nothing has been secured. It is admitted that traps and poisons will work for a time and in localities, but that nothing short of a contagious, fatal disease will kill off the pests.

Our Wealth by States.

According to the bureau of the census, the true value of all our real property and improvements, live stock, farm implements and machinery, factory machinery, tools and implements, gold and silver coin and bullion, railroads and their equipment, street railways, shipping, waterworks, etc., is $107,104,211,917. Quoting millions only, for easy reading, the record for each state worth $1,000,000,000 or more is:

New York	$14,769,000,000
Pennsylvania	11,473,000,000
Illinois	8,816,000,000
Ohio	5,946,000,000
Massachusetts	4,956,000,000
California	4,115,000,000
Iowa	4,048,000,000
Missouri	3,759,000,000
Minnesota	3,342,000,000
Michigan	3,282,000,000
New Jersey	3,235,000,000
Indiana	3,105,000,000
Wisconsin	2,828,000,000
Texas	2,826,000,000
Kansas	2,273,000,000
Nebraska	2,009,000,000
Kentucky	1,527,000,000
Maryland	1,511,000,000
Connecticut	1,414,000,000
Virginia	1,287,000,000
Colorado	1,207,000,000
Georgia	1,167,000,000
Tennessee	1,104,000,000
Washington	1,051,000,000
District of Columbia	1,040,000,000
Louisiana	1,032,000,000

All these state totals show large increases over the year 1900. On the basis of 85,000,000 population this total wealth of states of $107,000,000,000 is equal to $1,256 per capita.

The Quincy Day Nursery association is arranging for a Flag Festival on Tuesday, July 2d, on the grounds of the Nancy Brackett estate on Hancock street. They will have a license to sell fireworks suitable for the Fourth, also candy, lemonade and most every kind of a booth to interest the children. Mrs. Ward Whitcher of Atlantic is directing the affair and there will be a large corps of assistants.

Those who think that the fog whistle of the Creole, which is being tried out this week at the Fore River, is something dreadful, should take a trip on an ocean liner when it runs into a fog bank. Then they might hear the whistle at close range at intervals of less than a minute perhaps all day and all night.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

At the Majestic theatre, Warfield in "The Music Master" is greeted by crowded houses at every performance. He sways his audiences even as he has done before by the great characterization of von Barwig, a role which the Belasco star has made a classic of the American stage portraiture. It is therefore a double pleasure to be able to chronicle the announcement made by David Belasco of the extension of two weeks which he has decided to make in accordance with the public's emphatic demand for a longer engagement. Seats for these additional weeks on sale Wednesday morning. Warfield began his first and only road tour in "The Music Master" at the Majestic theatre, and that same playhouse is to see the final performances of this play. During this final engagement of "The Music Master," Mr. Warfield plays but one matinee this week and that on Saturday. It should be noted that the curtain rises promptly at eight o'clock in the evening and at two o'clock at the matinee.

PARK THEATRE.

The enormous audiences which have greeted Miss Lillian Lawrence and her company at the Park theatre since the inception of their summer run, are still in evidence. "The Little Gray Lady," which she is presenting this week, is one of the most recent of the New York successes. Last Monday night gave Boston it's first hearing of the play and both critics and audience were in accord with the nice things said of it by the New York press. On next Monday afternoon Miss Lawrence is to give Boston another recent New York success. This time it is to be "On Parole" a military drama by Louis Evan Shipman, said by the New York papers to have been the best seen there in years. Great preparations are being made for the celebration of the 3000th performance played by Miss Lawrence on a Boston stage. This event takes place Tuesday evening June 18th. Beautiful silk programs have been prepared for distribution as souvenirs. A special matinee performance will be given on the afternoon of Monday June 17.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

That prolific and successful young American author-composer and playwright, Geo. M. Cohan, has furnished another highly entertaining play to the American stage. It is called "50 Miles From Boston," and reason for for title is found in the fact that the scenes and incidents told in the story of the play are laid in and around Broofield, Mass., and the charasters with which it is peopled have been taken from types of that thriving little town and its surroundings Brookfield. In a scenic, costume and electrical way, "50 Miles From Boston" will be found as thoroughly equipped as any stage representation of recent production. There are three acts: The first an exterior, showing the Westcott home in Brookfield, built by Bernard McDonald, and painted by Young Brothers and Boss Company, of New York. The second act shows the interior of the Woodis home in Brookfield, and has been painted by Ernest Albert of the Leelash Studio. The third is a remarkably faithful duplicate of Harrigan's store in Brookfield also painted by Young Brothers and Boss Company. The first performance of "50 Miles From Boston" is scheduled for the Colonial theatre Monday evening, June 17, and the fact that the performance begins at 8.15 and the final curtain falls at 10.35 will undoubtedly find favor with suburbanites and Greater Boston people, who depend upon the city for their theatrical entertainment. The seat sale for the "50 Miles From Boston" engagement will begin at the box office of the Colonial on Tuesday morning, June 11.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Once more, and for the third time this season, there is to be a Gilbert and Sullivan opera at the Castle Square. "The Gondoliers" and "Patience" in the past few weeks have demonstrated the hold of these merry operas upon the music-loving public, and now "The Mikado" is selected for the coming week. Boston is, moreover, privileged to see and hear what is forbidden to "The Mikado" in the London of its original production, the Lord Chamberlain having forbidden its performances there for fear that it will offend the friendly Japanese government. The Castle Square cast of "The Mikado" will include George Tallman and Harry Davies alternating as Nanki Po, Clara Lane as Yum Yum, Geo. Shields as Pooh Bah, and Otis B. Thayer as Ko Ko.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

There will be several events of more than passing interest happen at Keith's next week, with the first appearance in vaudeville of Lawrance D'Orsay as the one of the most importance. Since this clever English actor made his debut in this country he has been connected with several great successes, notably "The Earl of Pawtucket" and "The Embassy Ball," and he has become an established favorite in comedy roles of a certain kind. Mr. D'Orsay is to play a sketch written especially for him, called "The Crafty Earl" and those who have had the good fortune to see it in rehearsal predict that it will become a vaudeville classic. "Billy's Tombstones," as presented by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew this week has proved to be one of the hits of the season, so much of a hit that it will be retained among the leading features for a second week.

THE ORPHEUM.

Replete with novelties and features is the bill selected for the week of June 17 at Percy Williams Orpheum, and it is a bill of extraordinary strength. Owing to the tremendous sensation created last week by the Bellclair Brothers, easily the greatest athletes on the vaudeville stage, they have been retained for a second week and will be seen in a new repertory of feats in strength and acrobatics. "In the Latin Quarter" is the title of a very pretty singing and dancing sketch which is included in the program. Mosher, Houghton and Mosher, a great comedy cycle act, and Welch, Francis and Company in a hodge podge of nonsense and horseplay are two other big features.

OFF FOR NEW YORK

Steamship Creole Expected To Develop Nineteen Knots

Upwards of 1,000 people witnessed on the afternoon of the holiday the departure of the handsome turbine steamship Creole, built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company for the Morgan line. She is a twin screw screw turbine passenger and freight steamer briefly summed up as follows:

Length over all,	440 feet
Length between perpendiculars,	410 feet
Depth, molded,	37 feet
Beam, molded,	53 feet
Displacement, loaded,	16,000 tons
Draft loaded,	25 feet
Number of boilers	10

It was reported that the Creole would go through the drawbridge at Quincy Point about 3 P. M., but the tide was sufficiently high about 2.30 and the steamship backed from her dock up the river, until her bow pointed directly for the opening in the bridge.

Three whistles were blown as the signal that all was in readiness to go ahead, and with an exchange of salutes with the whistles at the Fore River plant she was off. The flag of the Fore River Company was at the masthead and the United States flag at the stern.

Without a hitch she steamed majestically through the draw bridge, those on board waving their handkerchiefs and hats to those on the bridge and vicinity.

Not until that moment did most of the people assembled realize that such a mammouth and handsome craft had been built at Quincy. But nothing is too big for the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at its molel plant.

It was a difficult task against the strong tide to navigate the big steamer through the tortuous channel of the river, but the powerful tugs on either side kept her on the correct course, and when off Houghs Neck she was going ahead without their assistance.

When the Creole left the dock she had on board a large party of guests in addition to her regular crew. She was conveyed by two tugs who accampaniel her to the outer harbor. Capt. Edward Evans was in command and F. T. Cleverley was her pilot.

Her engines were in charge of J. F. Page, chief engineer of the Fore River company, under whose supervision the installation of the turbine engines were made.

Since her trial some weeks ago the Creole has been fitted with new propellers by the use of which she is expected to develop a speed of 19 knots, which however is more than the contract calls for.

Her contract speed is 16 knots. The propellers used on the trial trip were designed by government officials but she could not make quite the speed desired with them. The propellers she now has were designed by C. B. Edwards of the Fore River Co.

The arrangements were that the Creole should run to Provincetown on Monday, and this morning she was to have her standardization trials.

At the Fore River this noon it was said that no word had been received as to what speed was developed on the run to Provincetown.

After her trials she will steam directly to New York and be delivered to her owners the Southern Pacific Company and will run on the Morgan line between Ney York and New Orleans. It will be several weeks before she makes her initial trip.

Capt. T. P. C. Halsey who has seen 30 years of service on the New York and New Orleans line was on board and will be in command when the steamship is delivered. The chief engineer will be George W. Salbador, who has been in Quincy several months.

Fatal Accident On Railroad

John J. Scott, aged 35 years, of 157 Copeland street, was struck by a train on the Granite branch Saturday night and killed. The place where the accident happened was between the Metropolitan boulevard bridge and West street. It is supposed that he must have been struck by the 11.10 train Saturday night. The indications are that he was struck on the left side and thrown on the enbankment for marks on the embankment point to this conclusion.

It is then supposed that he crawled some twenty feet or more before his strength gave out. A German family living within 25 feet of where the body was found heard groans during the night. The woman wanted her husband to get up and see what the trouble was, but he refused as he supposed that it was a drunken row of some kind. The woman says that the groans continued until 1 o'clock when they stopped.

When daylight came she went out and found the body. Officer Lyons was notified and he in turn notified the medical examiner. Shortly after the body was identified as that of Scott by John McVay. McVay says that he was with Scott Saturday evening, but denies knowing anything about the accident. On the opposite side of the track from where Scott was found threr were marks on the embankment that indicated that someone had run away from the track. The belief is that someone was with Scott and that when they heard the train coming one man ran down the east embankment and escaped but that Scott was unable to and was struck on the left side.

His body was badly bruised on the left side and he was evidently injured internally. That he must have suffered untold agony before death ended his sufferings there can be no doubt for the position of his hands when found and the continual groaning heard for an hour or more indicates this.

Scott was unmarried and had only one relative in this city, an uncle, William Scott, of 183 Willard street. The funeral of the victim was held Monday.

House Warming.

Several families from the Point parish called Monday evening at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Sidlinger, Presidents hill, taking inmates somewhat by surprise and giving them a house-warming. During the evening, refreshments were served. Deason Charles Sherburn read an original poem, "On South Street by the Sea," Mrs. Harriet Holman also read an original poem "The wooing and the winning of 21 years ago." Mr. T. B. Pollard and Rev. A. R. Atwood made remarks. Mr. and Mrs. Sidelinger made pleasant responses. An enjoyable evening was spent.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobsen observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage on Saturday evening at their home on Kendrick avenue, where they entertained friends from New York, Boston, Roslindale, Newton Centre, Wollaston and Quincy.

The rooms were tastily decorated with ferns and cut flowers, while from the wide piazza were hung Japanese lanterns. The ushers on this happy occasion were Harry Titus of Wollaston and William and Fred Johnson of this city. Telegrams were also received offering congratulations to the happy pair.

During the evening the engagement was announced of their eldest daughter, Anna, to Mr. Harry Titus of Wollaston, and congratulations followed. All those present voted it a very pleasant time, and expressed wishes that they all might be present at Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen's golden wedding.

Ice cream, cake and fruit punch was served throughout the evening.

SCHMITZ IS REMOVED

"Temporarily Unable to Perform His Official Duties"

A VICTORY FOR ANTI-GRAFT

Those Interested In Prosecution of Evil-Doers Are Now In Actual Control of Municipal Situation and Wil Have the Naming of New Mayor

San Francisco, June 18.—Under orders of District Attorney Langdon, the board of supervisors last night adopted a resolution declaring Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz temporarily unable to perform his official duties and appointing Supervisor James L. Gallagher acting mayor. Gallagher says he will assume the mayoralty at once. He denies that he has made arrangements with any one to resign at demand in order to make way for a reform mayor whose name is yet to be announced.

District Attorney Langdon, Rudolph Spreckles and their immediate associates in the bribery graft prosecution are by this move placed in actual control of the municipal situation, because the supervisors owe immunity on graft confessions to the district attorney.

It is the plan of the district attorney to call for resignation in a few days of some 15 supervisors. These forthcoming, Acting Mayor Gallagher will, it is planned, appoint to the vacancy a man named by the district attorney. As soon as this man takes office Gallagher will resign from the mayor's chair.

The man most persistently mentioned for this place is Attorney Joseph Dalyer, president of the Independence League, but that political connection is said to render him inacceptable to Spreckles, the financial guarantor of the bribery graft investigation. Unless disturbed by the courts, the new regime will endure until next January.

Mayor Schmitz, convicted last week of the crime of extortion, remains a prisoner in jail.

The resolution declaring the mayor's chair vacant and appointing Gallagher to fill it was adopted after a fight on the floor. It was opposed by Supervisors Turlmoe and O'Neill. It was voted for by 12 supervisors whose confessions to bribe taking are transcribed in grand jury records. As none of these has been indicted for bribe taking, the general opinion is that they are to escape punishment if they continue to do the bidding of the district attorney and his prosecuting associates.

Disorders Increase at Odessa

Odessa, June 18.—The news of the dissolution of the duma and the czar's manifesto was received with stupefaction by the progressives here, who had not expected the abrogation of the laws so far forced from the government, but provoked the highest enthusiasm from the Union of True Russians, who celebrated the event with the sanction of the authorities. Since the dissolution of the duma the police have arrested more than 300 persons, including three professors, the leaders of the different Radical party, several families and children. Although there are no strikes, disorders and terrorisms are increasing daily. Bombs have been thrown and persons assassinated in numbers.

Hummel's Partner Dead

New York, June 18.—Benjamin R. Steinhardt, a member of the recently dissolved law firm of Howe & Hummel, who was under indictment in connection with the Morse-Dodge divorce case, died at his home yesterday of locomotor ataxia. The death of Steinhardt removes another of the firm which attained a conspicuous place in the legal world. Hummel is serving one year's imprisonment, while Abraham Kaffenburgh, also one of the firm, has been disbarred.

Says Soldiers Did Not Do Shooting

Washington, June 18.—Senator Foraker last night gave out a written statement summing up the testimony taken by the senate committee on military affairs in the Brownsville inquiry and declaring that it fails to show that any soldier took part in the affray. The statement is in answer to a published statement that the testimony conclusively showed the soldiers of the 25th battalion did the shooting.

To Consider Vagrant Question

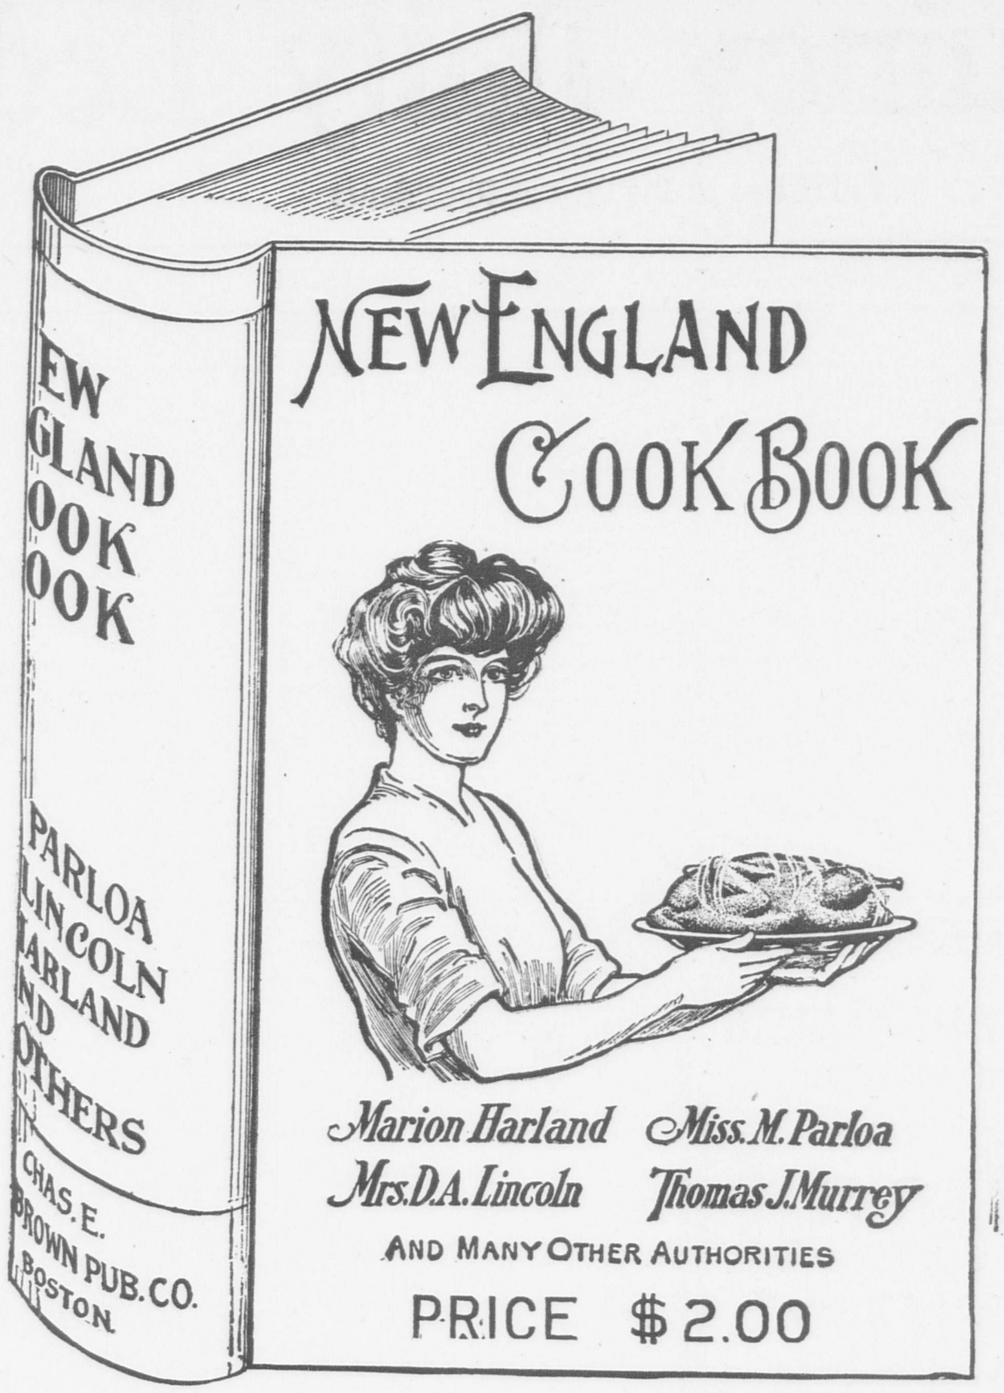

Minneapolis, June 18.—At the national conference of charities and correction a committee of 15 was named to deal with vagrants. The committee is not organized for relief purposes, but to study present conditions and suggest modern methods of treatment. It will undertake to procure uniform vagrancy and trespass legislation in the various states.

To Consider Telegraphers' Troubles

Washington, June 18.—Commissioner Neill of the bureau of labor declines to state whether he has received from President Roosevelt the various appeals made for executive intervention to prevent the threatened telegraphers' strike. Neill, it is understood, will leave for New York today to begin an investigation of the subject.

Czar's Expression of Gratitude

St. Petersburg, June 18.—The people whose campaign against the duma has been crowned with success have issued a proclamation of several million copies calling upon the people to help in the restoration of a pure, unlimited autocracy. It contains the following rescript from the czar: "Give to all the presidents of your lodges and all the members of the Union of Russian People my heartfelt gratitude for their devotion to the throne and the welfare of the Fatherland. I am confident now that all genuine Russians, loving without restraint their country, will rally to multiply your membership, so as to help me to carry out the peaceful regeneration of holy Russia. I lean upon you, the party of true Russians, who teach all my subjects how to be loyal, obedient and orderly."

It is alleged that Guy came home in an intoxicated condition and began to annoy a servant in the home. When Mrs. Guy interfered there was a quarrel and Mrs. Guy was fatally shot. Guy is 59 years old. His wife was 52.

DOWNFALL OF AOKI

Would Gratify the Cherished Ambition of Baron Kaneko

LATTER IS A HARVARD MAN

Also Enjoys Personal Friendship of President Roosevelt--Changing of Japanese Ambassador at Washington Will Not Solve Present Troubles

Washington, June 18.—State department officials and members of the diplomatic corps are much interested in the statement in a Tokio newspaper, The Hochi, that the Japanese government probably would recall Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, and is considering the appointment of Baron Kaneko as his successor.

Officials of the Japanese embassy say that the Progressive party has taken the San Francisco disturbance as a pretext in an effort to bring about the downfall of Aoki, and in this connection it is pointed out here that Marquis Ito has been inimical to Aoki for many years. It is stated authoritatively that "if the Japanese government has any intention of recalling Viscount Aoki the news will not be first announced to the world through the columns of The Hochi," and that "Ambassador Aoki does not attach any credence to the report."

Since his visit to the United States, when the peace conference was being conducted at Portsmouth, N. H., Baron Kaneko, it is said at the embassy, has had a great ambition to represent Japan as the ambassador at Washington. He was graduated from Harvard university shortly after President Roosevelt left that institution and he enjoys the president's friendship.

Baron Kaneko is not a member of the anti-administration party. He is a member of the privy council and a loyal supporter of the Saionji ministry, and his appointment as ambassador to the United States, it is said here, would not be considered as a concession to the Progressives or to the anti-administration forces.

In discussing the proposed recall of Aoki, Masuju Miyakawa, the Japanese lawyer and author, who, next to the officials of the Japanese embassy, is perhaps the best posted man in Washington on the domestic politics of Japan and with the public men of the empire, said:

"The changing of the ambassador would not solve the conflict and trouble between the groups of the Japanese races and groups of the other races in San Francisco. The solution is all up to the Japanese themselves. So long as they who reside in San Francisco speak in their own language, write in their own language, think in their own language, appreciate the environments from their own point of view and dissimilar from the American peculiarities, and avoid communication with the American people, they can never minimize the causes of the conflicts and troubles.

"So long as the Japanese of America depend upon the advice or interference of their home government they must expect a continuation of the troubles upon troubles. And for that matter, even though the officials of the Japanese imperial embassy consisted of the twelve apostles of God, they could never change the American constitutional theory of 'indissoluble union composed of indestructible states.'"

Will Disregard War Rumors

New York, June 18.—Resolutions pledging themselves to disregard for the present rumors of war between the United States and Japan were adopted by the newly organized press organization of New York. The resolutions conclude: "We trust both the American and Japanese governments will improve all opportunities at their command to settle Japanese immigration and naturalization problems along the common lines that humanity and justice shall suggest."

Seven Bodies Still Missing

Newport News, Va., June 18.—Clad in full naval uniforms, and with face and hands fearfully mutilated, the bodies of Midshipmen Ulrich, Stevenson and Holcomb were found in Chesapeake bay yesterday. The bodies of four of the 11 men drowned in the Minnesota's launch a week ago last night have now been found. The fact that the latest bodies found had drifted a dozen miles from the scene of the tragedy gives rise to a fear that all of them will never be found.

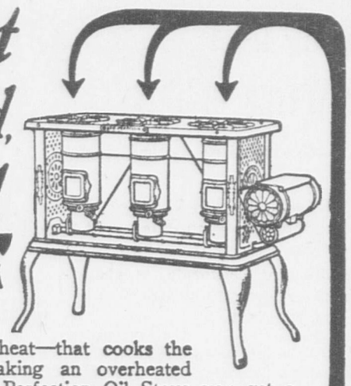

Railroad Directors Sharply Criticised

Atlantic City, June 18.—H. M. Mousely of the interstate commerce commission, in addressing the convention of the Master Carbuilders' association, surprised the delegates by declaring that "too tight-fisted boards of directors are responsible for a majority of the railroad accidents of the past year." The speaker said the directors paid "too much attention to stock market reports and not enough to railroad management and the proper rolling stock."

Sue's Trousseau

By WILLIAM BRYAN.

Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"I don't suppose that there is anything more to be said," Susie whispered, looking up into Lambert's face.

"There is a lot more to be said," declared Lambert. "Uncle Jim is guardian of my inheritance until I am twenty-five, but he has no right to prevent my marrying you."

"But you will lose the fortune if you marry without his consent," she reminded.

"I can work," he declared. "I would rather be poor and work for you than to have the income and be at Uncle Jim's mercy. He wants the money for himself, and it goes to himself if I marry without his consent, so he won't give his consent."

"We can wait," she suggested. "It is only three years. There will never be any one but you, dear. I would not want to feel that in marrying me you had destroyed your prospects."

"And be unhappy for three years for the sake of dad's money?" he said bitterly. "You can't buy three years even with half a million, Sue. That clause was only put in because dad was afraid that I might marry one of the Spencer girls. Uncle Jim is taking advantage of the clause to make me miserable. He was only father's stepbrother anyway. I don't see why dad ever made such a will."

"He had a right to dispose of his money as he saw fit," she said gravely. "We shall have to wait, dear."

"I'll carry you off by force," he threatened. "I tell you I won't wait."

But in the end Susie had her own way. It seemed hard that their marriage was dependent upon the whim of James Frazier, but the late Horace Lambert had been twice beaten at law by Mrs. Spencer, and when the will was made it looked very much as if Lawrence Lambert would marry Grace Spencer.

That was before the boy met Susie Ronald's. Later Mr. Lamoert had planned to alter his will, but Frazier had counseled against it, and in the end Mr. Lambert had passed away, leaving his son at the mercy of his shrewd but unscrupulous stepbrother.

Frazier had encouraged Larry's courtship of Susie, but when his formal consent had been asked it had been withheld without any reason, and the more young Lambert stormed the better Frazier seemed to like it. He felt very certain that Larry could not wait for three years and that the family fortune would revert to himself.

That he was more than comfortably rich did not matter. He was of the type in whom possession begets desire for more, and he was deaf to all arguments advanced by Lambert.

He went placidly about his business and apparently had lost all interest in the matter; but, though his mind appeared engrossed with oil wells, he was keenly aware of Lambert's impetuous mood, and he watched the restless lover with avaricious eyes.

That the marriage did not take place was no fault of Lambert's, who begged and stormed alternately. "I won't wait three years," he declared impetuously after one of these meetings. "I want to marry you now, whether Uncle Jim likes it or not."

"I think he will like it soon," she said, with a smile. "I don't want to say anything, but I've an idea that it will come out all right."

"There's Uncle Jim now," he said in surprise as the familiar team turned a curve in the road. "I wonder what he's up to."

"Perhaps he has come to give his consent," she said, with an odd laugh.

"Very likely," agreed Larry, with a grin. "I declare, he is going to stop here."

Frazier lumbered through the yard and up to the front door. "Is your mother in?" he demanded as Susie answered the knock. "I just want to see her a moment."

She ushered him into the parlor and rejoined Larry in the sitting room. All that took place came clearly through the folding doors.

"I just dropped in to see you about that south meadow," began Frazier, when the greetings had been concluded. "I bought the Davis farm, and it struck me that the meadow would go better with the Davis property than with yours. It's like a separate farm to you, with the car tracks running between that and the rest of your land."

"I don't care to sell," said Mrs. Rolands quietly. "I had thought to sell it to get Susie's wedding things, but now she's not to be married there's no need to sell."

"I'd give a pretty good price for it," he said carelessly. "I'd have to drain off that swamp that lies partly in your plot and partly in Davis' farm. Five hundred ought to be a pretty fair price."

"I don't want to sell," was the firm answer. "We've always called that 'Sue's trousseau,' and I shan't sell until she needs one."

"I wanted to see you about that, too," he went on uneasily. "I've been thinking it over, and it doesn't seem fair to the young folks to make 'em wait three years. I did think that Lawrence was too young, but he's changed amazingly lately, and I was going to say that if you still approve I'd say 'Yes' too. It may steady the boy to get married."

"Suppose you see them about it," she suggested, rising and going to the door. He followed her into the sitting room where, with bluff heartiness, he formally gave his consent to the marriage.

"Not only that," he declared expansively, "but I'll make the price of that meadow piece, $600 so as to get the young folks started off right. I'll bring the papers over tomorrow."

"Well, if Sue really is to be married," began Mrs. Reynolds hesitatingly.

"If!" he shouted with boorish heartiness. "To be sure she is. I'll have the lawyer witness my consent while he's drawing up the deed to the meadow land."

He stamped out of the house in high good humor and Larry turned to the two women.

"What is the meaning of all this?" he asked. "Is it magic?"

"The magic of money," smiled Mrs. Ronalds. "Your uncle has been tapping the Davis farm, and I guess he got over the line into our lot."

"If that meadow is oil land, it's worth a lot more than $600," he said, indignantly. "Do you mean to say you are going to let him swindle you just for the sake of obtaining his consent?"

"We are willing to let the plot go," was the woman's quiet answer.

Larry swore that he would not permit the sacrifice, but the two women only laughed, and he left with the determination to force his uncle to refuse the offer.

Frazier smiled paternally.

"My dear boy," he said blandly, "that lot has one of the best wells I know of. We struck oil almost on the surface. When the land is mine and I can sink the shaft it'll be worth a fortune. You have enough money for yourself and the girl. That should be sufficient."

Larry rushed out of the house and back to the Ronalds home. The arguments the women advanced must have been sound, for when Frazier came with the title deeds the next day Larry suggested that he and the notary act as witnesses to their marriage. The gray haired old minister stepped forward and completed the ceremony, and Frazier was eager to congratulate the bride.

"Here's the money for the trousseau," he cried, as he pressed a roll of bills into her hands. "Now if your mother will sign the deed, we'll be all through."

Mrs. Ronalds affixed her signature, and Frazier thrust the document deep into his pocket. He turned into the road leading past his new purchase. "I want to show you a pretty bit of land," he told his companion, the notary. "It's got one of the best oil wells in the state or I lose my guess, and I don't think I often make a mistake. Get up!"

The last remark was addressed to the horse, for in the field he had just bought a gang of workmen were tearing up the soil.

"What are you doing there?" he demanded as he dashed up. "That is my property."

"Just fixing the pipe line," explained the foreman. "I suppose the oil that got in the marsh the time of the wreck gave some one the idea that there was oil here. Anyhow, he's sunk his drill right into our main pipe line, confound him."

And Frazier drove on, echoing the last two words. "Sue's trousseau" had not been salted—just oiled.

A Teacher's Last Resort.

By the laws of Maryland corporal punishment in the public schools of that state is forbidden. This prohibition was much condemned by certain of the teachers with old fashioned ideas, especially by a teacher in one of the schools of the Eastern Shore some years ago. He was a strapping big fellow, and it was lucky for his pupils, who were rather a tough lot, that they were protected by the aforementioned law.

The teacher did the best he could under the circumstances, but moral suasion proving of little avail he finally laid his case before the board of trustees.

"Gentlemen," he said after a recital of his trials, "those boys must be licked."

"You can't do that," replied the chairman.

"Then you must assist me in controlling them."

"That, sir," observed the chairman testily, "is what you are employed to do."

"In that case," continued the teacher, "you must allow me to lick them."

"Corporal punishment is against the law," insisted the chairman.

"Then, gentlemen," concluded the teacher, with considerable emphasis, "some one must be licked, and I want to say right here that the next time I have trouble with my boys I'm going to lick a trustee. As I have trouble about once a day, each one of you may expect on the average one licking per week. I reckon there's no law against that."—Rochester Herald.

The Baggage System In England.

"So you are going abroad, eh?" said a railroad man. "Well, watch your luggage over there. The system is abominable.

"They don't, you know, have our simple and satisfactory check system. In England, for instance, no one is responsible for your luggage but yourself. You get a porter to put it in the baggage car, and when you reach your destination you pick it out with another porter's help, put it on a cab and drive off. Any one could steal it. Often luggage thefts occur.

"I often wondered why the English railroads, which in many respects are so good, didn't adopt our American check system. Last year, asking an English railroad man, I found out.

"If the English roads adopted the check system they would be responsible for luggage, as our roads are. The English law does not make them responsible. Therefore, of course, they do nothing that will lay such a responsibility upon them. But they acknowledge that our luggage system is fine, while theirs is execrable. And they have a registering system—a mere begging of the question—for which you have to pay extra."

WORK FOR SHIPYARD

Government Contracts of $3,000,000 For Submarines

In addition to the four government lightships, and good prospects for one of the mammoth battleships, the Fore River shipyard will have contracts for new submarine boats. A Newport dispatch to the Herald says: That a sweeping decision in favor of the Octopus has been rendered by the board that conducted the series of trials of submarine boats off here last month is the understanding of some naval officers who are located here. Their authority is not given, but the statements are based on information that has come to them privately from Washington since the board sent its report to the Navy Department a week ago.

Upon the decision of the board depends the spending of $3,000,000 in the building of submarine boats at the Fore River shipyard at Quincy that will insure employment to many men for a long time. Other contracts are also in sight.

Childrens Day At Universalist

On Sunday, Children's Day was observed at the Universalist church. The regular service was given over to the children, who gave a most interesting program, parts being taken by the oldest to the youngest members of the Sunday school. The rendering of each part showed interest by each and gives much credit to Mrs. Grace Condon and Miss Ethel Merritt who had in charge the arrangements and training.

During the service the pastor, Rev. W. S. Perkins, gave a short talk on the origin of "Children's Day," the relation of the children and the church, and the duty of the church to the children.

A most pleasing number was the closing by ten of the youngest ones who sang a flower song and then as each spoke a short piece about the flowers a wreath was laid on the altar making a mound after which they gave a prayer song. The children were assisted by a full choir and solos by Miss Mattie Holton, Mrs. B. Morton, Mrs. F. Chute.

Two Arrests At Synagogue

The police were called in Saturday night to quell a disturbance at the Jewish Synagogue on School street, which resulted in the arrest of David Lubarsky and Abram Edelstein for assault and battery.

It apears that a Rabbi from New York had been secured to hold services and to cover the expense an admission of twenty-five cents was charged. It is alleged that Lewis Catler came to the services without a ticket and not only refused to contribute, but also refused to go out when requested.

It is then alleged that the president ordered Lubarsky and Edelstein, who are trustees, to put Catler out, which they did. This angered Catler's friends and a race riot was eminent. Things were getting warm when the police were notified and Officer Goodhue was sent down to see that order was preserved while the services were in progress. Later warrants were sworn out against Lubarsky and Egelstein for assault and battery.

Reading For Day Nursery

Perfect weather, delightful surroundings, charming hostess and entertainer, all contributed to make the reading Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, for the benefit of the Day Nursery, a great success. Over one hundred attended, the house and piazza being used.

There were songs by Mrs. Faxon and her sister, Mrs. Ellsworth.

Readings from Eugene Field were given by Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis with an interesting sketch of his life. Mrs. Davis' rich full voice carried distinctly, so that none lost any of her delightful recitation. The hour with Eugene Field was entertaining; the selection of poems being varied, humorous and at times pathetic, to all of which emotions Mrs. Davis was adequate and pleasing.

Following the entertainment frappe sandwiches and cake were served from small tables on the lawn by a bevy of young girls in white gowns among them being Dorothy Low, Esther Dasha, Esther Beckford, Madeline Brown, Louise Dunn, Louise Abercrombie, Beatrice Morrison, Blanche Morrison, Elizabeth Ellsworth and Mary Faxon. Miss Helen Claflin served frappe.

Remarkable Record of R. H. Fletcher As Teacher

Miss Julia E. Underwood, the veteran teacher at the Coddington school, has a rivil for long service as a teacher in Ruel H. Fletcher, a master at the Coddington in 1856 and 1857. He succeeded Bernard Paine, and his successor was J. W. Upton. During his principal-ship of the Coddington his assistants were Miss Jula E. Underwood, Miss Frances A. Dodge, Miss A. Small, Miss L. E. Hall, Miss Elizabeth C. Moulton and Miss A. F. Jamesonn; some one year and some the other.

The Herald says: A headmaster for half a century in the Cambridge schools is the remarkable record of Ruel H. Fletcher of the Thorndike school, East Cambridge. On Thursday he will graduate his 50th class from that school, and the school committee of the city, as well as his hundreds of personal friends and former pupils, intend to make that occasion a memorable one for him.

He was born in Cornish, N. H., in 1829. For 58 years he has taught school, beginning in 1849, when he taught the winter school in his native town to earn money to assist a younger brother through college, denying himself that privilege. Later he taught in several towns in New Hampshire and Vermont. He came to Massachusetts in 1852, taught school two years in Abington, two years in Quincy, and then began his long service in Cambridge. That service was started in the Otis school, for which a new building was erected a few years after and the name changed to the Thorndike school, so that his service has been practically in the one school.

When the city of Cambridge erected two new school buildings four years ago, unknown to him, the pupils of his school circulated a petition that one of the new schools be named in honor of the headmaster to whom they were so devoted. The decision of the school committee to comply with their request was prompt and unanimous. The Fletcher school graduates its first class on Tuesday, and Mr. Fletcher will be a guest of honor on that occasion.

The veteran headmaster possesses a remarkable faculty for remembering faces and names, and he often meets pupils whom he taught over two-score years ago. A short time ago Mr. Fletcher met an old lady in a street car who was the prize pupil of the school while he was teaching at Quincy in 1855, and who wore the gold locket which she had receivel from him as a reward for her school work.

Fatal Fall By a Painter

Thomas Whalen, aged 65 years, of 41 Hall place, West Quincy, was killed Monday noon by falling into the hold of the steamship Creole. Mr. Whalen, who is a painter, was at work on the deck of the vessel putting on some finishing touches, when he lost his balance or slipped and fell through the hatchway to the hold of the vessel, a distance of thirty feet.

He was quickly taken out and carried to the yard hospital, where it was found that his back had been broken at the hip and both legs were broken. He died shorty after reaching the hospital.

Mr. Whalen had a wife who was in poor health, and it was feared that if she was immediately notified of the death of her husband the shock might result seriously. Word was therefore sent to her son at West Medford. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner Jones and removed to Hall's undertaking rooms.

Quincy Y. M. C. A. Boys' Champions

The junior athletes of the Quincy Y. M. C. A., sprung quite a surprise on the representatives from other associations which competed in the State meet at Riverside on Saturday, when they walked off with most of the places in each event. Every boy won one ribbon and Howard succeeded in securing four, the greatest number won by any one boy, the results being as follows:

50-yard dash—Won by H. Prout, Quincy Y. M. C. A.; second, S. Temple, Boston Y. M. C. A.; third, E. Howard, Quincy Y. M. C. A. Time, 6 2-5s.

220-yard dash—Won by S. Temple, Boston Y. M. C. A; second, E. Howard, Quincy Y. M. C. A.; third, E. Dennison, Gloucester Y. M. C. A. Time, 29s.

Relay race, half mile, contested by teams representing Chelsea, Somerville, Quincy—Won by Quincy. Time, 2m. 3-5s. The winning team was made up of Howard, Manning, E. Prout, H. Prout.

The team won 22 points out of a possible seventy-two, and in so doing won the meet and the Boys' Championship of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

This victory is very creditable as only four from Quincy competed, while several of the other Associations had a much larger entry list.

Owing to an accident to Harold Prout, he was cut out of the finals in the 220 yd. dash, due to his shoe coming off just before the tape was reached. Up to that time he looked like a sure winner, but to protect himself from falling had to stop running.

The secret of the boys success was due to the constant practice they put in during the past three weeks on Merrymount field.

Other events of the day were tennis championship games, athletic meet of the senior department of the associations of the two states. Quincy was represented by three men, Histon in the shot put, Wilson and Floyd in the runs and dashes. While these men made a very good showing they did not win any places in the finals. Interest, however, has been aroused, and the Association expects to do better in the senior department another year.

The junior boys are very enthusiastic over the winning.

Open Race At Wollaston

There were 61 starters in the open race of the Wollaston Yacht club Saturday afternoon, but there was lack of wind that many of the yachts were unable to finish within the time limit. What breeze there was came from the southeast and this practically died out before the race was finished.

Out of the large list of starters, 32 managed to finish so that their time could be taken. The boats in class B did not get in within the time limit. In this class the fleet was led by the Sintrim.

There were six classes to start, class A having nine, of which but three finished; class C two; class D twelve of which seven fininnshed in time; class S eight with four finishers; class X nine and the Hingham one design class eight.

With the large number of starters the race would have been a most successful one if the wind had only held.

Accident at Summer Street

There came near being a serious accident early this morning at the corner of Washington and Sumner streets, when the wagon of Nathan Steinberg was struck by an electric car.

The car was one of the specials that take the workmen to the Fore River. Just before the car reached the intersection of the two streets it slowed down some. The motorman had just started up when Steinberg drove out of Summer street onto the tracks.

The car struck the forward part of the wagon overturning it. Mr. Steinberg was thrown to one side of the tracks and the horse on the other side.

Mr. Steinberg was picked up unconsious and taken to the office of Dr. Middleton, where it was found that he had a slight cut on the head and was bruised somewhat, but fortunately no bones were broken.

After having his inuries dressed he was taken to his home on Sumner street. The team was somewhat smashed and the horse injured more or less.

WINSLOW IS SILENT

Naval Commander Was Arrested by Customs Officials

CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING

Treasury Department Orders His Release, but He Must Pay Duty Imposed on Champagne and Cigars Brought In on a Cruiser

San Diego, Cal., June 18—Charged with smuggling in champagne, cigars and other dutiable articles, Commander Winslow, one of the wealthiest officers of the navy, commanding the cruiser Charleston, and a personal friend of President Roosevelt, who on Saturday was arrested by customs officials, has been released under special orders from the treasury department.

Refusing to make any statement regarding the affair, Winslow left for the east. He is married to a daughter of the late Theodore A. Havemeyer, founder of the sugar trust, and maintains a cottage at Newport.

The customs officers insist that the seizure of Winslow's goods is the beginning of a great naval scandal and that they will be able to show that naval officers assigned to shore duty are accustomed to lay in a quantity of champagne, wines, cigars and other articles of a dutiable character.

When Chief Customs Officer Barnes saw great cases coming ashore from the Charleston he became suspicious and asked Winslow what the boxes contained. According to Barnes, the commander swore they contained household goods consigned to his Newport cottage.

Not satisfied with the explanation, the officers watched the cases until they were put aboard a freight car, billed east by the Santa Fe railroad, and then seized them.

They were opened and, it is said, were found to contain 29 cases of champagne, two cases said to contain notions but really containing curios, and also several cases of cigars, to a total of 2100 pounds.

The goods were removed to the custom house, where the local appraiser decided all were dutiable and fixed the duty at $205.

Owing to the high rank of Winslow the customs officers were in doubt how to proceed and wired the facts to Washington. The treasury department wired that Winslow should be immediately released and that he pay the duty imposed.

Decision as to Railroad Rates

Kansas City, June 18.—The Missouri 2-cent passenger fare act will go into effect at 6 a. m. tomorrow for a three months' trial. If, at the end of that time, it is found to be unremunerative, its enforcement can be fought in the courts by the railroads. The state officers are temporarily enjoined from enforcing the maximum freight rate law, and this case will be argued later in the federal court. Judge McPherson, in the United States district court, ordered the promulgation of the above stated facts.

Captured Two Towns and Quit

Managua, Nicaragua, June 18.—The revolution started in Salvador, in which Nicaraguans aided the revolutionists, resulted in the capture on June 11 of the important towns of Acajutla and Sonsonate, but the expeditionary chief did not think it convenient to continue the advance because his numerous partisans did not concur with him that the time for such advance was opportune, thus resulting in the failure of the movement.

Kelly Protests His Innocence

Rochester, June 18.—"Big Ed" Kelly of Boston, convicted of second degree murder for the killing of Edward Pullman, was sentenced to prison for life. When asked by Justice Sutherland if he had anything to say Kelly replied: "When you sentence me you sentence an innocent man. The evidence against me has been perjured. Your charge to the jury was a summary. You have been rightly named 13th juror. That is all, sir."

Coal Hid Big Bomb

Cleveland, June 18.—A dynamite bomb big enough to wreck a building was found in a load of coal being delivered to an East End knitting mill. The police are investigating whether an attempt was made to blow up the mill or whether efforts had been made to wreck a mine from which the coal came. There are 300 girls employed at the knitting plant. There has been no labor trouble at the factory.

No Thanks to Justice McKenna

Denver, June 18.—The Western Federation of Miners defeated a proposed vote of thanks to Justice McKenna of the United States supreme court for his dissenting opinion, favoring Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone in their appeal for habeas corpus. In debating the resolution McKenna was denounced as a servant of the corporations. The proposed vote of thanks got only one vote.

Duchess Relieved of Jewels

London, June 18.—The Dowager Duchess of Roxburghe had a jewel case containing gems valued at many thousand dollars stolen from her during a railway journey from London to Doncaster.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

RECKLESS PATRIOTISM

Responsible For Many Casualties In Celebrating Bunker Hill Day

Boston, June 18.—Two deaths and over 100 injuries treated at the hospitals, at least one of which is expected to result fatally, and about 100 arrests for violating the city ordinances regarding the use of explosives, marred the festivities attending the 132nd annual celebration of the battle of Bunker Hill.

Mrs. Elizabeth Travers was leaning from her window to remonstrate with some boys who were firing off cannon crackers when she was startled by the explosion of a large cracker and fell three stories to the pavement. She died soon afterwards.

Cornelius H. Tagen, a fireman, was driving his engine in response to an alarm caused by firecrackers, when his horses, frightened by the explosions of fireworks, swerved, hurling him to the ground and causing injuries from which he died.

Other victims of fireworks crowded the hospitals, and police and hospital attendants say that yesterday surpassed all recent records for injuries caused by fireworks either in June 17th or Fourth of July celebrations. Some of the patients at the local hospitals are on the dangerous list.

Several persons were shot and severely injured by boys carelessly discharging revolvers. One of the victims was Robert I. Redding, who, while standing before the dresser in his room, was struck in the back by a bullet which came through an open window. Redding is in a critical condition. The police were unable to learn who fired the shot.

Boys Mangled by Dynamite

Derby, Conn., June 18.—John Izzo, 7 years old, is dead, and Carmen, his 5-year-old brother, lost a hand as the result of the explosion of a dynamite stick with which the boys and three small companions were playing on the sidewalk in front of a grocery store here. The other boys were not injured. John's right arm and leg were torn off, a hole was made in his right lung and there was an inch-deep hole in his head. Both boys' bodies were covered with small cuts. A great hole was blown in the sidewalk.

Old Home Week at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., June 18.—The opening day of Worcester's Old Home Week celebration was marked by the attendance of one of the largest throngs of visitors ever in the city. Two parades, a civic procession and a military turnout, with a general illumination of the city last night, afforded plenty of features of interest, and in addition the program included races at the fair grounds, athletic events, a baseball game and a display of fireworks.

Electric Cars In Collision

Lawrence, Mass., June 18.—Several persons were injured in a collision between two electric cars in Methuen last night. Motorman Webster was the most badly hurt, sustaining a fractured leg. A car from the Methuen town farm division crashed into a car loaded with excursionists from Canobie lake for Lawrence, which had come to a stop. Webster was the only one who was hurt badly enough to require medical attention.

Draper Leaves Draper Company

Hopedale, Mass., June 18.—The resignation of William F. Draper, former ambassador to Italy, as president of the Draper company, was read and accepted at the meeting of the directors of the company here. Draper states that his decision to resign was strengthened somewhat by a difference of opinion concerning certain details of the business that have arisen in the board of directors.

Forty Automobiles Burned

Boston, June 18.—Forty automobiles were destroyed and 10 more were more or less damaged in a fire which broke out in the Back Bay auto station, a garage operated by Kenneth A. Skinner. Skinner estimates the total loss at not far from $70,000. How the fire originated is so far a mystery. Every car had been filled with gasolene and oil and was ready for the road.

Had Probably Hanged Himself

Providence, June 18.—The body of Gottlieb Domke, 50 years old, was found in the woods in Johnson. Several lengths of cheesecloth were wrapped about the neck, and it is believed that Domke hanged himself to a tree, and that the cloth by which he was suspended afterward gave way and allowed the body to fall to the ground. Domke disappeared June 3.

Killed Herself In Grove

North Adams, Mass., June 18.—Mrs. Charles Rochat, aged 46, wife of the proprietor of a department store here, boarded an electric car for Cheshire, 10 miles distant. Upon reaching there she walked to a grove near the roadside and killed herself by shooting through the head. She had been suffering from nervous troubles.

Lawyer In Disgrace

Boston, June 18.—Fayette W. Wheeler of Malden, a member of the Suffolk bar, was disbarred by Judge Fox in the superior court, on charges that he induced an aged client to sign notes for $20,000.

Husband Tells of "Suicide Pact"

New York, June 18.—Laura, the 19-year-old wife of James Woardwell, was shot through the head and killed at their home here last night. The husband, who is 25 years old, notified the police, explaining that his wife had taken her life in accordance with a suicide pact into which the two had entered. He was placed under arrest.

PARENTS REFUSED CONSENT

Young Man Could Not Marry Girl and Cut Her Throat In Revenge

Milton, N. H., June 17.—Mamie Trebeau of Sanbornville, aged 19, is suffering from knife wounds in the throat, alleged to have been inflicted by her sweetheart, Arthur Marcoux of this village. Although there is a cut in her neck nearly six inches long, she is thought to have a chance of recovery, as the wound is not of great depth.

Marcoux, who was arrested after the wounded girl had been found in a lonely spot near a picnic ground, was taken to Dover jail to await the outcome of her injuries. Marcoux is said to have told the officers that he was infatuated with the girl, but that her parents refused to allow her to marry him. Marcoux accompanied the officers to the scene of the attack and assisted in finding the knife which he used upon the girl's throat. Marcoux is a shoe factory employe, 21 years old.

Says Merger Will Benefit Boston

New Haven, June 17.—A high railroad authority here, speaking of the prospective merger of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and Boston and Maine railroad lines, states that after the merger special attention is to be paid to the development of marine interests at Boston. This, he states, might encounter some obstacles from rival interests, but would be pushed, even though in the end it would compel the establishment of a trans-Atlantic service in connection with the merged corporations.

Maritime Company to Investigate

Gloucester, Mass., June 17.—The seizure of the mackerel seiner Fannie B. Prescott by the Canadian cruiser Canada for fishing within the three-mile limit off the cape shore is the principal topic of discussion here. The consensus of opinion is that if it is clearly proved that the Prescott was within the three-mile limit there can be no protest, as she would have no possible right to be there. It is expected that a thorough investigation will be made by the Atlantic Maritime company.

AN OUTBREAK LATER

But Tranquility Prevails In Russia For the Time Being

CZAR'S ORDER KILLS DOUMA

Breaks Law He Gave the People Himself--Result of Refusal to Consent to Stolypin's Demand For Suspension of Certain Members

St. Petersburg, June 17.—The dissolution of the second duma was received in St. Petersburg with tranquility. Thanks to the precautionary measures taken by the authorities, order prevailed in this city, and in no place in Russia, so far as is known, were there any serious disturbances. No reports of disorder in the interior have been received.

Demonstrations by St. Petersburg workmen are anticipated today, but the authorities are not alarmed over this. They profess to be chiefly apprehensive over the possibility of rioting and racial excesses in Odessa, Kiev and other cities where party feeling runs high. An outbreak of agrarian disorders in several regions of the empire is anticipated later, when the peasantry learn of the dissolution.

The military was chiefly disposed in the industrial section, but a strong force occupied the Tauride palace vicinity. Nobody was allowed to enter the precincts of the palace. A laconic notice was posted on the gates announcing that "former deputies" would receive their salaries upon application to the chancellory of the empire.

The officer in command of the troops informed The Associated Press that he had orders to disperse any crowds collecting, without parley, and not to spare the bullets in case of necessity.

During the night nine of the 16 Social Democratic leaders specifically named in the government indictment were taken into custody. The other seven succeeded in eluding the elaborate provisions made for their arrest. Two secret service officers, with signed warrants, had been assigned to follow each deputy and serve the warrants as soon as the ukase was promulgated.

Emperor Nicholas affixed his signature yesterday to an imperial ukase abolishing the present duma, and ordering that the elections of members to its successor, which is to meet Nov. 14, be held under the new election law, which provides against the "submergence of the educated classes by the uneducated masses."

This act constitutes a virtual coup d'etat, and overrides the specific provisions of the fundamental laws of the realm, solemnly proclaimed by the czar on the eve of the convocation of the first duma, when he declared that the electoral law could never be changed without the consent of the parliament itself.

This breach of the constitution is justified by the great law of necessity, the advisers of the czar holding it impossible under present conditions to secure a parliament capable of co-operating harmoniously with the crown to rescue Russia from anarchy and revolution.

The dissolution of the duma, arising directly from the refusal of that body to consent to the demand made upon it by Premier Stolypin to permit the arrest of a number of its members on the charge of conspiring against the state, does not come as a surprise.

The history of this duma, like its predecessor, has been one of almost constant clashes with the government. This in spite of the fact that a consistent effort was made in some quarters to make the duma an effective legislative body, and that the government's program for legislation contained a number of real reforms. The cabinet declared it would give parliament every chance to justify its existence. The deputies, however, were insistent on radical changes, and their persistence in this course resulted in what amounts to a charge by the government that the duma was a shelter for conspiracy and treason against the state.

The situation entered upon its final phase when the revolutionary members of the lower house went over to London and took part in a congress which had for its avowed purpose the upsetting of the throne of the czar.

From the very beginning the sessions of the second duma have been characterized by bitterness, recrimination and discontent, and there have been countless evidences of the hostility between the house and the administration.

Deplored by Peace Delegates

The Hague, June 17.—The dissolution of the duma and the promulgation of a new election system in Russia have created a profound impression among the delegates at the peace conference and for the time being matters pertaining to the conference are forgotten. The fact that such an event should occur simultaneously with the opening of the conference is generally deplored. Irrespective of individual approval, there is general disapproval as to the wisdom of the dissolution.

Colonel Shot and Killed

Sebastopol, June 17.—Colonel Guesskoffsky, assistant harbor commandant, was killed by a revolver shot in the vicinity of the docks yesterday The assassin was arrested.

Did You EVER THINK of That?

IT WILL HELP QUINCY!
IT WILL HELP YOU!

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

MURDER IS SUSPECTED

Authorities Think Powder House Was Fired to Conceal Crime

South Paris, Me., June 18.—Charged with the murder of Edgar L. Rackliffe, aged 22, whose body, with a stab wound in the neck, was found in the ruins of the powder house at the Paris Hill mine after the powder house blew up, Wallace Everett, aged 40, caretaker of the mine, was placed under arrest and lodged in the county jail.

With the finding of the body of Rackliffe it was believed the young man had met his death by accidentally causing the explosion of the powder, and a coroner's jury reported the death as due to accident. Later the discovery of a wound in the neck caused an autopsy to be performed. The finding of the physicians, with the discovery of an open knife near the powder house stained with blood, led to the arrest of Everett. About a year ago Rackliffe transferred to Everett a life insurance policy for $1000, and since then Everett has been paying the premiums.

The authorities are working on the theory that a murder has been committed and that the powder house was fired to hide the evidences of the crime.

"Spirits" Rule Mrs. Vanderbilt

New York, June 18.—While admitting that she may have written certain of the spirit letters mentioned in the hearing held last week, to determine whether a commission should be appointed to inquire into the sanity of Edward Vanderbilt, Mrs. Mary P. Vanderbilt declared in an affidavit filed yesterday that she was under a "spell" when the letters were written and did not know what they contained. Her explanation of the letters is that for many years she has been subject to trances caused by various spirits and that while she is in a trance she is entirely unconscious of what she says or does.

In Smashup on Eve of Wedding

Washington, June 18.—Captain H. F. M. Browne of the British army and his fiancee, Miss Maud V. Hanna of Cincinnati, were injured in an automobile accident late yesterday. Both were taken to hospitals, but later returned to their hotel. Miss Hanna had just returned from abroad. Their marriage is scheduled for today. Mrs. Beulah Jacobs, Miss Hanna's chaperone, was also in the automobile and is in a very serious condition. The machine plunged down a steep embankment while turning a sharp curve in the suburbs of Washington.

Liquor Transportation Decision

Leavenworth, Kan., June 18.—In the case of the Kansas Brewing company, asking an injunction to prevent Assistant Attorney General Prickett of Kansas from seizing liquors in transit from Missouri to Kansas, Judge Pollock held that where the sale of liquor is made in good faith in a foreign state the seller had the privilege to deliver the same in Kansas and either collect in Kansas at the time of delivery or in Missouri at the place of sale.

Snug Fortune In Sub-Treasury

New York, June 18.—The task of examining the funds stored in the Wall street sub-treasury by representatives of the United States treasury department has been completed. The examination found that $267,836,166.26 cash, which was reported on hand at the close of business on May 11, has balanced to the penny. During this examination about 2000 tons of silver dollars and 250 tons of gold coin were examined and counted.

Enormous Business Activity

New York, June 18.—The annual report of the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York shows that the total value of the foreign commerce of the metropolis for the calendar year ended Dec. 31 last was $1,567,729,735, as compared with $1,374,417,122 for the preceding year. The total clearings reported by the clearing house amounted to $104,675,000,000, as compared with $93,822,000,000 in the year preceding.

Government Job For Foreign Ships

Washington, June 18.—The navy department has been obliged to enter into a contract for the shipment of American coal from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast in foreign bottoms. The department was unable to make contracts for the transfer of the coal in American bottoms because of a lack of such ships.

A Vartarian Murder Suspect

Liverpool, June 18.—An Armenian giving several names was formally arraigned in the police court here on suspicion of being implicated in the murder of Father Caspar Vartarian, whose dead body was found in a trunk in a New York lodging house. The case was remanded.

Tunnel Builders' Heavy Failure

New York, June 18.—Schedules filed in the bankruptcy case of the New York Tunnel company, which is building the East river tunnel from the Battery to Brooklyn, show liabilities of $1,122,454 and nominal assets of $518,696, consisting of plant equipment, machinery, etc.

Train Wreck In Colorado

Trinidad, Col., June 18.—Eighteen passengers were injured, three probably fatally, in a wreck of a passenger train near Earl, caused either by a defective brake beam or a spreading rail. Six cars left the rails.

South Quincys Win Two Games Merrymounts Are Defeated

The Malden White Sox, who had not met defeat this year, struck a snag at the Ward 3 playground Saturday when they were taken into camp by South Quincy and defeated in a game that at times was close and exciting, by a score of 11 to 6.

Charle Gamzel, former catcher of the Boston Nationals sat on the bench with the visitors and coached his team in the fine points of the game, but the home aggregation were out to win and spoiled the visitors chances to carry out their plans.

Patterson was on the firing line for South Quincy and he was given an ovation when he struck out the first batter. This was his first appearance this year, and the team behind him worked hard for victory and as seen by the score he was given excellent support.

The visitors were heralded as being almost invincible and for this reason a large crowd turned out to witness the game, and applauded liberally the good plays of both teams.

South Quincy started in to win in the initial inning, scoring two runs while the visitors were retired in order.

In the second inning Malden scored four runs, but should have been blanked. With two out, and the bases full, Hackett drove a liner to centre field which took a bad bound getting by Oswald which allowed three men to score.

This change of affairs seemed to make the home team work all the harder and in their half they scored four runs.

There was nothing doing for either side until the seventh when the visitors added two runs on hits by Doyle, Horne and Larkin.

With the score 6 to 4 it looked like a victory for the White Sox but the home team "doped it," differently and started after Hackett's benders and sidewheelers in a way that greatly pleased the fans. Duffy and Dunn reached first on clean hits and both were advanced on Birnie's neat sacrifice. Forbes got in a bingle to centre which was good for two bases, but fast fielding kept him on first, and Duffy and Dunn scored. Patterson "was there" with a neat bunt which advanced Forbes. Burke beat out a slow grounder to short and Ganzel dropped Oswald's fly to left, Forbes and Burke scoring, and Oswald reaching third on the throw in to the plate, and scored on Flynn's two-bagger to left.

The visitors tried hard to add a few more runs and had men on bases in the eighth and ninth innings but Patterson's fine pitching and fast fielding prevented them from scoring.

Forbes caught his usual good game and it is worthy of mention that the visiting teams have found it impossible to steal the middle sack as Eddie is there with the strong arm. Duffy also shares in the good work of nipping the base-runners when they "mope," into his territory. Birnie covered first in fine style accepting all chances without an error. Patterson had splendid control not allowing a man to pass to first. Other features were the fielding of Duggan, Oswald, Burke and Dunn and the hitting of Duggan, Duffy Birnie, Forbes and Flynn, while Doyle Horne, Tupper, Ganzel and Hackett excelled for the visitors.

The management are much pleased with the marked improvement shown by the home team in batting, nearly every player getting one or more hits.

In a one-sided contest on the afternoon of the holiday the South Quincys simply toyed with the Malden Independents on the Ward Three playgrounds, the score being 18 to 1.

The game was noted only for the slugging of the ball by the home team who hit to all parts of the field. The game from a speccular poin of view was a comedy as the South Quincys chased each other round the bases.

The visitors could do nothing with Patterson's delivery. After putting the game on ice he allowed Duggan to pitch and Litchfield went behind the bat the last four innings.

The features were the batting and fielding of the South Quincys, Patterson's pitching and the throwing of Higgs.

Unions 7; Merrymounts 3.

In their third game of the season the Merrymounts were defeated at Wollaston on the morning of the holiday by the Boston Unions 7 to 3. Both teams started the ball rolling in the first inning, but Merrymount did not tally again until the fifth when Loud came home on a safe hit by Leach to centre field. Kolson, the old Merrymount twirler was in the box for the visitors, while Gram tossed them over for the home team. Both pitchers did excellent work, Gram allowing only six hits and Kolson seven. The game was won by errors, on the part of the home team, coupled with the bunching of hits by the visitors.

The features of the game were the hitting of Leach and Nichols for the home team, and Ring for the visitors.

Makaria, 21: Bigelows, 1.

In a game with very few features, Makaria downed Bigelows on Saturday 21 to 1. Tupper's excellent work in the box could not be improved on as he allowed only three hits and Nicoll's work at the bat for four hits was the star work for Makaria. Bigelow tried three pitchers without much success, while Dyer got the only run for Bigelow in the eighth.

Makaria, 10; Volunteers 7.

At Waltham, June 17, the Makaria defeated for the second time this season the Volunteers by a score of 10 to 7. The phenominal pitching of Penley was the greatest feature; he struck out 12 men passed only two and allowed not a single hit. Errors were responsible along with several very close decisions for the Volunteers runs. Smith was Makaria's best hitter, getting a three bagger in the third, a single in the first and also a sacrifice, while Nichols made two good bunts which the Volunteers failed to connect with. Smith's work behind the bat was great; he and Penley make a battry hard to beat.

Connelley pitched a good game for the Volunteers but had poor support.

A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control.

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation or cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twings of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatism Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatism Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

WORMS IN CHILDREN

6 YEARS SUFFERING RELIEVED IN 8 HOURS

DANVILLE.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—One of my boys had been troubled for about six years with cramp in the stomach, and suspecting that it might be brought on by worms, we gave him different medicines, but without effect. Last January he had a more severe attack than usual, and hearing of the almost miraculous effects of your Elixir, we gave him about a teaspoonful, and in about eight hours it brought from him a living creature about eighteen inches in length. He has had no return of them since, and is now very hearty. G. W. VICKERY.

Thousands of people have worms and don't know it, yet the symptoms are easily recognized.

Even though worms might not be present this extraordinary remedy will effect wonderful changes in the run-down system. It is a great stomach and liver tonic and regulator.

Worms in adults and children can be readily detected from the following symptoms: Indigestion; a variable appetite; offensive breath and foul tongue; eyes heavy and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow fever and often, in children, convulsions and bed-wetting; looseness; hard, swelled bowels. No matter how pronounced or how light the symptoms, will restore the patient to normal health again.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

TURNER, ME.

DR. J. F. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—Having used your Elixir in my family for many years, after having satisfied myself of its superior merits, I recommended it to my neighbors, who now very generally use it. I consider it the very best medicine now in use, especially for children.

Very truly yours, JOB PRINCE.

NEW GLOUCESTER, MASS.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—The Elixir I purchased of you cured my boy, who had been troubled with worms ever since he was a child. He had tried many other medicines, and I had employed physicians until I found it of no use. I despaired of his being restored to health till I heard of your Elixir, which, I am happy to say, effected a speedy cure.

Very truly yours, W. G. COOMBS.

Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 35c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. A booklet entitled "Children and Their Diseases" will be sent free by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

MAYOR VETOES

The Bill Board Ordinance As Unconstitutional And Tells Why

There was considerable inportant business before Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council, but it went through with little debate and an adjournment was reached a little after 9 o'clock. Councilmen Hayward, Pinkham, Sawyer and Stone were absent.

BILL BOARDS.

The Mayor returned without his approval the order establishing an Ordinance concerning the erection of bill boards. His reasons for vetoing the order were that "an attempt is made by the ordinance to place a servitude upon certain real estate in the city without providing adequate compensation therefor. This would, in my opinion, be an unconstitutional provision.

"If the ordinance sought to prohibit indecent and immoral advertisements, or bill boards which were dangerous to the public from a physical standpoint, such an ordinance might be entirely proper.

"The matter of bill boards and signs has been passed upon by our Supreme Court in a recent case in which the Metropolitan Park Commission sought to restrict the erection of signs or bill boards near parkways and the regulation was declared unconstitutional by the court.

"As this ordinance seems to me to be of a similar character I cannot approve the same and return it unsigned."

The veto was sustained by a vote of 13 to 4, as follows:

Yes—Coombs, Curtin, Donovan, McKinnon—4.

No—Beal, Brokaw, Curtis, Deacon, Falconer, Ferguson, Gelotte, Hobbs, Hull, Hunter, McGilvray, Teasdale, Walsh—13.

Absent—Hayward, Pinkham, Polk, Sawyer, Stone—5.

Not voting—President Piper.

ADAMS ACADEMY.

A communication was received from the Mayor with inclosure from the Managers of the Adams Academy stating their position on the question of merging the school with the public school system. After outlining the original vote of the town by which the Managers have entire control of the school it says: the management of the fund is admitted to be in the hands of the supervisors but the Managers conceive that after the necessary charges are deducted it is at the disposal of the Managers as well as the selection of the masters and assistants.

It appears that the supervisors finding that the expense of maintaining the school annually outrun the income have determined that it is impracticable to conduct it longer as a separate institution. On the plan for merger the Managers have never been consulted nor have they been officially informed of its being contemplated. The master was informed by the chairman of the supervisors that the discontinuance of the school had become a necessity.

The Managers forbear to comment upon what they cannot but think an unwarranted slight to their position and authority but they feel it their duty to express their opinion in the premises.

They do not dispute that the income is insufficient but they cannot agree that the only alternative is to merger in the High school. It would seem to them that there are many reasons for retaining an institution which supplies a specific want. They therefore recommend that a plan be adopted which has frequently been proposed in the last thirty years, namely to close the active operations at the end of the present school year allowing the income to accumulate till it can be reopened on a sound basis. Laid on the table.

SUPERVISORS LETTER.

The Mayor forwarded a communication with inclosure from the supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund stating that said board will willingly acquiesce to any action which the City Council may take in the contemplated plan of merging the Adams Academy with the High school. The Mayor in his communication says that before any action is taken that a public hearing should be given to all parties. In conclusion he suggests that these matters lay over until after the vacation season.

ACADEMY BOARDS

Differ As To Future Of Adams Academy

C. F. Adams, for the supervisors, in his communication says that while they are willing to accede to any action the Council may take, they believe that the consolidation with the school system is the truest execution of the essential wish of the founder of the fund. It was beyond his contemplation that the public schools should reach the classics and fit boys for college. Now that it does so, it becomes plain that his gift may be more effectiye in combination with the efforts of the city government than it can be if many expenses are duplicated in the dual organization in the same city.

It is also plain that the plan of shutting up the Academy and leaving the building to deteriorate and the land around it to lie vacant for the next generation is an exceedingly wasteful one, as the children of Quincy will lose the benefit of the plant for a long period and the building may be presumed to be of little value when that period has run out. We do not believe it fair to presume that John Adams would have wished us to pursue under these changed conditions and uneconomical and wasteful policy, which will for a long period deprive the growing generation in Quincy of the benefits which he hoped to give them, and we believe the plan of consolidation which we have proposed must be one permanently and under any conditions beneficial to the essential purposes for which the fund was given. Laid on the table.

CRESCENT STREET

Difference Of Opinion At Hearing Before Council

CRESCENT STREET.

At 7.45 a public hearing was held on the proposed extension of Crescent street to Copeland street.

Representative E. J. Sandberg appeared in favor. He believed the streets should be connected, and if necessary money should be expended for that purpose. He would favor the city doing anything to further this end whether it cost $1 or $1,500.

Ex-Councilman William T. Shea felt that an exit from Crescent street to Copeland was a necessity.

Ex-Councilman James F. Burke favored connecting, but did not think the city should spend a cent. The city should stand stiff and the Metropolitann Park Commission will put the street where it belongs. We were taken advantage of in 1900 by the Park Commission, and if we stand firm now they will do the work without cost to the city.

J. Frank Merrill opposed. He lived on Crescent street and wanted it kept for light driving. If put through all the stone teams will use it. Now but a few do.

The hearing closed and the order was recommitted.

SOLDIERS MONUMENT.

A communication was received from Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., that the Soldiers Monument in Mt. Wollaston cemetery be moved to a more suitable spot, or a new monument more in keeping with the city erected. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

PETITIONS.

Petitions for minor licenses were received from various parties. Those for licenses to keep and sell fireworks were laid on the table until later, when Councilman Ferguson offered an order granting the same.

The Electric Light Co., petitioned for a location for poles on Russell park, Woodward avenue, Quarry street and Broadway. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Petitions were received from the Old Colony Street Railway Co., asking for a location of tracks on Chubbuck street, Des Moines road and East Howard street to a point near the works of the Fore River Ship Building Co., and to relocate its turnout on Washington street near Mill street.

Also for permission to operate a trolley freight line on Randolph avenue from the Randolph line to the Milton line.

Both of the petitions were referred to the Committee on Streets.

Amos D. Albee petitioned to be reimbursed one half cost of granolithic sidewalk on Prospect avenue. Referred to Committee on Finance.

LICENSES.

The Commitee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the applications of various parties for minor licenses including Clements express, S. F. Barker, William Jacobs, and Boston & Houghs Neck Steamboat Co., to transport liquor.

The application of the Steamboat Co., was laid on the table.

The application of Mary Purposi and N. Mercurio were also laid on the table.

Councilman McGilvray moved that the application of Mary Melvin and G. Gardiano be laid on the table, but the motion was lost.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting minor licenses which were adopted.

ATLANTIC SCHOOL.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrosed on the order appropriating $3,500 for furnishings for the new school building at Atlantic. Order passed.

STREET REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets reported the following orders:

Granting the Quincy Electric Light & Power Co., a location for poles on Garfield, Atlantic and Beach streets. Ordered to a second reading.

An order granting the Old Colony Street Railway Co., a location for a double track on Hancock street between Depot street and the junction of School street and Quincy avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

The order provides that the work shall be completed on or before Jan. 1, 1908.

The Committee on Streets reported reference to the Finance Committee on the communication from William H. Graffon for apportionment of sidewalk assesment.

HANCOCK STREET.

Councilman Hobbs offered an order widening Hancock street on the east side between the Stetson estate and Cottage avenue. To Committee on Streets.

OTHER ORDERS.

Councilman McGilvray offered an order for $2,500 for resurfacing Common street. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Brokaw offered an order for $200 for repairing the sidewalk and walk on the west side of Newport avenue, between Adams street and South Central avenue. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Falconer offered an order for $500 for painting and repairing the Lincoln schoolhouse. To Committee on Public Buildings.

HEARINGS ORDERED.

A recess was taken for ten minutes.

On reassembling the Council referred back to reports of committees, when the following reports were received from the Committee on Streets:

An order for a public hearing July 8, at 7.45 o'clock, on the order for the widening of Hancock street on the easterly side from the Stetson estate to Cottage avenue.

An order for a public hearing July 8, at 8 o'clock, on the petition of the Old Colony street railway for a location of tracks to the Fore River.

An order for a public hearing July 8, at 8.25 o'clock, on the petition of the Old Colony street railway, for permission to operate a trolley freight on Randolph avenue.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Councilman Hull asked of the Mayor if the High school hall had been accepted.

Order Introduced For Widening Also One for Double Tracks

Over 16 Knots Made by Creole

The Creole made 15 runs over the measured mile on Tuesday at Provincetown. The highest number of revolutions obtained was 245 which gave a speed of 1647 knots, exceeding the contract speed by about three-fourths of a knot.

The technical men at Fore River state that on a straight run the vessel will average not less than 255 revolutions and a speed of nearly 18 knots, for on a measured mile run it is impossible to get the best results from the boilers.

The vessel left for New York this morning and will be delivered to the owners. Further economy test runs will be made on the way to New York. The turbine machinery on the test runs Tuesday worked very smoothly and satisfactory, not the least trouble was experienced in the manoeuvering of the ship.

Among those on board the Creole during these trials is Y. I. Mizutani, chief engineer of the Japanese naval dock yard at Kure, who was sent to this country by the Imperial government to inspect turbine engines.

The passenger list also includes Warren H. Rideout, the paymaster of the Fore River Company and Henry Schultz of the estimating department.

Damage by Lightning

A heavy thunder shower passed over Quincy about 3 o'clock this morning. The thunder was heavy and the lightning sharp, but there was no rain. The lightning did considerable damage to the power station of the Electric Light Co., burning out the Quincy Centre and Atlantic meters, entailing a damage of $150.

Batteship Bids Opened Thursday

President Bowles and Assistant Manager Brown of the Fore River shipyard left for Washington Tuesday evening to be present at the opening of the bids on the two battleships tomorrow.

Farewell Party.

A farewell surprise party was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Roesler of West street at Doble's hall one evening recently. Seventy or more of their friends met to express their esteem and kind wishes, as they are to move to Woburn. The committee, Mrs. William Richards, Mrs. Boutilier and Mrs. A. M. Mischler presented the couple a handsome full dinner set, ice water pitcher and a forget-me-not. They both responded by thanking all. A good lunch was served and there was singing, dancing and a cake walk.

A CARD.

The family of Daniel R. McKay desire to express their sincere thanks for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy of their neighbors and friends during the sickness and death of their son, also for the many beautiful flowers sent for the funeral services.

ON THE AGGRESSIVE

Change of Front of Populace In the South of France

VILLAGERS ARE IN REVOLT

Serious Depredations Already Committed--General Rising to Make Resistance to Government Forces Dispatched to Scene of Strite

Paris, June 19.—The government appears to have acted none too soon in determining to set in motion the law against the revolutionaries in the south of France. The prefects report the commencement of efforts to raise the populace, and three departments, the Aude, Herault and Pyrenees Orientales, are apparently nearing a stage when aggressiveness will replace the passivity which heretofore has marked the movement.

Advices from Narbonne, department of the Aude, show that the situation there has become worse. Dynamite has been discovered on the railroads, in some cases the tracks have been removed, the telegraph wires have been cut with the object of impeding the arrival of troops, and the revolted villagers have been pulling up the pavements and collecting material for barricades.

The excitement at Narbonne and other places in the south has increased dangerously, owing to the announcement of the activity of the government and the agitation of the hotheads. The announcement of the intention of the government to arrest the leaders of the winegrowers' movement was promptly followed by a general rising of the countryside with the object of making fierce resistance to the government forces.

In view of the incendiary threats of the population the general staff of the Sixteenth army corps had a midnight conference at Montpelier and all the plans were made to meet eventualities.

The winegrowers committee at Argheliers is still outwardly counselling a "strike with folded arms," but the followers are evidently out of hand.

Summonses are out against the whole winegrowers' committee on the charge of inciting the people to revolt, and a number of mayors will be prosecuted for attempting to overthrow the central government. Detachments of cavalry from the east are on their way to replace the local troops.

The action of the government led to a lively debate in the chamber of deputies. Premier Clemenceau refused to agree to the immediate discussion of an interpellation on the subject of the government's plans and demanded its postponement to June 21. He declared that all means of conciliation had now been exhausted and that as chief of the government he was bound to enforce respect for the law. The winegrowers' committee of Argelliers had set up itself in place of the central government, and three departments had engaged in a revolt against the country's law and were threatening to burn out and otherwise terrorize mayors and others who refused allegiance to the committee. Summonses had been issued for those responsible for this state of affairs.

If the chamber defeated the postponement of the interpellation, the premier said, he would immediately countermand the prosecutions and the chamber would be held responsible for the grave consequences. It was his desire to avoid the threatened bloody conflict.

After heated remarks from M. Jaurez, the Socialist leader, who declared the government had brought the country to the verge of civil war, Sarraut and Ribot came to the support of the cabinet, the latter saying that the situation was the worst in 37 years. The government's motion finally was adopted by 412 to 158 votes.

Fullam Understood His Duty

Washington, June 19.—Grateful citizens of Puerto Cortez, Honduras, have addressed a letter to the navy department expressing their appreciation of the energetic offices of Commander Fullam during the recent war between Honduras and Nicaragua. Fullam landed bluejackets from the gunboat Marietta and restored order in a town that was in a state of anarchy, while sternly notifying the Nicaraguan naval commanders that they would not be allowed to bombard the helpless port.

Murdered by Unknown Man

New York, June 19.—John Rosenhelmer, a wealthy needle manufacturer of this city, was murdered while walking through his country estate at Pelham last night. He was struck down by one of two men who were skulking along the path which Rosenheimer and his wife had taken for a stroll. He died a few moments later. His assailants escaped. Upon the estate many Italians are employed. Recently some of these were discharged.

Gold Cup Disappeared

Ascot, Eng., June 19.—A mysterious robbery occurred during the races here. Various trophies were on exhibition, as usual, in charge of two officials. While the attention of these officials was momentarily diverted a gold cup presented by King Edward was stolen. The cup was valued at more than $1000. It was to have been run for on Thursday next. There is no trace of the thief.

LETTERS ARE INTRODUCED

Tend to Show That Haywood Had Knowledge of Orchard's Doings

Boise, Ida., June 19.—The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder trial offered one of its most important pieces of evidence against William D. Haywood when, recalling Harry Orchard for redirect examination, it introduced four letters tending to show that Haywood, during the fall of 1905, when Orchard swears he was engaged on various crimes for the federation leaders, had participated in a plan to deceive Mrs. Orchard as to the whereabouts of her husband.

Over a variety of protests from the defense, Orchard was allowed to testify that early in the summer of 1905 Haywood told him that Mrs. Orchard was writing for information as to Orchard's whereabouts.

The defense attacked the letters and Orchard's story about them when it got a chance to cross-examine the witness, but Orchard held to the story he told about them. The witness successively denied that he had made an arrangement for the delivery of the letters to Pinkerton agents; that the letters had only made their appearance since he left the stand last week, or that he had invented the story because his wife had Haywood's letter in her possession. He swore positively that Haywood had agreed to write to Mrs. Orchard telling her that her husband was in Alaska and that Pettibone and Moyer knew of the arrangement.

Assessment for Defense Fund

Denver, June 19.—Among a number of resolutions introduced at the convention of the Western Federation of Miners was one for a general assessment of $2 on each member for the defense fund for Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone.

Convicted of Kidnapping Boy

New York, June 19.—Ignazio de Leonardo and Pietro Pampinellia were convicted of kidnapping and employing "Black Hand" methods of extortion. They were convicted chiefly on the testimony of Salvator Siatta, aged 7, who was stolen from his home last winter and held a prisoner while "Black Hand" letters demanded from his father, a prosperous barber, a ransom of $10,000. The boy's death was threatened. He was eventually released, though the father denied that he had settled with the abductors.

Mutiny of Russian Soldiers

Kiev, June 19.—During the night the 21st battalion of sappers, 450 strong, mutinied. They killed the commander of the third company and began firing volleys at random. Five loyal battalions were summoned to quell the mutiny and called upon the mutineers to surrender. They replied with shots, however, wounding four of the loyal soldiers. The loyal battalions fired a volley and the mutineers broke and fled. Two hundred and fifty-eight of them were arrested, but the others escaped.

Italy Will Protect Subjects

Mexico City, June 19.—It is reported that an Italian man-of-war has been ordered from New Orleans to Guatemalan ports, and that the Italian government has instructed its minister to make vigorous representations to the Guatemalan government in the case of two Italians who are condemned to death for alleged complicity in the attempt on the life of President Cabrera.

Peace Delegate May Be an Anarchist

Naples, June 19.—A statement in the Paris Temps that General Orestes Ferrara, one of the Cuban delegates to The Hague, is an anarchist, has caused great interest here. Ferrara is a Neopolitan by birth and as a student had a somewhat turbulent record. It is considered here by those who know him very unlikely that he is an anarchist.

Mayoralty Ballots to Be Recounted

Albany, June 19.—Governor Hughes has signed the New York city recount bill, providing for a recount and recanvass by judicial process of the ballots cast for the office of mayor at the election in New York city in November, 1905. With the bill Hughes files an extended memorandum discussing the matter.

Immigration Probers Leaving Italy

Rome, June 19.—The United States immigration commission is about to disperse, the members going to Germany, Austria, Russia, and other countries. They expressed the greatest satisfaction with their work in Italy. The government gave them every facility for the proper conduct of their investigation.

Four More Bodies Recovered

Newport News, Va., June 19.—The waters of Hampton Roads yesterday gave up the bodies of four more victims of the Minnesota"s launch disaster, two dead midshipmen and two bluejackets being picked up within half a mile of where the launch was sunk.

Insurance Company Absorbed

Liverpool, June 19.—A provisional agreement has been concluded, whereby the London and Lancashire Fire Insurance company absorbs the Standard Marine Insurance company. Both of these concerns have considerable interest in the United States.

Nicaraguans Leaving Honduras Coast

Puerto Cortez, Honduras, June 19.—The Nicaraguan forces will withdraw from the Honduras coast within four days, the first vessel sailing last night.

MERGER MEASURES

Seven Brought Before Bay State Solons For Consideration

SPEAKER COLE HAS REMEDY

Recognizes Sentiment Favoring Railroad Consolidation and Proposes a Year's Stay of Proceedings--Bill Meets Disapproval In Test Vote

Boston, June 19.—Seven measures, all of which were prompted by the proposed consolidation of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and Boston and Maine railroads, were up for consideration in the legislature yesterday and the legislative committee on railroads had plenty of work mapped out for them when they met in executive session.

The feature of the day's events was the submission to the committee on railroads of a bill drafted by Speaker Cole of the house of representatives and an accompanying explanation of the points in his bill which he wished emphasized.

While in some respects Cole's bill is a drastic measure, it recognizes that there is a sentiment in favor of the proposed consolidation. The bill provides for a stay of proceedings for one year. Before the consolidation can be effective it must receive the approval of the state board of railroad commissioners after a public hearing.

Attorney General Malone also appeared before the committee on railroads and submitted a bill which provides that there shall be no consolidation without the express authority of the legislature and the approval of the railroad commissioners. This bill is understood to have the approval of the governor.

Representative Luce offered an order in the house calling on the state tax commissioner to transmit a statement showing the corporation excise last assessed upon the two railroad corporations in question and his opinion of the probable effect upon the commonwealth and the cities and towns of an exchange of stock of those two companies.

Other bills that were before the committee were the Brandeis bill, submitted last week, which seeks to prevent the consolidation absolutely; a bill offered by Representative Luce providing for the office of a state controller of railroads, and two bills that were drafted last week by Attorney General Malone.

Accompanying a letter addressed to the chairman of the committee on railroads, Malone submitted a draft for an additional bill by him. It provided against the passing of the control of a corporation chartered by the commonwealth into the hands of a corporation or individual unless directly within and subject to the jurisdiction of the commonwealth, and made the penalty for the violation by a railroad corporation $10,000 and a fine of $1000, or imprisonment of six months to one year, or both, for any officer or agent of a corporation violating the law.

A wide interpretation was given the word "railroad corporation" to include a joint stock association, partnership or trustees. The attorney general expressed the belief that the committee would be able from one or all of his bills to frame all legislation desired in the merger case.

The committee, in closing with an executive session for the day, took a test vote upon the Cole bill and the result was a vote of 7 against the bill and 6 for it.

Take Plenty of Time, Says Lodge

Boston, June 19.—William B. Lawrence of Medford, representing large interests in the Boston and Maine opposed to the New Haven absorption of that system, held a protracted conference with Senator Lodge at the Touraine last night. Lodge declined to be interviewed, but as he is supposed to be opposed to the merger, it is understood that he and Lawrence are preparing a coup to spring on Mellen. "It will pay the legislature to take plenty of time and deliberate well upon the solution of this question," said Lodge to a reporter after his talk with Lawrence.

Shipyards Seriously Handicapped

Washington, June 19.—Secretary Metcalf will leave Washington June 29 for San Francisco to make a special study of the conditions in the shipyards of the coast. Existing labor conditions on the Pacific coast, combined with the high price of material, make it impossible for the shipbuilders there to successfully compete for government contracts with eastern shipyards.

Taft Reception at Omaha

Omaha, June 19.—Because of delays north of Chadron, Neb., the result of heavy rains, Secretary of War Taft and party did not reach Omaha until 7 o'clock last night, three hours behind schedule time. The secretary went to the new Y. M. C. A. building, where a public reception was held. He left late last night for Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Facts Kept From the Press

Berlin, June 19.—The German press is discussing the English-French-Spanish triple alliance with some concern, without knowing the terms of the agreement. The foreign office admits that Germany has been officially informed of the text of the understanding, but the officials cannot divulge anything, pending the official publication.

TO CUT INDEMNITY

United States Will Keep Promise Made to China

BILL FOR ACTUAL EXPENSES

But $11,000,000 Will Be Charged, Resulting In a Saving to China of Difference Between That Amount and $59,000,000--Up to Congress

Washington, June 19.—The state department fully confirms the statement of the Chinese minister that it is the determination of the president to release China from the payment from all but the actual expenses to which the United States was put by the Boxer uprising of 1900, provided that congress shall give its consent.

The fact that the indemnity is being collected under the terms of a treaty makes it impossible for the executive to act alone in this matter. But upon the reassembling of congress next winter the president in his annual message will recall the facts connected with the assessment of the indemnity and will suggest that the payment of more than the amount actually expended be remitted.

By the terms of the treaty China was to pay to the United States a sum slightly less than $25,000,000 with interest in annual instalments running through a period of 39 years. So far there has been collected the sum of $6,000,000, and out of this has been paid all of the claims of American missionaries for property destroyed and lives lost in the uprising, amounting to about $2,000,000, leaving free on hand $4,000,000.

A careful estimate has just been completed of the expense to which the United States government was put by the military operations in China, the naval expenses and the losses suffered at American consulates. These aggregate $9,000,000, so that all of the indemnity that should really be charged against China is $11,000,000 and at the rate the payments have been made recently it is expected the total will be met in the course of four or five years more. The plan is to then give China a release in full.

The saving to China is far greater than would at first be supposed, for as heavy interest was to be charged on the total amount of the indemnity awarded to America by the international commission that met in Pekin in 1900 it is estimated that the total sum of money that China would have been obliged to pay to the United States in the course of 39 years through which the payments were to run would not be less than $59,000,000.

United States Kept Promise

Boston, June 19.—On his last visit to Boston before he returns to his native land to receive further honors from his government, Sir Chentung Liang Chang, the retiring Chinese minister, is being entertained by a number of distinguished Bostonians.

He announced that the most important news that he had received since he left Washington was the fact that the American government would not insist on the payment of $24,440,778.81 which was originally demanded because of the sufferings of residents of this country during the Boxer troubles, but had instead agreed to accept $11,655,492.69. China had agreed to pay the former amount.

"Four years ago," the ambassador said, "your government was good enough to promise me that when the time arrived, as a token of sincere friendship for China, the original figures of the indemnity would be revised.

"They have been true to their promise. I have received a note from Secretary Root in which he says that the president directed him to say that in his message to congress he would be pleased to recommend that China would be relieved of all obligation in excess of the final revised amount of the indemnity."

Italian Diplomat Scents Trouble

Milan, June 19.—The Perseveranza prints an article signed "ex-minister of the foreign office" which says that it is probable Italy will conclude an entente with Japan, but that in order to maintain peace in the Far East a Japanese-American entente is necessary, these two countries being rivals by geographical position. The article says that "something perhaps is brewing which will make Italian fidelity to the triple alliance still more indispensable."

Schmitz Rebukes Supervisors

San Francisco, June 19.—Mayor Schmitz was given permission by Judge Lawlor yesterday to pay another visit to his attorneys, but failed in his effort to have the court permit him to attend to other than private business. Schmitz, after a long conference with his attorneys, addressed to the board of supervisors a letter, rebuking them for their action in removing him from office.

New Head of Jamestown Show

Norfolk, June 19.—The directors of the Jamestown Exposition company last night accepted the resignation of Governor Cottrell, practically made James M. Barr director general with full powers to succeed Cottrell, and endorsed a second bond issue for $700,000 to cover all the exposition company's liabilities.

AN ALLEGED FORGER

Boston Police Arrest Man Said to Be Wanted In Many Cities

Boston, June 19.—Under arrest at police headquarters, charged with being a fugitive from justice from another state and also with having uttered a forged check in this city, is a man whom the police believe is Leroy A. Ball, alias Arthur L. Ball, 41, and who is alleged to be wanted by the police of many cities on forgery charges.

Ball, it is claimed, forged a check in the name of H. W. Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., for $860, and with it he is said to have bought an automobile for $700 from Edward E. Chapman of this city. It is further claimed that Ball received $160 in return and also the motor car, and then attempted to dispose of the vehicle.

When the check was presented at the bank payment was refused on the ground that it was a forgery. Chapman took immediate steps to have the man apprehended.

Ball was arrested at the Castle Square hotel, where he has been living with his wife and daughter. The Boston police yesterday received a letter from Chief Hayden of the Rochester police giving an account of several forgeries of which Ball is accused, and also sent an exemplified copy of a warrant to hold the man.

Three Deaths From Heat

Boston, June 19.—Three deaths, a dozen prostrations and a fire is the complete record for the hottest June 18 on record since the establishment of the weather bureau in Boston in 1871. The mercury rose steadily through the day from 73 degrees at midnight to 94.2 at 2 o'clock, which was the highest official temperature of the day. In various parts of the city the mercury went up to 100 degrees and over. The fatal prostrations of the day were Charles Hayden, 75; Alexander Fisher, 89, and Eugene Callahan, 33.

Launch Engine Exploded

Pittsfield, Mass., June 19.—Through the explosion of the engine of a gasolene launch on Lake Pontoosic last evening Lucy Robinson, aged 18, was drowned and her three companions had a narrow escape. The engine broke down while they were out in the middle of the lake and Edward Boyde, after repairing it, lighted a match to see if everything was all right. This caused the gasolene to explode and all the occupants leaped overboard.

Body Identified by Letter

Newport, R. I., June 19.—The body of Captain Oscar Keilsen, formerly keeper of oyster beds in Narragansett bay for a New Haven firm, from whom nothing had been heard since he came ashore at Portsmouth in his boat six weeks ago to obtain supplies, was washed ashore at Middletown last evening. It was badly decomposed, but was identified by a letter found in his pocket.

Backed Out of Suicide Pact

New York, June 19.—Under pressure of a merciless examination, James Wardell confessed that, in furtherance of a suicide pact, he shot his wife. He had previously told the police that his wife had shot herself after the two had agreed to die together. His courage failed him when the time came for self-destruction. While it was suspected that Wardell had shot his wife, an autopsy developed that the woman had died from inhaling gas. Finally Wardell broke down and told the truth.

Death Instead of Pleasure Trip

New York, June 19.—While waiting for a tug to take him to the vessel in which he had engaged passage for a pleasure trip to South America, Paul W. Harrison of New Haven tumbled into the East river from a pier and was drowned. Though he was pulled out of the water alive and his heart pulsated for three hours under the ministrations of surgeons, he failed to respond to treatment.

Neglected to Audit Books

Philadelphia, June 19.—The Millbourne Mills company, one of the oldest flour concerns in the east, has failed for $751,000. The mill has been in operation since 1757. It is said the trouble is due to mismanagement, the books, it is alleged, not having been audited for 15 years. No estimate of assets is given.

Many Postoffices Cleaned Out

Washington, June 19.—Postmaster General Meyer is in receipt of a letter from C. H. Hatch, postmaster at Bridgewater, Conn., who writes in part: "This office was blown March 31 and April 2, 1906, netting the cracksmen about $4500. The New Milford safe was blown in August, 1906, and within the last two months the following offices have been blown and contents stolen: Sandy Hook, Hawleyville, Washington depot and Roxbury station. These offices have netted the 'yeggs' about $7000 from stamps and cash." All the offices are within eight miles of Bridgeport.

The ball, pitched by Coakley, struck Bresnahan behind the left ear and he fell to the ground unconscious. After about 10 minutes he was revived, but later again lapsed into unconsciousness. He was removed to a hospital.

Hundred-to-One Shot a Winner

New York, June 19.—The surprise of the racing at Gravesend yesterday was the victory of Little Woods, a 100 to 1 shot, and Eugene Woods, the politician, won $16,000 on his victory. J. S. Hay, the owner of the gelding, did not bet on him. Little Woods has been racing here since the season opened and he has on several occasions been quoted as high as 150 to 1. Rosemount, the favorite, finished away back in the ruck.

The second explosion resulted from the ignition of firedamp which accumulated after the first explosion.

John Buchanan of Grand View avenue, insurance editor of the Boston Globe, sails today on the Cymric for Europe.

Unless base ball scores are promptly to the office, the Daily Ledger has no use for them. Send if possible on night the game is played.

Miss Alice White, librarian at the Thomas Crane Public Library, was the guest of Mrs. Abrams at the Colonial Inn at Concord on the Seventeehth of June.

An indignation meeting is to be held at St. Mary's hall tonight to take action on the serious condition of the pond on Grove street, and other matters of local interest.

The declamations and distribution of prizes of Adams Academy will be held in the Stone Temple at 7.45 P. M. on Saturday June 22. All friends of the school and the public are cordially invited.

Yesterday was not the hottest June day on record, but the highest temperature on June 18 for at least twelve years. In every year since 1895, with the exception of 1903 and 1906, Quincy has 90 degree temperature in June and some years as high as 95, 96, 97 and 98.

William Amory, formerly of "Seven Oaks," Braintree, died on Sunday at his summer home at Dublin, N. H. Years ago he was prominent in the affairs of Christ church. He leaves a widow and young daughter. Services will be held in Boston on Friday.

Not until the ninth innings did the Brookline boys score against the Galahad Club on June 17 on Smith's field, and the home team won 22 to 1. The features of the game were the battery work of Smith and Dakers, Smith pitching a no-hit game, and also the great work of Deacon at first base. The team greatly appreciate Spargo as their new captain.

Honors Won by Donald P. Malcolm

The silver prize cup for proficiency in every study, to win which is one of the chief honors of graduation day at the Mitchell Military boys' school, Billerica, was won this term by Donald Paige Malcolm of Wollaston.

The presentation on June 14, says the Herald, was an impressive event, and as young Malcolm stepped forward to receive the token from the president of the alumni association he was loudly cheered by his classmates.

Inscribed on the side of the token is a short history of the cup, which states that it was "presented by the Alumni association of M. B. S. to the Mitchell military boys' school for award each year to the student having the highest general average in studies."

The winner is a son of John D. Malcolm, a printer at 201 Columbus avenue, who makes his home in Wollaston.

Man Found Unconscious

Some young men passing through School street about 10 o'clock Tuesday night found an unconscious man on the sidewalk. The man was taken to the office of Dr. Reardon where he partly revived but not enough to tell who he was. The man was evidently in considerable painn, and he was removed to the City Hospital in Hall's ambulance. He recovered consciousness before morning and said his name was Thomas McArthur and that he lived at 1821 Washington street, Roxbury. He said that he was subject to stomach trouble and that this and the heat had overcome him. He was able to return to his home this morning.

Three Steamers For Coal Trade

Among the boats under construction at the Fore River shipyard in this city are three of the largest steamers ever built in the United States exclusively for the coal carrying trade. They are being constructed for the New England Gas and Coke Co., and will be a notable addition to the fleet of American steamers.

The first of the trio will be launched next month and will be christened Everett, after the city where the company's works are located. In about six weeks after the Everett leaves the ways the Mystic will go overboard, and six weeks later the Malden will be ready for launching.

Ever since the organization of the Coke company its cargoes have been brought here in foreign bottoms. A fleet of Norwegian and British steamers have been steadily employed in transporting coal from Cape Breton to the coke works in Everett.

The company had a long contract with the Dominion coal company to furnish its supply of coal. This contract will shortly expire and it is doubtful if it is renewed.

With American vessels the company can load not only at foreign ports, but coastwise as well, and it is planned to secure at least half of its future supply from Chesapeake bay ports.

The three steamers will have a carrying capacity of 7,100 tons each and it is estimated that they will bring fully 1,100,000 tons of coal each year to this port.

TODAY'S COURT.

Warren Ver Campen and Andrew Mischler were fined $3 each for violation of the Lords Day act at Braintree, by playing ball.

The continued cases of Charles N. Perkins and William Fitzgerald for larceny of a watch and chain at Milton was called. Perkins was fined $25 and Fitzgerald sentenced to six months in the house of correction. Fitzgerald appealed.

IN THE DEATH CHAIR.

How It Feels When the Killing Current Is Turned On.

He waited a second or an age. Then suddenly it seemed as if he must leap from the chair, his body was swelling to some monstrous, impossible, inhuman shape; his muscles were stretched, millions of hot and dreadful needles were piercing and pricking him, a stupendous roaring was in his ears, then a million colors—colors he had never seen or imagined before, colors no one had ever seen or imagined, colors beyond the range of the spectrum, new, undiscovered, summoned by some mysterious agency from distant corners of the universe—played before his eyes. Suddenly they were shattered by a terrific explosion in his brain—then darkness.

But, no; there was still sensation. A dull purple color slowly spread before him, gradually grew lighter, expanded, and with a mighty pain he struggled, groping his way in torture and torment over fearful obstacles from some far distance remote as black stars in the cold abyss of the universe. He struggled back to life, then an appalling confusion, a grasp of consciousness; he heard the ticking of the two watches. Then through his brain there slowly trickled a thread of thought that squirmed and glowed like a white hot wire.

A faint groan escaped the pale lips below the black leather mask; a tremor ran through the form in the chair; there it relaxed and was still.

It's all over. The doctor, lifting his fingers from Archie's wrist, tried to smile and wiped the perspiration from his face with a handkerchief.—From Brand Whitlock's "The Turn of the Balance."

TO KEEP YOUNG.

Lessen Your Food Continually as You Grow Older.

What man or woman, growing old, would not give a fortune for the renewal of youth? With a little care they might have kept it for ten or a dozen years longer, but its value was not realized until too late, says Dr. Cohen, the noted London specialist.

Up to the age of twenty-three or twenty-five in the case of men and eighteen or twenty in women, the framework of the body is being formed, and the diet should be generous. After the thirtieth year has been passed it is no longer necessary to eat to make more tissues, but only to preserve equilibrium of weight and strength. Yet at that time eating is a pleasure highly appreciated. Therefore most men and women eat too much, and this is the time of life when indiscretions in diet produce disease with especial frequency.

Do not eat heavy suppers.
Drink little or no alcohol.
Avoid rich meats and pastry.
Do not grow fat by eating too much. Fat people seldom reach a good old age. The youthful old man is lean.
Lessen your food continually as you grow older.
Overeating produces all the diseases that make one old.
Underfeeding shortens life.
Just enough and a trifle over is the ideal.

The Raid On Massachusetts

(From the New York Sun)

President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who so recently at Washington rivalled the fame of Mettus Curtius, has again distinguished himself by a deed of sublime audacity. Beacon Hill is hoarse with the Massachusetts equivalent for "Lynch him!" Last year Governor Guild became aware that the impetuous Mellen was buying up Bay State trolley lines and threatening to spend millions of tainted money in connecting them through backwoods regions which have less population now than they had twenty years ago. "Monopoly!" shouted the fearless young disciple of the All Curber. With General Guild to hear or see is but to speak and act while others think. With his 100 per cent military chest heaving in righteous wrath, he commanded the attorney general, principally through the newspapers, to prevent in the courts if possible the expenditure by the accused Mellen of any more poisoned lucre within the confines of the Commonwealth for the development of transportation. The invader was haled before the Great and General Court and compelled to promise not to reduce further the number of trolley strap hangers of berail any more the jungles of Massachusetts until his plans should have been judicially examined.

All went well until one day last month when a horrible chill struck the spine of every lover of liberty. The Old Guard, who pine for the days when Boston's transit system was split into a dozen companies and who objected to the trolley car anyway, because, they said, it would go so fast as to hurt the eyes of lookers on and the wires would drop and kill people awoke one morning to read that Charles S. Mellen, not sated with spending $150,000,000 in four years in rolling stock, roadbed, bridges and trolley lines parallel or tributary, was about to jump the fence and work similar havoc with the dear old Boston & Maine. In order to understand the bitterness of the discovery it must be remembered that it is contrary to law for a railroad incorporated in Massachusetts to grow. If such a company has the money to buy a connecting line there has to be a public hearing before the Railroad Commission, and while this is going on somebody else buys the connecting line. The same beneficent statue provides that when new stock is issued for improvements the commission shall fix the price at which the shareholders of record may purchase. Usually people can get all they want in the market at a lower figure, hence recent issues have not been screeching successes.

It is thus clear why grief smote the conscience of Massachusetts at the prospect of a Connecticut corporation coming in foot free buying up Boston & Maine control, and making what should properly be outlawed improvements, even perhaps to include a four-track modern road to Montreal.

It was seen at once that this sort of thing was in danger of building up the port of Boston. If it had been known then as it is now that the New Haven was about to make traffic arrangements with the New York Central, giving Boston practically a trunk line to the Lakes, there would probably have been prostrations, if not fatalities, in State street. As it was, President Crocker of the Chamber of Commerce gasped, "I'm against it!" and straightway lost his voice.

Louis D. Brandeis, president, secretary, treasurer, director and membership of the Public Franchise League, resolved unanimously that rather than permit Boston's sacred wharves to be littered up with packages and her proud ways to quake with the thud of heavy laden trucks he would drop the battle for savings bank insurance and draw bills, both special and general, compelling the New Haven to give back the Boston & Maine stock and prohibiting forever the retirement of President Tuttle of the last-named company.

But Governor Guild also was awake. Delays are dangerous. A year had given him time to think. He violated all rules of the hunt by consorting at the State House with the octopus himself and one of the octopus's accomplices, known as Tim Byrnes, and afterward by writing the said Mellen a letter asking him what he was doing anyway. The inquiry and the reply his excellency despatched in haste to the Legislature, demanding that if the merger should become a fact the public ought to be "safeguarded," and the members ought not to disperse without attending to it and attending to it well. But he didn't harpoon the merger. The octopus was to be fenced in but let live.

"Zounds! Deserted!" Thus the vigilant Brandeis and the relentless James H. Vahey, a senator from Watertown and the foe of shoe machinery patents. They got both the defendents, Melleu and Tuttle, on the rack in committee on Tuesday of this week, and the subjoined colloquy may give an idea of the punishment they inflicted. Mr. Brandeis had brandished bills, special and general:

"Mr. Vahey—I believe there is a law to prevent this, and if I were attorney general I would invoke it.

"Mr. Mellen—Perhaps that is why you are not attorney general. (Laughter.")

One thing remains to be done if Boston is to be saved from becoming the scene of vulgar commercial activity and a jostling populace of the unleisurely. It must be enacted by the Great and General Court that no person possessing shares of stock in one railroad company shall acquire shares in any other railroad.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $50,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, Timothy Reed, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, Richard D. Chase Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad confer with anyone or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, William F. Cummings, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, Ernest G. Gay, will be happy to answer inquiries.

IMPROVED SERVICE

Boston Electrics Via Hancock Street Wollaston Cars To Weymouth

Ever since the through street car service to Dudley street via Wollaston was inaugurated there has been a continual howl on the part of the Wollaston people at the poor service. Previous to that time the service consisted of cars that ran between Neponset and Weymouth Landing.

At that time Wollaston was perfectly satisfied with the half hour service and cars were invariably on time. Then some people conceived the idea that they wanted the Wollaston cars run through to Dudley street and the trouble commenced for the village has had poor service ever since.

While a through car may leave Dudley street on time the many cars and the heavy riding on the Boston end make it impossible to give any sure time when the car will reach Wollaston. Occasionally in the middle of the day it is on time, but seldom between 5 and 7 o'clock.

Then there is a still further trouble. The people coming from the Fore River by the Weymouth Landing line arrive in City Square just after the Wollaston car has gone which means a wait of 25 minutes.

The street railway people say that with the present trackage and turnouts through Wollaston it is impossible to run both the through cars and Weymouth Landing cars through Wollaston.

If all through cars to the Dudley street terminal could be run via Hancock street, and the Weymouth Landing cars put back where they were before and run to Neponset via Wollaston then Wollaston would get good service.

The street railway officials are perfectly willing to do this. Supt. Gammons, in an interview, says that he is now at work upon his summer timetable and that it only needs a petition on the part of Wollaston people to discontinue the irregular schedule and have the Weymouth Landing cars run through to Neponset. Soon it might be possible to establish 20 minute time.

With cars leaving Neponset for Boston every three minutes people arriving at Neponset are sure of getting a car without any delay. It would also mean that Wollaston people could figure it out with some degree of certainty when cars would arrive and leave. The Quincy and Boston service would also be improved.

WOODWARD GRADUATION

Ex-Gov. Bates The Speaker Draws Lesson from Current Events

An interesting program was presented on Wednesday evening at the graduating exercises of the Class of 1907 of the Woodward Institute, including vocal and instrumental music by pupils, an address by ex-Gov. John L. Bates, the presentation of diplomas and reading of class ode.

The musical progam included:

The Moth		G. Palicot
One Sweetly Solemn Thought		Ambrose
Piano Solo	1. Album Leaf	Whelpley
	2. Spring Song	Mendelssohn
	Esther U. Sidelinger
Violoncello Solo	1. Romance	Fischer
	2. Gavotte	Popper
	Marion L. Moorehouse
Carmena		Wilson

The music was under the direction of Mr. John D. Buckingham and was of a high grade. The first selection is recognized as a difficult one, the second is always a favorite, while many liked the concluding chorus best. The piano numbers by Miss Sidelinger and the violoncello solos by Miss Moorhouse were finely executed.

F. W. Plummer, the principal of the school, briefly introduced Hon. John L. Bates, whose address was up-to-date, taking the events of the day to illustrate his advice to the graduates. He quoted from an address of ex-Gov. Long to the effect that the State of Massachusetts stands for education, and agreed with him. It began at Plymouth, and we are proud of Harvard College and our public schools.

We live in a most peculiar age, an age of combination and organization. Countries, business, capital and labor are each strongly united, and now one railroad system threatens to control all of New England transit. Some of the perils of such combinations have been seen, also how labor can destroy, and capital tyranize. It becomes an age of obligation, man to man, with equal opportunities for each and all, and a square deal.

Today we see great nations protecting small ones. The United States had set a remarkable example in giving Cuba liberty, and only this week by accepting half the award of China for the Boxer uprising.

The time was near when wars will be over, and a parliament of nations control international affairs. There shall be a human brotherhood. Where formerly it was "thou shall not," it now is "thou shall." Public service corporations must be controlled. We must be useful one to another.

There was a necessity for graduates to make themselves of use. What can women do? They can do everything! They do not need degrees. There are responsibilities all around us and we must be faithful; must help and assist. There is the greatest reward. It was better than selfish success. Graduates will be successful as they share the blessings they have received. (Applaue.)

Ex-Gov. Bates spoke about half an hour, and his sentiments were generally endorsed.

Rev. J. G. Miller of Atlantic, a member of the Board of Directors of the Institute, presented the diplomas to the 25 young ladies who were graduated. He took for his theme the three little words—"Keep, faith and give," and spoke briefly on each word.

As each graduate stepped forward to receive her diploma she was applauded. The names follow:

The reading of the class ode written by one of the graduates, Miss Esther Viden, closed the program:

O beautiful springtime of life!
When dreams and illusions seem real,
When hardship and struggle and strife
Have not on our hearts put their seal.

When seen through the eyes of our youth
Life's pathway seems happy and bright,
What a blessing that glimpses of truth
Will never be veiled from our sight.

As the end of our journey draws near
Our toils and our conflicts increase,
But love, shining brightly and clear,
Leads us forward to pleasure and peace.

The decorations for the occasion were simple. Over the platform was suspended the class motto, "Persevere" in the class colors of gold and black on a background of white. On each end of the platform was a tropical plant, and the picture of Dr. Woodward, the founder, was festooned with green vine.

After the exercises an opportunity was given to inspect the work of the year in drawing, designing and painting, which was very creditable; also the trophies in the gymnasium won by the different classes.

This evening the Class of 1907 will give a reception.

Fore River Gets Contract

Will Build One of The Mammoth Battleships at Cost of $4,500,000

It will be good news to Quincy to learn that the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. was today awarded the contract to build one of the mammoth 20,000-ton battleships for the United States Navy.

A dispatch from Washington to the Daily Ledger this noon states that the Fore River Shipbuilding C o.will build one of the two battleships at a price approximating $4,500,000.

The dispatch states that while the bid of the Newport News company was less than that of the Fore River Co., the fact that there are two to build in different yards one was awarded to the Quincy company.

These battleships will the largest in the world even exceeding the famous Dreadnought of the English navy.

The plans of the battleship are of the Fore River Company's own design, and it is said she will be the mistress of the Dreadnought, personnel, marksmanship and general skill aboard being equal. She will outfight the pride of the Japanese navy, the Satsuma. She will be as much the superior of either of those vessels as either one is superior to anything in the United States navy.

This Fore River battleship can hurl a twelve-inch shot farther than any other vessel afloat, the Dreadnought not excepted. She will have a larger displacement than the Dreadnought by about 4,000 tons; she will be longer by 30 feet, broader by six feet and a half, just as fast, more steady, of smaller draft and of unquestioned greater general efficiency.

What would happen if the Dreadnought and the Fore River, each manned, officered and manoevered with all the efficiency of the two nations, were to meet in battle?

Take the force of the broadsides, for example. The Dreadnought could utilize eight of her twelve-inch guns abeam at once. The Fore River could reply with twelve. The best ship of the United States, the Michigan, could answer with eight.

Take the efficiency of the guns that can be brought to bear astern. The Dreadnought could employ six. The Fore River could spout fire from ten, the Michigan four. Ahead, the Dreadnought can work six, the Michigan four and the Fore River eight.

That is, the Fore River will have 33 per cent. more strength ahead than the Dreadnought, 50 per cent. more abeam and 66 per cent. more astern. It makes the satisfying general superiority of just 50 per cent.

The highest twelve-inch guns of the Dreadnought are 35 feet above the water line. The highest of the Fore River will be 42 feet, and there will be four pairs of guns 34 feet above the water line.

It was thought astounding that the problems of gravity could be so handled by the British constructors that guns could be placed safely as high as 35 feet. The Fore River will set a new record in that line. The superior elevation of her highest guns which are those just forward of amidships, will give her an immense advantage in range.

The Vermont recently launched at Quincy and the new Fore River battleship compare as follows:

	Vermont.	Fore River
Displacement	20,000	22,000
Length	510	560
Breadth in feet	85	88
Armament (12 inch)	10	14
Trial speed	21	21

Aside from the prestige which will come to Quincy from building such a machine of war, it means the employment of thousands of workmen for at least three years to come and the circulation of thousands of dollars through the medium of these workmen.

The new contract means that the Fore River shipyard and the City of Quincy will boom as it never has before. It means much to the city, its business, its real estate, and its progress along all lines.

Larceny the Charge.

Patrick White, William Mullaney, Francis DeYoung and Joseph A. Keniley, the four boys said to have had a hand in the recent breaks at Wollaston, were arraigned in the juvenile session of the court this morning. When the cases were called the complaints were changed to larceny. The case against DeYoung was dismissed. Keniley's case was continued until July 11, and White and Mulaney's cases until Sept. 26.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

One would think from the fuss the Japs are making that they had already been excluded from this country.

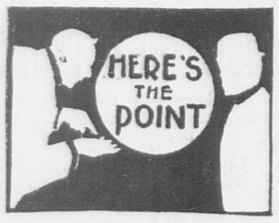

Col. Bryan says he is not going to hatch any more new campaign ideas till he can be sure of securing a copyright that will keep the Republican party from appropriating them.

Richard Croker is coming home to vote, and doubtless will follow the time honored Tammany custom of "early and often."

It is reported from Boise City, Idaho, that "Steve" Adams refused to take the oath as a witness in the Haywood murder trial. Considering the small number of people who would believe Steve even under oath, his recalcitrance really would not seem to matter much.

An interesting feature of the railroad rate situation was made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission this week when it was announced that the Canadian government had decided to adopt the system of railroad bookkeeping and accounting approved by the United States, and thus have a uniform system for practically the whole of this continent. The new system will go into effect on July 1st of this year. It provides for the books that shall be kept by the railroads showing the items of receipts and expenditures, the disbursements for operating expenses including leases, betterments and the depreciation of property. The law further provides that not only shall this set of books be kept, but that none others shall be kept, so that the whole of the railroads finances will be open to government inspection just as much as the accounts of a national bank are to the bank examiners of the Treasury.

This is as it should be. The railroads are public services corporations, and the people have a right to know just how they stand financially. If their financial transactions are all open and aboveboard, there will not be much need to bother about government ownership or further government control. Public opinion will do all that is necessary in the way of keeping them straight.

Now is the time to plant your gardens. Let us supply you with the best plants that can be had. Suggestions are offered free.

Homeward Bound From New Orleans

(Editorial Correspondence.)

Only one passenger with me on the steamer Momus from New York was returning with me from New Orleans on May 22, and I had found him such an agreeable companion when southbound, that I was pleased to have him as a room mate on the homeward trip. From New York to New York, during a trip of nineteen days, and covering about 4000 miles, I met no one that I had ever seen before, but there were ties which caused a friendship with several.

The first gentleman I spoke to after the steamer Comus left her dock at New Orleans, was from California, but he has a brother in Quincy. Another gentleman from Texas also has a brother in Quincy. Then there was a Massachusetts lady who had been in Quincy to place a New Orleans young lady in the Quincy Mansion school, a Cambridge young man who had played basket ball at the Quincy Coliseum, and a Brighton young lady recently graduated from the High school of which Frederic Allison Tupper is head master.

Associations with New England, however, were not necessary to establish a friendship with other passengers. The first class accommodations were taxed to their full capacity, as many at this season are going north for the summer. Some were Northerners who have been in the South and West during the winter, either for business or pleasure, while the majority perhaps were residents of the South who preferred the North in the summer.

There were several from the prosperous State of Texas who intended to visit the Jamestown Exposition; one was a talented composer of "The Star of the South," and other music, who is to pursue her studies in New York; one family came to attend the commencement exercises at a college where a son graduated; and another to attend to some law business and others to tour New England.

From New Orleans were five teachers who claim New England as their home, one of whom was physical director of the Young Men's Gymnastic Club. The prettiest young lady was from Mississippi, while the far west states of California, Arizona, and Colorado were represented. Two Sisters of Charity were returning from New Orleans, where they had just taken sixty New York babies by train to place in families for adoption. One New Orleans lady was making the trip to New York alone, but she had the protection of a Masonic pin which was all sufficient.

The percentage of young people on the trip was larger than usual and they had a jolly time with music, cards, bean bags and other games. The young ladies learned that Capt. Post had never married, and one evening by a preconcerted arrangement they all went to his quarters, the word having been passed that the Captain wanted to see them. Capt. Post was delighted with his surprise party, and invited them to come again when the newspaper man wasn't around.

The law requires that the steamers shall have a pilot between New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico, a distance of over 100 miles, as the Mississippi river is tortuous and the channel is less than 150 feet wide. Leaving New Orleans at 10 A. M., we made a quick passage down the river, which was a very enjoyable sail, and cleared land before 4 P. M. The Comus soon took a straight course for the southern extremity of Florida and was out of sight of land. All that night and all the next day we kept to the course, but it was late Thursday night before the Tortugas light off Florida was sighted. The sail on the gulf was the most delightful of the whole trip.

All day Friday we were sailing up the east coast of Florida. At times land was visible, but being very low it was not attractive. We continued in the centre of the gulf stream and the temperature was mild. From Friday noon until early Monday morning no land was visible.

At no time were the passengers alarmed at the prospects of being shipwrecked, but nevertheless a poem was written purporting such to be our fate. Many passengers affixed their signatures with addresses and the document was placed in a bottle. With grand ceremonies the bottle was thrown overboard, and may some day be picked up on the shores of Europe.

The best souvenir of the trip was obtained by the Quincy passenger. At New Orleans he had purchased a large rice straw hat which he thought might protect him from the summer's heat when he reached home, but he conceived the idea of having the lady passengers decorate it. They poked it up here and poked it up there, and added a little of everything which was at hand. Further description is unnecessary because one of the lady decorators since her return very kindly forwarded these verses to the Daily Ledger:

A board the Comus as she sailed
Down Mississippi's stream,
A passenger displayed a hat,
That was (not) quite a dream.

His stately form surmounted by
A head so full of brain,
That unacquainted you might ask
"Can that man be ill?"

Closer acquaintance proved the fact,
That all things are not true
To nature. So remember that When on the ocean blue.

"A contribution I will ask—
Please trim my hat for me."
And one and all the ladies then
Complied with greatest glee.

When finished that hat was a sight,
As you may well suppose,
When mounted on that brainy head,
It was the gem of shows.

A button from the captain's coat,
A star from Texas land,
A pair of shoe-strings fringed out,
Manilla rope for band.

A dainty bow of apple green,
Plow's Candies from the West,
And such like things, the ladies used,
Before the hat was dressed.

St. Louis, May 31, 1907.

About twenty ladies in all took a hand on this piece of millinery, and the writer has their addresses. They represent Louisiana, Massachusetts, Colorado, Mississippi, Texas, Maine, New York, Pennsylvania and Arizona.

The writer has several other souvenirs of the trip, but none that he prizes more than the acquaintances which he made.

All kinds of weather were experienced on the trip, concluding with a fog, making it necessary to blow an unearthly fog horn once a minute for over 24 hours, but the Comus has a superior corps of officers who are alike efficient and popular, and the steamer reached New York ahead of time Monday morning. Capt. Post has as first officer, Mr. Hayes and as second officer Mr. Stow. The chief engineer is R. W. Meyer and the purser, J. G. Klumpp. With such a combination it is not surprising that the Morgan line is becoming a favorite with those who enjoy an ocean voyage. The writer can heartily recommend the trip from New York to New Orleans. Not only for pleasure and comfort, but for relaxation from work and worry and for health.

BOMB IS PRODUCED

Objections by Counsel For Haywood Overruled by the Court

WAS INTENDED FOR GODDARD

Colorado Jurist Identifies Infernal Machine Which Was Placed In Front Gate of His Home and Dug Up Ten Months Later, After Orchard Had Made His Confession

Boise, Ida., June 20.—The state yesterday made dramatic production and proof of the Goddard bomb, and beside offering further contributions of the testimony of Harry Orchard against William D. Haywood, secured a ruling under which a number of denunciatory articles published in The Miners' Magazine, the official organ of the Western Federation of Miners, will be admitted in evidence.

To Justice Goddard, himself, fell the task of telling the story of the finding and preservation of the bomb with which Orchard tried to kill him. His appearance added to the dramatic scenes and situations that have characterized the trial. His testimony was clear and minutely circumstantial.

The veteran Colorado jurist testified that the first information that he received about the bomb came to him from Orchard's confession, which was shown to him at Denver Feb. 13, 1906, by Detective McParland. He at once returned to his home in Denver and in the front of his home discovered the screw which Orchard said he had placed there. It was rusted and corroded by 10 months' exposure. The witness said he examined the ground beside the gate, where Orchard said he placed the bomb, and found a slight depression with the soil packed around it.

The bomb was dug up the next day by General Wells, formerly adjutant general of the Colorado military, who cut the soil away and raised the pine box containing the bomb. There was a small phial on top of the box and attached to the rubber cork of the phial was a piece of rusted wire.

The bomb and its attachment were at once taken to the offices of the Pinkerton detectives and carefully sealed in wrapping paper and envelopes that were signed by half a dozen witnesses, including Goddard, and afterward they were placed in a vault to the door of which seals, including that of a notary public, were attached. There they rested until the following May 22, when, believing the Haywood case was to come to trial, they were removed in the presence of the same witnesses and all save three of the 40 sticks of giant powder contained in the bomb were exploded. The explosions occurred in the presence of the witnesses in the suburbs of Denver, and of the bomb itself 12 giant caps and two wrappers torn from the sticks of giant powder were saved as evidence.

Senator Borah produced the several packets as they were originally sealed and passed them to Justice Goddard, who broke the seals and identified the articles.

Counsel for the defense objected to all the evidence and all the exhibits, and moved to strike out everything, but the court ruled against him.

Mrs. Seward, at whose house in San Francisco Harry Orchard lived during part of the time he was conducting his operations against Fred Bradley, gave testimony strongly corroborative of Orchard's account of his acts and experiences in San Francisco.

John L. Stearns, agent at Denver for the Mutual Life Insurance company, confirmed the story Orchard told about securing employment as a solicitor for the company before he went to Canyon City to kill former Governor Peabody, and produced letters of recommendation which Orchard furnished in response to his request. One of the letters was from George Pettibone, a co-defendant of Haywood, and it made jocular reference to the fact that Stearns was taking many agents from him, and requested in future when any of his agents applied for work they be put out on the sidewalk.

Chenteng Greeted by Countrymen

Boston, June 20.—A decided surprise was sprung on Sir Chentung, the Chinese minister, when he returned to Boston late last night from a visit to Andover. Over 300 Boston Chinamen were at the North station ready to greet their countryman and as he left the train he was greeted with a rousing cheer. Chentung showed his amazement at the reception, but stopped and addressed the gathering and upon invitation accompanied them to the Chinatown district, where an informal reception and luncheon was held.

New President of Pressmen's Union

New York, June 20.—The International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America elected officers headed by George L. Berry of San Francisco as president. A second ballot was necessary to decide upon a choice for president, Berry winning from Martin P. Higgins of Boston by a vote of 111 to 93.

Russian Wheat Crops Killed

St. Petersburg, June 20.—The minister of the interior is receiving discouraging reports on the crops in the southwest. Winter wheat has rotted from the drenching rains, and spring wheat has been killed by the drought.

LIMITATION OF ARMAMENTS

United States Reserves Right to Bring Question Before Peace Conference

The Hague, June 20.—The surprise of the second session of the peace conference was the formal reservation by General Horace Porter, in behalf of the United States, of the right to present the question of limitation of armaments. Together with this, he also reserved the right to introduce the question of collection of contractural debts by force.

This reservation is believed to indicate a firm resolve on the part of the Washington government, after seeing the trend of the situation here, to raise the question later if it becomes apparent that the subject is going by default. It can be stated positively, however, that no proposition has yet been formulated by the American delegates, but this action has renewed the hope that the United States will bring up the question of limitation and has given great satisfaction to the pacificists.

Another interesting feature of the session was Baron Von Beiberstein's notification that Germany intended to offer the proposition of an annual prize court to which appeals could be made at the time of a maritime war, and the decision of which should be final. General Porter seconded this proposition on behalf of the United States, and Sir Edward Fry declared that Great Britain proposed to advance a project on similar lines.

The fact that the first definite proposition submitted to the conference should emanate from Germany and has received the prompt and cordial support of the United States and Great Britain created an especially good impression.

Long-Standing Prize Awarded

Philadelphia, June 20.—A prize of $1000 that has been standing for 48 years to be awarded to any resident of North America who should determine by experiment whether all rays of light and other physical rays are or are not transmitted with the same velocity has been won by Dr. Paul R. Heyl of the department of chemistry in the Philadelphia Central high school. Heyl succeeded in demonstrating that those of the ultra violet rays of light, for which glass is transparent, have the same velocity as the light rays proper.

Man Fled as Girl Drowned

Bridgeton, N. J., June 20.—After an all-night search the police found the body of Miss Mary Vennel, a young society girl of this city, in Sunset lake. George Evans, who took the girl out rowing and who admits that he saw her drown, is under police surveillance. The authorities say that after witnessing the tragedy Evans coolly returned to his home and went to bed without saying anything about the affair. Evans asserts that he did everything in his power to save his companion's life.

Steamer and Schooner Bumped

Newport, R. I., June 20.—Steamer Rhode Island, Fall River for New York, collided with a schooner last night off Bradford. A thick fog prevailed at the time and the name of the schooner was not learned. Neither vessel was seriously damaged. The Rhode Island stayed by the sailing vessel for some time, but the schooner required no assistance.

Broker Dennett Admits Guilt

New York, June 20.—Oliver M. Dennett, the broker who was arrested in connection with the theft of more than half a million dollars in bonds from the Trust Company of America, pleaded guilty to a charge of criminally receiving stolen goods. He will be sentenced later. The bonds were stolen by William O. Douglas, an assistant loan clerk.

Half-Raters' Privileges Gone

St. Louis, June 20.—When the 2-cent passenger rate law was put into effect yesterday for 90 days by the Missouri railroads under the ruling of Federal Judge McPherson, announcement was made that all half rate concessions would be discontinued forthwith. Clergymen, war veterans and charity workers are affected.

Cider Drinking May Kill Boy

Pittsfield, Mass., June 20.—Edward Cronin, 8 years old, is at the point of death as a result of drinking seven glasses of hard cider. The boy was urged on by an older companion and was soon taken with violent convulsions. Physicians were hurriedly called, but it is feared the child will not recover.

Warships Sail In a Hurry

Norfolk, June 20.—Battleships Maine, Ohio, Iowa and Indiana passed out the Virginia Capes late yesterday for the southern drill grounds off the Virginia coast. The sailing was apparently a great surprise to the officers and enlisted men, and as a result a number of the latter were left behind.

YEGGMEN LOCATED

Wanted by Federal Authorities For Looting Postoffices

TWO GANGS ARE OPERATING

Some of Their Members Believed to Have Worked Extensively In New England--Arrests Will Be Attended With Danger to Officers

Boston, June 20.—After a search of several days, Inspector Letherman of the postoffice department of this city believes that he has located two desperate gangs of yeggmen who have been operating among the small post offices of western Connecticut. Arrests are looked for within a short time, as Letherman has received information from his assistants that the men have been identified as those connected with many daring robberies, and they are close on their trail.

According to Letherman, there are two gangs operating, one being drawn from the roughest element of thugs in the slums of Providence, and the other from Albany. Frequently the yeggs will have their headquarters in these two cities and make a flying tour among the country postoffices, blow open safes and letting no one stand in their way.

They are lavish in the amount of nitro-glycerine used, and on several occasions have committed manslaughter in order to successfully carry their operations through.

So desperate was the situation among the cities and towns of Litchfield county, close to the New York state line, that Representative Hill of that district put the case before Postmaster General Meyer, who, upon making an investigation, decided to put an end to the career of the desperadoes. A few days ago he communicated with Inspector Letherman, who immediately assigned several men to the case and the arrest of the crooks is expected at any moment.

There is considerable danger to the officers in arresting the men, as the latter stop at nothing. They are fully armed and generally have in their equipment an abundance of high explosives, in the use of which they are experts.

Several of the yeggs are believed to have been members of gangs operating among the railroad stations and postoffices of Massachusetts and northern New England, which were broken up to a certain extent by the Boston police.

Inspector Letherman does not believe that the two gangs who have worked in Connecticut have ever operated in Massachusetts, although they may have been responsible for certain crimes in the western part of the state.

Colorado Wanted Everything

Denver, June 20.—A sensation was sprung in the public lands convention by charges made by both the administration and the anti-administration forces that the convention was being packed. It developed that all Colorado's accredited delegates, whether present or not, had been counted, while in the case of the other states only those present were to be allowed to vote. The report was sent back to the credentials committee with instructions to bring in a report according to the call of the convention.

School of Whales Followed Ship

New York, June 20.—Headed by an old bull finback, a school of whales, 25 in number, followed the Atlas liner Virginia from the Delaware Capes to Scotland lightship a whole day. In the night, when the outlines of Sandy Hook could just be seen in the dim moonlight, the old bull headed eastward along the Long Island shore and the school followed and was lost sight of by the officer on the bridge.

Telegraphers' Strike Impending

New York, June 20.—Unless its demands upon the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies receive consideration a strike will be ordered within a week or 10 days, it is announced by the Commercial Telegraphers' union. No specific date for the expiration of their ultimatum has been set by the telegraphers, and the question of involving one or both companies is left open.

OBJECTS TO CONSERVATOR

Aged Farmer Has Squandered but One Dollar In Eighty-Three Years

Dedham, Mass., June 20.—In the Norfolk probate court yesterday an aged farmer of South Foxboro objected to the appointment of a "conservatory" (conservator) over his property.

The old man of 83 years thought he was qualified to manage his little estate, and interjected as a conclusive argument that he had "never squandered but $1 in his life," that being at a New York theatre, when he paid that sum for a ticket. "Family troubles ought to be settled out of court anyway," he said.

Judge Flint suggested that the old gentleman take his wife to the theatre again and spend another dollar, and continued the case for a further hearing.

When the aged man struck the elevator in the court building he drew away. "Them things are dangerous," he said. "I've heard of 'em before." However, he was finally persuaded to take the trip downstairs.

There is said to be little about a farm not known to the venerable resident of South Foxboro. He has been a farmer and basket maker the past 51 years.

Boston, June 20.—With the first mackerel of the season aboard, and what is believed to be the largest single catch ever brought into this port, the fishing schooner Esperanto, with a cargo valued at $7000, arrived last night at T wharf. The Esperanto did not run into large schools until two weeks ago. She was then 10 miles off Halifax and out of one school alone took 150 barrels of fish. Altogether her cargo includes 560 barrels of mackerel.

Lawyer Charged Excessive Fee

Boston, June 20.—William P. Hale, a lawyer, has been suspended from the practice of law for a year by a decree made by Judge Fessenden. The ground of the decree is that the lawyer charged an excessive fee in divorce proceedings. He brought a libel for divorce for Gertrude Brackett against her husband, Arthur Brackett. He obtained $7700 as alimony and charged her $4100. The court holds that the fee was excessive.

THE MERGER MIXUP

Nine Measures Occupy Attention of Bay State Legislators

BILLS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Apparently Welded Into One Measure by Chairman of Committee on Railroads--Regarded as Having the Endorsement of the "Administration"

Boston, June 20.—An already complex situation in the matter of proposed legislation to prevent or regulate the approaching merger of the Boston and Maine with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was made more bewildering by the presentation of two more bills for consideration of the committee on railroads.

Senators Faxon of Stoughton and Felker of Northampton submitted the two bills, making the whole number of measures now under consideration nine. Both senators, it should be added, are members of the committee on railroads, Faxon being the chairman.

In the house of representatives an order requiring the tax commissioners to transmit to the house the corporation excise last assessed on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company and the Boston and Maine railroad was adopted.

Senator Faxon's bill, which is regarded at the state house as an "administration" measure, is apparently a welding together of the three bills presented by Attorney General Malone. The bill contains 10 sections and, in brief, provides that:

No lease, purchase or sale of franchise of any railroad property, and no consolidation shall be valid without the expressed authority of the legislature.

In case of authorized lease or consolidation no increase of capital shall be allowed unless authorized by the railroad commission, nor shall there be any increase in rates or decrease in facilities unless authorized by the board.

Any aggrieved party to have right of appeal to the railroad commissioners.

Railroad corporations to contract and operate with connections for shippers, railroad commission to investigate and have final adjudication.

No railroad corporation to perform transportation "upon and over the road of another" unless approved by the railroad commission.

Penalty for violations on railroad corporations $10,000 for each offense; on officer or agent who aids or abets violation, fine of $1000 or imprisonment for not more than one year nor less than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Supreme court given jurisdiction in equity to restrain any violations of the provisions of the act.

Launch Fouled Steel Hawser

Washington, June 20.—The naval board of investigation which has been looking into the circumstances surrounding the loss of the launch of the battleship Minnesota found that the launch had fouled a steel hawser with which the tug Crisfield was towing a barge carrying freight cars from Cape Charles to Norfolk. No criminality is attached to the officers of the Crisfield, who were in ignorance of the disaster.

Newport News, Va., June 20.—The bodies of all but one of the 11 victims of the launch accident have now been found.

Bond Must Be Consulted

London, June 20.—Premier Bond of Newfoundland was interviewed with reference to the proposal made by Foreign Secretary Grey to Secretary Root for a settlement of the Newfoundland fisheries dispute. Bond said that he must assume that such proposal had not formally been submitted to the Washington government while negotiations still were being carried on with him. He declared that such proposal could only receive an emphatic refusal from his government.

Jockey Narrowly Escapes Death

New York, June 20.—In a race at Gravesend Jockey Koerner's mount, Incachee, fell after being bumped. Incachee was in second place near the finish when Park Row, in an endeavor to crowd through on the rail, ran into him, causing him to fall. Koerner was thrown into the path of the 13 on-coming horses. When picked up the boy was unconscious and bleeding from a badly lacerated scalp, but doctors pronounced his injuries not serious.

Arsenal Discovered In Forest

Mittau, Russia, June 20.—Thirty leaders of the revolutionary organization in the Dondangen district have been arrested, charged with being responsible for many important terroristic acts. The principal arsenal of the band, which numbered 400, was discovered in the depths of a forest and contained explosives, bombs, many weapons, a quantity of ammunition and a list of other depots of arms.

Bloody Fighting at Kiev

St. Petersburg, June 20.—Details of the mutiny of sappers at Kiev show that it was suppressed only after a bloody engagement at midnight, June 17, between the mutineers and loyal troops, in which about 70 men were killed or wounded. Kiev is one of the cities where the revolutionary organization is most powerful, counting among its members dozens of officers.

Rosenheimer Murder Mystery

New York, June 20.—That robbery was the motive for the murder of Julius T. Rosenheimer, president of the London Needle company, who was killed while strolling about his estate in Pelham with his wife, is the belief of the authorities who are working on the case. His watch and money were gone. The murderers are still at large. Rosenheimer was in the habit of carrying a large roll of bills, but only two or three small bills were found in his pockets. The family of the dead man has offered a reward of $5000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderers.

New Hampshire Governorship

Washington, June 20.—According to friends of William E. Chandler he is likely to be the Republican nominee for governor of New Hampshire next year. He is understood to be "willing" and he has a strong backing. Moreover, the antagonism aroused in New England by the proposed merger of the Boston and Maine and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads is expected to help the Chandler movement.

Mark Twain "Makes Good" Abroad

London, June 20.—Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens) is receiving as much attention as would a European potentate. The newspapers are devoting columns to his sayings and doings and he has been inundated with invitations and functions. St. Petersburg Prisons Filled

St. Petersburg, June 20.—The prisons and detention houses are overflowing with persons arrested in Spask district. Six hundred political prisoners are crammed together, some being forced to sleep outdoors.

Woodward Reception

The reception given by the class of 1907 of Woodward Institute on Thursday evening was a most enjoyable occasion for the graduates and their friends who crowded Woodward hall.

The reception was from 8 to 8.30, and was followed by dancing until 11.30. In the receiving party were Mr. Frederic W. Plummer, the principal, Miss Adella W. Bates, the teacher of English and Latin, and the following officers of the class: Miss Margaret Carey, Miss Marie McDonnell, Miss Isabella Lang and Miss Mabel O'Dowd. Members of the Junior class acted as ushers.

For the dancing popular music was furnished by Cuff's orchestra. Punch was served during the evening in the upper hall. The drawing room was also open for exhibition of work of the year.

No Noise or Vibration

Dr. F. E. Jones who accompanied the steamship Creole on her recent trial trip off Provincetown and to New York returned to Quincy this morning. Dr. Jones was enrolled on the ship as surgeon, and in addition to the crew there were a number of government officials.

He speaks in the highest terms of the vessel, and of the turbine engines. One thing that was very noticeable was the entire absence of noise of machinery and of vibration. Even in the engine room there was not a particle of noise, although the shafts were revolving very rapidly.

As for vibration the steamship was so steady that one in the smoking room for instance could not tell whether the vessel was moving through the water at a 16 knot speed or was riding at anchor.

The only place that any vibration was felt was in the stern and that was very slight.

The Creole left Provincetown Wednesday afternoon for New York and was for several hours enveloped in a fog. She ran through the night and arived in New York at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

The government officials were very much interested in the working of the turbines and watched them constantly.

Warren H. Rideout of the treasurer's office of the Fore River Co., is acting as purser of the Creole and will remain with her until she is turned over to her owners.

Capt. George H. Frost

Capt. George H. Frost the well known coal and lumber dealer at Neponset, died on Thursday in his 84th year. He was born in Dedham in 1824. He went to school there, and in his youth shipped in the United States navy, where he served four years, part of the time under Lieut. Farragut.

Next he went into the coastwise trade where he became master and owner of vessels. Then he shifted to deep water.

In 1849 he went round the Horn to California with the gold-seeking pioneers. The voyage took 151 days.

After spending a short time in California and Oregon he came East again and took charge of a country store in Acton.

In the civil war he owned two barks —sister ships—the R. P. Walker and the E. Wright—which were used as transports.

When the war was over he went into the lumber business in Dorchester. In 1869 he bought the Neponset coal wharf and remained in the coal trade until his retirement in 1882.

He leaves a widow, three sons, who continue his business, George E., Henry A. and Waldo E. Frost and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Merritt.

—Hyde Park and Brookline each graduated 59 from their High schools this week.

J. G. Anderson Golf Champion

At Woodland on Thursday, John G. Anderson, formerly of Wollaston won the amateur golf championship of Massachusetts defeating F. H. Hoyt in finals by 6 up at the 32d hole.

The new state champion says the Globe, is only 23 years old, and although of Scotch parentage, is a native of Clinton, Mass. He was educated in the schools of Clinton and Quincy, to which later city his family removed when he was quite young. He was graduated by Adams academy and by Amherst in 1905. During his four years at Amherst he was a prominent player on its golf team, and twice, in 1903 and 1904, won the New England intercollegiate golf championship. After his graduation he taught for a year at Helicon hall, Englewood. N. J., then a private school, and since made famous as the location of Upton Sinclair's settlement. He is now an instructor in the Fessendem school at Newtonville.

He first played golf on the old Meadowbrook course at Wollaston, and among his most cherished possessions is a multi-colored pewter mug, won there a number of years ago. Anderson will sail for Scotland June 28, and the newly won title that he will carry with him will secure for him a hearty reception there.

BATTLESHIP CONTRACT

May Double The Force at The Fore River Shipbuilding Plant

Preparations have already been commenced at the Fore River to build the big battleship the contract for which will be awarded in a few days. The Fore River submitted two bids, one for reciprocating engines and the other for turbines. As the bid for the turbine engine was much the lowest, it was thought at the Fore River this morning that would be the the type used.

A large number of additional men will eventually be needed at the works and they will be put on gradually as needed.

It will require about six months to get the plane on a working basis, and get steel and other material at the yards. This does not mean that no work will be done on the battleship. however, for there is an enormous amount of work that can be done in the way of preparation, and as stated above, this work has already been commenced.

It is expected, however, that it will be December before the keel is laid.

This means at least three or more year's work for a force of men that will eventually be twice the number that are now employed.

The Washington dispatch to the Boston Advertiser says: The bidding brought together a large company of ship builders and other persons interested in naval construction. The bidding was complex, the builders freely availing themselves of the department's permission to submit all sorts of combination and alternative plans. The Newport News Co. alone submitted no less than seven sets of plans, which were generally the lowest with all combinations. But as the law provides that no company shall receive the contract for more than one ship, the second lowest bidder also is assured an award, in this case the company being the Fore River Co.

The Fore River Co.'s successful bid was, one ship on the department's plans, to be delivered in 36 months, $4,480,000. Hull and equipment on the department's plans; bidders' Curtis turbine engines, $4,337,000 (cruising turbines not required in this type.

The Newport News Shipbuilding Co. bid: Department's designs, $3,987,000. Department's hull and equipment bidders, Parsons turbine engines; Thorneycroft-Schultz boilers, $4,100,000, including cruising turbines. Another design, department's hull and equipment, bidders, Parsons turbines—same boilers as above—$4,050,000. Design includes separate cruising turbines.

Another design—same hull and turbines—$4,100,000, including cruising turbines. Another design—same hull and turbines—$4,090,000, including cruising turbines. Another design—same hull and turbines—$4,125,000, including cruising turbines. Another design—same hull and turbines— $4,050,000, including cruising turbines.

The New York Shipbuilding Co. of Camden, N. J., and Cramp & Sons, Philadelphia, were also bidders.

The officials of the navy department were gratified and surprised at the lowness of the figures, considering conditions in the industrial world. They pointed out that the bid of the Newport News Co. for one of the great 20,000 ton ships was not only between $400,000 and $500,000 less than corresponding bids from any other company, but actually considerably less than the price submitted for building the 16,000 ton battleship Minnesota, and $3,000 less than the price paid for the battleship Louisiana.

With today's bids from the shipbuilders were received special bids from the naval constructors at the New York and Mare Island navy yards, prepared by the direction of the department as a check on the private shipbuilders. The figures of these bids have not been made public, but it is known that they are considerably in excess of the bids submitted by the private builders.

A vessel constructed on the design of these new ships will carry as heavy armor and as powerful armament as any known vessel of this class and will have a speed believed to be the highest practicable for a vessel of this type and class.

The speed will be 21 knots. The armament is to be composed of:—

Main battery—10 12-inch breech-loading rifles.

Secondary battery—14 5-inch rapid fire guns, four 3-pounder saluting guns, four 1-pounder semi-automatic guns, two 3-inch field pieces, two machine guns, calibre .30, two submerged torpedo tubes.

The hulls of the vessels are to be protected by a waterline belt of armor eight feet in width, whose maximum thickness is 11 inches and whose cross section is uniform throughout the length of the belt. This belt armor gives effective protection to the boilers, machinery and magazine spaces and affords, in connection with the casement armor, an extensive compartmental sub-division, a reasonable assurance of the maintenance of the stability of the vessel under battle conditions.

The arrangement of the main battery guns is to be such as to permit a broadside fire of any battleship built, or, so far as known, under construction. The average elevation of the axis of these guns is expected to be greater than that of any known battleship. The arrangement of the interior will give the maximum degree of protection to all vital portions of the ship by means of unusually effective compartmental subdivisions.

The Quincy party who went to New York on the Creole are expected home tonight.

New Colliers for Wholesale Trade

The three steam colliers nearly completed at the Fore River shipyard in this city promise to play an important part in Boston's coal supply and may reduce prices. The Daily Tribune says: President James L. Richards of the Boston Consolidated Company announced at a hearing before the railroad commissioners Wednesday that the New England Gas & Coke Company, of which he is also president, is making preparations to enter the wholesale coal business, with a view to making a cut in the prevailing prices to all industrial establishments in eastern and central Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

The Coke Company, is planning, Mr. Richards told the commissioners to have three new steam colliers in operation within a few months, which will bring into Boston about 1,500,000 tons of coal per year. These colliers are being specially designed for the work, and are now under construction at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy.

President Richards said that the company expected to make a great savings by having the colliers dock at its own wharves on the upper Mystic River and by special methods to unload directly into cars which will run onto the wharf. It is planned to have the ships bring in 7,200 tons per trip. He estimated the saving to Massachusetts and New Hampshire at $250,000 a year.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

With new contracts aggregating over seven millions of dollars received this month there is no doubt that the Fore River Shipyard will be a busy hive of industry for the next three years. These include $4,377,000 for a mammoth battleship, $3,000,000 for submarine boats, and $425,800 for four lightships. The contracts for the submarines have not yet been signed but the money is appropriated and the Octopus built at Quincy has excelled in all requirements, and contracts depended on her exhibits.

But the contract for the big battleships alone is sufficient to boom the shipyard, and in a few months the present force of the shipyard may be double. If two-thirds of the contract price is expended for labor it means the distribution of a million dollars a year for three years; this is over $3,300 per day to be circulated in Quincy and vicinity. The two other contracts will distribute about as much more, which is in addition to work now on hand, which includes two scout cruisers and three large steam colliers.

With completion of the battleships Rhode Island, New Jersey and Vermont, and the steamship Creole, the working force has been considerably reduced of late, but it will soon be larger than ever. Before a year has passed 5,000 may be on the payrolls at the shipyard.

This means a greater demand than ever for houses; the demand will be far greater than the supply. It means more work for all branches of trade outside the shipyard; the stone masons, the carpenters, the bricklayers, the plasterers, the painters, etc. It means more business for all the stores of the city; groceries, meats, provisions, clothing, dry goods, etc. It means a larger consumption of coal, gas, electricity, water, etc. In fact, it means everything to Quincy. Will Quincy rise to the occasion?

The Department of State is having a few troubles of its own in the line of Japanese negotiations and Canadian fishing controversies and the prospect of political upheavals in Central America. But it can spare time to smile at situation that Europe finds itself in with the Hague Conference. As everyone knows, the first Hague conference was called by the Czar of Russia, and the prominent feature of the discussion was the reduction of armaments. There was nothing done, and by the time that the next meeting of the conference was due, Russia was so deep in a war with Japan that the conference was not called at all. Then the United States suggested a renewal of the conference, but the sky being clear for the time, took a back seat as a matter of courtesy and allowed Russia to issue the formal call. Now, just as the conference is assembling, the situation in Russia changes so much for the worse, that it looks as though the Czar might have a revolution at home and a peace conference abroad both on his hands at the same time. It is needless to say that the reduction of armaments, which all the European powers are afraid to discuss, will be given scant consideration at the present meeting. The mere fact that Russia is busy with so much trouble at home probably will prevent the present meeting from amounting to much.

"Bat" Materson has written a treatise on the ethics of gun carrying under the title of "How and when to carry a six shooter." While Mr. Materson doubtless is an authority on revolver etiquette, we should think his treatise might be condensed for busy readers into the single word "Don't."

Since the Japanese on the Pacific coast have been denied the right of citizenship, they are doing their best to get even by establishing a labor union.

Plan of Haywood's Counsel When State Closes Its Case

PETTIBONE AND ORCHARD

Prosecution Promises to Show Personal Financial Connection Between Them--Excerpts From Miners' Magazine Are Admitted by the Court

Boise, Ida., June 21.—Unless unforeseen delay should occur in securing a few final pieces of evidence, the state will today close its case against William D. Haywood, whom it charges with the murder of Frank Steunenberg. This announcement was made by Mr. Borah of the prosecution, and when Clarence Darrow of the defense took up the discussion of the arrangement of time he made it very clear that directly the state closed he and his associates would move the court for an instruction directing a verdict of acquittal.

It is now anticipated that the state will close by noon, that the afternoon session will be devoted to argument of the expected motion of the defense, and if the court rules adversely on the motion the opening statement in behalf of Haywood will be made by Darrow tomorrow.

The prosecution succeeded yesterday in again showing a direct connection between the store of George Pettibone in Denver and Harry Orchard at work on the Bradley crime in San Francisco, and promised to make the connection with Pettibone personally by handwriting experts who will be called today. Original records of the Pacific Postal Telegraph company were produced, showing that in September and October, 1904, remittances of $97.50 and $48 respectively were made, the first by "J. Wolff" and the second by "P. Bone" from 1725 Stout street, Denver—the address of Pettibone's store—to "H. Green," in care of Peter L. Huff, at 211 Taylor street, San Francisco.

The state also showed that Haywood declared that Steunenberg was a tyrant who should be exterminated. Judge Wood admitted many of the strongly worded articles of The Miners' Magazine in which Frank Steunenberg was bitterly denounced. These were admitted as showing the animus of the federation officials against Steunenberg and showing animus against Justices Goddard and Gabbert of the supreme court of Colorado, whom Harry Orchard swore he tried many times to kill. The state introduced in evidence the decisions of the judges on the Colorado eight-hour-law and the habeas corpus applications of Charles H. Moyer.

Judge Wood, in announcing his decision on the admissability of articles in The Miners' Magazine as evidence, said the court was thoroughly satisfied as to the admissability of the articles appearing in the magazine, showing the animus of the Western Federation of Miners during the period of the commission of the series of crimes confessed by Orchard and alleged by him to have been incited by officers of the Western Federation of Miners. Articles appearing after that period, the court said, would not be admitted.

Mr. Borah read from a copy of the first issue of The Miners' Magazine the article written by Ed Boyce, in which he outlined the policy of the magazine as proposing to stand for the interest of the Western Federation of Miners and in a general way for the laboring masses against the "predatory classes."

The second exhibit, a letter from Eugene Debs and published in the issue of Feb. 1, was also read by Borah. Debs greeted the magazine and paid a tribute to the announcement of its policy by Boyce. He denounced Governor Steunenberg and the officials of Idaho as "whelps who should go back to their native hell" and "who shall not escape the consequences of their crimes."

In conclusion, Debs wrote: "Know ye, Steunenberg and others, that we have an account to settle with you."

To practically every piece of evidence offered during the day the defense first offered objection, then made a motion to strike out, and lastly took an exception. To all evidence connected with the general conspiracy alleged by the state the objections of the defense included the propositions that the acts shown were not binding on the defendant and that they were not connected with the Steunenberg murder, and there was frequent objection to the evidence offered to corroborate the testimony of Orchard, an alleged accomplice, in the manner provided by the statute.

Princeton, N. J., June 21.—According to a statement issued from the home of former President Cleveland, the alarming reports concerning his condition are practically groundless. A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control.

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation or cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twings of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatism Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thofoughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatism Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction.

Uric-o is sold and recommended in Quincy by E. J. Murphy.

FRENCH OUTBREAKS

Appear to Have Assumed Decidedly Ominous Character

BLOODSHED IN THE MIDI

Mob's Attempt to Rush Soldiers at Narbonne Is Repelled With Fixed Bayonets--Government on the Defense and Ministry Is Shaky

Paris, June 21.—The rebellious excesses and rioting in the Midi are causing great excitement and apprehension in Paris. The general impression here seems to be that the situation is even worse than had been supposed and that the revolt is likely to increase, especially in view of the somewhat violent dispositions of the inhabitants of the southern provinces.

As the news spreads it is thought that further disturbances will take place. The outbreaks in Narbonne, Perpignau, Montpelier and other places are regarded as of ominous character. Orders have been wired to the Thirteenth chassuers at Beziers to proceed forthwith to Narbonne.

The government was put on its defense in the chamber of deputies yesterday afternoon when it was asked to justify the repressive measures adopted against the rebellious winegrowers of the south, but after subjecting Premier Clemenceau to a hot fire the deputies decided to postpone until today a formal interpellation on the subject, on which the fate of the ministry hangs.

Clemenceau declared his intention to repel attacks on public buildings until driven from his post by the chamber. He added that his orders to the troops were not to fire except as a last resort, but he declared that the use of rifles was necessary to uphold the law and the united republic.

Clemenceau, who spoke to a tumultous house, was frequently interrupted by the din and was addressed in insulting terms. He closed his remarks with intimating that he had no particular desire to remain in power.

The Narbonne Disturbance

Narbonne, June 21.—The riotous element of the populace of this place cast off all restraint yesterday afternoon and the city became the scene of many wild excesses.

A secret police agent was patrolling the Promenade des Barques when a mob suddenly invaded the street. They seized him and clubbed him until he was senseless. Then they riddled the body with bullets and pitched it into the canal. Later they fished the body from the water and, attaching a rope to it, dragged it through the streets, acting ferociously all the while.

When the troops arrived the mob attempted to rush the soldiers, but the latter fixed bayonets and repelled the assaults. Revolvers were drawn by the rioters and the troops were fired upon until they were forced, in self-defense, to shoot. Numbers of the mob fell, four persons being killed, among whom was a girl 20 years of age. Eleven others are known to have been wounded, while many others were carried off by friends. Several casualties occurred among the gandarmes. Police officers were attacked and savagely ill-treated and maimed, but none killed.

Incendiarism Resorted To

Perpignan, France, June 21.—A desperate attempt was made last night by a crowd of rioters to burn down the prefecture. A fire was started simultaneously in four quarters of the building. The crowd fought off the fire brigade for a time, but, assisted by the troops, the firemen finally succeeded in extinguishing the flames. The building, however, was badly damaged. Thousands of manifestants are parading the streets in a state of the wildest excitement.

Shots Exchanged With Police

Montpelier, June 21.—The greater proportion of the population demonstrated in the streets until a late hour last night. There were numerous conflicts with the police, shots being exchanged. There were seven victims of the fighting.

Morse Wants More Steamers

New York, June 21.—Following rumors that C. W. Morse has made efforts to buy the control of the steamship properties controlled by the Central of Georgia railroad, it is reported more definitely that negotiations with that end in view have been under way, but that up to the present time they have not been successful. The railroad owns two steamship lines, one of which runs to New York from Savannah and the other to Boston. There are 12 steamships in operation.

Unionizing Carpet Mill Employes

Philadelphia, June 21.—Representatives from tapestry workers' unions in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania opened a convention here and organized the National Association of Carpet Workers of America. About 20,000 carpet mill employes are represented by the delegates.

Earthquake and Landslide

Auckland, N. Z., June 21.—A severe earthquake occurred at Tonga, one of the southernmost of the Tonga islands, in the Pacific ocean, on June 1. Excessive rains throughout Samoa have caused landslips at Pago-Pago, on the southeast coast of Tutuila islands.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

When children are cross, irritable and peevish it does not signify that they have bad tempers; it shows that there is something wrong with the child which it is not able to explain, and which the mother—If She Only Knew—could easily and quickly cure. Mothers, study your child's symptoms; if cross, peevish, nervous, grits the teeth, wets the bed, picks the nose, has variable appetite or bowels, suffers with wind-colic or headache, is irritable and restless, has furred tongue or offensive breath, you may be sure that child is troubled with worms, which cause nearly all the ills of childhood.

Don't delay—disease comes suddenly—a few doses of the wonderful old-time remedy—will give your children that vigorous health which is so important to their future happiness. Dr. True's Elixir expels the worms, if there are any—if not it acts as a gentle laxative and tonic. It cleans out all waste matter from the stomach and bowels, tones and strengthens the entire system of adults as well as children. Dr. True's Elixir is a safe, pure, vegetable tonic and has been the standard household remedy for fifty-five long years.

A COMPOSITE BILL

Anti-Merger Measure Agreed Upon by Railroad Committee

PRESENTED TO LEGISLATURE

Acquiring of Stock of Any Railroad In Massachusetts Hedged About With Stringent Provisions--Provides For Heavy Penalties For Violation

Boston, June 21.—The Massachusetts legislature will consider "An Act to Restrain the Consolidation of Railroad Corporations." Such a bill was reported to the house late yesterday by the joint committee on railroads as the most feasible measure for checking the proposed merger of the Boston and Maine and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

This decision of the committee was arrived at only after two weeks' deliberation, during which parties favoring and opposing the merger were heard, including the presidents of the two railroads concerned, and no less than 10 bills were presented for consideration.

The bill is a composite one, prepared by a sub-committee of the railroad committee, embodying points suggested by the several other measures, especially those of Speaker Cole and Lawyer Brandeis. The opposition to the merger when informed of the bill decided upon said they regarded it as a great victory for their sentiments.

The opening sentence of the measure, which is a very long one, declares that "no corporation owning, leasing or operating a railroad in this commonwealth, nor any person or corporation acting in its interest shall, after the passage of this act, acquire or attempt to acquire by purchase, exchange of shares, or in any other way, the capital stock of any domestic railroad company, except under specific authority provided by statute."

No such corporation, as described above, the bill provides, shall vote any such stock which it now holds or may acquire in its own name or in that of any other person at any meeting of the stockholders of such domestic railroad company. Nor shall it exercise any control, direction, supervision or influence whatsoever over the acts or doings of such domestic railroad company by virtue of such holding of stock therein.

The second section provides that no domestic railroad company, prior to July 1, 1908, shall permit any shares of its capital stock to be voted on on behalf of said corporation by its officers at any corporate election of directors or officers of such domestic company.

The third section provides that the presidents or a majority of the board of directors, or the holders of not less than one-third in interest of the capital stock of two or more railroad corporations, may apply to the railroad commission for its determination as to whether the consolidation of the railroads of such corporations is consistent with the public interest. It also provides that before a consolidation can be brought about it must be ratified by not less than two-thirds of the stockholders.

The fourth section safeguards, according to the suggestions of Governor Guild, against any change of rate, fare or charge for transportation, or an increase in the aggregate outstanding capital stock through consolidation.

Section five permits any shipper tendering traffic for transportation to make application to the railroad commission for a switching connection. The commissioners are given authority to order the installation of a switching connection or side-track where it is reasonably practicable.

The three following sections relate to the anti-stock watering laws, which are strengthened as suggested by the governor. The ninth section provides a penalty for a corporation violating any provisions, with a fine of $10,000 for each offense, and for any officer or agent a penalty of fine of $1000 or imprisonment for one year.

The 10th and last section gives the supreme judicial court jurisdiction in equity, on petition of the attorney general or of any stockholder in a domestic railroad company, to compel the observance or restrain any violation of the provisions.

Prince Killed In Auto Accident

Naples, June 21.—In an automobile accident at Calanelle five men were killed. The motor car, which was going at a high speed, ran into a rock and was demolished. Among the killed was Prince Pascara, on account of whose death the aristocracy of the whole of lower Italy will be in mourning.

Question of Armament

The Hague, June 21.—It is officially stated that General Porter's reservation covering the right of the United States to present the question of the limitation of armaments at the peace conference does not mean that the Washington government has definitely decided to raise the subject.

Bond's Efforts Not Successful

St. Johns, June 21.—The members of the colonial cabinet decline to discuss the apparent failure of Premier Bond to gain desired concessions in the negotiations on the American fisheries question at London. Intense interest in the situation prevails throughout the colony.

Danderine

GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost.

WITHIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica. Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now cured in a few days, and in many cases prevented altogether. The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause, the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be located. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all of its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Dr. Knowlton's DANDERINE

is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One twenty-five-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

STUDENT STABBED

Result of Jostling a Professor During Celebration at an Academy

Cheshire, Conn., June 21.—Talbot Freeman, 17, of Medfield, Mass., a student in the Cheshire Episcopal academy was stabbed in the back twice by Professor Edmonds of the school faculty. One of the wounds was near the shoulder, and the other just above the thigh.

At first it was thought that his wounds would be serious, but Dr. Denison says that the boy is in no danger. His father arrived here and declined to press the charge against Edmonds, who was released and hurriedly left town, as threats of personal violence had been made.

The assault occurred during the progress of the parade and bonfire which is always held at the academy the night before commencement.

The students were making the faculty the butt of their jokes, and forming in rings were bumping them and in some cases toppling them over. The lads jostled Edmonds and the next minute Freeman was stabbed.

Fifteen Hurt In Race Riot

Boston, June 21.—Fifteen persons were injured, two of them so seriously that they required hospital treatment, in a race riot on Edinboro street, last night, between Turks and Armenians. The trouble started when a crowd of Armenians met some Turks. In a moment the fight was on; knives flashed, and clubs and bricks also were utilized. Men, women and children got in the mix-up and when the police arrived there were several wounded lying on the ground. Riot call was sounded and 15 officers came in a hurry. After a hard struggle they quelled the rioters and arrested two of the most active.

End of Sunday Law Farce

Boston, June 21.—District Attorney Moran has not prossed 49 complaints for violation of the Sunday law. Of that number 49 were for delivery of ice cream and the other two for baking bread on Sunday. In regard to the former, the district attorney takes the position that drug stores are allowed by law to sell ice cream Sundays, that some druggists cannot keep ice cream delivered Saturday in condition for sale Sunday, and the public should be given pure ice cream, so it should be lawful to deliver the same to the stores where it is lawfully on sale.

Chinese Freed From White Wife

Boston, June 21.—Dressed in the conventional garb of the Celestial empire, Moy Fook, a wealthy tea merchant of this city, appeared in the divorce court and applied for a divorce from his American wife. After hearing three witnesses unravel a tale of woe about how their fellow-countryman was abused by his white wife, Judge Dana granted Fook a divorce, and as a result established a precedent in this city. Although Fook has been in this country for several years he is unable to talk English and an interpreter was forced into service.

Abandons Senatorial Contest

Providence, June 21.—Samuel P. Colt, president of the United States Rubber company and a candidate last winter for the United States senate, notified the Republican state central committee that he has withdrawn unconditionally from the senatorial contest. At the legislative session just ended there was an unbroken deadlock over the senatorship, Wetmore and Colt being the Republican contestants, while Goddard was the Democratic candidate. Eighty-one ballots were taken without any election.

Gift of Harvard Men

Boston, June 21.—A full-length portrait of President Eliot of Harvard university in his president's robes, done by Sargent, was unveiled last evening at Harvard Union. The portrait is the gift of the class of 1904 of Harvard, who raised a subscription of $5000 for the painting at their commencement three years ago on the occasion of President Eliot reaching his 70th birthday.

Woman Rounds Out 105 Years

Winthrop, Mass., June 21.—Rounding out 105 years, Mrs. Sarah Ingalls quietly observed her birthday anniversary yesterday at her home in this town. Mrs. Ingalls has enjoyed good health, but at present is recovering from a recent illness but expects to be able to be about in a few days. She was born in Ipswich, Mass.

Humidity Was Deadly

Boston, June 21.—The humidity yesterday, which reached a maximum of 92, or 23 above normal, combined with the heat, which at its highest marking of 76 degrees gave the effect of about 100 in the shade with normal humidity, caused three deaths, besides overcoming other persons. Probably one of the victims will die.

Death Hastened by Heat

Boston, June 21.—Representative Darwin E. Lyman of Cummington, of the Second Hampshire district, dropped dead at a local hotel late yesterday of heart disease, superinduced by the heat. He was 50 years of age and was serving his first year in the house.

An Artificial World.

The mingled feelings of admiration and skepticism with which we gazed upon the stuffed animals in the toy shops of our youth we still experience in the society of many of the human animals we meet later in life. The more we admire the more do we mistrust, while there is nothing of which we are more convinced than that everything is unreal, from the complexion of our friends to the genius of a great writer.—London Ladies' Field.

Crimson Beats Blue at Baseball

Cambridge, Mass., June 21.—Ten innings of fast baseball were required before Harvard won the first of the annual series of games from Yale at the Stadium by the score of 2 to 1. Steady pitching by both Hartford and Van Vleck and sharp fielding by both teams characterized the game.

Riot at Travelers' Election

Norfolk, June 21.—W. R. Johnson of Tennessee was elected president of the Travelers' Protective association last night. The delegation at the last moment shifted its vote to him in an effort to prevent the re-election of President Howe. Believing that Howe had declared a motion to adjourn carried, in order to postpone the election of officers until today in the furtherance of his own candidacy, a small sized riot occurred and Howe narrowly escaped mobbing. Chaplain Wilson saved serious trouble by gaining attention for a moment and then asked the 1500 men present to join him in divine invocation. A rollcall was finally secured and the adjournment motion defeated.

Ran Over Child and Ran Away

Portsmouth, N. H., June 21.—Velma Caswell, 5 years old, was terribly injured by being run down by an automobile containing three men, driving at a high rate of speed on New Castle avenue, in this city. Her recovery is extremely doubtful. Struck down by the front wheel, the victim was hurled to the ground, while both front and rear wheels passed over her helpless body. Horrified spectators ran to the child's assistance, while the men in the machine put on even more speed and escaped.

Big Suits Settled Out of Court

Boston, June 21.—Suits aggregating nearly $100,000 against the administrators of the late Nathan B. Goodnow of the firm of Nathan B. Goodnow & Co., formerly well known as a brokerage concern, now defunct, have been settled out of court. The bills in equity were brought to recover money and stock deposited with the Nathan B. Goodnow company, the complainants claiming that they made such deposits for the purpose of purchasing stock in various corporations.

Boxing Bout May Prove Fatal

New York, June 21.—Following a boxing bout in which he participated here, Gustave Lenny of Boston, aged 22, was removed to a hospital, where it is said that he may die. He is suffering from multiple contusions of the head and body. When he regained his senses he was placed under arrest and removed to the prison ward. Lenny, according to the police, fought four fast rounds with Edward Smith of this city. Smith, the referee and the seconds were arrested.

TELEPHONE TALKS.

Believing that exact knowledge promotes co-operation, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is publishing a series of brief expositions of some phases of telephony, for the benefit of itself, and, as it hopes, for the benefit of all telephone users.

"THE LINE IS BUSY."

One of the mysteries of "Central" to most telephone users is how the operator can tell so quickly when "the line is busy." There are still a few people, perhaps who believe that she does not know, but simply reports a number as busy to save herself trouble. But anybody who uses the telephone very much is perfectly well aware that the circuit is not reported as being in use unless it really is in use. It is "good business" for the telephone company to establish conversation whenever it is in any way possible to do so; and nobody questions but that the telephone company is getting all the business it can.

When you call up "Central" she connects herself with your line by means of a "cord" on the end of which is a brass plug that fits closely into the "jack" or switch socket in which your line terminates in the switchboard. The connecting cords are arranged in pairs, and when you give the operator the number of the telephone with which you want to talk she takes the second cord of the pair she is using for your call and touches the tip of the brass plug at the end of it to the "jack" of the line you require. If the circuit is already connected up in some other part of the board, the operator hears a clicking noise in her head telephone; then of course, she reports to you that the "line is busy." If there is no warning click when she touches the jack she pushes the connecting plug in and rings.

A commoner cause of "busy reports" than most people realize is the large number of subscribers who take party-line service, especially at their residences. The particular person you want to reach may not be using his telephone when you call for it, but if there are other subscribers on the same circuit the line may be busy just the same. And your friend may not know that it is. That is why sometimes when "Central" tells you "the line is busy" your friend will say afterwards that he doesn't understand how that could be, because he wasn't using the telephone at all at the time you tried to call him.

Stereopticon Lecture.

The regular monthly meeting of the Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Assscation was held in the Braintree Town hall, Wednesday evening. Mr. William Bain of Bain Bros., Boston, wholesale grocers, who recently spent two years touring the world, gave a very interesting stereopticon lecture. He was introduced by Mr. H. W. Mansfield, clerk of the association. His views were made from photographs which he took in the Hawaiian islands and at New Zealand. They were quite clear and on account of their originality proved doubly interesting.

Mr. Bain is a fluent speaker, as well as a salesman of remarkable popularity. His audience consisted of grocers and provision dealers of the south shore, their clerks and a few invited guests.

William Amory.

William Amory formerly of East Braintree, who died at his summer home at Dublin, N. H., Sunday, whither he had gone about a fortnight ago, was a native of Boston, the son of William and Anne Sears Amory. He was educated at Harvard, graduating in the class of '55, which numbered among its distinguished graduates such persons as Alexander Agassiz, Phillips Brooks, Theodore Lyman, Robert Treat Paine and others. For a number of years Mr. Amory was treasurer of the Langdon Mills which in course of time were consolidated with the Amoskeag Co., when Mr. Amory retired from active participation in business affairs. He was a member of the Somerset and The Country clubs. He is survived by a wife and two daughters, one of whom is Mrs. George H. Lyman of Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

The Social Realm

Welcome, ye shade! ye flowery thickets, hail!
Ye lofty pines! ye venerable oaks!
Ye ashes wild, resounding o'er the steep!
Delicious is your shelter to the soul,
As to the hunted hart the sallying spring,
Or streams full-flowing, that his swelling sides
Laves, as he floats along the herbaged brink.
Cool through the nerves your pleasing comfort glides;
The hearts beat glad; the fresh-expanded eye
And ear resume their watch; the sinews knit,
And life shoots swift through all the lighted limbs. —Thomson.

IN THE NEW HALL

The Grammar Graduates First To Use the New High School Hall

As Supt. Parlin said in his introductory remarks at the grammar school graduation yesterday afternoon, the class of 1907 was honored in two ways First, it was the first class to be graduated in the new High school hall; and second, it was the largest grammar class ever graduated in Quincy. The exercises differed but little from other years. Ideal graduation weather prevailed. That is to say, it was hot. Considering the large number present, however, the hall was comfortable.

It was the first time that many, or perhaps it might be said the great majority, had seen the hall and many favorable remarks were heard of it. Certainly it was an ideal hall for the exercises. The hall is entirely completed save possibly the ventilator that was supposed to be put into the roof. It is finished in ash, while the walls and ceiling and balcony are in white. The balcony is broad and roomy and supported by large brass finished rods. The graduates were assembled in the centre of the hall while the parents and friends occupied seats on the sides and in the balcony. On the platform, which was reserved, were upwards of fifty ladies and gentlemen. In all nearly nine hundred were present, although it hardly seemed that there were so many.

The exercises commenced at 3 o'clock with the marching in of the graduates. Each school was led by a banner bearer and as each entered the hall it received its share of applause. As usual music was a feature of the exercises and it was of the usual high order the selections being compositions of such well known composers as Mendelssohn, Handel, Beethoven, Shelley, Pinsuti and Roques.

The program follows:

After the two opening numbers, Supt. Parlin made a few introductory remarks. After mentioning the honors that this particular class had, he said that of the number of graduates, 192 were boys and 243 girls. A total of 435 which was 39 more than last year and the largest class ever graduated. Of the total, 242 graduates were without conditions, and 412 received certificates entitling them to enter secondary schools.

One completed the course in 5 years, 2 in six years, 20 in seven years, 192 in eight years, 149 in nine years, 54 in ten years and 17 in eleven years. This was the average of eight and one-half years, with deductions for vacations. The youngest graduate was 11years and 8 months, and the oldest 18 years and 8 months. The latter, Mr. Parlin said, lost three years by illness. The average age was 14 years and one-half months.

Over 90 per cent of the graduates were to enter secondary schools.

The address of the afternoon was by Senorita Carolina Huidobro of Chili. The Senorita said at the commencement of her remarks that her people were intellectual and up-to-date. A people that had been called the yankee of South America. This graduation carried her back 32 years when she was graduated in Boston. She started at ten years of age to get an education, and at that time she could not speak English. She was eight years old before she could read,

CIVIL WAR DANGER

It Has by No Means Disappeared In France

MUTINOUS SOLDIERS GIVE UP

War Office Hurries Fresh Troops to Scenes of Disturbance--Chamber of Deputies Votes Confidence In the Government

Paris, June 22.—Fortified by a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies and by the receipt of assurances from its representatives on the spot that the government forces gradually are gaining the ascendency throughout the rebellious departments in the south, the ministers are less pessimistic and incline to the belief that affairs in the wine growing region are entering a less threatening phase.

The mutiny and desertion from Baziers of a battalion of the Seventeenth regiment, followed as it was by circumstantial stories of similar defections at other garrisons, but which later turned out to be untrue, caused widespread alarm, not only in official circles, but throughout the entire country.

The war office lost no time in ordering overwhelming numbers of fresh troops to the scene, and during yesterday fully a score of regiments of all arms were dispatched to Narbonne, Moutpelier, Beziers and other centres or were held in readiness for instantaneous departure.

Just before the close of the chamber of deputies late last evening Premier Clemenceau was able to announce the surrender of the mutinous battalion of the Seventeenth regiment, and the hearty applause that followed indicated how deep was the sense of relief occasioned by the news. It is realized on all sides that the danger of civil war by no means has completely disappeared, but those at the helm seem satisfied with the progress made toward the repression of anarchy.

The ministers intend to take no chances. Martial law is now in force throughout the whole of the disturbed area and will be maintained. Clemenceau announced, until the sovereignty of the law is assured and normal civic life can be resumed.

The grave view the French capital takes of the revolutionary events in the south of France and the tragic outcome was evidenced by the scene in the chamber of deputies when the government was interpellated on the measures it proposed to take to re-establish order. Even standing room was not obtainable.

Premier Clemenceau lost no time in imparting to the deputies the news from Narbonne, adding to the information already published the fact that over 100 soldiers were wounded in the fighting with the rioters. The latter, he said, had disappeared from the streets. The peasants from the surrounding villages, terrified at the shooting, took the first trains for their homes.

Then, amid impressive silence, the premier gave the official version of the mutiny of the battalion of the Seventeenth infantry at Agdei and its march to Beziers, fully confirming the press dispatches on the subject. The premier added that he could not listen to any proposition for the conditions of surrender of the mutineers, as it would be a most fatal move for the government to capitulate to the soldiery. He concluded with demanding a vote of confidence to the government so that the ministers could carry out, in the name of the chamber, the work of repression on which so much depended.

The opposition deputies fiercely attacked the government, accusing the ministers of sending agents to stir up the populace in the south, asserting that the cuirassiers acted like Cossacks, that the troops fired without provocation and without notification, and that women and children had been slaughtered. They insisted that the release of M. Ferroul, ex-mayor of Narbonne, would alone restore calm. Otherwise, one of the speakers asserted, "the bloody rioting of today will be the revolution of tomorrow."

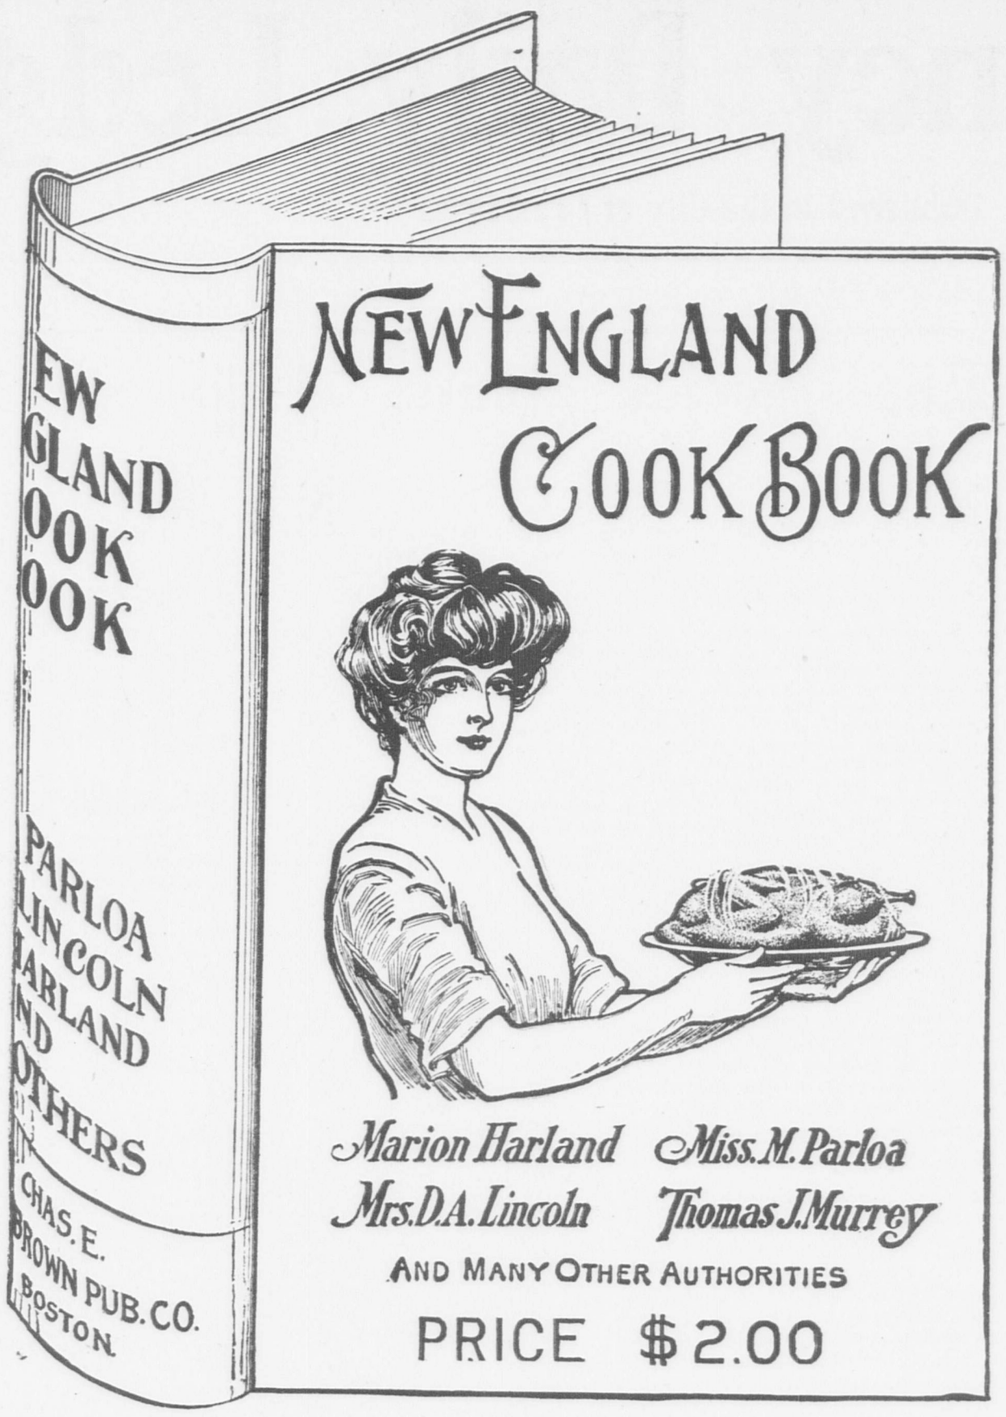

Some of the more prominent members of the opposition appeared to place the interests of the country above those of their party, and held up the hands of the government, being desirous of giving the latter time enough to bring the delinquents in the south to account. After six hours' debate the chamber generally adopted this view and by 327 to 223 votes decided to support the cabinet.

No Light on Rail Problem

Atlantic City, June 22.—Experts of the American society for testing materials, in convention here, failed to decide upon a new form of steel rail to be used for carrying the high power engines of the present day. Neither could they reach any decision with reference to a change of composition. It was admitted that numerous railroad accidents were due to defective rails.

Duke of Devonshire Laid Up

Ascot, Eng., June 22.—The Duke of Devonshire, ex-president of the council, was taken suddenly ill at Windsor castle yesterday. He is suffering from weak action of the heart and has been advised to remain in bed for the present, as he is in his 74th year and, owing to his importance in the political world, his illness would cause much concern.

Pilgrimage To Quincy

The twelfth annual pilgrimage of the Old South Historical Society will be in Quincy and Hingham, on Saturday, June 29, 1907. The plans include visits to three notable houses in "Old Braintree," a trolley ride along the highway winding through Old Spain and other villages of Weymouth and a pleasant afternoon among the historical associations of Hingham. The return will be by steamer up Boston Harbor. The Society invites all interested to join in the Hingham pilgrimage, and especially the teachers, students, and others who have attended so regularly in previous years. All are asked to interest themselves in the story of Quincy and of Hingham, and to be prepared for a profitable day.

"Old Braintree" was incorporated in May, 1640, and included the present towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook, and the city of Quincy. In May, 1634, the General Court ordered that "Boston shall have convenient enlargement at Mount Wollaston," and five years later those dwelling at the Mount had gathered a church. In 1708 the church of Braintree was divided, and the original settlement became the North Precinct. In 1792 the North Precinct was set off and became Quincy. Until the Granite Railway was built, in 1826, so little change was there that it could be written, "The Quincy of 1830 was only the Braintree of 1640, a little more thickly peopled and a little more prosperous." It was in her men that "Old Braintree" chiefly shone. From Edmund Quincy and from Henry Adams, original grantees, were descended generations of leaders and public servants of the highest distinction. John Hancock, the patriot, was the son of Rev. John Hancock, minister of the North Precinct; and from Teacher Henry Flynt, ordained in 1640, many important Massachusetts families can trace descent. The "virtuous, independent farmers" of "Old Braintree" had large places in the development of New England and the building of the nation.

The excursion of June 29 will be in special cars attached to the train from Boston, leaving the South Terminal Station on Track 21 at 8.27 A. M. Arriving at Quincy, Adams the party will go directly to the ancient houses where the Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, were born. Here the pilgrims will have an hour to inspect the homesteads and their interesting contents. Both are well cared for and preserved as shrines.

Here one may see the simple surroundings of colonial yeomanry. On this farm lived Lieut. John Adams, a deacon and a selectman of Braintree, and here in the house, said to date from 1681, was born his famous son, October 19, 1735. In the house adjoining, John Adams and his wife Abigail, daughter of Rev. William Smith, of Weymouth, began their married life, and there the son, named for his great-grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born in July, 1767. Through the farm ran the old Plymouth road, and on both sides the wide fields stretched away to the uplands. Behind the houses now may be seen the many derricks of Quincy's famous granite quarries.

In the spring days of 1775 Mrs. Adams wrote that her house, "being on the main road, was a scene of lasting confusion." A Bridgewater company passed the night at John Adams's house and barn, and John Quincy Adams, then a small boy, was placed in their midst by his father, and "went through the manual exercise of the musket by word of command from one of them." On the top of neighboring Penn's Hill is a cairn bearing the inscription, "From this spot, with her son John Quincy Adams, then a boy of seven by her side, Abigail Adams watched the smoke of burning Charlestown while listening to the guns of Bunker Hill, Saturday, June 17, 1775." Sixty years after the son spoke of "the deep and awful agitation of t hat day."

At 10.15 electric cars will be ready in front of the Adams houses to take the party to the Quincy Mansion, pasing several places of interest. Through the kindness of the Colonial Dames and of Mrs. E. M. Andrews, the custodian, members of the party will enjoy an hour on the spacious premises, viewing the interior of this "noticeable specimen of the best domestic architecture of colonial times."

The front portion of the Edmund Quincy house was "raised" in June, 1706, but the older house to which it was joinned had already stood for nearly seventy years. The kitchen and other rooms in the rear, therefore, date from earliest Braintree days, and besides the huge fireplaces may be seen the timbers of hewn oak still bearing marks of the axe. In this house lived generations of gentry, colonels and judges. Judge Edmund Quincy married Dorothy Flynt, and a daughter of theirs was that "Dorothy Q." whose name has been immortalize in the verses of Dr. Holmes. It wasanother Dorothy Quincy who, in 1775 became the wife of John Hancock. One room yet has on its walls the queer old paper which tradition says was hung there in honor of the approaching marriage, although the ceremony was performed elsewhere. "In the chamber next the Brooke," Judge Sewall spent one rainy night in 1712, and next to it is the room still known as Tudor Flynt's chamber.

At 11.45 the company will again board the electric cars, and the delightful trolley ride through "Old Weymouth" will be a feature of the day. At Quincy Point are the extensive works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, one of the latest industrial developments of the new Quincy.

On arrival in Hingham the company will gather for luncheon in the Parish House of the First Parish. The luncheon will be of the usual substantial character, served in individual boxes, together with ice cream and coffee. At 2 o'clock the pilgrims will gather in the Old Meeting House of the First Parish across the street and there they will be welcomed to the town by Hon. John D. Long; the story of the ancient meeting house will be told by Rev. Louis C. Cornish, minister of the parish; and the appropriate closing word will be said by Mr. Edwin D. Mead. The party will then have opportunity, under guidance, comfortably to see all of interest.

Across Lincoln Street is the "Old Ordinary," a tavern of colonial Hingham, dating from about 1650, now the residece of Rev. Louis C. Cornish Here the company will gather at 5 o'clock to enjoy the hospitality of Mrs. Cornish and ladies of Old Colony Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

At 6 o'clock electric cars will be ready in front of the "Old Ordinary" to take the party to the wharf at Nantasket, where at 6.40 the steamer will be boarded for the delightful sail up the harbor, reaching Boston at 7.40 o'clock.

Tickets for the entire trip at $2.00, covering all fares, admissions, and luncheon, may be had only at the Old South Meeting-house, Washington and Milk Streets, Boston. To perfect arrangements it is necessary that they be bought early, and those unsold will be withdrawn from public sale not later than 5 P. M. the day before the trip.

Squaw as Housekeeper.

Put a squaw in a tepee and she is the neatest of housekeepers. The blankets are neatly rolled and stowed away under the edge of the tepee, leaving the center clear. Bright colored blankets and fine fur robes are spread about, and a wonderfully beaded dance drum hangs from one of the poles. But put a squaw in a house and she is anything but a success. Go into one of these frame houses and you will find the mattresses laid along the floor, with the whole family sprawling thereon. The cracked cook stove will be in the middle of the floor, with anything but agreeable odors coming therefrom. Outside the bedsteads and springs will be used as chicken roosts. But the squaw doesn't let her housekeeping shortcomings worry her. When she puts on an elk tooth robe, valued at anywhere from $1,500 to $3,000, and rides to the fair or to the agency on a Sunday astride a beaded saddle she is a picture of contentment.—Denver Republican.

Old Grog.

The inventor of grog, the long time beverage of the sea and of salt water literature, was Admiral Vernon, of whose courageous deeds at Porto Bello a lively poet has sung:

Which when they came to understand he was so brave a fellow,
They did surrender, out of hand, the town of Porto Bello.

"Old Grog" was Vernon's pet name in the navy of his day, and it was thus bestowed: "Out on the Spanish main Vernon found that the result of giving each man in the ship's company half a pint of rum a day to drink neat was disastrous. His captains and surgeons suggested to him the revolutionary experiment of mixing the spirit with water. In a station order Vernon required this to be done. The new liquor was not favorably received, and the seamen cast about for an opprobrious name for it and its author. Now, Vernon used to wear a grogram boat cloak; hence 'Old Grog.'"

Part of the Horse.

A rich rancher told a story about a little slum urchin whom he had sent on a month's vacation into the country. "The lad," he said, "thought we got mush from the mushroom and milk from the milkweed. One morning a lady pointed to a horse in a field and said, 'Look at the horse, Johnny.' 'That's a cow,' the boy contradicted. 'No,' said the lady, 'it's a horse.' 'Tain't. It's a cow,' said the boy. 'Horses has wagons to 'em.'"—Kansas City Times.

ACQUITTAL IS DENIED

Futile Argument of Defense In the Haywood Case

BIG ARMY OF WITNESSES

Those Mentioned by Orchard as Having Knowledge of His Deeds Will Declare That He Lied--How Darrow Will Open Argument

Boise, Ida., June 22.--When the state closed its case against William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg, the defense made an unsuccessful attempt to have the court direct the jury to acquit the prisoner on the ground that the state had not proved its charge. Judge Wood's ruling, which requires the defense to meet with evidence the case that the state has presented, was made at the close of court, and it was then arranged that Haywood's counsel should make their opening statement and present their first testimony on Monday.

The prosecution introduced a few witnesses to corroborate previous evidence and then formally rested its case. The motion for an instruction to the jury to acquit was by agreement presented at the afternoon session, and the jury was sent to the jury house out of hearing.

Attorney Richardson made the principal argument in support of the motion in a long, carefully prepared and eloquent address. He took for his guide the Idaho statute, which forbids conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, quoting many authorities in support of his contention that there must be convincing corroboration entirely independent of the testimony of the accomplice. He declared that none of the testimony could stand without support of Orchard's story and that the statute specifically forbade its acceptance under those circumstances.

He also argued that the testimony of Orchard was the only showing that in any way connected Haywood with the crime and that the statute forbade conviction under those circumstances.

Mr. Borah, who alone spoke for the state, argued with like force and eloquence that Haywood's connection had been independently shown and that Orchard's testimony had been corroborated by independent circumstances and evidence. He also submitted a general argument to show that the state had established the existence of general conspiracy, in which Haywood was a participant.

The last batch of the defense's witnesses have arrived. They now have 110 men here who will contradict the state's witnesses. A peculiar fact is that every man mentioned by Orchard in his confession as having knowledge of his deeds, with the exception of those who are dead, is here to declare the chief witness lied.

Attorney Darrow expects to consume the entire morning session Monday explaining the troubles in the mining regions, how the federation operates, and incidentally will excoriate the Pinkerton agency, which he will say is an organization that deals in crime and planned the gigantic conspiracy to crush the Western Federation by having prominent officers hanged for a crime on manufactured evidence.

Canadian Miners Against Force

London, June 22.—In the course of a speech in the house of commons, H. W. Forster asserted that during a strike in British Columbia the miners sought the assistance of professional strike organizers from the United States, "the very men, I think, who were engaged in the terrible transactions now being revealed by the American courts." Forster added: "To the everlasting credit of the workingmen of Canada the moment there was a suggestion of the employment of force the American strike organizers were dismissed."

Seasonable Weather Booms Trade

New York, June 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that weather conditions throughout the country are reported as seasonable for the first time in several months and the response is immediate in all branches of business, while crop prospects have improved greatly, although there still remains much lost ground to be regained. With scarcely an exception the week's news is encouraging.

Mutiny on French Warship

Lorient, France, June 22.—There is a persistent rumor afloat that a grave mutiny has taken place aboard the French armored cruiser Victor Hugo off the coast of the United States. No confirmation of the rumor is obtainable. The Victor Hugo arrived in New York May 20, and sailed for Hampton Roads May 31.

Deserters' Places Are Filled

Boston, June 22.—After a delay caused by the refusal of the crew to work shorthanded, steamship Kestor sailed for Newport News, having taken on several men to replace those of her crew who deserted. The vessel will load a cargo at Newport News for Cuba.

Wetmore Will Fight It Out

Newport, R. I., June 22.—Secretary-Treasurer Burlingame of the Rhode Island Republican league announces that at the request of the league George P. Wetmore will continue his candidacy for United States senator.

Street Railway Folders.

The Passenger Department of the Boston & Northern and Old Colony street railway companies has issued some new literature this year which is very attractive and convenient. The feature of the publications this time is a large four-colored map of eastern Massachusetts east of Worcester, southern New Hampshire and northern Rhode Island, showing not only all the trolley lines of these companies but all trolley lines in the district, as well as all the parks, groves and other inland and shore pleasure resorts.

The map is a very artistic bit of work and is one of the most complete ever issued covering this district. This map forms the inside of both the Boston & Northern and the Old Colony Street Ry. Co.'s folders, while the rest of the space is devoted to schedules showing the routes, distances, fares and mileage on these systems. Everything is arranged in as condensed a form as possible, tending to put as much helpful information for the trolleyist in as little space as is required.

The covers of the two folders are in colors and beautiful pieces of the printer's art. That of the Boston & Northern shows a cool, attractive view of a rocky shore, a bay with an island in the background, all on a background of striking red. The Old Colony folder cover is a delightful typical little country scene framed in an attractive arrangement of greenery. Just a glance at the covers creates a desire to seek the shore and country.

They will be sent free upon application to the Passenger Department, 309 Washington Street, Boston.

Civil Service Examinations.

The Massachusetts Civil Service Commission will hold an examination on July 12 and 13, of applicants for the position of inspector of steam boilers on the District Police Force.

Applicants will be examined in letter writing, spelling, arithmetic, handwriting, knowledge of steam engineering and experience.

Applicants must not be under twenty-five nor over forty-five years of age, and those who pass in the foregoing subjects will be required to pass a physical examination.

The Commission will also hold an examination on July 8, of applicants for the position of inspector of buildings, factories and workshops, on the District Police Force.

The examination will embrace the following subjects: Handwriting, arithmetic, copying printed matter to show accuracy, clearness and correctness of statement, questions on construction and architectural work and ventilation, safety devices for machinery and elevators, modes of egress in case of fire, devices and appliances for extinguishing fires, etc., and experience.

Little Brighteyes

By LOUISE NURRIFIELD.

Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

That was what Davis had nicknamed her at the first rehearsal of "Flimflam." She was the scrawniest, homeliest girl in the chorus when the girls lined up for first inspection and happened to land in the middle at the lineup. Davis spotted her and called out before everybody in the pleasant, merry little way he had:

"That will do for yours, Little Brighteyes. Never mind about taking the center. We'll save the spot light when you're around. The back row for yours."

Everybody turned to take a good look at Little Brighteyes before the back row swallowed her forever. She was about thirty, a slim little woman with big gray eyes and dark hair. It was a point of beauty in its own way, that hair, soft and brown and straight as Minnehaha's ever was, but she had tried to marcel it into shape with a home applied curling iron to make her look professional, and it was a sight. But she took her medicine bravely, and even Davis recognized the grit in her.

It was her best asset in the after days, that grit. It carried her through all of Davis' major and minor tantrums and the teasing from the other girls. She said little and worked hard, but the nickname that Davis had given her that first day stuck fast. Even Jennie Reynolds, the wardrobe woman, caught it, and when she was handing out the costumes to the girls she tossed a bunch across the room and called out cheerfully:

"Here you go, Brighteyes!"

And Little Brighteyes just laughed good naturedly, although she had drawn the least artistic clothes in the lot. It didn't matter when one was only the fourth girl in the last row back. She did as Davis had told her and kept out of the spot light.

"That girl's an old timer," Davis remarked to Vida Lorne as the two stood in the first entrance the opening night and watched the girls take a big encore on the "Rattlebang" song. There were sixteen picked out from the little ones in the crowd, and Brighteyes was one of them. It was a jolly, swinging, drummer boy chorus and took the minute it hit the house. The girls were all in scarlet and black, with snare drums, and Little Brighteyes was beating hers for sure, no make believe. The rouge helped her lots, and so did the red and black costume. Her head was held high, just a bit atilt, and her lips were parted in a smile.

Marshall—Nick Marshall that was—the manager, was beside Vida. He watched the skinny little figure on the end thoughtfully as the girls went off.

"She's all right," he said. "Put her on to lead tomorrow night in that chorus, Davis, and see how she goes. She's on to the ropes all right."

Vida leaned forward to get a better look.

"I've seen that girl somewhere, Nick," she said. "Look at her now with that drum. And the way she steps! Who is she?"

"Little Brighteyes," laughed Davis shortly. "That's all she is now anyway, but she's an old timer all right."

Vida laughed, too, as Marshall walked around with her to the big white automobile in which she made her first entrance. The first act showed a mountain scene in a country anywhere between Italy and China. The beautiful American heiress was doing the touring stunt all over Europe, and the prince of the country was in love with her. He had followed the lead of the white automobile all over the map and finally had induced the girl to pay a visit to his own land. She feared possible banditti. He assured her the red and black drummer boys and the army behind them could protect her. And all the time, of course, he merely wanted to get her over the border, abduct her, shut her up in the castled steep fortress (act 2) and starve her into marrying him and filling his stingy little treasury with oodles of American coin. It was a rehash, but it went with a bang. Even before Vida's entrance the thing was a sure success, and Marshall was solidly joyous.

"Be careful and don't lose your head when you take that run," he said as he stood beside the auto while Vida was helped in. It was a good trick, that first entrance of the American girl. They had a mechanical arrangement for the auto to scorch down the mountain pass, and it looked as though it was going straight over the footlights. There were four turns to the run, and then it brought up short right in the center of the stage in a self locking frog and made a mighty effective picture.

"There isn't a bit of danger," answered Vida, drawing on her white gauntlets. "I'm just as cool as can be. Not a bit rattled, thank you. Let her go."

There was the second's pause in the orchestra, then the crash of entrance music, and they released the machine. It took the incline like a boy's coaster—smooth and swift and easy. Davis was white, but Marshall stroked his vandyke and frowned ever so slightly as he watched the car and its occupant. It was a dangerous trick, but it brought down the house.

Marshall stared at Vida. Under the rouge her face was dead white, and he knew she was scared. When she came off the stage she sent for him.

"Nick, I won't go through that again, not if the whole show goes to pieces. I simply can't. It is terrible. Why, it would be like dying every night! I won't ride in that thing again."

Davis suggested a dummy, but Marshall wouldn't stand for any fake. The girl in the machine must be alive, and suddenly Davis suggested Little Brighteyes.

"She's got the same air and build as Miss Lorne, and you can hide the face with a veil. Change the scene so as to carry off the auto long enough for the two to change places after the run, and there you are. And she's the only girl I know who has the grit to do it."

She had the grit. It meant a doubling of her salary, and she made the run night after night, with never a tremor of fear. No one knew the difference. The two women were the same size and the same carriage, and Vida was delighted.

"It's lots of fun," she told Marshall. "It's like hiring some one to die for you, don't you know."

The laughing words flashed across Marshall one night when "Flimflam" was on its third month. He happened to be standing at the foot of the stairs leading up to the platform where the machine stood. As she came by to take her place in it Little Brighteyes had to pass him, and for the first time their eyes met. Marshall never moved when she had gone up the stairs. He had forgotten "Flimflam" and New York. Somewhere, some time, so long ago that he didn't like to remember it or have other people either, one Nick Marshall had run a little one ring circus through the country towns—about thirteen years back—and there had been a girl, a pretty, piquant girl, who rode a horse in the parade and drove a chariot in the funny, shabby little grand entry, and after a couple of years of the one ring circus Nick Marshall had decided his talent lay in New York and had left the circus and the little country towns and other handicaps behind him.

The burst of applause from the front of the house recalled him. The machine was released, and the American heiress incog. was doing her nightly "stunt." And suddenly there was a dull, strange crash, and the music stopped. Marshall spoke over his shoulder as he made for the stage, and they rang down the curtain and started up the music again, for the public must not see unpleasant things when it takes its gayety, and there was a most unpleasant thing lying under the automobile that had turned turtle.

"She isn't dead," said Davis as he and Vida bent over the slim figure in the white suede cloak. "Get her to the hospital and she will pull through. It's only the shoulder smashed."

Marshall pushed the two to one side and lifted the figure in his arms. As he did so Little Brighteyes opened her eyes and smiled up at him.

"Hello, boy," she said faintly. Marshall bent his head and kissed her before the whole crowd.

"Never mind the hospital, Davis," he said quietly. "I'll take Mrs. Marshall home myself."

And the rest watched him as he strode across the stage with his burden out to where a carriage waited at the side door to the theater. Then Vida looked up at Davis and laughed as the stage was cleared for the curtain raising.

"I've known it for weeks," she said. "I tried and tried to think where I had seen her before, and then all at once it came to me. Nick married her back in the circus days and then left her out west in some dead and alive hole, while he came on to New York to try to make good. He made good, but forgot all about any responsibility out west, and she was too proud to hunt him up when she thought he didn't want her. I saw her in comic opera out in Frisco eight or nine years ago. She made a big success in 'Fatinitza.' I remembered her all at once watching her play that drum. But it was her own affair, and I didn't tell. Nick played fair at the climax, didn't he?"

Davis nodded. But as he watched the laughing, pretty face beside him, white to the lips, as when she had taken that first ride down the run, he knew that one other besides Nick had played fair, too—fair to Little Brighteyes.

Whitman's Poetry.

Walt Whitman's poetry, in spite of the long, joggled, lumbering places in it, comes nearer to reaching out to what the modern age is trying to be than any other that we have. Whitman may or may not be considered a poet, but he has outswept the bounds of beauty for human life. He has seen the whole universe in every clod of it. He has God's definition of beauty. Naturally he does not express it as well as God does. His symbolism is crowded with hapless places, and God's symbolism never misses the point, but as the ground plan for a great modern poet—an original or working poet in a new built, new building, working world—Walt Whitman is the first and only figure large enough that the world has had. He had a larger repertory of joys—joys with everyday things that any man might have—than any other poet. His autobiography would take in a larger section of the universe.—Putnam's.

Sleep and Old Age.

There is no question that the quantity of sleep required steadily diminishes from infancy to old age. This is a rather interesting exception to the general rule that, as in many matters, old age returns to the needs of infancy. As regards sleep, old age is more remote in its needs from infancy than is any other period of life. If elderly people obtain good sleep during the first few hours and if they have not lost that delight in reading which we all had in youth, but which so many of us curiously lose, their case is not to be grieved over. The special value of the earliest hours of sleep, by the way, has been proved by psychological experiment. The popular phrase "beauty sleep" is well warranted. It is then early, the deepest, hours of sleep that make for health and beauty.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Inheritance Tax Bill Engrossed

In the Massachusetts Legislature, yesterday, the senate passed the inheritance tax bill to be engrossed, after rejecting an amendment offered by Senator Chace to exempt from the provision of the bill real estate and stocks upon which an excise tax has been paid.

Senator Hayes offered two perfecting amendments, and Senator Chace moved a postponement until Monday, but the delay was voted down, 17 to 16, after which the amendments were adopted and the bill passed to be engrossed.

$800 Blaze At Barry's Corner

The alarm from Box 61 at 8.11 this morning called the department to what gave promise of being a serious fire in the store of R. J. Barrey at the corner of Hancock and Squantum streets.

The fire started in the basement, probably from a lamp near the oil barrel. The blaze followed the oil pipes to the upper floor, and immediately there was a lively blaze. Mr. Barry ran out and pulled the alarm.

As he did so it flashed across him that he had left the door of his safe open, and that there was considerable money in it. He therefore rushed back through the flames and closed the door. In doing so the hair on his head was burned off and his face was singed.

District Engineer Nyhan was in charge of the fire, and quickly had it under control. The fire did not reach the upper floor although a thick black smoke filled the store, causing more or less damage by smoke.

Chief Litchfield estimates the loss by fire and smoke at $800.

Half Holiday.

The Quincy clerks are very much pleased with the way the petition is being signed for the Wednesday afternoon closing. It being a general thing in every town but Quincy they are in hopes that the three or four business men who have not been interviewed will fall in line with the rest. They have about 40 names already. The general closing beginning next Wednesday, June 26.

SOLDIERS MONUMENT

Many Reasons Why It Should Be Moved From Present Location

The movement on the part of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., to have the soldiers' monument at Mt. Wollaston cemetery moved to a new location, or a new monument more in keeping with the granite industry of the city, is no new idea.

In fact the movement of the monument has been suggested each Memorial Day of late. A few years ago there was an active movement made in the City Council to have it moved to Merrymount park. That scheme was opposed, however, and the plan was dropped.

Since that time the managers of Public Burial Places in their annual reports have frequently alluded to the desirability of moving the monument, but nothing was done. Now that the Grand Army have communicated their wishes to the City Council, the chances are that before another Memorial Day the monument will be in a new location.

When the plan to move the monument was under discussion some years ago it was estimated that at least $300 would be required. At that time there was no suitable spot at Mt. Wollaston to which it could be moved. Now however there is ample room to remove it to the spot between Sea street and the old bounds of the cemetery, and this would seem to be a good location.

There are many arguments in favor of its being moved. In its present location it is on a very small lot and surrounded by lots in which numerous burials have been made, and whose owners desire to keep them well care for. Every year, however, the crowd that gathers about the monument to listen to the exercises tramp all over them. In their eagerness to get as near as possible to where the services are held they are on sacred ground, and unconsciously, perhaps, they walk and stand on graves in a heartless manner.

The condition of these lots the following day is deplorable, but can not be helped as long as the monument remains where it is. It would, therefore, seem that the time had come when action should be taken.

As for a new monument it would seem that under the existing financial condition of the city to be out of the question.

Serious Accident At Quarry

Two men were seriously injured yesterday at the Hitchcock quarry by the parting of a derrick guy wire. Workmen were engaged in erecting a large new derrick in the quarry, when one of the guy wires parted causing the derrick to topple over.

The swinging wire flew through the air and struck John Doyle of Cross street, winding itself about him like a snake, and carrying him over with it. The end of the wire also struck John Budreau of Filbert street a savage blow, knocking him down.

Doyle had his left hip fractured and was severely bruised about the body.

Budreau had his left arm fractured in two places, and was also severely bruised. The injured men were attended by Doctors Reynolds and Ash and then taken to the City Hospital.

Odd Fellows' Field Day.

The Odd Fellows of Eastern Massachusetts have completed all but the minor details of the arrangements for their second annual field day and outing to be held at the Point of Pines, Revere, Saturday, June 29, when the members, their families and friends from far and near, may assemble by the sea shore and spend the day in the enjoyment of such exercises as will tend to the cultivation of those ties that bind them in fraternal union. The entire grounds of that picturesque park have been engaged for months for that occasion, which promises to eclipse all former outings held under the auspices of the Odd Fellows.

There will athletic events, base ball games, exhibition or competitive drills by companies of the uniform rank, who will be representated in large numbers from various parts of the state,—band concerts, dancing, fire works and many other attractions will provide amusement for old and young alike. The conferring of the Decoration of Chivalry on a number of the Sisters of the Rebekah Degree, will be of especial interest to the ladies.

Stone a Candidate.

The Hyde Park Gazette says "Uncle Silas Stone of Sharon does not propose to take a vacation this summer, but will devote his surplus energies to getting his political fences in shape for next fall. He is a candidate for county commissioner, to succeed Mr. Foster of Brookline, and his enthusiam over prospective success is up to the "Uncle" Silas standard. In the political Marathon, he proposes to be the Tom Longboat at the finish.

Dr. E. N. Hardy will preach at Bethany church tomorrow morning a sermon on "Character as an Asset" which will be of special interest to recent graduates from school and college.

No Warrant Issued.

A Boston paper reports that Associate Justice Parker of the Brookline municipal court refused on Friday to issue a warrant for the arrest of Principal Charles H. Taylor of the Edward Devotion school, for an alleged assault upon Francis J. Holleran, a 14-year-old school boy, on May 20. The Holleran boy was playing base ball in the rear of the Edward Devotion school on May 22, and during an exciting game, it is alleged, that Principal Taylor attacked him. Mr. Taylor was recently the master of the Willard school in this city.

—Beginning July 1st the postoffice throughout the country are to be required to weigh all outgoing mail in all of the classes for a period of six months, probably for the information of the postal commission, which is to present a draft of the new postal laws to the next Congress. Heretofore the period of weighing has been but for thirty days, and it has been charged that the railroads and others with special interests saw to it that the mails weighed pretty well during that period, the rate of compensation being based on the month's weighing. The present period will include the holiday business, which will bring up the average.

OLD MEETING HOUSE AT SOUTH ABINGTON
Erected 1807, Remodeled 1844
Built by Ebenezer Porter
FROM A MEMORY SKETCH BY GEORGE W. VINTON

The Congregational church at Whitman (formerly South Abington) celebrated during the week of June 9—15 its centennial anniversary. Through the kindness of Mr. George W. Vinton of Chestnut street, Quincy, the Daily Ledger is able to present a line engraving of the first edifice of this society, which was built by his grandfather Ebenezer Porter of Abington. Mr. Porter also gave the lot of land, which was 8 rods by 15 rods. The building was 56x67 and cost $6,500. It is unque in its style, having two towers, each surmounted by a copper ball. The picture also showes the "old Bicknell apple tree,' well known to the boys of a century ago.

Mrs. Charles Henry Hardwick and Mrs. Abbie Vinton of Chestnut street are grand daughters of Mr. Porter. Mr. Vinton had pictures of the church printed as souvenirs, and also took part in the celebration.

Whole City May Get Reduction

The special committee of the Board of Trade, to whom was referred the matter of street car fares between Quincy and Nantasket beach, had a conference on Thursday evening with Assistant General Superintendent Conway.

Under the present arrangement, the fare between these points if cash fare are paid, is 20 cents. Commutation tickets, however, may be purchased for 15 cents. These tickets are good however, between City Square and Nantasket.

A person at West Quincy, Atlantic or Wollaston, who desires to take advantage of these tickets must pay a five-cent fare to City Square so that in reality they save nothing.

What the Board of Trade desire, is that it shall be a fifteen cent fare from any part of Quincy.

The conference was a very harmonious one, and Supt. Conway promised to use his influence in having the request granted

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore white liberty satin with much old family lace, and carried a bouquet of fragrant orange blossoms, especially grown for the wedding. The same flowers fastened the veil. Her only attendant was Miss Cornelia Wolcott, the bridegroom's sister, whose dress was of white filet lace with salmon pink ribbons. She wore a white hat trimmed with pink plumes and carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. Stevenson, mother of the bride, wore light gray marquisette over silk, and Mrs. Roger Wolcott, the mother of the bridegroom, was in white lace with black lace motifs, a black toque with white roses and black plumes The best man was Prescott Wolcott, a brother of the bridegroom. Grammar School Graduation yet she knew every bird in the woods and their habits. Here she had got a constitution that she would not sell for all the education in the world. The tendency in the United States was to push a child.

Continuing, she said that a graduate was simply entering another life. You want to consider not only your individuality in the world but your factor. What you do, whether it be good or bad, must influence some one else. Be a factor for good in all you do. Build a character that can not be contaminated. Guard yourself against bad influences that will come up to you. We are living in an age of imperialism. All are after the dollar, no matter how you get it. The standard is measured by dollars not by the good influence you can give. From the lives of others we can make our homes sublime. The day of the parable of the Good Samaritan is as much needed now as it ever was. When you see anything to do for another, do it, and you will be rewarded 100 times more. In the long run what pays best is honesty even if you die poor.

During her remarks the Senorita frequently spoke in a humorous vein and readily captivated her hearers.

At the conclusion of the address came the presentation of the diplomas The graduates came forward by schools for their diplomas marching across the platform and down the other side. Then came more music the salute to the flag and the singing of America.

A complete list of the graduates will be found on one of the inside pages of today's Ledger.

Members of the School Committee were at a premium at the graduation, for out of the nine members but four were present. Messrs. Miller, Newcomb, Bushnell and Duggan. They therefore had to do double duty in giving out diplomas.

One little girl was obliged to leave the hall owing to the heat, and one boy was overcome and had to be carried out.

The decorations at the hall were of a simple nature. Two flags over the platform and bunches of green arranged about the front of the balcony.

HE KNOWS JAPANESE

Missionary Who Was 32 Years Among Them Gives His Views

HE FINDS PLENTY TO PRAISE

Far From Being a Warlike Race or Having "Swelled Head"--Feeling of Gratitude Toward Us That Will Make Them Ever Our Friends

Boston, June 22.—War with Japan is altogether unlikely, according to a statement made by Rev. J. H. De Forest, D. D., an American Board missionary, who is here on a furlough. De Forest says:

"I have lived 32 years in Japan, have traveled repeatedly from one end of the empire to the other, have spoken to large audiences in cities, towns and villages night after night for weeks at a time, have frequently met officials of every grade, civil and military, and have lived with people, studying their family life, their educational system, their codes of civil, commercial and criminal law, their morals and religions. I was six weeks in Manchuria, during the war, as a guest of the army, and later a member of the foreign famine committee, through whose appeals the people of the United States sent hundreds of thousands of dollars to the starving people over there.

"With this introduction I wish to say as widely as possible to Americans, in view of the international aspect the San Francisco problem is taking, that there are on our part some misunderstandings of Japan which threaten to become chronic.

"One of these is the frequent statement in the press that Japan is a nation of fighters, a warlike race and a consequent peril to the peace of the world.

"The answer to that is that Japan has a record for peace that may well be the envy of our Christian nations. For 250 years before Commodore Perry went there Japan was at peace with the whole world, and what is not less remarkable, with herself.

"During the 50 years since Japan came in contact with the west, there have been two internal wars and two external ones, all brief, altogether taking up hardly a tenth of her half century of world intercourse. Another misunderstanding is in thinking that they have the 'swelled head.' Certain it is that if any people ever had the right it should be accorded freely to a nation that, in war with one of the greatest nations, won the victory in every battle on land and on sea. Yet no nation has ever conducted itself in great victories with more modesty than the Japanese have. This was one of the qualities that deeply impressed me when I conversed with officers and soldiers in Manchuria.

"I was present at one of the opening sessions of the diet last January, when all the cabinet officers were seated in the rear of the speaker, and I heard Premier Saionji deliver his message. It was some months after the exclusion of Japanese children from our schools and people were very eager to learn the attitude of their government. The premier simply said that the San Francisco matter had not reached the diplomatic stage, and there was no likelihood that it would, for the United States government had taken it up and, of course, would deal justly with it.

"Nor should it be forgotten that the national feeling of Japan towards us is one of profound gratitude. Their grateful utterances in the press, in public meetings, and in private intercourse are as sincere and true and full of good will as we could possibly desire, and no nation, not even her great ally, receives so much as do we of the United States. The reasons are obvious. Our Commodore Perry opened Japan and introduced her to the west. No other nation could have done it on lines of peace, and Japan does not forget this nation so helpful in her hour of weakness.

"Next, we are the only nation whose representative always stood for Japan's rights when others were too masterful and aggressive and Japan is grateful to us. Another point is that the United States has a custom of never taking indemnity from a conquered foe. We were compelled to share with allied forces two indemnities, one wrung from Japan and one from China. We are the only people who returned to Japan the Shimonoseki indemnity. This friendly act is one link of a strong bond between these two nations.

"The Russian war broke out. It was of vital interest to Japan to know that the sympathies of our nation were with her and not with her strong enemy. Even the sympathy of her political ally was not more valuable nor more highly prized than that which went in one great unbroken current from the people of the United States.

"When the famine in the northern provinces came on hundreds of thousands of dollars were sent to Japanese to be used by them in the distributon of food and aid. When the San Francisco earthquake destroyed that city, Japan at once started her subscription.

"If the daily telegrams about Japan and the United States are read in the light of the above facts, it will help us to believe, as General Kuroki said the other day: 'We can't fight against America, our best friend. If you should come to fight us we should run away.' The heart of Japan beats true for America, as ours, in spite of hoodlums and criminal politicians, beats true for Japan."

Four Dead In Steamer Fire

St. John, June 22.—Four men lost their lives when the river steamer Crystal Stream was burned at her dock at Cole's island, Washademoak lake. It is not known whether the victims were suffocated and burned in their bunks, or whether they were awakened too late to escape through the flames which surrounded them. Their bodies were recovered, charred almost beyond recognition. Mate McLeery was severely burned and other members of the crew were slightly burned. The cause of the fire is not known, but it evidently started in some bales of hay stored on the steamer.

Modicum of Liberty Lost

St. Petersburg, June 22.—A manifesto was issued last night by the National Socialists and circulated in the city. Its most effective phrase characterizes the session of the duma as "a hundred days of captivity." The coup d'etat, it says, takes away the modicum of liberty which the people won. "Our duty is to solemnly exhort the people to remember that its destiny is in its own hands and that it will possess only such right as it conquers and defends."

Mexican Troops Punish Yaquis

Guayamas, Mex., June 22.—Colonel Aduna, military chief of the port, has been advised that troops of the National Guard attacked and wiped out a village of Yaqui Indians north of Ortiz. WANTS A MILDER BILL

Mellen Thinks Railroad Merger Measure Far Too Drastic

Boston, June 22.—The Post says: President Mellen of the New Haven railroad and Vice President Byrnes paid Speaker Cole an anxiety call yesterday afternoon at the speaker's room in the state house.

The three men, together with Senate Chairman Faxon and House Chairman Vittum of the railroad committee, conferred together for over an hour upon the startling claim of Mellen that the bill will have to be amended so as not to knock the New Haven out of the control of the presidents and boards of directors of 10 railroad corporations which it leases in Massachusetts.

The difficulty is caused by the fact that the New Haven is said to control the majority of stock in many of the leased lines. This gives the New Haven the control of the election of presidents and boards of directors.

The Cole bill, which is couched in general terms, forbids this in its attempt to block the New Haven in its present power to elect only its own men on the board of Boston and Maine directors next fall. It is said that Mellen wants the Cole bill made to apply solely to the New Haven and Boston and Maine, so that it will not affect the control of the New Haven upon the other Massachusetts lines which it leases and whose stock it controls.

STATE POLITICS

New Haven Merger May Be a Campaign Issue Later

BARTLETT OPPOSES WHITNEY

He Thus Aligns Himself With Legislative Democrats and Against Whitney--Republicans Will Protect State Interests

It is not unlikely that the proposed merger between the New Haven railroad and the Boston and Maine may play a large part in state politics this year.

From the time this merger was first proposed there has been a great interest in it in Boston and its immediate vicinity, and it has attracted the attention of other parts of the state in a greater or less degree, even though far removed from the metropolitan district.

It is not unlikely that it may influence the nominating campaign now being waged by Henry M. Whitney of Brookline and General Charles W. Bartlett of Boston. Mr. Whitney is an earnest advocate of the merging of the two lines. He has done whatever he could in the direction of bringing about this consolidation of interests and is not hesitating to state his views upon that question.

General Bartlett, on the other hand, has taken the ground that such a merger would be detrimental to the best interests of the state of Massachusetts and the city of Boston, and that it would place this commonwealth at the mercy of a foreign corporation. The merger has given General Bartlett a full-fledged issue upon which to make his appeal to the Democratic masses. It is quite likely that a large number of Democrats in the commonwealth look upon this consolidation as the consummation of a great monopoly which may result in a not too benevolent form of despotism.

Bartlett Opposes the Merger

Those who might be in a position to know say that General Bartlett's candidacy for the Democratic nomination has received a very considerable impetus by the merger developments of the last two or three weeks. His friends say that his position receives the cordial approval and support of Democrats of all grades and kinds. It is quite within the bounds of possibility that this is true, owing to the more or less general prejudice to whatever has the appearance of a monopoly, and to the passing of the last Massachusetts railroad of any importance into the hands of an outside corporation.

It must, however, be admitted that Mr. Whitney has the support of a large majority of the Democratic leaders in Boston and its vicinity. One by one these leading Democrats have announced their adherence to the Whitney column, while the accession of acknowledged leaders to the ranks of General Bartlett has not been nearly so large.

And yet it is quite within the possibilities that General Bartlett may in the end be the candidate of the party. Those who followed the contest of last year know very well that for a number of weeks it seemed certain that Mr. Whitney would secure the Democratic nomination, notwithstanding the strenuous candidacy of District Attorney John B. Moran of Boston. Democratic politics are a very uncertain quantity. Practically all the Democratic leaders last year, throughout the state, were against Moran. Notwithstanding that fact, in a moment of petulance or disgust, or political weariness, Mr. Whitney threw up the sponge, declined any further to be a candidate, and challenged William L. Douglas of Brockton, who had been coquetting with leading Democrats in regard to the nomination to go in, and in the end Moran received the nomination. It was a kaleidoscopic mixup from the beginning of the campaign to the end.

Democrats Doubtful of Whitney

The announcement of many of the newspapers that the merger was a Standard Oil movement has served to create considerable doubt among many Democrats as to the wisdom of nominating Mr. Whitney in view of his relation to that merger. Many Democrats fear it will serve to emphasize Mr. Whitney's long connection with Standard Oil men and measures in past years. One of the friends of General Bartlett recently called attention, at the state house, to several circumsances which he said showed the connection of Mr. Whitney with the Standard Oil. One of these was to the effect that Mr. Whitney turned over the West End Street Railway company to Standard Oil interests, which thereupon merged it with the Boston Elevated and commenced the construction of overhead roads. Another was the fact that he proposed the establishment of a pipe line in Massachusetts for the transportation of gas, which was to have resulted in the control by Standard Oil interests, not only of all the Boston gas companies, but also of the major portion of the other gas companies of Massachusetts, and lastly, the merger of the New Haven railroad with the Boston and Maine, at the suggestion or instigation of the same Standard Oil interests.

The Bartlett followers show a great concern lest the Standard Oil company should gain control of the entire commonwealth and, in addition to that, elect one of its friends to the governorship of Massachusetts.

Is Bartlett Stronger Man?

So far as Republicans are concerned, there is a pretty general impression that General Bartlett would be a stronger man at the polls than Mr. Whitney. They base their conclusions upon the charge that there is a very little that can be said against General Bartlett, while the records of the activities of Mr. Whitney, during his career, have made him vulnerable politically in many quarters. General Bartlett seems to have no antagonisms, and whenever he has been a candidate has never failed in friends who were willing and able to provide the essential elements for a lively campaign.

Whichever man is nominated, there is apt to be a live campaign inaugurated immediately afterwards. Democrats have no difficulty in waking up the commonwealth after they get their candidates into the field. It is much more difficult in ordinary years for Republicans to arouse their voters to the point of going to the polls than it is for the Democrats to do so. This is partly due to a mistaken idea, held by many Republicans, that the state is certain to elect the Republican ticket whether they go to the polls or not. Democrats are aware that in order to win, every Democratic vote must be got out, and it is, therefore, much easier to get them to the polls.

The merger question, which was thrust into the legislative session at a late date, has destroyed the possibility of an early adjournment. That question in all its bearings is now before the great and general court and a great deal of fervid oratory has been, and will be, uncorked for the occasion. A large amount of what is being said is dictated by political considerations rather than by deep personal regard for the interests of the commonwealth. That the merger should be properly safeguarded, if it is to become a fact, is acknowledged on all sides. There is a grave doubt among many people whether anything further than this is possible or desirable. Most men thoroughly intimate with railroad conditions throughout the country hold the opinion that consolidation is inevitable, and that properly worked out and safeguarded it will be in the end a decided advantage to the interests of the people.

Merger as Campaign Issue

It is very evident that the Democrats as a party intend to make a campaign issue of the merger. The actions of the Democratic contingent in the legislature make that perfectly plain. Their opposition to it seems to be wholly political: that is to say, they see the chance to make a political issue of what is purely a business and commercial transaction. It is true that there is considerable opposition among business men in Boston to any merger at all. The experience of the commonwealth with the Boston and Albany, as managed by the New York Central under its lease, has not impressed them favorably in regard to railroad consolidation. It is undoubtedly true that under that lease business has been diverted to New York which ordinarily came to Boston, but this was due to the fact that freight could be landed in New York cheaper and more expeditiously than in Boston. The Boston and Albany route is a very hilly one and is not favorable to the hauling of such heavy trains as the New York Central route to New York.

There is, however, a general feeling, outside of business men and merchants in Boston, that the merger proposed would probably work eventually to the advantage of Boston, rather than to its disadvantage.

Under the lead of Governor Guild, Republicans at the state house will carefully safeguard the interests of the public so far as the merger is concerned, and if it is consummated, it will be under laws which will prevent stock watering or the exploiting of the commonwealth in the interest of New York or any other state.

The Crooked House.

On the estate of Earl Dudley, at Himley Staffs, there is a curious habitation known as "the crooked house." It is altogether out of the perpendicular and slants toward the south end, which is heavily shored up with thick red brick buttresses. These peculiarities are the result of mining operations, the under stratum of the earth in these parts being completely honeycombed. The clocks on the walls, although absolutely perpendicular, as their pendulums testify, appear to be hanging sideways at a pronounced angle. A short glass shelf, one end of which appears to be a foot higher than the other, proves to be absolutely level, while in the taproom is a table which is apparently slanting, but on which if round marbles are placed at the seemingly lower end they roll to all appearance uphill to the top of the table and fall over with a bump.—London Standard.

Why He Brought His Along.

Whenever the penurious manager of the large store wanted to sharpen his pencil he would enter the shipping department and borrow a knife from one of the boys. Sometimes the boys did not have their knives with them, but there was one lad, Tommy Breen, who always could be depended upon.

"How is it, Tommy," asked the manager one day as he whittled his pencil, "that you always have your knife with you and the other boys haven't?"

Tommy hesitated for a moment, then, gathering courage, said:

"The wages I get aren't enough for me to afford more than one pair of pants."—Harper's Weekly.

Pretty Close.

"Is he parsimonious?"

"Well," was the guarded reply, "you might say that he carries his money in a purse that shuts a good deal easier than it opens."

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Castle Square Theatre.

The second grand opera of the Castle Square season will be Donizetti's "Lucia Lammermoor" its first production in Boston for nearly ten years. Yet "Lucia" is one of the most popular operas of the Italian school, sharing with "Il Trovatore" a high position of melody and a romantic plot, and more than one prima donna has made her reputation by singing its title role. The title role at the Castle Square will be sung by Miss Lois Ewell, who recently made so notable an impression as "Marguerite" in "Faust" and it is expected that she will find "Lucia" a part exactly suited to her vocal and dramatic talents. George Tallman and Harry Davies will appear alternately as "Edward" and in the other important roles will be Mr. Murray, Mr. Shields, Miss Le Baron and the leading members of the company.

Colonial Theatre.

Geo. M. Cohan's newest musical play, "50 Miles From Boston," began an engagement at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, last Monday night and scored an unqualified success. Mr. Cohan's trigger finger must be very steady, for he has again hit the bull's eye and it would seem that he is unable to miss his mark when the production of a likeable play is the target. "50 Miles From Boston" marks another span in the ambitious path being trodden by Geo. M. Cohan. Formerly a composer of popular songs, and an eccentric dancer in the vaudeville ranks, he is at present a playwright, with a thorough appreciation of dramatic effects in the form of intensely interesting situations and climaxes. "50 Miles From Boston" is excellently staged, and there are several songs that give promise of becoming instantly popular. "Jack and Jill," "A Small Town Gal," "Boys Who Fight the Flames," "Ain't It Awful," and "Harrigan," are the numbers presented with the usual Cohan swing and tobasco dash, and they are sure to be whistled all summer.

Keith's Theatre.

Stella Mayhew, who scored one of the triumphs of the season in "Coming Thro' the Rye," will return to Boston next week as the head-liner of a capital bill. During the past five weeks Miss Mayhew has been in vaudeville, having appeared in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Buffalo and New York. In all of these cities she has scored very heavily with a group of songs of the kind she sings so well. Much local interest will be attached to the engagement of Wilmer Walter, who, supported by Annette Marshall and William Vaughan, is to present a dramatic sketch entitled "Duplicity," written by Mr. Ernest L. Waitt, the dramatic editor of one of the leading dailies of Boston.

Park Theatre.

Next week's bill at the Park Theatre is to be a musical comedy—Hoyt's laughable satire on the private military organizations of this country "A Milk White Flag." Such an organization exists in the little town where he has laid his scenes. The only battles it engages in are social ones with a rival organization. This rival body has had a military funeral with much pomp and ceremony and the officers of the other society decide that they must do the same thing. Two well known men in the town have concocted a scheme to defraud an insurance company by one of them playing dead. The military organization hears of this and, after making him a member, demand the right to bury him. The so-called corpse is one of the liveliest members of the cast and adds considerably to the fun. The regular Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees will be given. Souvenirs will be distributed at the Tuesday matinee.

$200 Blaze On Sunday Evening

The alarm from box 445 shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night called the department to a brisk fire in an old barn on Adams street at the foot of Common street. The barn and the old house adjoining have not been occupied since vacated as an Italian boarding house. The barn which is situated a little back from the house was well under way when discovered, and by the time the fire department arrived was a roaring mass of flames. The barn was practically destroyed. The fire which was evidently the work of an incendiary caused a loss of $200.

The table in the dining room was centered with buttercups. The assistants were Mrs. George Alfred Ricker, Mrs. Norwood Keene, Mrs. John V. Woodruff, Mrs. Willard T. Bushman, Mrs. Scott A. Farley, Mrs. Robert B. Holmes, Mrs. Frederick D. Town, Mrs. Odelia W. TOUCHING SCENE

When Dr. Everett Says Good Bye To Pupils of Adams Academy

The gold medal exercises of Adams Academy were held at the Stone Temple on Saturday evening and largely attended by friends of the pupils, the school and Dr. Everett. The exercises were saddened by the fact that the Academy will be closed this week for an indefinite time. There were touching scenes when Dr. Everett, the master for 29 years announced the fact, and also when he addressed the boys later and said good bye.

Before commencing the program of the evening he asked the indulgence of the audience for a few minutes. He said he regretted the condition of the Adams fund was such that it could not support the school any longer. He had hoped the people of Quincy might see their way clear to help the academy in a financial way, but he saw no chance of that now.

Dr. Everett said he would not have continued as headmaster of the school if it were not closed. His health was not such that he could continue the arduous work of preparing large classes for Harvard college, as this task was not so easy now as it was 29 years ago when he first assumed charge. His resignation, he said, was already in the hands of the managers of the academy.

The declamations for the gold medal were as follows, being interspersed with music and the award of other prizes:

The Pilgrim Fathers — Pierpont
Joseph Ambrose Grignon, West Quincy.
Liberty and Order, — Fox
Francis Joseph Howley, West Quincy.
The Czar and Kossuth, — Webster
Ralph Cedric Blake, Wollaston.
Suetonius to his Soldiers — Fletcher
Walter Galvin, Quincy.
Address to the Electors of Bristol, — Burke
Joseph Frank Goodhue, West Quincy.
Matches and Overmatches — Webster
David Oscar Nathaniel Lundberg, Quincy.
Welcome to Lafayette, — E. Everett
Alfred Chester Harting, Neponset.
The Eloquence of Webster, — Charte
Alfred Francis Thayer, Norfolk Downs.
Disabilities of the Jews, — Macaulay
August Hermann Wigren, Quincy.
Cardinal Wolsey's Farewell, — Shakespeare
Hobart Adams Lawton, Quincy.
Attack on Henry Flood, — Grattan
Willis Pearl Middleton, Quincy Point.
The Abbot's Curse, — Scott
William Everett Bullock, Wollaston.
King Richard to the Crusaders, — Scott
Eliot Coolidge Johnson, Quincy.

The judges then retired, and during their deliberations the Alumni prize oration on "Henry Clay" was given by Willis Pearl Middleton of Quincy Point.

The judges awarded the Adams gold medal to Hobart Adams Lawton of Quincy, the second or master's prize to Eliot Collidge Johnson of Quincy and the third or Billings prize to Willis Pearl Middleton.

Prizes for excellence in study were awarded as follows:

First class, August H. Wigren.

Second class, Hobart A. Lawton, extra prize for excellence in mathematics William J. Nolan.

Third class, William Everett Bullock.

Fourth class, Fridolf H. Peterson.

Prizes for industry and good conduct were awarded the following students who had received every approbation card during the year: Francis J. Howley, August H. Wigren, Stanley S. Bates, David O. N. Lindberg and William E. Bullock. Students who had received every card but one were Ralph C. Blake, Willis P. Middleton, Walter Galvin and Fridolf H. Peterson.

Translation prizes were awarded as follows: From Homer, Joseph F. Goodhue; from Virgil, Stanley S. Bates and H. A. Lawton; from Caesar William E. Bullock.

The Brackett essay prize was awarded Edmund Boyd Fitzgerald, the Anderson prize to August H. Wigren and the alumni oration prize to Willis P. Middleton. All of these prizes except the Brackett and Anderson prizes were made possible by a legacy left the academy by Robert C. Billings.

Diplomas were awarded Raymond L. Brown, Vincent A. Curley, Edmund B. Fitzgerald, Joseph F. Goodhue, Francis J. Howley, George S. McKenzie and August H. Wigren.

Before giving the diplomas, Dr. Everett called the graduates around him in front of the pulpit. He said it was customary for somebody chosen by himself to present the diplomas, but as this was probably the last time diplomas would be presented to Adams academy graduates for some years, he wanted to reserve the right to himself. Dr. Everett said he could not believe that Adams academy would close its doors forever and he hoped it would reopen them soon.

It had been charged against him, he said, that he did not cultivate the acquaintance of the parents of the pupils. "That may be so," said the doctor, "but the fact is I have been so busy cultivating the acquaintance of these boys that I have not had time to follow up their relations. I feel confident that in years to come the boys of Adams academy, yes, and their sons and grandsons, will have a kind word to say of Dr. Everett, and for this I feel that my work has not been in vain."

"Boys you are probably the last graduates of Adams academy, at least for some years to come. We have spent four pleasant years together. If I have not taught you to be men; if I have not taught you to follow the path of honesty and truth though it led to the scaffold; if I have not taught you to be Americans; if I have not taught you that you owe a responsibility to the Heavenly Father which you cannot shake off even though you are alone in the desert, then my time with you has been wasted and your time with me has been wasted. You are going now into the world, but wherever you go remember always to say a good word for your and my beloved Adams academy."

Just before dismissing the audience Dr. Everett said he had been informed by Dean Hurlburt of Harvard college that the Dimmock scholarship had been awarded August H. Wigren, the Tyler scholarship to Francis Joseph Howley, and the Price Greenleaf scholarship to August H. Wigren.

"And now," said Dr. Everett, "the exercises are concluded, unless somebody wants to step forward and plank down $50,000 to keep the academy going."

GAME OF CRAPS

Results Seriously For One Man Another Also Was Shot in Foot

Two men were shot Sunday afternoon at a game of craps in what is known as the sand pit near the line between Quincy and Braintree. The injured men are Aitor Baleucci, aged 32 years, of 49 Columbia street, who has a serious wound in the stomach, and Orist Vignomi, aged 35 years, of 47 Columbia street, who has a bullet wound in the heel of his foot. The shooting is alleged to have been done by Harry Vignomi, a brother of one of the wounded men.

The shooting was the outcome of a dispute over the game. From what can be learned there had been a game in progress all the afternoon. Along toward six o'clock a dispute arose over the winnings, and it is alleged that Harry Vignomi drew a revolver and fired two shots into the crowd of a dozen or more persons seated about. The first bullet struck his brother in the heel and the second found lodgment in the stomach of Baleucci.

This broke up the game and immediately after the shooting Harry took a hasty departure disappearing in the woods. He was 17 years of age and boarded with his brother.

Dr. McLellan and Dr. Reardon, who were notified, were quickly on the scene and did what they could for the injured men. The police ambulance was summoned, and with it came Lieut. McKay and officers Thorne, Holloran, and Broberg. Vignomi was taken to the police station and locked up, and Baleucci whose injuries were of a more serious nature was taken to the City Hospital.

Just how serious Baleucci's injuries are, can not be determined as yet. It is understood that the bullet took a downward course and several physicians were in consultion as to the advisability of performing an operation to remove it.

At the City Hospital this morning it was reported that Baleucci was resting comfortably. The bullet, however, has not been located. Unless something unforseen sets in he will probably recover.

EIGHT WERE KILLED

Thirty-Five Other Railroad Laborers Are In Hartford Hospitals

WORK TRAIN IS SMASHED UP

Engineer Claims He Had Right of Way When Passenger Train Crashed Into Cars Backing Into the City--Victims Badly Mutilated

Hartford, June 24.—Eight workmen were killed and 35 injured when a passenger train on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad crashed into the rear end of a work train that was backing into the city last night at Sigourney street crossing. Of the injured two are not expected to recover.

Dead and dying were strewn along the sides of the track, while horribly mutilated victims were beneath the wreckage, some pinned amid a mass of tangled iron and wood. Their groans and appeals for aid moved the rescuers to desperation, and men worked until prostrated in an attempt to extricate the sufferers.

In one instance it took an hour and a half to rescue one workman who was pinned between the trucks. His head was hanging down backwards and he suffered great agonies, but the rescuers kept encouraging him while doctors reached between the framework which held him a prisoner and treated the wounds on his face and head.

There are three unofficial versions of the manner in which the wreck occurred. One is that a passenger train for New Britain went out on track No. 2 instead of track No. 1. The second is that the work train had the right of way until 7 o'clock and should have had a clear track and that the passenger train was ahead of time at that point. The third is that the work train opened a switch and failed to close it, thus making the collision possible, but this version is generally discredited.

It is understood that all the trains on the Highland division yesterday operated on track No. 1, thus leaving the other track to the work train, whose crew have been employed repairing the rails. The engineer of the work train claims that he had the right of way and his statements are borne out by others on the same train.

Engineer Wilson of the passenger train jumped in time to escape injury. The passengers, however, were badly shaken up and some, it is understood, were cut by flying glass.

When the news of the accident reached the city a squad of police were detailed and they had hard work keeping the thousands of people from the scene. There was danger all of the time because the wrecked cars had to be maintained in an upright position by stays, while rescuers were underneath battling to save the lives of the victims.

During the excitement fire broke out and the department was summoned. After quenching the flames, the firemen became rescuers and with axes and saws worked hard until the arrival of a squad of 50 railroad wreckers. A half dozen priests were early at the scene and administered the last rites to some of the sufferers.

Soon after the wreck, while an investigation was being made to ascertain the whereabouts of the living victims, one man underneath several tons of debris was seen waving a red flag. Someone reached in with a bottle of whiskey and gave him a draught. He remarked: "The first drink in 12 years, and God knows I need it." He had a terrible gash in his neck and is in a critical condition.

At St. Francis hospital there are 31 victims. The doctors say that two of them cannot live, and they are unable to give any detailed information regarding the condition of the rest. At the Hartford hospital there are four injured, none of them fatally.

Automobiles, wagons of all descriptions, together with all the ambulances in the city, were used to hurry the injured to hospitals. The names of the victims, by reason of their all being Italians, could not be learned.

Balloonists Were Drowned

London, June 24.—All doubt as to the fate of Lieutenants Caulfield and Leake of the royal engineers, who made a balloon ascension from Aldershot camp on May 28, has been removed. The body of Caulfield was picked up at sea near Weymouth yesterday. A strong wind carried the balloon out of sight soon after it ascended. Two days later the balloon was picked up at sea some distance from Exmouth.

Shrubb Runs at Boston

Boston, June 24.—Alfred Shrubb, champion distance runner of England, whose amateur record for three miles (14m. 17s.) is two seconds better than the professional record for the same distance, was the star attraction of the inaugural meet of the Professional Athletic Association of America here. Shrubb went against five men in the three-mile event and easily won in 14:15 2-5.

Sad Beginning of Vacation

Kingston, Mass., June 24.—An automobile said to be owned by Francis E. Southard of New York ran over and killed Olga Klaus, aged 8, at Rocky Nook yesterday. The Klaus family belongs in New York and the mother and two daughters came here Saturday to pass the summer.

WHAT DARROW WILL CLAIM

Haywood the Victim of Conspiracy on the Part of Mine Owners

Boise, Ida., June 24.—William D. Haywood, having already pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering former Governor Steunenberg, and having heard the evidence the state of Idaho has placed before the jury in support of its charge, will today formally assert his entire innocence and outline the evidence he purposes to produce.

Clarence Darrow, for Haywood, will say that his client is not only not guilty of conspiracy to assassinate Steunenberg, but that Haywood is in fact the victim of a conspiracy to disrupt the Western Federation of Miners and under the guise of legal procedure to condemn to death the chief officers of the federation of which Haywood is the secretary and one of his co-defendants under the indictment, Moyer, is the president.

Darrow's address to the jury probably will take up most of today. He will maintain that his client had nothing to do with the Steunenberg or any other murders and that the state has not connected Haywood with any conspiracy. He will charge a conspiracy on the part of the Mine Owners' association to wreck the Western Federation of Miners.

It will be asserted that the Orchard story is true only in that the crimes were committed, that the alleged conspiracy between Haywood, Moyer, Pettibone, Orchard and Adams was a fabrication made by Orchard to save his life, and that the price of the concocted confession was the pardon of the actual murderer of Steunenberg. The motive of this murder, it will be asserted, is to be found in Orchard's desperate poverty.

Yachts In a Slow Race

Marblehead, Mass., June 24.—The Pontiac crossed the finish line first last night in the annual ocean race of the Corinthian Yacht club from Marblehead to the Isle of Shoals and return, a distance of 66 miles. While the Pontiac was the only one of the fleet to cross the line inside of 24 hours, she lost first prize in class B to Marie on time allowance. The Pontiac went across the line Saturday night at 7:35 and came home last night at 7:15.

Fire Followed Housewarming

Auburn, Me., June 24.—A storehouse containing furs and sporting goods and a vinegar mill owned by George R. Hunnewell were burned at South Auburn. Hunnewell gave a housewarming in a new residence built to replace his home burned a short time ago. Fireworks were sent off during the evening and it is believed these were the cause of the burning of the storehouse and mill across the street. The loss is about $70,000.

Hostilities Not Even Dreamed Of

Tokio, June 24.—Public excitement over the American question has almost passed away, but the agitation by politicians of the opposition, who are employing the question as a weapon of attack on the ministry, is still going on. Whatever attempts are made in the way of agitation, actual hostilities with the United States are not even dreamed of. The war talk in some of the American press is totally ignored here

Employers Want Arbitration

Havana, June 24.—The cigar manufacturers have announced that they are willing to submit the matter of the strike to an arbitration board of three to be appointed by the manufacturers, the strikers and Governor Magoon, but the president of the strikers' union says that he is opposed to arbitration and insists upon his original contention, the payment of wages in American currency.

Endorsement of Telegraphers' Strike

New York, June 24.—The local branch of the Commercial Telegraphers' union met Sunday and discussed the San Francisco strike. It was stated that the union had unanimously expressed confidence in the national officers and endorsed the action taken at San Francisco.

Men Drowned In Canals

Kiel, June 24.—Emperor William conducted divine service on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern yesterday. Afterwards he sailed the Meteor to a victory over the Hamburg, which gave up the race. In a half gale the Meteor covered the 33-knot course in 3:22:53.

Baltimore, June 24.—United States Senator Hale of Maine, who has been a patient at the Johns Hopkins hospital following a surgical operation performed upon him some time ago, left that institution yesterday for his home.

CAMPAIGN ON STAGE

How Ketcham Will Try to Regain the Esteem of Vermonters

IS RELEASED FROM PRISON

Fought Political Opponents and Won Divorce Suit While Behind Bars, Besides Writing a Play Giving Alleged True Story of Bank Wrecking

Middlebury, Vt., June 24.—Declaring his intention of going on the stage and appearing in the star part of a drama of his own production to right his alleged wrongs, John W. Ketcham, who has been serving a sentence of seven years for complicity in the wrecking of the Farmers' National bank of Vergennes, was released yesterday from the Addison county jail.

Ketcham occupied the position of teller in the bank, and assistant to the cashier, David H. Lewis, who, like Ketcham, was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, following the discovery of a shortage of about $50,000 in 1902. Ketcham has served five years and two months, the remainder of his sentence having been cancelled through general good behavior, particularly through his bravery in preventing the escape of fellow prisoners.

It has been said that in all the history of criminal affairs in Vermont there has never been a federal prisoner in whom so much public interest has centered as has been shown in the case of Ketcham. In spite of his incarceration he has managed to keep closely in touch with outside affairs. By mail, correspondence and by telephone, he has conducted undauntedly a campaign against political interests which, he asserts, were responsible for his downfall. He has busied himself with efforts to prove that his conviction was a miscarriage of justice.

In addition he has written a book, giving his version of affairs which brought about the failure of the bank and attacking prominent persons of the state, and he has also compiled and published a volume of laws relating to the duties of police officers, sheriffs and court officials of Vermont. The proceeds of these books he used to pay the cost of a divorce suit which he prosecuted successfully from his cell, and afterward to pay for the support and education of his young son.

Lately his activity has found expression in the writing of a play based on what he alleges to be the true story of the bank wrecking, and it is announced that next fall he will tour the state as the principal in this drama, his object being to rehabilitate himself, if possible, in public esteem, and to impress the people with the idea that he was made to suffer for the wrongdoing of others.

Ketcham was one of the younger men in Vermont politics and had served two terms in the state legislature. In December, 1898, he accepted a position in the Farmers' National bank, and on April 1, 1902, the doors of the institution were closed by order of the bank examiner. Lewis, who had been cashier for 14 years, and Ketcham were arrested and convicted. Lieutenant Governor Allen, who was vice president of the bank, was also arrested, but was subsequently absolved from blame.

The first part of Ketcham's sentence was served at the Chittenden county jail in Burlington, and it was while there that on two different occasions he prevented jail breaks. When three years of his sentence had expired an effort was made to secure a pardon on account of the bravery he had displayed on those occasions, but the move was unsuccessful. Upon leaving the Addison county jail yesterday, Ketcham went to the home of friends, with whom he will remain until his plans for his histrionic campaign are completed.

Portuguese Premier to Resign

Madrid, June 24.—Definite news from Portugal is of the most meagre character, owing to the strict censorship. The latest word from Lisbon seems to indicate that Premier Franco will resign. The movement against him has now spread over the whole country. The newspapers Paiz and Mundo have been suspended and several political clubs closed. Premier Franco's house is surrounded by a strong guard of police.

Kidnapped Boy Was Strangled

New Orleans, June 24.—Two miles in the interior of a big swamp near this city the headless body of Walter Lamana, an Italian, 7 years old, who was kidnapped and held for $6000 ransom two weeks ago, was found yesterday. He had been strangled to death, according to the confession of one of five Italians who are under arrest, charged with being accomplices to the murder.

CALLED ON PREMIER

The Slippery Albert Made Unexpected Appearance In Paris

HE IS SAID TO BE CONTRITE

Pleas In Behalf of Comrades Under Arrest Fall on Deaf Ears--Courage of Brave Southern Deputies Oozed When They Reached Home

Paris, June 24.—The most interesting event yesterday in connection with the winegrowers' revolt was the visit of Marcelin Albert, the leader of the disturbing element in the south of France, to Premier Clemenceau. The man for whom the police and troops vainly sought and have been scouring the country for a fortnight appeared without warning at the ministry of the interior. He wore the simple garb of a southern peasant. The cotton shirt, the silk handkerchief around his neck and the carpetbag in his hand aroused the suspicion of the corps of detectives now constantly guarding the premier. But when he had established his identity, Albert was admitted to the presence of Clemenceau.

A semi-official account of the interview says that the premier used extremely strong language, virtually reproaching his visitor with the responsibility of everything that has happened in the south—the refusal to pay taxes, the strike, the resignation of the municipal officials, and the bloodshed that has occurred.

Albert is reported as having been overcome with contrition, bursting into tears and asking the premier how he could make atonement, to which Clemenceau replied: "Give yourself up to the law and use your influence with your countrymen to return to the lawful ways."

Subsequently Albert declined to reveal anything that had occurred during his conference with the premier, declaring that he had given his word to Clemenceau not to do so. He said, however, that he was leaving immediately for the south, where he intended "to do his duty."

This leads to the presumption that an understanding between himself and Clemenceau was reached. It is believed that Albert pleaded the cause of ex-Mayor Ferroul of Narbonne and his comrades on the Argelliers committee who are under arrest, but upon this point Clemenceau remains obdurate. He authorized the statement that the government could not interfere with the courts.

The release of immunity from prosecution of those now under lock and key seems at this time to be the principal demand of the winegrowers upon the government. The power which Albert's comrades exercise, even from the inside of the prison, is evidenced from the fact that Prefect Leullier's friends were obliged to go to them to secure an order of release before he was surrendered by the mob who held him as a hostage.

Later details of the capture of Leullier show that soldiers who tried to protect him were forced to retreat before the fury of the mob. Leullier's clothes were literally torn from him and he was badly beaten.

The fear that Sunday would witness a renewal of the rioting in the affected districts was not realized. Although the populace in many places is still greatly excited, no incident of violence, except the stoning of the prefecture at Niems, was reported up to midnight.

The government believes that the backbone of the revolt is broken. Several fresh regiments from the north have arrived at the affected points, and in addition there is a heavy concentration of troops at Narbonne, Montpelier and other centres of disturbance. Many of the smaller towns are now occupied by the military.

Several deputies from the south, who hurried home Friday to aid in calming their constituents, received such a hostile reception that they were forced to return to Paris. Deputy Lafferre, who proudly announced in the chamber that he was going home to interpose his breast between the bayonets of the soldiers and his people, was driven out of town. Others were hissed and greeted with cries of "Traitors! To the gallows!"

Albert left for the south last evening and his departure was without incident.

Seventy Thousand Troops on Duty

Narbonne, June 24.—Dispatches describing Albert's interview with Clemenceau were read to the crowds in the different towns throughout the south and were received with cheers. The affair appears to have made a most marked impression. Fresh troops continue to arrive and are being distributed over the country. It is estimated that there are now more than 70,000 in the three departments.

Thousands of Violent Deaths

Pittsburg, June 24.—An official record demanded by the laws of the commonwealth shows that almost 50 percent of the deaths in Allegheny county are violent. Deaths from natural causes, suicides, murders and accidents met in the ordinary walks of life are not considered in this percentage attributed to the "industrial juggernaut." There was reported to the coroner last year 2660 deaths, 919 of which were the result of accidents in mills, mines or on railroads.

Stiness, son of ex-Chief Justice Stiness of the Rhode Island supreme court. It is not thought that the bride's mother will withhold the parental blessing nor that Judge Stiness, who is at present attending the peace conference at The Hague, will refuse to welcome his new daughter with open arms when he returns.

Redmond's Defiant Warning

Dublin, June 24.—John E. Redmond delivered an address at Wexford at the ceremony attending the unveiling of a memorial to Wexfordians who fell at the battle of New Ross. He said: "We tell England that we hate her rule as bitterly as did our forefathers when they shed their blood on this spot. We tell her that we are as much rebels to her rule today as our forefathers were in '98; that she can change that hatred only by granting freedom, and it will remain merely a question of expediency how and by what means we will strike at the power that holds our country in bondage."

Wedding Reception At Houghs Neck

Mr. and Ms. George A. Mulford who were married at Manchester, N. H., June 9, were given a wedding reception on Sunday at the cottage of the Clover Club on 29 Centre road, Houghs Neck. The marriage and reception was the outcome of a pretty romance that started in Brockton two years ago.

One evening that year Mr. Mulford appeared at Brockton at a moving picture show as soloist. One of the songs that he sang was "Tell me" In the audience that night was Miss Jennie A. Yeager, the pretty 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Yeager. She heard the song and immediately lost her heart, for it was a case of love at first sight.

Mutual friends saw that they were introduced. Then ensued a courtship that was carried on so quietly that even the most intimate friends of both parties were not aware that anything unusual was going on. June 9 Mr. Mulford journeyed to Brockton and met his lady love. Shortly after she gathered a few belongings and the pair slipped quietly away to Manchester where they were married. A letter to her parnts told what had taken place and the parental blessing followed.

Still their friends were kept in darkness until last week, when they were bidden to the reception on Sunday. There was a large gathering present, and the happy couple were showered with good wishes and many substantial tokens of friendship.

Mr. and Mrs. Mulford are passing the month at the Wild Rose cottage at Houghs Neck.

The natives r... quite a scare, and many ... Dewey admirers who had ri... "piece of change" on the game b... to "sit up" and "look wise."

Not until the eighth inning di... man reach third. The Deweys' ca... in for their half of the eighth and Goodwin the first man up was an easy out. Hall reached but should have been out on strikes, the umpire giving Patterson a raw deal. He stole second and was advanced to third on Cate's grounder to Duffy. With two men on bases a hit would do damage and the crowd rooted hard in an effort to rattle Patterson, but "Sid," was as cool as an Alaskan iceberg and burned them over faster then ever. Tate was tipped off to bunt and Hall was to work the squeeze play. Forbes and Patterson had a little chat just before the next ball was pitched and from the outcome of affairs they were "dead wise' to Mr. Hall's intention, for when he darted for the plate he found Forbes waiting to greet him. Finding his plans upset he made a hasty retreat back to sack No. 3 but too late however to prevent getting nipped late however to prevent getting the ball and by a gentle tap on the back reminded him that he was out.

While this act was going on Cate was on his way to second. Tate hit the next ball a wicked drive at Dunn, too fast to be fielded. It took a bad bound and caromed off Jimmie's shins and going high in the air dropped back of Duggan at short, and Cate scored. Lonergan closed the inning with a grounder to Patterson and was thrown out at first.

That one run proved to be the winning tally as Oswald, Duggan and Duffy went out in order in the ninth. The umpire gave the South Quincy's the worst of the descisions, a number of the fans showing their disapproval. He was especially off on balls and strikes.

Both Patterson and Cate pitched an excellent game, Tate being the only man to hit Patterson, and Birnie the only South Quincy player to find Cate. Lonergan in left field played a good game and robbed South Quincy of two hits, one of which would have brought in a run. The other features was the playing of Birnie, Stevens and Dunn, the catching of Forbes, and Goodwin the fielding of Field and the batting of Tate.

Bowdoins Lead.

The Bowdoins of this city journed to Mattapan on Saturday, and met the Grovelands. Previous to the game both teams were tied for the lead in the Boston Suburban League. The game seemed easily won by home team until the final inning when Bowdoins scored 4 times on some timely hitting by Ford, Michaels, Kelley, and Fallon. The features of the game was the batting of Fallon and Desmond, for Bowdoins and the batting of Ryan, J. Sullivan and Connelly for Grovelands; also the fielding of Lally and Fallon, the latter making a great catch of a difficult foul in the third inning.

It was reported in the Boston Globe of Sunday that the Bigelows were defeated by the Bigelow Juniors on Saturday. The Bigelows played no game Saturday, and the team that the Juniors defeated was a scrub team that had but one Bigelow player on it.

Excitement Over Broken Trolley

There was quite a little excitment in City Square shortly before nine o'clock Sunday night caused by the breaking of a trolley wire. When the wire broke it fell onto the fender of a heavily loaded Nantasket car. The heat immediately welded the wire to the fender and sent a shower of sparks and flames into the car. For a few moments there was considerable excitement as the car was filled with people. There was an immediate rush to get off of the car. One young woman claimed to have had her ankle sprained but refused to give her name. Another young lady had her dress burned somewhat. She also refused to give her name.

An excited young man ran to send in a fire alarm, but only opened the box and did not pull the hook. In the meantime employes of the street railway extinguished what little fire there was.

The welding of the wire to the fender completed the circuit, so that no power was lost on any of the lines and only held up the particular car where the accident happened. The break in the wire was repaired by the line gang.

—The cruiser Chester building at the Bath iron works, Maine will be launched June 29.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams, Tel. 279-3.

A race for the Cape cat boats of the Quincy Yacht club was held off the club house at Houghs Neck on Saturday afternoon, seven boats participating.

The wind was light from the east, and the course was one of eight miles. On the second round the Iris parted the jaws on her gaff, but kept in the race and finished twenty seconds ahead of the Arawak, but lost to her on time allowance by 29 seconds.

But for the accident the Iris would have been an easy winner. The new yachts did not show up as well in light air as was expected. The judges were John O. Hall, George D. Morse and Thomas L. Williams.

Midnight Fire Near the Hospital

The alarm from Box 24 at 12.50 this morning called the department to a lively fire in the house of James Moorhead on Curtis street. The family, who were in bed, were aroused by the dense smoke, and lost no time in getting out of the house.

The fire at that time was burning briskly, and when the department arrived, which it did promptly, the whole house seemed to be doomed. Several streams of water were thrown onto it and the flames were gradually subdued, although not before a damage of at least $1000 had been done.

The cause of the fire can be called an accidental one. It appears that the house had recently been moved to a new foundation to be enlarged. in order to support the chimney on the new foundation, until a proper support could be put in, a plank and piece of timber had been placed beneath it.

Monday evening, about 9 o'clock, a wood fire was built in the stove, and the sparks dropped down onto this supporting piece of plank. It took fire but smouldered so that no one was aware of it when the family retired.

Shortly before the fire was discovered the smouldering timber got a draft, and it was but a few minutes before a lively fire was in progress. Although it ran up through the new addition to the roof, the fire was prevented from entering the sleeping rooms of the house, although more or less damage was done by smoke and water.

Fifty New Cottages At Houghs Neck

The season at Houghs Neck is now in full swing, all the lunch rooms and catch penny enterprises are in full blast, and there are many visitors especially on Sundays when there is a crowd present.

Most of these come by trolley cars, although not a few come in carriages and automobiles. The latter two are universal in their kick over the condition of Sea street. Loads of coarse gravel have been dumped where there was a hole in the street, and the larger stones have become scattered all over the street. From the Adams farm to Palmer street the street is so bad that teams have made a new roadway along the grass north of the line of trees on the northerly side of the street.

Building at the beach this year has been unusually brisk, and upwards of fifty cottages have been erected this year.

Benjamin Johnson is building a large bungalow on Adams shore.

A. M. Lindscoy and family of Brockton are at the Merrimack cottage on Rogers street.

Mrs. Eliza O'Toole, one of the long residents of the beach, has opened the Idylwild on Bay View avenue as a boarding house.

Frank N. Flood, Jr., of Somerville is at the Colonial cottage on Littlefield street with his family.

William A. Rogers of Everett and family are summering at the Marjie cottage on Charles street.

J. E. Gundy and family of Roxbury are at the Marion cottage on Charles street.

T. N. Griffin of Dorchester is at the Oriole cottage on Centre road.

Quite a few of the Houghs Neckers saw John Ross in the parade in Boston on Monday and are complimenting him on the fine appearance he made in his red fez.

Henri Herman and family of Boston have taken the Lastella cottage on Centre road for the summer.

Tom Dwyer, the genial real estate agent, has finished the interior of his office in an attractive manner. New oak desks have been put in, and portieres have been hung over the interior doors. Paint has also been added for the finishing touch.

One of the popular resorts for the hundreds of young people at Houghs Neck is Brown's dance hall. The hall is cool and comfortable, and the music good.

STATE TAX

Total is Larger And Quincy's Assessment Takes a Jump

The State tax upon Quincy this year will be $31,320 which is $6,050 larger than last year. In other words it was $25,270 and this year it is near 25 per cent larger.

This does not include the Metropolitan assessments for parks, water, sewers, etc, which last year amounted to $82,513.96. The State tax and assessments now exceed $100,000 annually, and with the county tax amounts to about $150,000.

The State tax for Quincy is compared below with the other cities about Boston, and is larger than Woburn, Everett, Chelsea, Medford and Melrose:

	1907	1906.
Quincy,	$31,320	$25,270
Woburn,	12,560	12,145
Everett,	27,040	22,750
Chelsea,	30,920	26,740
Malden,	41,440	34,615
Medford,	25,320	22,680
Melrose,	18,000	16,275
Newton,	81,560	70,350
Salem,	37,960	33,320

The total State tax will be $4,000,000 which is $500,000 more than last year. The total expenditures autorized by the Legislature are $11,224,036.21, but there are receipts of $7,136,104.

Pretty Wedding At Chautauqua

Rev. Edward Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth went to Chautauqua last week where Mr. Anderson united in marriage his grandson, William Lawrence Anderson, only child of Dr. and Mrs. William G. Anderson of New Haven, Conn., and Miss Etelinde Sherwood, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sherwood of Chicago. The Buffalo Express says: The father of the bride, William H. Sherwood, is American's foremost pianist, the head of the Sherwood Music School of Chicago and of the music department of the Chautauqua summer school. Dr. Anderson, the father of the bridegroom, is one of the faculty of Yale University, and was, until the opening of the Yale summer school two years ago, at the head of the Chautauqua school of physical training. The bridegroom is associate director of athletics at the Yale summer school and holds the championship for intercollegiate gymnastics.

The wedding took place in Chautauqua church at 8.30 P. M., June 20, and was attended by 200 guests. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents on South avenue.

The bride's gown was of white liberty satin, made in princess style and trimmed with a panel of point d'Alencere lace. She wore a veil and carried a large spray bouquet of white sweet peas and maidenhair ferns.

The bridegroom will have charge of the athletics at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Preparatory school.

Mrs. Walsh and family of Quincy avenue are at their cottage on Island avenue, Houghs Neck.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Apropos of the reported disagreement between Chief Wiley of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, and Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, as to whether meat ought or ought not to be chewed thoroughly, news now comes from Yale that Horace Fletcher, the advocate of chewing meat and everything else has just submitted to the first of a series of endurance tests under Dr. Anderson director of the Yale gymnasium. The test was made on Prof. Fisher's new apparatus for measuring endurance, and sets a record for that machine which is double the best record hitherto made. Dr. Anderson states that Mr. Fletcher's endurance is really wonderful. Mr. Fletcher is in his fifty ninth year. All the other subjects tested are from fifteen to forty years younger.

Other tests, on chewers and non-chewers, are to follow. Prof. Fisher emphasizes the fact that he has never stated any opinion as to the advisability of chewing meat in particular, and has taken pains to confine himself strictly to facts, merely recording the results of actual experiments. He is not, as Dr. Wiley is reported to have said, a vegetarian; neither is Prof. Chittenden, Prof. Mendel or Dr. Anderson. No experiments have been made at Yale in the hybrid system of thorough mastication of cereals combined with the bolting of meat. It is up to the advocates of this system to show that those who practice it can surpass Mr. Fletcher in endurance. Dr. Wiley has repudiated the newspaper accounts of his comments on Prof. Fisher's experiments. He merely states that meat-eating animals bolt their food, and cereal-eating animals chew theirs thoroughly. But if we humans, who live on mixed diet, must chew our bread and bolt our ham, what are we to do with a ham sandwich?

CAMP LIFE IN CUBA

Bitter Complaints of Soldiers of Army of Occupation

HARDSHIPS OF THE SERVICE

Long Practice Marches Which Are Unnecessary--Exorbitant Prices Are Asked For All Supplies--Officers Support Representations of Men

Washington, June 25.—Officers returning from Cuba report that the enlisted men of the army of occupation complain bitterly of the hardships of the camp life, following as it has in many instances, long periods of practice marches, camp service, maneuvers, etc., in this country, and of the exorbitant prices which, because of the Cuban tariff, they have to pay for tobacco and other things which they are compelled to buy.

The men receive 20 percent additional pay, but they maintain that this far from equalizes their expenses. For instance, cigarets which can be bought for $1.25 a carton in Baltimore, cost the men in Cuba $3.50 a carton. Matches, which they can buy at the post store at Fort Myer at the rate of 12 boxes for 5 cents, cost them in Havana 5 cents a box.

An officer who accidentally left his pillow out of his bedding roll sought to replace it in Havana, and was asked $9 for a three-pound pillow made of chicken feathers, while he could have bought the same thing for $1 in this country, and numerous other instances might be cited.

For a time the men were permitted to buy their supplies from the commissary department, but because a few of them were detected selling such supplies in Havana, the privilege was revoked. The men claim that they should have this privilege again, and assert that it would go hard with any comrade who was caught endangering it. They even urge that a regulation forbidding such sale be issued, so that any man violating it could be court martialed.

The representations of the men are supported by the testimony of the officers, who submit that their men are not "mollycoddles," but are willing to take their turn at hard service when the necessity exists, but they say that the men, knowing they must expect hard service in Cuba and the Philippines, chafe under orders requiring them to make long practice marches when such are unnecessary, and to spend weeks drilling the militia in manauvers in the intervals between their periods of foreign service. The officers declare that if that sort of thing is not checked it will seriously discourage re-enlistments.

Wife Murderer Electrocuted

New York, June 25.—John Johnson, a wife murderer, was put to death in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison. Johnson murdered his wife, Catherine K., at their home in Yonkers, N. Y., two years ago, in the presence of their two young children. Albert T. Patrick, convicted for the murder of William M. Rice, took a deep interest in Johnson, when the two were confined together in the death house of Sing Sing prison and it was through advice given by him that Johnson, by appeals, was able to stave off death up to yesterday.

Police Want to Find Conductor

Hartford, June 25.—The local police have been asked to locate David C. Maroney, conductor of the passenger train which collided with the work train here Sunday night, killing eight men and injuring 40. Maroney has not been seen since a few minutes after the disaster Sunday night. He appeared at his home in a frenzied condition, told his wife about the wreck and then went out. Since that time his wife has not seen him.

Governor Wants Deadlock Broken

Albany, June 25.—Governor Hughes sent to the legislature last night a special message urging the passage of a constitutional apportionment before the final adjournment. This measure has been the cause of a deadlock in the legislature for some days. The general impression seems to be that an extra session is, despite the governor's urgent objection, probably inevitable.

Fatal Football Scrimmage

New York, June 25.—Matthew J. Burke died in Long Island City last evening of injuries received Saturday last in a football game. In a scrimmage he was struck over the kidneys and died of the resulting hemorrhage. He insisted that the blow was an accident and refused to give the name of the man with whom he came in contact.

Roosevelt Signs Dominican Treaty

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 25.—President Roosevelt has signed the Dominican treaty. The convention regulates customs matters between the United States and Santo Domingo. The signature of the president is understood to be the last step necessary to make the convention operative.

Express Companies' Big Deal

New York, June 25.—The American Express company will on July 1 take over all the local express business between this city and Chicago which now belongs to the United States Express company. This business, it is said, is worth about $15,000,000 a year.

LAW TOUCHES MERGER

Mellen Found t Out When He Had a Talk With Speaker Cole

Melrose, Mass., June 25.—Speaker Cole of the Massachusetts house of representatives was one of the guests at the Melrose high school alumni banquet last night and took occasion to make some remarks regarding the railroad merger legislation which is now being considered. Cole followed Henry M. Whitney, who addressed the alumni briefly, being obliged to leave early to fill another engagement in the city.

Referring apparently to Whitney's attitude on the merger question, Cole said: "Perhaps if I were strongly convinced of the right and wisdom of the movement I should not have questioned so seriously the methods by which this is being brought about." Cole added that he was glad to hear how people stood on the matter and glad that Whitney had come out in favor of the merger.

"Massachusetts has power to say something about foreign corporations," continued Cole, "and in this case she has said it decisively. Those who wish to bring this merger about had to evade the law. In a conversation last Friday with me President Mellen said that at that time he did not believe any law would touch the merger, but he has not only found out that it touched the merger, but also that it virtually drove him and his directors out of 11 other railroads."

Manifestoes Attack the Czar

St. Petersburg, June 25.—The Social Revolutionist and Group of Toil members of the late parliament, numbering 139 deputies, have issued manifestoes summoning the people to continue by force the struggle for land, liberty and popular representation. The documents are remarkable for the fact that the czar for the first time is attacked by name for breach of faith, the revolutionary proclamations having hitherto attributed all sins to the government on account of the lingering sentiment of loyalty to the czar among the peasant masses.

Roosevelt Asked to Investigate

Washington, June 25.—The Central Labor union of Washington last night sent a telegram to President Roosevelt requesting that he institute an investigation to determine if the telegraph companies have entered into a conspiracy in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. At the request of the American Federation of Labor similar action, it is said, will be taken by all the leading labor organizations in the United States.

A PRIVATE GRUDGE

Darrow Says It Was Orchard's Reason For Murder

THE DEFENSE OF HAYWOOD

Claim That Mineowners and Detectives Joined In Conspiracy to Wreck Federation of Miners' by Killing Its Leaders

Boise, Ida., June 25.—In an address that occupied two sessions of the district court yesterday, Clarence Darrow outlined to the jury the detailed defense of William D. Haywood to the charge that he murdered former Governor Steunenberg. In broad description, it is to be a denial of every material count in the testimony of Orchard, with a showing that Orchard killed Steunenberg because of a private grudge borne by the loss of a rich share in the Hercules mine, and explanations of the independent circumstances that tend to connect the co-defendants with Orchard's life and operations.

Haywood will take the stand to make personal denial of Orchard's accusations, Moyer may be called to testify solely to events and circumstances affecting the Western Federation of Miners, but Pettibone probably will not be a witness in this case. Darrow explained that Moyer and Pettibone must stand trial for this same crime, and declared that every lawyer knew the danger, whatever the circumstances, of exposing men awaiting trial under like circumstances.

Darrow denied the existence of the great conspiracy to murder, alleged by the state with Orchard's testimony as a basis; denied that the federation was anything but an earnest fighting labor organization with higher wages, shorter hours, tolerable working conditions, and the care, safety and education of its members, and their wives and children as its high and only motives; denied the intimacy with the three co-defendants that Orchard laid claim to; denied the several conferences and conversations that Orchard swore to; denied that Orchard had even committed many of the crimes he had boasted of, and promised to make proof of his contentions.

Darrow charged that agents of the Mineowners' association of Colorado and the Pinkerton detectives had joined hands in a conspiracy to discredit and destroy the Western Federation of Miners. Agents of the mineowners had, he asserted, committed many minor crimes to discredit the federation and he promised that the defense would show that it was a reasonable inference that they had engineered the Independence depot outrage as an "attempt" that had miscarried into a tragedy. He asserted that this trial was the culmination of the conspiracy to kill the organization by killing the leaders; that the organization and not "Bill" Haywood was on trial, and that Orchard, under the manipulation of Detective McPartland, was trying to kill Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone that he might save his own life.

Of the personal relations between Orchard and Pettibone, Darrow declared that anyone could make friends with Pettibone and that Pettibone had fed Orchard as he would "any other dog." As to their financial relations, Darrow said that when Orchard left Denver for Wyoming he gave Pettibone his money, trinkets and some papers for safe keeping. From time to time Pettibone forwarded part of the money to Orchard as he requested. Use of assumed names, counsel declared, was a common practice among the union miners of Colorado, made a stern necessity by the blacklisting of union miners who, he declared, had been abused, hounded, denied justice and driven from the state.

Darrow said the defense would probably not undertake a showing as to the unsigned letter received by Orchard at Caldwell jail, the letter that said "that" had been sent to "Jack" on Dec. 21, and which Orchard swore Pettibone wrote. At the close both sides will argue their respective constructions of it.

The defense will call its first witness today and promises, unless cross-examination is exceptionally long, to make all of its showing within seven or eight days.

HOW TO TELL IF YOU HAVE WORMS

THE REMEDY THAT QUICKLY EXPELS THEM

The common symptoms of worms in children and adults are:—Paleness of the face with occasional flushing; indigestion accompanied by an unnatural appetite at times; foul tongue and offensive breath; itching nose; vomiting; grinding of the teeth during sleep; swelling of the upper lip; hard swelled bowels; griping or colic pains; also convulsions and many other unaccountable nervous symptoms, which, if not checked in time, lead on to something more serious.

TOOK DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR AND GOT WELL

SOMERVILLE, ME.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—

"For more than three months one of my children had been troubled with spells of vomiting and symptoms of fever nearly every week, together with canker-sores about the nose and mouth. I obtained, about two weeks ago, two bottles of your Elixir, and before the first bottle was exhausted the sores were entirely healed, and no appearance of his vomiting or fever-spells has ever returned. I really believe that the lives of thousands of children suffering from worms or canker might be saved by a timely and judicious use of your Elixir." Yours truly,

J. L. HAMMETT.

This is only one of hundreds of such testimonials. This marvelous remedy has been made and sold by Dr. J. F. True & Co. for fifty-six years, and in all that time nothing but words of praise have been bestowed upon it. This is what Mr. Wing thinks of it.

AUBURN, ME.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—

"For the past seven years I have constantly kept a supply of your Elixir in my house, and it never failed to give prompt relief. It has been a great blessing to my children, and unsolicited I give you this tribute of gratitude, hoping the merits of your unrivaled family medicine may be widely known and appreciated."

Very respectfully yours,

CHAS. E. WING.

Even though worms may not be found present Dr. True's Elixir tones up the stomach and liver. Read what Dr. J. Haley, of Brunswick, thinks of it:

"It is a safe and effectual remedy. For worms it has no equal, and is an excellent remedy for canker of the mouth and throat."

KNOX'S TRUST TALK

How He Views the National Power of Regulation

QUOTES FROM ROOSEVELT

Men Who Demand the Impossible or Undesirable Serve as Allies of Enemies--Tells Yale Men That Constitution Needs Amendment

New Haven, June 25.—"The power of the federal government cannot be increased except by new grants of power through amendment of the Constitution. The efficiency, however, of the federal government will progressively increase through the application of existing federal power to the growing complexities of social and commercial conditions." United States Senator Knox said in his oration at the senior exercises in the law school at Yale university.

His subject was "The Development of the Federal Power to Regulate Commerce," and he spoke in part as follows:

"It is beside the question to urge the desirability and popularity of measures if congress has no power to enact them.

"I remember and am impressed by the words of President Roosevelt in his first message to congress that 'the men who demand the impossible or the undesirable serve as the allies of the forces with which they are nominally at war, for they hamper those who would endeavor to find out in rational fashion what the wrongs really are and to what extent and in what manner it is practicable to apply remedies.'

"The national power of regulation should only be invoked when necessity for regulation exists. Normally and honestly conducted commerce requires but little if any governmental regulation, and the failure by congress to regulate interstate commerce is equivalent to a legislative declaration that it shall be free.

"Abnormal condition in commercial intercourse caused by monopolies, preferential service, rebates and the like, destroy the normal operations of commerce and create the demand for federal regulation to restore the rule of freedom and equality.

"I concede that the national power to regulate interstate commerce carries with it the right to prohibit commerce in order to secure equality of commercial right, or to prevent restraint of or interference with commerce, but not to prohibit the shipment of the innocuous products of producers within a state who are pursuing a course sanctioned by the laws of the state and in no wise in itself interfering with interstate commerce.

"If prohibition of interstate trade is within the arbitrary power of congress, it might be exercised so as to exclude the products of particular states or sections of the country. Congress then might prohibit the shipment of cotton or wheat to promote the interests of wool or corn.

"There is no authority for any such proposition. The power of prohibition has never been sustained except as against articles noxious or dangerous in themselves. It is not possible to find even a suggestion that, in respect to natural products which are prime necessities, congress can prohibit commerce in them between the states in order to enforce its conception of what would be a wise police regulation of a state."

To Continue Movement Peacefully

Argelliers, France, June 25.—Marcellin Albert, the "redeemer," arrived here and was cheered by 12,000 persons who had gathered to meet him. He conferred with his colleagues and after a long discussion it was resolved that, in view of the unsatisfactory nature of the law passed and the vagueness of the promises made by M. Clemenceau, to continue the movement calmly and peacefully until full satisfaction has been attained. The resolution passed unanimously, Albert himself voting in favor of it.

Would Abolish Tipping System

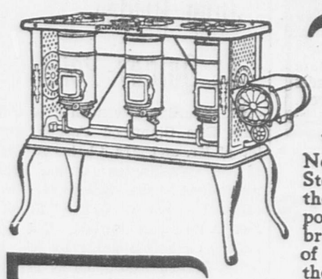

New York, June 25.—The first national convention of the International Society of Hotel and Restaurant Employes is in session in this city. One of the features of the convention will be the official denunciation of the tipping system which now exists throughout the world. The delegates will go on record as favoring its abolition, provided salaries be increased, but will make no immediate effort to put it into effect at once.

Plea For Holmes' Acquittal

Washington, June 25.—The government has concluded the presentation of its case against E. S. Holmes, Jr., known as "the cotton leak" case. The attorneys for Holmes entered upon an argument intended to secure the dismissal of the case on the ground that there is no law that applies to the offense of giving out departmental information. The district attorney will present the opposite view.

Suit Against Railroad Men

New York, June 25.—Suit has been commenced in the United States circuit court by Henry M. Walker of New Jersey against Edward H. Harriman and other defendants, alleging breach of contract and conspiracy to prevent the construction of the Portland, Nehalim and Tillamook railway in Oregon. Walker asks for $500,000 damages.

EXPRESS STRUCK SWITCHER

Two Persons May Die as a Result of Collision of Trains

Springfield, Mass., June 25.—A New York-Boston express train crashed into a switching engine in the freight yard of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad yesterday afternoon and although the train did not leave the rails its sudden stopping broke many of the windows in the cars, seriously, if not fatally injured two persons, while a score of others escaped with cuts and bruises.

The passenger train was on time and as it approached the foot of Union street a switching engine started to cross the main line track, but was overtaken by the rapidly approaching express.

The engine crews of both the switcher and express saved themselves by jumping, and the collision not only brought the express to a standstill, but hurled the tender of the switcher off the track.

The officials of the road began an investigation at once to ascertain how the switcher started for the main line without the usual protecting signals being set.

Salisbury, Mass., June 25.—"No spooning in the bright moonlight," say the police, and to prove that they meant it they last night, with the assistance of officers of the Newburyport police force, patrolled the beach and warned all couples to sit at least six inches from each other. About 300 couples were warned. The police state that they are going to enforce this new order and after giving sufficient warning will commence to make arrests.

They are charged with the robbery of the hardware store of G. H. Jaques, who reported to the police that his store had been entered and about $75 worth of revolvers, ammunition and hardware taken. Entrance was gained through a rear door which had been forced with an iron bar.

Pure White Lead is the Natural Paint Pigment

Numerous compounds are being offered to take the place of white lead as a paint, but no real substitute for it has yet been found. Pure White Lead has a peculiar property of amalgamating with the wood upon which it is used—added to this it has an elasticity which permits the paint to follow the natural expansion and contraction of the wood. Pure White Lead alone fulfills all the requirements of the ideal paint.

Salem
Pure White Lead

is White Lead with its full natural tenacity and elasticity unimpaired by adulterants. Every keg of it bears the Dutch Boy trade mark, which is a positive guarantee of absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

All lead packed in 1907 bears this mark.

Child Perhaps Buried Alive

Westchester, Pa., June 25.—Irwin Lewis, stepfather of Mary Newlin, aged 5 years, whose body was found buried in a pit in the barnyard at her home near Avondale, was committed to prison, following an inquest into the case, on a formal charge of murder. Lewis made a partial confession to the district attorney in which he said the child fell from a wagon shed and was killed. He feared he might be accused of killing her and he buried the body in the pit in the barnyard. The condition of the body when found and the testimony of the coroner's physician leave little room for doubt, according to the district attorney, that the child was buried alive.

Conditions were ideal Monday evening for the moonlight sail of the Wollaston Yacht Club, and about 200 ladies and gentlemen were glad to avail themselves of the opportunity to escape from the heated land. The moon was full and the sky nearly clear; a good breeze was blowing from the southwest; there were plenty of large yachts to take out parties, and all enjoyed a delightful sail.

Among the boats to take out guests of the club were Commodore Sawyer's Eleanor with Commodore Chase and party; Capt. Gross' Marguerite, Capt. Robbins' Harold, Vice Commodore Dawes' Stranger, Capt Fenno's Brant, Capt. Stebbins Shiela, Capt. Thomas' Whisper the launch Esther and others.

Returning to the clubhouse before 10 o'clock dancing was enjoyed to Loud's music.

Taken to Hospital.

Monday noon, a young German woman was seized with convulsions on the 1.27 train from Boston. When the train arrived in Quincy she was taken off and carried into the depot where she was attended by Dr. Garey. While the doctor was administering to her wants the police ambulance was called and she was removed to the City Hospital. From what could be gathered from the girl she had been employed as a domestic in East Weymouth. Recently she had undergone an operation in the Massachusetts General hospital and since then she had on several times been seized with convulsions as on Monday.

Heavier Fine Is Suggested

Editor of the Ledger:

I see by your esteemed paper this afternoon that a little girl in Wollaston was assaulted the other day by a Greek pedler, for the reason that her mother refused to buy his fruit; and that he was fined twenty dollars for the offence.

Presumably the above amount is the maximum fine that can be imposed for an assault of this kind; if so I suggest that our members of the Legislature secure the passage of legislation making an assault on a little girl punishable by as large a fine as is imposed for the illegal selling of liquor. The former offence is just as serious as the latter.

Yours truly,
Householder.

Wollaston, June 24, 1907.

Changes in the Merrymount Team

A shift in the Merrymount ball team will be made for the next game on Saturday. Atkins the former Merymount short stop will be back in the game, and Doyle will be in centre field. Newton Y. M. C. A. will be the antogonists in this contest.

A note of interest to Quincy and Wollaston fans is the association with the new Merrymounts of Charlie Ganzel, the ex-Boston catcher, whose services in supervising and coaching the men will be greatly appreciated. The Merrymount management also takes this opportunity to thank the city for the funds given to improve the infield positions. The batting order for Merrymount this Saturday will be:—Hoxie, 2b., Thayer, l. f., Howe, 1 b., Nichols, 3 b., Leach, c., Doyle, c f., Atkins, s s., Gram, p., Loud, r f. ,

Let everybody help the boys to victory. The support of any ball team depends upon the attendance at the games. A good team means a good team. A good team means fast ball. Fast ball commands strong visiting teams.

Rheumatism Badly Cripples a Baldwinsville Farmer.

URIC-O QUICKLY CURED HIM.

Treated Two Years with a High-Priced Physician with No Success.

Mr. Frank Howe, a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren, says: "I visited the best Physician in this country, who treated me for about two years for rheumatism. I spent in that time several hundred dollars and seemed to grow worse instead of better each day. Being on crutches and forced to drive to the train and hobbling to the doctor's office became very discouraging, let alone the sleepless nights and fearful hours of pain. Being advised by a friend I purchased Smith's Uric-O prescription, took it home and used it that day as directed.

"Those fearful sciatic pains left me, my blood seemed to let loose and flow freely, I felt different and knew the next morning I had found a cure, as I slept and rested well all night, something I had not done before in two years. I used in all six bottles of Uric-O and have never felt a return of the disease, had no use for crutches or cane since the first day's treatment.

I have since recommended Uric-O to hundreds of friends and acquaintances and in every instance it gave remarkable relief. To every person who suffers from Rheumatism I say take Uric-O at once and your suffering will soon end.

FRANK HOWE, Baldwinsville, N. Y.

Anyone who doubts Mr. Howe's experience is invited to write him for further details.

The manufacturers have so much confidence in the remedy that they will gladly give a large 75 cent bottle of Uric-O free to all Rheumatics who have never used it and are looking for a permanent, lasting cure for this most distressing disease. Address for free trial, Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

Uric-o is sold and recommended in Quincy by E. J. Murphy.

BRILLIANT WEDDING

Tompson---Read Nuptials at Atlantic a Society Event

Tuesday evening a full moon in its fullest magnitude smiled down on the wedding of Miss Mabel Williams Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Read of 257 Squantum street, and Mr. Fred Harris Tompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville A. Tompson of Cambridge. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride by Rev. Frank W. Pratt, of the Draper Memorial church of Hopedale, an old family friend who has known the bride since babyhood.

Little Miss Katherine M. Goodell of Wellesley, the three-year-old flower girl, was dressed in an airy white muslin and preceded the bridal procession with her sacred burden of the wedding rings, that ought to bring happiness and prosperity when tendered by such a dainty mite.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mildred Tompson, sister of the groom, and Miss Margaret Read, sister of the bride, followed the flower girl. Miss Mildred wore a gown of blue silk muslin, lace trimmed and Miss Margaret was dressed in pink silk muslin with lace trimmings. Both little girls were very much at home in their charming office and carried pink and white sweet peas that were scarcely less fair than their own faces.

Following the bridesmaids, came the bride and her father. Miss Read wore a princess gown of white crepe de chine, elaborately trimmed with silk applique. It was cut en train, which the bride prettily carried off with her graceful figure. Miss Read wore a veil which is a family heirloom and was worn by her mother on her wedding night. Also white silk hose, which were knit by her grandmother years ago and have been worn in the family on these occasions, Miss Read was privileged to wear. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and wore around her neck the groom's gift, a necklace of white sapphire and beroque pearls.

The bride presented her bridemaids with gold breast pins set with diamonds and the groom gave to his ushers pretty scarf pins. The ushers were: Mr. Harry Tompson of Boston, Mr. Ralph Read of Atlantic, Mr. Clifford Pierce of Lexington, and Mr. Ernest Moore of Cambridge.

The wedding ceremony was followed by a large reception. The house was trimmed by Derringer, of Wollaston, and was made beautiful with colorings in the flowers of white and pink against a profuse background of potted plants and green palms. During the reception a ladies' three piece orchestra played from a bower out on the piazza, where cosy-corners were fitted up luxuriantly under the strings of red, white and blue electric lights that were suspended from the railings and carried out to the large tent, where Hendrie catered.

Over this tent was a deer's head, and its eyes were electric, so that they twinkled and blazed on the guests who crowded thither for refreshment.

Over the entrance gate, was a large wheel, that changed color as it revolved, and this, added to the sumptuous electric display on the plazza, together with the music that could be heard from the street, drew a host of spectators to the scene, who watched the spectacle with an interest almost equal to those inside.

Miss Read made the prettiest of brides, and was showered with the good wishes of her friends, who expressed themselves in the display of beautiful gifts that were exhibited up stairs.

The young couple will go to New Hampshire on their honeymoon, and when they return will keep house at No. 22 Norton street, Dorchester. Where they will be at home Fridays in October.

Guests were present from Boston, Cambridge, Holyoke, South Deerfield, Dedham, Providence, Somerville, Hopedale and Milford.

The wedding was one of the most brilliant that Atlantic has ever had and will be a pleasant memory for those who attended for many years.

Gallagher---Bates At Wollaston

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freeman Bates, Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, was in pretty array of bay, peonies and pink sweet peas, on Monday evening, for the wedding of their daughter, Carolyn Alden Bates, and Mr. William Withington Gallagher of Braintree son of Dr. William Gallagher, of Thayer academy.

The ceremony was solemnized at half past seven, the groom's father officiating, the bride being given in marriage by her father.

Miss Marican Hall Bates of Toronto, Canada, was maid of honor, and the best man was Rollin Gallagher, brother of the groom. The ushers were Herbert Harper Albee of Wollaston and Cranston Swift Thayer of Hopedale. Mr. Herbert H. Albee, brother-in-law of the bride, at the piano, played Lohengrin's wedding march.

The bride was altogether charming in white messaline trimmed with baby Irish lace. The veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. In pretty contrast was the maid of honor in blue voile trimmed with baby Irish lace and carrying a bouquet of whit sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a reception was held from eight until ten o'clock, after which the young people left for Cape Breton where they are to spend five weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will be at home to their friends after October first at their home on Maple street, Braintree. Mr. Gallagher is a teacher at Thayer Academy.

Before signing the Boston, Quincy and Fall River bicycle railway bill on Tuesday, Gov. Guild sent for the inventor of the bicycle railway, E. Moody Boynton of West Newbury. The governor assured Mr. Boynton that he had given the subject especial investigation, and regarded the occasion of signing the bill as one of particular importance adding: "I do not believe, Mr. Boynton, that your brave battle for 15 years was for money but for humanity and civilization, and if you shall secure the building of this road I believe it will save thousands of lives and bring in a new era in transportation of benefit to all people for all time."

After receiving Mr. Harper's resignation the following testimonial was adopted by a unanimous vote:

It is with deep regret that we accept the resignation of Mr. Charles F. Harper, who since May 1899, has so faithfully and efficiently served the City of Quincy as head master of its High school.

Mr. Harper came to Quincy with an enviable reputation and he has fully justified it during the time he has been with us.

In the organization and administration of the school during a period of phenomenal growth and under the most difficult conditions he has shown unusual energy and executive ability. From the first he has had the hearty co-operation of his teachers the respect of his pupils and the confidence of the community.

He has proved himself a man of pleasing personality, of even temper and of sterling character. His influence as a man and as a citizen has always been right and wholesome. He has worked unsparingly for the upbuilding of his school and for the welfare of the young people under his charge.

Presentation At High School

Charles F. Harper, the retiring master of the High school, was completely surprised by his pupils today, the last day of school, when he was presented a large picture of a scene in Holland, richly framed in gilt. The teachers also presented to Mr. Harper a beautiful electric table lamp.

Miss Madeleine Fish, one of the retiring teachers at the High school, was today presented by the pupils with a cut glass vase. The teachers also presented her a bunch of pinks.

The High school hall has been prettily decorated by the members of the Junior class for the graduation this evening, at 8 o'clock. Reserved seats will be held only until 7.55. The speakers of the evening will be:

The name of William Almquist O'Brien should have appeared on the printed program for tonight as one of the graduates, but was accidently omitted.

The High school programs for the graduation exercises tonight request the ladies to remove their hats. Sensible ladies will leave their hats at home and not have the discomfort of holding them this hot weather.

Noon Alarm From South Quincy

The alarm from Box 39 at 12.26 this noon was for a slight fire in a double house at 66 Penn street, owned by George McFarland and occupied by Mr. Moore and Thomas Brandio.

The fire started in the side occupied by Mr. Brandio, and was evidently caused by sparks coming through a chimney flue on to a bed that was close to the chimney.

The fire was confined to the bed although the woodwork about the chimney was scorched somewhat. It was extinguished with a chemical stream at a loss that will not exceed $15.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Dog days were not expected until July 26, but suddenly our summer has become a month ahead of time. Who said this would be a year without a summer?

It was warmer yesterday in Quincy than in New Orleans, Jacksonville, Savannah or Atlanta; in fact Boston's maximum temperature was above all the large centers reporting. At St. Johns, N. B., it was but 68.

Friday, June 28, will be the 62d anniversary of the first trip on the Old Colony railroad, now that division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. which runs through Quincy. Several in the city remember well the opening of the railroad.

Nothing but Governor Guild's signature is lacking to make the savings bank insurance department bill a law. If, as generally expected, the Governor signs the bill, the next step will be the appointment by him of a board of trustees, composed of trustees of savings banks, who are to serve without compensation. They will have control of the general insurance guaranty fund provided for in the bill, and, with the approval of the Governor and his Council, will appoint a state actuary and a state medical director. The bill further provides that no license shall be issued to any savings and insurance bank before November 1. That gives ample time for the organization of the state actuarial and medical departments.

HAD NO OPPOSITION

Voice Vote on Engrossment of Cole Anti-Merger Bill

A NEW SECTION IS ADDED

Provides That Act Shall Take Effect Upon Its Passage--Many Think It Unconstitutional and Fate of the Measure In the Senate Is Uncertain

Boston, June 26.—The Massachusetts house of representatives, on a voice vote, unanimously passed to be engrossed the bill (House No. 1574) reported unanimously by the committee on railroads, to restrain the consolidation of railroad corporations, more commonly known as the "Cole anti-merger bill."

This was a victory for Speaker Cole, who has taken charge of the measure on the floor of the lower branch. All the amendments which he opposed were rejected, and those that he favored were adopted. On one, that of Mr. White of Brookline, to add a new section providing that the bill shall take effect upon its passage, he was noncommittal. Just before the call of the roll on that amendment the speaker stated that, although he had said the amendment was acceptable to him, his attention had been called to the fact that, where a penalty was attached, it was the policy to have 30 days pass before the law takes effect.

By a vote of 125 yeas to 89 nays on a rollcall the amendment was adopted. The speaker did not vote. The action of the house on the White amendment shows its general temper to be somewhat anti-New Haven in this matter, for the members argued that 30 days would be ample time for that company to "turn the trick."

Debate was closed by Speaker Cole. Two days' debate had failed, he said, to assail the main point of the bill, namely, a stay of proceedings in the attempt of the New Haven to secure control of another corporation against the laws of the state. It is not possible to say by law what stock a man may hold, but in the case of public service corporations the laws may forbid voting on that stock against the policy of the commonwealth. As to the proposed referendum and the allegation that the railroads would buy the people's representatives, the speaker denied such an indictment of the people.

It is impossible to tell what the fate of the bill will be in the senate. Many lawyers, both in and out of that body, and some other parliamentarians are strongly of the opinion that the White amendment, making the act take effect upon its passage, is unconstitutional, inasmuch as acts containing a penalty usually take effect 30 days after their passage. So it is possible that the senate may strike out that provision and return the bill to the house for concurrence. If house and senate both stand to their guns it means the failure of all legislation.

The chances are, however, that the house would recede rather than have all legislation fail. The senate is likely to accept the Dean amendment that nothing in the act shall be construed as ratifying any acquisition which the New Haven or its friends have already made.

Jamestown Show Changes

Norfolk, June 26.—Following a protracted, stormy session, the directors of the Jamestown Exposition company last night announced that the committee on retrenchment had recommended that the board of governors and the board of directors be abolished, that the company's sight note be floated for $100,000 to meet the immediate necessities of the financial situation pending the final floating of the bond issue, and that the various departments of the tercentennial be centralized under four heads.

Japan Hobnobbing With Germany

Kiel, June 26.—The presence of two Japanese warships, the Japanese minister and several members of the Berlin legation here is regarded as having a distinctly political character, possibly as demonstration of friendship in preparation for making proposals to Germany for an agreement concerning the Far East similar to that recently arranged between Japan and France.

May Fight Law Later On

Chicago, June 26.—Presidents of Illinois railroads have agreed that there shall be no immediate contest of the 2-cent rate law, which becomes effective July 1. The plan of the railroad officials is to put the rate into effect and later, should passenger earnings show a deficit, to go into court in an effort to have the rate law proved confiscatory.

Ready For Official Trial

Boston, June 26.—The submarines Octopus and Cuttlefish, which recently did so well in deep sea submergence tests, have sailed for Newport, R. I., where they will be officially tried by the government on July 8. Two other submarines, the Tarantula and Viper, will leave the Fore River shipyards for Newport in about three weeks.

ATTITUDE OF KNOX

Shies at "Roosevelt Type" Suggested by Pennsylvania Convention

Washington, June 26.—By his supporters in Washington it is announced that Senator Knox sounded in his Yale speech the keynote of his campaign for the presidency—opposition to centralization and a restoration of state rights. When the senator received in advance a copy of the endorsement of his candidacy that was to be adopted by the Pennsylvania convention he is said to have edited out one phrase which hailed him as a "Roosevelt type of statesman."

It is said that the senator explained he was willing that the convention should endorse the administration and its policies, but he was opposed to being paraded before the country as "of the Roosevelt school." The convention did as he wished. In the light of his speech at Yale this incident is recalled in Washington and the significance attached to it at the time is thought to be entirely warranted.

It is clear that the Knox boom in the east is to have strong support. It is in the east that federal regulation has come in for the greatest amount of criticism. Furthermore it is said that Senators Foraker and Dick have been making overtures to the Knox managers and given them to understand that they are entirely friendly to the aspirations of the Pennsylvanian. New England conservatives are also expected to rally to the support of Senator Knox, and his friends here believe the senator was wise in his choice of Yale as the place for firing the opening gun of his campaign.

"Apostle's" Star Evidently Setting

Argelliers, France, June 26.—S. M. Albert, the leader of the winegrowers' movement, appears to have suffered considerable diminution in influence. His speech before a big meeting of citizens, in which he described his interview with Premier Clemenceau at Paris, sounded curiously like a defense. After a stormy discussion, during which Albert was savagely attacked the delegates decided to continue their struggle with unabated vigor. It is generally agreed that the "apostle" has no alternative now but to surrender as soon as possible.

Japan Chafes at China's Delay

Mukden, June 26.—Without waiting for an announcement of the policy of the new Manchurian administration Japan has begun a program apparently directed toward forcing action by China. It is reported that the Pekin government already has been asked to reopen negotiations toward reaching an agreement in the timber dispute. All Manchurian industries on the Yalu river are in a state of suspense on this account.

Roosevelt and Taft Confer

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 26.—Secretary Taft spent four hours with President Roosevelt yesterday and said, as he returned to the Yale commencement, that a number of important matters relative to Cuba, Panama and the Philippines had been concluded. The public announcement relative to these transactions, he said, would come when the appropriate orders were issued on his return to Washington.

Judge a Victim of Drink

San Francisco, June 26.—Overcome with grief and humiliation by the action of the Bar association in recommending that he be impeached for gross intemperance if he did not immediately resign, Superior Judge Hebbard tried to take his life in his chambers. He was saved from death after he had pressed the barrel of a revolver against his temple by a reporter, who took away the weapon.

Seaman Wanted For Robbery

Newport, R. I., June 26.—Requisition papers for E. E. Platt, a seaman apprentice at the naval training station, were brought here by an officer of Adams county, Ohio. It is alleged that Platt was one of three men implicated in a holdup and robbery at West Newton, O. Platt is ill at the naval hospital, and the officer will be compelled to wait for his recovery before removing him to Ohio.

Strife In Central America

Washington, June 26.—The possibility of serious trouble in Central America, growing out of the disturbed conditions existing there incidental to the alleged ambition of President Zelaya to form a union of Central American states, has caused the administration to dispatch cruiser Milwaukee to La Union, San Salvador. Gunboat Yorktown is now at Acjutla.

Protest Against Bank Merger

New York, June 26.—Bainbridge Colby, former confidential counsel to the Equitable Life Assurance society, obtained from Justice McCall in the supreme court an order to show cause why the proposed merger of the Equitable Trust Company of New York and the Mercantile Trust company should not be permanently enjoined. The order is returnable June 28.

Shot Himself In Cemetery

Stamford Conn., June 26.—A young man who says he is Paul Pops of Boston arrived in Stamford at noon yesterday and went to Woodland cemetery, where he fired shots from a 38-calibre revolver into his head.

ORCHARD'S DENIAL

Did Not Threaten to Kill Steunenberg Because of Grudge

WITNESSES SAY HE LIES

Testimony Showing That Orchard Had Various Conferences With Detectives of Mineowners' Association and Cripple Creek Railway

Boise, Ida., June 26.—The first direct testimony in defense of William D. Haywood was offered yesterday. It was chiefly directed toward showing that Harry Orchard, blaming Frank Steunenberg for the loss of his interest in the Hercules mine, had threatened to have revenge by killing him, and that the conduct of Orchard and K. C. Sterling, the detective for the Mineowners' association, both before the Independence explosion, when they were frequently seen together, and afterwards, when Sterling called off a bloodhound that was following Orchard's trail, justified the inference that the mineowners inspired the crime.

The calling of the first witness for the defense was preceded by a further examination of Orchard to permit the defense to complete its formal impeaching questions. These were nearly all in connection with the claim that Orchard killed Steunenberg because of an alleged grudge growing out of the sale of his interest in the Hercules mine. Orchard again denied that he ever threatened to kill Steunenberg because of the Hercules mine and again asserted that he sold his interest in the mine two years before the trouble that drove him out of northern Idaho.

Two witnesses called later in the day swore that Orchard did threaten to kill Steunenberg because of the Hercules matter and the defense has prepared the way for such testimony from a dozen more witnesses.

I. L. McGee, a mining broker of the Coeur d'Alenes, another impeaching witness, swore that Orchard told him in 1904, at Wallace, that he was a "spotter" for a detective agency. Orchard denied this conversation; denied that he was in Idaho at any time in 1904.

Several witnesses, principally women who kept lodging houses at Cripple Creek, located Orchard at various conferences with Sterling prior to the Independence explosion, and there was a further showing as to meetings between Orchard and D. C. Scott, the detective for the Florence and Cripple Creek railway.

Another witness told of the effort to locate the men guilty of the Independence station outrage by starting a bloodhound from the chair rung used in pulling off the mine explosion. He said the dog took the road to Colorado Springs, the one over which Orchard fled in the night, and that when he reported to Sterling he got orders to call the dog off. Sterling said he knew who blew up the station, and later said that Steve Adams had done so.

The state fought the admission of the bloodhound story and also the admission of evidence covering general features of the Colorado labor law, but in both instances the court ruled with the defense

Want Grievances Heard

New York, June 26.—The executive committee of the Commercial Telegraphers' union have suggested to General Manager Nally of the Postal Telegraph company that the grievances of the operators be considered by representatives of the company. Nally is taken to task for statements purporting to have been made by him to the effect that the strike in San Francisco was called in violation of the recent peace agreement between the telegraph companies and the union.

Object to Tariff Concessions

Hammondsport, N. Y., June 26.—The American Wine Growers' association, in session here, adopted resolutions protesting against tariff concessions that would expose the industry in this country to increased competition from foreign wine producers. The adoption of the resolutions followed a discussion of the new German tariff concessions and the proposed French tariff concessions.

Miss Loving Tells Her Story on the Witness Stand

HAD TWO DRINKS OF WHISKY

Made Her Feel as Though She Had Been Drugged--Told Her Father, Who Immediately Sought Revenge Under the "Unwritten Law"

Houston, Va., June 26.—Between stifling sobs and with tears streaming from her eyes, Miss Elizabeth Loving, who has occupied the center of the stage in the trial of her father, Judge W. G. Loving, for the murder of Theodore Estes, told on the witness stand here the story of the alleged ruin by the young man whom her parent shot down.

The recital was probably the most dramatic ever heard in a Virginia court of justice. It was the same story she said she told to her father on the morning of the tragedy, and which culminated in his hunting down and slaying the man whom she charged with perpetrating the deed.

Estes, she said, had given her a drink of whiskey from a flask he had in his pocket while they were out buggy riding on the afternoon prior to the killing. After taking the drink she declared that she immediately began to feel dizzy and her head "spinned around" as if she had been given some powerful drug. In this condition and despite her protests, she declared that her escort drove her over an unfrequented road and despite her screams outraged her.

Exhausted by the struggle and her mental faculties rendered incapable from the stimulant; the witness declared that she recalled nothing more until she regained her senses while in bed late that night at the home of County Clerk Kidd, where she had been visiting Miss Kidd.

She testified that on the following morning, when her father asked for the cause of her being brought to the home of Kidd in an unconscious condition, she related to him on bended knee the same statement she made in court. It was this recital, declared the defense, which so affected the mind of Loving that it impelled him to commit a crime which, according to his statement, could have been prevented by no power "except God Almighty."

Whether the story told by the 19-year-old girl can be torn to pieces and disproved by the prosecution remains to be seen, and on the disproving of this story hangs the fate of the defendant. They claim that it can be shown that the outrage laid at the door of the man whose lips are sealed forever was impossible. The rebuttal evidence by the prosecution will be probably the most important, though not the most sensational feature, of the case. How much of the evidence they already have that can be introduced is yet to be determined and a legal battle on the point of admissibility will be waged.

Miss Loving admitted that she had taken two drinks with young Estes during the drive, the first one being while at Estes' store. She was asked about other occasions when it is charged that she drank whiskey, but the prosecution objected on the ground that it had no bearing on the case. The defense waived the questions for the present, but may insist upon similar ones later in the trial.

Dr. Tunstall of Lovingston, who saw Loving before and after the killing, testified that he thought Loving committed the crime while insane. Tunstall based his theory that Loving was insane practically on the fact that he failed to speak to him in passing before the killing and afterwards that Loving's head "hung low and he was pale," and also on his personal knowledge of Loving, who, he said, went on frequent debauches, ending in delirium tremens. Loving, he thought, was deranged for over an hour and a half, but in applying for bail he appeared sane and capable of conducting his own case.

Fighting House of Lords

London, June 26.—The house of commons occupied practically the whole sitting in debating the government's motion to curtail the powers of the house of lords, and the amendment, moved on behalf of the labor party, in favor of the total abolition of that house. The debate left the impression that the government was fully determined in its campaign against the house of lords. No division has been taken as yet.

Hughes Will Call Extra Session

Albany, June 26.—Governor Hughes' appeal to the legislature to settle the apportionment tangle seems definitely to have failed. The certainty of an extra session is therefore conceded. The governor is expected to call an extra session for some time early in July, and the chances of a long continuation of the deadlock at that time are fair.

Peace Delegates Get Documents

The Hague, June 26.—The official documents of the peace conference were distributed last night in large envelopes under seal of the severest secrecy to 250 members of the delegations, besides the secretaries. The documents contain the text of some of the propositions presented to the conference.

REAL DOG DAY WEATHER

The Cause of Much Suffering In Northern New England

Boston, June 26.—Death and extreme discomfort throughout Massachusetts and northern New England attended the eighth day of the present severe hot wave. Yesterday was not the hottest of the season, but the most uncomfortable, with the humidity at 87, 17 degrees above normal.

The river valleys of New Hampshire and southwestern Maine received temporary relief from the oppressiveness last night by severe thunderstorms which, however, brought death and destruction in their track.

At least two deaths and probably another fatality, with about two score of prostrations, were charged to the weather. Edward S. Hathaway fell a victim to the heat in Boston. In Berwick, Me., Mrs. Herbert W. Johnson was struck by lightning and instantly killed, while Henry Charette of Somersworth, N. H., was hurled from his wagon seat by a lightning bolt and physicians say his chances for recovery are slight.

Boston had the unenviable distinction of being the hottest place on Uncle Sam's weather map, with a temperature of 91. Twenty-five prostrations occurred in this city.

Lightning struck two transformers of the Rockingham Light and Power company at Portsmouth, N. H., and tied up 100 miles of street railway supplied with power by this company. One street car was struck at Rye beach, but no one was injured.

Six houses were struck by lightning at Manchester, N. H., and three were set afire, causing a loss of about $15,000. The lightning affected two children in Manchester, although not seriously.

Receiver Will Pay Out $100,000

Boston, June 26.—Claimants of about $100,000 against the supreme council, American Legion of Honor, are entitled to be paid out of the funds in the hands of Receiver Wyman by a decision sent down by the full bench of the supreme court. There are about 30 claimants who had accepted $2000 each on the death benefit claims they had against the order, but asserted they were legally entitled to $5000 each, which the order originally promised to pay on the death of a member. The receiver has sufficient on hand to pay amounts due the claimants.

Train Struck Auto on Crossing

Franklin, Mass., June 26.—Benjamin F. Lord, E. J. Boyle and T. F. Boyle were taking a pleasure trip in an automobile hired in Boston. The chauffeur was W. F. Roust. At a railroad crossing here the party tried to cross the track ahead of a passenger train. Before the automobile could clear the rails it was struck by the locomotive. Lord was instantly killed and the others were slightly hurt.

Probably Fatally Stabbed

Bristol, Conn., June 26.—John Lash was probably fatally stabbed and Carlo Canto is under arrest, charged with the stabbing. It is alleged that Canto, on returning to his home last night, found Lash there with his wife, and that the assault immediately followed. Lash has a nine-inch gash in the abdomen, which also cut the intestines, and has another slash over the right eye.

Stricken Down After Dancing

Plymouth, Mass., June 26.—Smiling and bowing to his fiancee, Miss Jennie Graves, as they finished a waltz at the weekly "pop" concert given in the Casino last night, Charles E. Bradford, 45 years old, walked slowly over to a seat on the side of the hall, threw up his hands and sank to the floor dead. Death was caused by heart failure, superinduced by the heat.

Mrs. Ball's Case Put Over

Boston, June 26.—Mrs. Edith Ball, the opera singer, charged with the larceny of an $800 automobile from Rochester, N. Y., who was arrested for the Rochester police on Friday last, had her case continued again yesterday in the police court for one week, in order that extradition papers from Rochester may have arrived. Mrs. Ball has not found bail.

Suspicious Rag Shop Fires

Chelsea, Mass., June 26.—Louis Besterman, 35, and Max Washkuffer, 32, were arrested yesterday, charged with setting fire to the rag shop at 83-85 Summer street on the night of June 19. Of late there have been so many suspicious rag shop fires in Chelsea that the residents have become alarmed and insurance rates have been increased.

Cable Out of Commission

Vineyard Haven, Mass., June 26.—The telegraph cable which runs under Vineyard sound and connects Martha's Vineyard with the mainland was put out of commission by the anchor of a barge. Repairs will be necessary before the cable can be used again. Communication is now had by the telephone cable wires.

Safely Reached Land

Chatham, Mass., June 26.—George Foster and Eugene Oliver, members of the crew of the fishing schooner J. W. Cheever of Boston, went astray from their vessel on the banks Monday, and after making Pollock Rip, where they remained over night, came ashore here. They were considerably exhausted.

Elis Down the Crimson

New Haven, June 26.—The Yale baseball nine crushingly defeated Harvard yesterday afternoon in the second game of the series by the score of 14 to 6. This means a play-off of the tie in New York on Saturday. All the glory went to Yale, for the Crimson players were slow on bases and dull in their work in the infield.

Difficult to Pick Winner

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 26.—The 13th annual intercollegiate regatta today will find no pronounced favorite among the seven crews at the start of the big 'varsity eight-oared race. It is generally admitted that the race is an open contest. There will be three races today.

Since the first trial, Father McAulay, who was a material witness, has died.

Desecration of Memorial Day

The writer is much in sympathy with your article of Saturday, regarding removal of Soldiers' Monument, a mark of respect hardly in keeping with a "City of Granite" for have been in small towns whose silent reminder of sacrifice made at time of Civil War far surpassed ours in every way.

While this matter is pending, it moves me to speak and protest against the outside grounds and streets nearby being used for a circus ground. Streets are blocked with hawker's teams, boys annoy the people (who go there out of respect for the dead) asking them to buy. Monuments are used to crack cocoanuts on. Shells and other nutshells are thrown over lots, avenues and disgust outside visitors. West Quincy allows no such sacrilege. Why should Mt. Wollaston submit? Our genial Superintendent Mr. Nicol cannot control this. Will Chief Burrell stop it?

This is the voice of all lot owners, particularly those who keep their lots in good order. Trust these notes may be means of stopping further desecration.

A. B. C.

Quincy, June 24th, 1907.

Public Invited To Reception

The reception to Charles F. Harper, head master of the High school, at High school hall Saturday evening is in charge of the Masters' Club, and will be entirely informal. No special invitations will be issued, but a general invitation is extended to the teachers and all friends of Mr. Harper. The hours of the reception are from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Charity Circus.

The annual garden party will this year take the form of The Boston Charity Circus, in aid of The Free Home for Consumptives, 428 Quincy street, Dorchester. The circus will be professional and amateur, and will be held on the grounds of the home and the corner Nazro—Burr estate on the evenings of June 26, 27, 28, 29. Matinees Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

The circus will consist of a circus tent, seating 2500 people. Then there will be the side shows, the menagarie, the gypsy camp, swings, merry-go-round, refreshment tents, and everything that contributes to the success of a circus.

The grounds will be beautifully illuminated, and the various branches of the Young Ladies' Charitable Association will have refreshment tables. The sale will include balloons, kites, pinwheels, canes, whips, etc.

Granite Plant at Auction.

A very extensive auction sale of the big plant and quarries of the Milford Granite Co., together with all machinery and tools, will take place at Milford, N. H., Wednesday, July 10, beginning at 10 A. M. This concern was at one time one of the leading granite manufacturing concerns in southern New Hampshire. It is thoroughly equipped with the most modern machinery, and cost together with its real estate upwards of $60,000.

The sale of this valuable property at public auction would appear to be an excellent opportunity for some one to acquire an up-to-date plant in a fine granite district, at an extremely low price. Frederick W. Sawyer, cashier of the Souhegan National Bank, Milford, N. H., has been appointed trustee and will answer any inquiries in relation to the property.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued cases of Francis H. McGuire, for drunkenness and breaking and entering at Weymouth, were called. He was held for the grand jury on the breaking and entering complaint, and the complaint for drunkenness was continued until Oct. 1.

Alfred E. Myers was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at the Blue Hills parkway.

The Memorial church lawn party, held on Newbury avenue on Saturday afternoon and evening was a remarkably pretty affair and well attended. The energy of the young people was manifest in the details of the lawn party and everyone enjoyed the enthusiasm with which sales and amusements were carried out. The affair was most successful financially.

—A 500-mile canal, projected to drain the great swamps of Florida, would reclaim 6,500,000 acres of land.

—Much of the fuel used in Italy is made of the refuse of olives from which the oil has been pressed.

Y. M. C. A. Call Boys' Work Director

The Y. M. C. A. directors met Tuesday evening for the last meeting before the summer vacation.

Among other important matters under discussion was the financial budget for the year just commenced, which was finally adopted as reported by the finance committee. The approximate amount required will be $10,000, and will be secured from three general sources: room rentals, membership fees, and other returns from members and subscriptions from friends of the work.

The expenses are divided between general expenses of administration, building maintenance and department work. The directors are hopeful of a good year and anticipate an increase in efficiency in all departments.

A call was extended to Mr. J. A. Goodhue of Youngstown, Ohio, to become boys' work director. Mr. Goodhue has had ten years of experience in association work, has traveled extensively in Europe and the East, and is a man of mature judgment and ripe experience. The association here is particularly fortunate in securing him to handle the boys' work and are only able to do so from the fact that he is obliged to come to this state on account of his mother.

The Association will take an advanced step, and an important one, when it secures such a man as Mr. Goodhue to work among the boys, and believes it will meet with the approval of parents and friends. Mr. Goodhue will come upon the field on Sept. 1.

Following is a partial list of the committees appointed who will serve for the new year:

Elden—Clark.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Clark at Wollaston beach Tuesday evening when their daughter Ellen was married to Mr. Henry F. Elden, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Elden of Milton. Miss Annie L. Tinker of Milton was bridesmaid and Mr. Winfield K. Baker was best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Andrew F. Mulnix of Faneuil.

Mrs. Elden made a very handsome bride and wore a gown of rich lace over white satin. The cottage with its large piazzas and high gables was decorated in white and green and looked quite like fairy land.

Refreshments were served by a caterer and the two hundred guests gave the young couple a magnificent send off with heartiest good wishes and generous contributions of handsome and costly presents.

NINETY CRADUATES

Class of 1907 The Largest Ever Graduated At Quincy High

Charles F. Harper, the retiring head master of the Quincy High school, shared honors with the class of 1907 at the graduating exercises on Wednesday evening. He did not appear on the platform until near the close of the program, but the audience was quick to applaud him. It has not been customary for the master of the school to present the diplomas, but it was thought fitting by the School Committee on this occasion, and when presented by Supt. Parlin he was enthusiastically applauded, and before he had time to speak it was renewed.

Mr. Harper said he regarded it as an honor and a privilege. It was the largest class ever graduated from the Quincy High, and also the first in the enlarged building and the beautiful new hall. It was indeed a great pleasure.

An audience of over 1000 gathered for the graduating exercises and they found the new hall well adapted for such a gathering. Although temperature above 90 degress had prevailed during the day they found the hall well ventilated and more comfortable than expected. Conspicuous over the platform on a background of garnet, in letters of gold, was the class motto: "Qui Vult Omnia Potest." Over this were two National flags. On the platform were roses, daises, peonies and other flowers, and the desk and balcony were festoned with green vine.

The High School orchestra and chorus was grouped directly in front of the platform which is over fifty feet wide. Promptly at 8 o'clock the graduating class marched in from the rear of the hall, down the centre aisle as far as the chorus, there dividing, circling the chorus, and going upon the platform at each end. The platform was plenty large to seat all the ninety graduates. It was a pretty scene, the young ladies in white gowns and the young men in black suits.

The program was as follows:

March
High School Orchestra
Recessional—Kipling Reginald DeKoven
High School Chorus and Orchestra
Salutatory, "The New Citizenship"
Edward Russell Hall
Essay, "The Land of Dreams"
Mercedes Ellen O'Brien
Selection from Maria Stuart Schiller
Elizabeth—Olive Pierson Allen
Mary—Clara May DeCoste
Valedictory Essay, "Three Inspirations"
Rebecca Florence Warshaw
"King of the Forest am I" Henry Parker
High School Chorus and Orchestra
Address, "Habits which Insure Success"
Albert Parker Fitch
Minister of the Mt. Vernon Church, Boston
"With Horse and Hound" Alfred J. Caldicott
High School Chorus and Orchestra
Presentation of Diplomas
"Rest"—Adelaide A. Procter Rubinstein
High School Chorus and Orchestra
Director of Music, Mr. E. Landis Snyder
Accompanists, John Endymion Gourlie and Ethel Randlett Humphrey

Music has been neglected at the High school this year because the new hall has not been ready and it was late in the year before the new building was occupied. With these drawbacks it was surprising that the music was so good, but Mr. E. Landis Snyder has made the last few weeks count, and the music was much enjoyed. Mr. Snyder was presented a beautiful bunch of roses at the close of the Recessional.

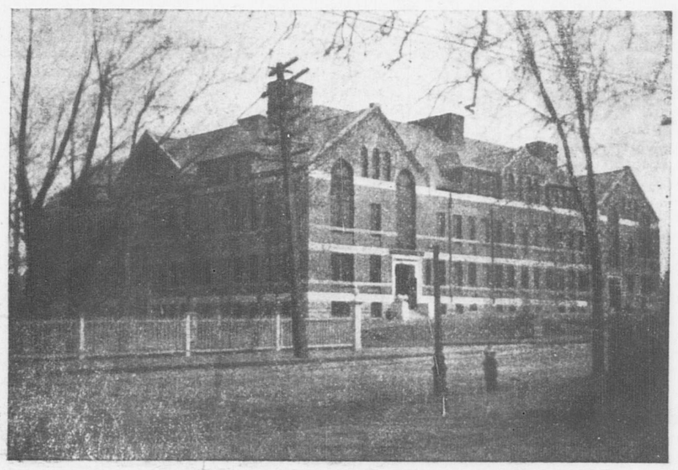

The Salutatorian referred to the reform work in Philadelphia, New Jersey and New York, and wanted all men to become good citizens and take these men and President Roosevelt as examples.

Miss O'Brien found in her dreams that the pathway of the Class of 1907 was roseate.

Misses Allen and DeCoste rendered well their selection, and the Valedictorian's closing words were for strength, truth and righteousness.

Albert Parker Fitch of Boston, the speaker of the evening, was introduced by Supt. Parlin, and spoke on "Habits which Insure Success." His advice was excellent and presented in such a pleasing way that it must have made a good impression. Habit, he said, was the power to rule life, and whether those habits are good or bad decides whether one is master or slave. To ensure success, he said, graduates must have the habit of hard work, the habit of service, and the habit of reverence. He enlarged on each.

The presentation of diplomas followed. Mr. Harper was assisted by Miss Grace C. Parker, Miss Pearl M. Raymond and Miss Lois M. Kendall. As Mr. Harper called the names of the graduates they rose in their places and the young ladies took the diplomas to them. A list of the graduates follows:

ROUGH FOR RACE

Harvard--Yale Struggle May Come Late This Afternoon

The chances are that the great trial for supremacy between the crews of Harvard and Yale will not take place until late this afternoon.

The weather at Red Top this morning was extremely rough, and the high wind kicked up a heavy sea that at 10 o'clock the hour for the race of the freshmen to start it was so rough that the race was postponed.

The four oared race which was to be held immediately after the freshmen race was also postponed.

At noon there had been no let up in the wind and it looked as though the varsity race would also have to be put off.

If the weather does not moderate all of the races will be postponed until 6 o'clock this afternoon.

The crews are made up as follows:

HARVARD DEGREES

Representatives of Italy, France and England Honored

EMINENT GUESTS AT DINNER

Old University's Great Influence Touched Upon--Jusserand and Root Have Praise For Roosevelt Administration--An Ovation to Bryce

Cambridge, Mass., June 27.—James Bryce, ambassador of Great Britain; Jean J. Jusserand, ambassador of France; Luigi Amadeo, Prince of Savoy and Duke of Abruzzi, and Elihu Root, secretary of state, formed a group among the recipients of Harvard's honorary degree of doctor of laws who made this commencement distinctively an occasion of international interest. Others who received the same degree were Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, and Professor Paul Vinogradoff of Oxford university.

At the alumni dinner in Memorial hall Attorney General Bonaparte presided, as president of the alumni association. The Duke of Abruzzi was the first speaker. He expressed gratitude for the degree conferred on him. "Harvard," he said, "is considered one of the most active intellectual centres in the world. I am proud to pay a warm tribute to this university in the name of my country. This is indeed more than a university of merely local fame. In this university I see the highest exponent of the true spirit of Americanism in the field of science and research."

Attorney General Bonaparte then spoke. He urged that it was the duty of Harvard to educate men from whom this democratic government could choose able and honest statesmen. There is too great a tendency, he said, among present politicians to seek that profession for profit. "We need," he declared, "men who will enter this life prompted by unselfish motives and by a desire to serve their country rather than for personal ends."

President Eliot of Harvard made a brief address, in which he urged the financial needs of the university. He said the recent action of the institution in raising tuition rates and the policy of maintaining a high standard of entrance examinations were wise.

Governor Guild, the next speaker, touched on national problems, and said the railroad problem was the greatest of these and needed to be studied with great care.

Ambassador Jusserand expressed his appreciation of the degree awarded him. He paid a tribute to the great influence of Harvard. Referring to the present national administration, he declared that President Roosevelt had made himself the most beloved man in the world. He highly approved of Roosevelt's international activity.

Ambassador Bryce received a great ovation when he arose to speak. The alumni rose, waved handkerchiefs and hats and cheered him loudly. Bryce was much affected by this greeting. He said that this and the fact that he had been awarded a degree by Harvard were evidences of the strong friendship between England and America. He said America was to be congratulated on the financial support her universities received and on the fact that so large a proportion of the population was attracted to her educational institutions.

Secretary Root also was warmly greeted. He acknowledged his indebtedness to Harvard for many things, beginning with the friendships formed when he was a student here and ending with the degree just awarded him. He warmly praised the administration of President Roosevelt. He said that this administration would be recorded in the future as one of the greatest of all American administrations in service and in its influence upon the future policy of the country.

President Wilson of Princeton contrasted Harvard and Princeton, and said that Harvard's advocacy of change and advancement and Princeton's conservatism working together produced very satisfactory results.

Former Secretary of the Navy Long, the last speaker, made a short address on matters of personal interest to the alumni.

A gift of over $100,000 to Harvard university from the class of 1882, which is celebrating its 25th reunion this June, was announced at the Harvard alumni meeting by President Eliot.

Sixty to One Shot a Winner

New York, June 27.—H. P. Whitney's Baby Wolf, a despised outsider in the betting at 60 to 1, easily won the Swift stakes, 7 furlongs, at Sheepshead Bay, and incidentally scored the third victory of the day for the Whitney colors. Just before the horses went to the post a rainstorm broke over the course and made the track heavy. Baby Wolf, a brown gelding, broke in front and soon opened up a lead of two lengths, which he maintained to the end.

TAFT AND THE NOMINATION

He Tells a Little Story to Yale Men to Illustrate His Attitude

New Haven, June 27.—Secretary of War Taft, in the course of a speech at the alumni dinner in the Yale dining hall, told a story which his hearers took as an indication of his attitude in regard to the nomination by the Republican party of a successor to President Roosevelt. Senator Knox was also at the dinner.

When Taft arose to speak he was given a most enthusiastic greeting. His story was of a Kentuckian who had voted each year the regular Republican ticket until finally a Republican governor had been elected. Then he went down from his mountain home to Frankfort to see if he could be of any further help to the party. He stopped at the best hotel first, but as time went on and his means diminished he gradually cut expenses until he finally brought up at the free lunch counter. One day he was seen driving slowly out of Frankfort and was asked where he was going. He replied mournfully that he was going back to the mountains, but added: "I have heard a great deal of talk about the office seeking the man, but I have not seen any of it. If you see any office seeking the man, however, say that you saw Jim Scrubbs going down the Alexandria pike, and that he was going —— slow."

Mr. Taft then added that there were many there, including Senator Knox and himself, who were going slowly on the road to retirement.

Loving Often Had Jimjams

Houston, Va., June 27.—The feature yesterday in the trial of Judge Loving, charged with the murder of Theodore Estes, was the closing of the case for the defense after the examination of witnesses for the purpose of proving that Loving was insane at the time of killing of Estes. The plea of the defense is that the mind of Loving had, after years of dissipation, which frequently caused him to have delirium tremens from excessive drinking of whisky, became so impaired that when he heard the story of his daughter he became deranged and was not responsible for his act in killing Estes.

No Let-Up on Standard Oil

Chicago, June 27.—Detailed information regarding the financial condition of the Standard Oil company is to be given in the United States district court before Judge Landis, even though it is necessary to summon the leading men of the company to obtain it. This was made clear when Landis, after an unsuccessful attempt to obtain the information desired from other sources, ordered the issue of subpoenas, returnable on July 6, for officers and directors of the Standard Oil corporation. The court announced that information must be procured.

Another Victory For Orby

Dublin, June 27.—Richard Croker has made a record in racing history. Yesterday he won the Irish Derby with Orby, who won the English Derby of 1907. This is the first time that these two great classics have been won by the same horse. The Irish Derby is for 3-year-olds for a stake of $5000, the distance being a mile and a half. Orby won in a common canter seven lengths in front of Cleg, who was also beaten by Orby's stablemate, Georgetown, who finished second.

Prisoner Dived to Death

Newark, N. J., June 27.—Raphale Savaro, who pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting an 11-year-old girl, killed himself in jail. He dived from a balcony on the third floor of the jail and struck on his head 30 feet below. When he returned from court he said that he would kill himself before the officers of the law could kill him. He persisted that he would be sentenced to death, although he was told that his offense was not a capital one.

November Birthday In June

St. John, June 27.—King Edward was born Nov. 9, but owing to the severity of the weather in the late fall the celebration is held in Newfoundland in June. Yesterday was a holiday throughout the colony. In St. Johns there was a naval display by the French warship Kleber and the British warship Argyle. The crews of the warships competed in athletics for a cup.

Will Protect American Interests

San Francisco, June 27.—Cruiser Milwaukee has sailed for La Union, Salvador, having been ordered there by the navy department after the receipt of dispatches from Central America to the effect that further trouble was impending there. The Milwaukee will be followed by the collier Saturn.

Bombs Thrown In Crowded Square

St. Petersburg, June 27.—Ten bombs were thrown into Erivan square in the centre of Tiflis, Trans-Caucasia, which was thronged with people. The missiles exploded with terrific force. Many persons were killed or injured and windows and doors were shattered over a large area.

Murder Suspect Proved Alibi

New York, June 27.—James Murray, a contractor, was arrested on a charge that he was implicated in the murder of Julius Rosenheimer at Pelham several days ago. After being taken to White Plains and proving an alibi he was immediately discharged.

THE ORCHARD STORY

Defense Introduces Testimony In Effort to Break It Down

A CONTRADICTION BY DAVIS

Not Connected With Plots as Alleged by State's Star Witness--Latter Declared to Have Made Threats to Kill Steunenberg

Boise, Ida., June 27.—William F. Davis of Goldfield, Nev., one of the most important witnesses for the defence of William D. Haywood, accused of the murder of Frank Steunenberg, was called to the stand at noon yesterday and his cross-examination had not been completed when court adjourned last evening.

Harry Orchard testified that Davis led and commanded the mob that destroyed the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine in 1899; inspired, as the agent of Haywood and Moyer, the Vindicator explosion and the train wrecking plot at Cripple Creek, and was an accomplice in the Independence station crime.

On direct examination by Mr. Darrow, Davis went over the story of his working life and made positive denial of every statement of Orchard that involved him or his associates in any form of crime. Devis denied that he was even a member of the union when the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine was blown up. At the conclusion of his general story Davis swore that at Cripple Creek during the strike Orchard told him of the Hercules mine affair and threatened to kill Steunenberg.

The cross-examination of Davis by Mr. Borah was severe and searching. It was chiefly devoted to the Bunker Hill and Sullivan affair and the circumstances under which Orchard made the threat against Steunenberg.

Mrs. Lottie Day of Denver testified that in 1904 Orchard told her about the loss of his interest in the Hercules mine and that he said he would kill Steunenberg for the wrong done him.

John D. Elliot swore that Orchard told him on a train in Idaho in the fall of 1905 that Orchard was in the employment of the mine owners and that there was a plot against the federation and its leaders. Cross-examination showed that Elliot had twice been in an insane asylum with a mind unbalanced by family troubles.

John M. O'Neil, editor of The Miners' Magazine, was the only other witness during the day. He testified that Orchard came to his office early in 1905 and asked for the addresses of Governor Peabody and General Bell, who, he said, should be "bumped off." O'Neill said that he referred Orchard to a city directory.

The state used the cross-examination of O'Neill to make it clear that the magazine was the official organ of the federation and expressed the federation's views and read to the jury from the magazine some sneering articles about the death of Steunenberg. O'Neill also said that he had seen Orchard at federation headquarters several times and that Steve Adams and Mrs. Adams had also been there.

To Prosecute Coal-Carrying Roads

Scranton, Pa., June 27.—Charged with violating the interstate commerce laws and the provisions of the Sherman act, summonses have been served on three of the big coal companies of this region. It is the first move taken by the government against the coal carrying roads to compel them to explain their relations with the Philadelphia and Reading company. The specific charge against them is that they are a party to an alleged combine, formed for the purpose of restraining trade and fixing an arbitrary price upon a commodity.

Brasher Doubloon Brings $6200

Philadelphia, June 27.—The highest price ever paid for an ancient or modern coin, $6200, was paid for the New York Brasher doubloon at the first of a five days' sale here of the coin collection of the late Matthew A. Stickney of Salem, Mass. The bidding for the piece was spirited, and it was sold to an anonymous bidder. This piece, of which only six are known, by many regarded as the rarest of all American coins, was struck in New York city in 1787 by Ephraim Brasher, a jeweler.

Cubans Passive Over Intervention

Havana, June 27.—The announcement of Secretary of War Taft that American intervention in Cuba will continue for 18 months was received here with slight manifestations of interest. La Discusion approves of this decision and says that the period will be fully occupied in carrying out the reforms instituted by the provisional government.

Treaty Will Hold Until 1909

London, June 27.—The Daily Mail's Tokio correspondent says that apparently Japan and the United States have agreed that the existing treaty should be replaced by a new treaty in 1909, when Japan will fight hard to place her subjects on an equal footing with Europeans. Until then no serious difficulty is dreaded.

CORNELL ONCE MORE

Captures Intercollegiate Varsity Race For the Eighth Time

CLOSE FIGHT WITH COLUMBIA

Spectators In Doubt Until Judges Announced Result--Syracuse Wins the Four-Oared Contest--Wisconsin Freshmen Row to Victory

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27.—Cornell won the university eight-oared race of the intercollegiate regatta for the eighth time late last evening, in the most exciting contest ever rowed over the four-mile Poughkeepsie course. Cornell's time over the course was 20:02 2-5. Columbia was second, United States naval academy third, Pennsylvania fourth, Wisconsin fifth and Georgetown sixth. Syracuse did not finish, her shell being swamped a half mile from the finish line.

The Ithacans won by the narrowest margin from Columbia and until the finish line was crossed and the judges announced that Cornell had won the thousands of spectators, both afloat and ashore, were in doubt as to which crew won the victory.

Cornell and Columbia fought for the honors of the race over the whole four miles of the course and at no time during the entire distance were the two shells more than 25 feet apart. Columbia led for over three miles and then Cornell took the lead, only to lose it to Columbia again. In the last 100 feet of the race Cornell, by a tremendous spurt, shot the nose of her shell out into the lead and swept over the finish line under the glare of a big searchlight on board the United States monitor Arkansas, five feet ahead of Columbia. The Annapolis crew rowed a magnificent race and finished two lengths behind Columbia.

Syracuse captured the honors of the university four-oared shells from Cornell, Pennsylvania and Columbia, which finished in the order named. Syracuse finished two lengths ahead of Cornell and her time over the two-mile course was 10:37 1-5.

Wisconsin won the freshmen eight-oared shells over the course of two miles, leading Syracuse across the finish line by one length and covering the distance in 9:56. Pennsylvania was third, Columbia fourth and Cornell fifth. Columbia rowed the last quarter of a mile with an almost waterlogged shell, which filled near the stern when three feet of planking was ripped out by striking a submerged log.

The 'varsity race was postponed until after 7 o'clock on account of rough water. Twenty thousand people saw the races. Secretary of the Navy Metcalf viewed the contest from the gunboat Yankton, while nearly 400 midshipmen cheered the Annapolis crew from the observation train and from the bridge and conning towers of the monitors Arkansas, Florida and Nevada, anchored near the finish line.

Nervous Rower Out of the Race

New London, Conn., June 27.—A sharp electrical storm in the upper part of the valley, through which the Thames river flows, broke the spell of sultry weather and made prospects for today's regatta of the Harvard and Yale crews most excellent. In the Harvard quarters there is not the buoyance of feeling that there has been, but the loss of Gordon Glass has not caused depression. Yesterday afternoon Glass tried to board a power boat and fell overboard. He was very weak and had to be taken ashore. The nature of his apparent illness has not been determined, but it is thought that it may be due to nervousness.

No Light on Launch Sinking

Norfolk, June 27.—Two United States inspectors of steam vessels have filed their official report on the investigation made by them into the sinking of the steam launch of the United States battleship Minnesota, when six midshipmen and five seamen lost their lives. They say that they "have failed to find anything which would aid us in a solution of the problem and are therefore unable to determine the direct cause of the casualty."

Eight Men Blown to Atoms

Houston, Va., June 27.—As the result of the premature explosion of a box of dynamite near Tola eight men were killed outright and six others seriously injured. The accident happened in a deep cut where a force of 15 men were engaged in railroad construction. For some distance around the scene heads, arms and legs were picked up, the victims all being blown to atoms. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

Albert Surrenders Himself

Montpelier, France, June 27.—M. Albert arrived here yesterday afternoon and surrendered himself at the detention prison. He declared that he was in complete accord with the decision of the committee to maintain the civic strike, adding that he surrendered because he did not desire to enjoy any longer the immunity granted by M. Clemenceau's safe conduct.

Strike Riot Indictments

San Francisco, June 27.—The grand jury returned to Judge Lawlor's court four indictments against nine persons, charging them with acts of violence against the United Railroads during the present street car strike.

ALMOST A CLOUDBURST

Great Damage by Rain and Hail Followed Day of Excessive Heat

Boston, June 27.—Greater Boston sweltered through a day of excessive heat and humidity and experienced the effects of a terrific electric storm, accompanied by hail and high wind in portions. One death and 17 prostrations in the city proper give but a slight estimate of the suffering experienced, while the damage to property during the storm is estimated at thousands of dollars.

The storm, which occurred late in the day, was most severe in Medford, Wakefield and Mattapan. At Medford it assumed all the elements of a cloudburst, sweeping down upon the city with slight warning, the rain washing out streets and flooding cellars, while big hailstones cracked windows, ruined greenhouses and levelled many young crops. The storm passed over a section of this city given up to market gardening and here the greatest damage was done. Dozens of greenhouses were ruined by the hailstones and the damage of these and the market garden crops of lettuce and spinach is estimated at $6000. Five great shade trees on the public streets were twisted off at their bases and thrown into the highway.

At Mattapan square an electric car was struck by lightning and the passengers badly frightened, but no one was injured. It was necessary to shut off the power on the street car lines in this district.

Conferred on Senatorship

Providence, June 27.—At a conference between members of the Republican League of Rhode Island, supporters of ex-Senator Wetmore, and members of the Republican party who supported Mr. Colt in the recent senatorial struggle, the situation in the coming campaign was discussed, but no agreement was reached. The league representatives sought to have the party unite on Wetmore, but the Colt men thought that a third candidate would be stronger.

Narragansett Bay War Maneuvers

Newport, R. I., June 27.—The mimic warfare in Narragansett bay during the first two weeks in July will consist of a defense of Forts Adams and Greble by the regular artillery companies and the volunteers of the Rhode Island National Guard, and night and day attacks upon these Narragansett bay defenses by torpedo boats and submarines. Eight artillery companies will be located at Fort Adams and five at Fort Greble.

Naked Man Killed by Train

Natick, Mass., June 27.—An unknown man, entirely nude, who was standing on the railroad track here and refused to move when warning whistles were sounded, was struck and instantly killed by an express train. It is thought the man might have been bathing in Lake Cochituate and, contemplating suicide, went to the tracks nearby and deliberately sought death.

Workmen Amend Constitution

Boston, June 27.—The grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen has closed its annual convention in this city. An important amendment to the constitution provides that the grand lodge will not assume any responsibility in an offer of benefit or aid to members upon the part of subordinate lodges. James J. Reedy of Cambridge was elected grand master workman.

Scout Ship Takes the Water

Bath, Me., June 27.—The scout cruiser Chester, named in honor of a Pennsylvania city and one of the latest types of fast warships for the United States navy, was launched successfully from the yard of the Bath Iron works. Miss Dorothy W. Sproul christened the big vessel by breaking a bottle of champagne on the prow just as the craft started down the ways.

End of Carpet Weavers' Strike

Lowell, Mass., June 27.—The strike of the Axminster and ingrain weavers of the Bigelow Carpet company was declared off last night and the weavers returned to work this morning. No statement of the terms has been given out, but one of the officials of the company said that an understanding had been reached satisfactory to both sides.

Charges Denied by Holmes

Washington, June 27.—E. S. Holmes, Jr., former associate statistician of the agricultural department, charged with conspiring to defraud the government by prematurely divulging the department's information concerning the cotton crop, took the stand in his own defense and testified that he never had any advance information concerning the reports from the field and that he had neither given out information previous to the official publication nor agreed to do so.

Six Blocks Burned

Norfolk, June 27.—Six blocks of smouldering ruins mark the track of the fire which swept Pine Beach, laying low 50 hotels, saloons, eating houses and stores, destroying $200,000 worth of property, costing the lives of possibly five people, and endangering several buildings within the exposition grounds. An explosion of a gasoline stove in the rear of the Berkeley hotel caused the conflagration.

Neglect Charge Against Steamer

Norfolk, June 27.—F. P. Sanford, master of the five-masted schooner T. Charleton Henry of Boston, which was rammed and sunk at sea, has filed a libel suit against the British steamer Chelston, alleging damages of $150,000. Sanford charges the Chelston officers and crew with neglect.

A Mystery Indeed

New York, June 27.—Passengers on a trolley car crossing the Brooklyn bridge last night were horrified when the rear window suddenly crashed in, admitting the form of a man who landed in the car aisle. Where the man came from is a mystery and he was dead in a few minutes. The neck was broken and a fractured rib had pierced a lung. How he came to be thrown through the window into a car may never be known. No other car or vehicle of any sort from which he might have fallen was near at the time. Had he fallen from the superstructure of the bridge it cannot be understood how he dropped at an angle that brought him through the rear window of a car rapidly moving away from him.

Foraker the "Noblest Roman"

Baltimore, June 27.—President Roosevelt and members of his official family were handled without gloves by speakers at the 10th anniversary of the Afro-American council here. Senator Foraker was a favorite and every mention of his name was received with vociferous applause. Bishop Walters made the principal address. He called the Ohio senator "the noblest Roman of them all" and placed him in the same category with Charles Sumner.

British Lords' Wings Clipped

London, June 28.—The three days' debate in the house of commons ended at midnight, when Premier Campbell-Bannerman's resolution in favor of curtailing the power of the house of lords in vetoing bills passed in the house of commons was carried by 432 to 147, amid loud ministerial cheers. The amendment for a total abolition of the house of lords was rejected by 315 to 100.

Douglas, the young assistant loan clerk, stole from the Trust Company of America, was sentenced to serve not less than five nor more than 10 years in Sing Sing prison. Douglas pleaded guilty to grand larceny and was sentenced to three years in Sing Sing.

Stolypin's Opponent Out of Office

St. Petersburg, June 27.—The czar has accepted the resignation of Charles Schwanebach, the comptroller of the empire and leader of the reactionary wing of the cabinet in the campaign for the dissolution of the duma. The retirement of Schwanebach marks the culmination of Premier Stolypin's protracted struggle for the control of his own ministry.

Many Children Expected This Week

Schools throughout the state close this week and a great influx of young people is expected at the seashore.

Houghs Neck is becoming more and more an all the year round resort and the number of families that remain through the winter number nearly two hundred.

The street railway is making some needed repairs to its tracks beyond Palmer street.

A son was born this week to Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. French.

The steamboat trip between Houghs Neck and Boston makes a delightful sail. Have you enjoyed it?

George Meyers of Boston has leased the Gilmore cottage on Charles street for the summer.

Frank R. Daniels of South Boston is at the Flood cottage on Winthrop street.

John T. McHugh of Milton is at the Isabelle cottage on Darrow street.

Mrs. T. F. Mahoney of South Boston and family have taken the Sunbeam cottage on Weymouth street.

Francis X. Campbell of Cambridge is summering in the Model cottage on Weymouth street.

The moving pictures at the Sea Street theatre are proving popular.

The Daily Ledger and Quincy Patriot are for sale by A. H. Dunham at the post office store.

Sea Street Theatre.

The program at the Sea street theatre, Houghs Neck, for this week is a record breaker.

Madge Cavaugh, the Roxbury songbird, will positively appear at every performance, singing that beautiful song entitled, "My Home in the Old Bay State." Miss Cavaugh has a wonderful sweet, clear soporano voice. It is worth the price of admission only to hear her sing. Frank J. Leverone will sing "The Moon has his eyes on you.

The moving pictures are extra fine, there being four different films. "Not such a fool as he looks," is about the funniest set of picture ever presented to the public. They would make a horse laugh. "Saved from the Wreck." is a thrilling story of a mid-ocean ship wreck and the wonderful work of our life savers. "Lucky Necklace," this set of films shows the faithfulness and intelligence of dogs. "Baby's first Outing," it would be useless to say anything about this set of pictures the title is a sufficient gaurantee.

The music at the theatre brings out the effect of these pictures strong.

Night Lunch Not Wanted.

The residents along Hancock street between City Square and Dimmock street are up in arms over the prospect of a lunch wagon being located on the Nancy Brackett estate. One of the largest kind of wagons of this variety was located there Wednesday night. The residents look upon a night lunch wagon as a nuisance that should not be tolerated. Then again, does not such a building violate the building ordinance?

OLD-HOME WEEK

Boston to Have A Series of Midsummer Festivities

Boston, Massachusetts —historic, beautiful fascinating Boston—during the seven days of July 28th-August 3d, will be "at home" to all of its sons and daughters, wherever residing and Quincy will help entertain.

In honor of those who have wandered away from the attractive and prosperous city by sea, and made new homes for themselves in the far West and South and elsewhere, a grand "Old-Home Week" celebration and reunion has been arranged for that week, which in magnitude and interest will eclipse anything of the kind ever planned by an American commuity.

The entire period will be given over to a series of midsummer festivities and observances such as no other city in the world is in a position to offer to its guests.

There will be family, school, college and association reunions of all sorts; military manoevres and parades, civic, trades and electrical processions, historical pilgrimages, religious and patriotic observances, river carnivals, veteran firemen's muster, receptions to the Governors of New England and other distinguished guests, illuminations, concerts, dedications, athletic tournaments, automobile parades and races, wheelman's outings, old-time sports, base ball games, rowing regattas, yacht races and other aquatic sports, a fisherman's race, harbor and trolley excursions, concerts, inspection of war ships, balloon ascensions. literary exercises, banquets, exhibitions by the fire department, schools etc., and a variety of pastimes, entertainments and outdoor and indoor features too numerous to catalogue, and which only Boston can furnish.

The various days of the week have been appropriately set apart as follows:

Sunday, July 28—"Founders' Day." Dedicated to Blackstone, Winthrop and the founders of Boston.

Monday, July 29—"Patriots' Day." Dedicated to Adams, Hancock, Revere and the patriot sons of the city. Big New England Veteran Firemen's Muster.

Tuesday, July 30—"Greater Boston Day." Dedicated to Quincy and the suburban communities.

Wednesday, July 31—New England Day." Dedicated to the people and Governors of the New England States. Grand Civic and Trades Procession. setts Day." Dedicated to the people and the industries of Massachusetts.

Friday, August 2—"Women's Day." Dedicated to the public-spirited women of Boston and the State.

Saturday, August3—"Military Day." Day." Dedicated to the defenders of the Commonwealth. Mobilization and parade of the State Militia.

The arrangements for the great reunion are in charge of a Committee of One Thousand, made up of citizens representing practically every industry, pursuit and activity in the city, assisted by an auxiliary committee of Women. Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is chairman of this committee, and the executive committee is composed of some seventy-five of the most active and influential residents of Boston.

Headquarters have been established at Room 950, Old South Building, 294 Washington Street, by the General Committee, and all who desire printed matter, stickers or Old-Home Week information of any kind are cordially invited to call or write there.

No city in the world offers a greater variety of summer-time attractions than Boston even when there is no special celebration in progress.

Aside from its historic buildings of enduring fame, like Faneuil Hall, the Old South Meeting House, the Old North Church, the Old State House, and the home of Paul Revere, it is splendidly equipped with public parks, bathing beaches and recreation piers, all having a special interest for visitors.

Its public buildings, museums, libraries and art galleries, not to mention its colleges and other educational institutions, would alone require days to inspect.

The suburbs of Boston are very delightful, and some of them, like Quincy, Cambridge, Lexington, Concord and Salem, only a short distance from the city by railroad or trolley, are of great historic interest.

Brigham---Hall Home Wedding

An extremely pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah G. Hall of Newbury avenue, when their daughter, Miss Laura, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Tyler Brigham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Brigham of Wollaston. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Ernest W. Hunt, pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church, in the presence of the family, relatives and a few intimate friends.

Miss Hall wore an exquisite gown of messaline, hand embroidered and trimmed with Duchess lace. Her veil was caught up with lilies of the valley and she carried a large bouquet of these dainty flowers, which she afterwards threw to the guests, that good luck in matrimony might attend those who were fortunate enough to catch them.

A small reception followed the ceremony. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brigham. The ushers were Mr. Edmund Hall of Atlantic, Mr. Albert Armstrong of Wollaston, Mr. John Simmons of Wollaston and Mr. Ernest Armstrong of Wollaston.

The house was prettily trimmed with moutain laurel, daises and cut flowers, blended with a profusion of green.

Both Miss Hall and Mr. Brigham are very popular and they were remembered with many beautiful tokens of esteem.

The reception was delightfully informal and the young people stayed until the very last to bid the bride and groom a rousing farewell with streamers and showers of confietti that were not the least of the pretty features of the wedding.

After their trip, Mr. and Mrs. Brigham will reside in Wollaston.

During his direction of its affairs Keene high has made great strides, and the school has been numbered among the high schools certifying their graduates to nearly all the New England colleges, and a commercial course, which has met with success, has been inaugurated.

Eleven Children At Her Funeral

The funeral of Mrs. Mary W. Carter of Quincy Point was held from her late residence, 506 South street, Thursday afternoon at one o'clock. Mrs. Carter was born in Nantucket nearly 69 years ago. At the age of 16 she united with the church. The early part of her married life was spent in Calais, Maine. She moved to Quincy over 40 years ago, and has been a kind neighbor and friend and hard worker until about a year ago her physical frame was shaken by a shock, and for fourteen months she has shown remarkable patience though suffering from a lingering, painful illness; she finally succumbed to heart failure and Tuesday noon passed on to her heavenly reward.

A large attendance of neighbors, friends and relatives were present at the funeral, which was conducted by the Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church, who spoke words of comfort from Ecclesiastes 7: 2; mentioning many practical lessons to be drawn from such an occasion, and quoting from Whittier's "Snowbound"; Alice Carey's "Here and There, and "The Good Grandmother." During the service the Nevin Male quartet of Boston sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Good bye, I'm Going Home."

Mrs. Carter is survived by twelve children , seven daughters and five sons; 16 grandchildren and one great grand-child. Her eldest son, Rev. William T. Carter, is preaching at Lander, Wyoming, and because of the distance could not be present. The other eleven children were present as follows:

Mrs. T. W. Heath, and daughter Zayma of Stockbridge, Mass.; Mr. Frank Carter of Northfield, Vermont; Capt. and Mrs. W. B. Crosby of Cotuit, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Myers and two sons James and Harold of Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. George Carter of Cotuit; Rev. and Mrs. Leon H. Austin of Roslindale; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carter of Bellows Falls, Vermont; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Seller of Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Carter of Quincy Point; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Scouler, Jr., of Quincy; and Miss Annie Carter of Quincy.

Mrs. M. W. Carter is also survived by two sisters who were present, Mrs. E. A. Penniman and daughter Mrs. Arthur Merritt, and Mrs. Stephen Otis and husband, both of Quincy. The Sunday school class of girls, taught by Miss Carter, attended in a body

The floral display was beautiful and there were remembrances from many relatives and friends. The interment was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The Daily Ledger doubts if it has happened for a great many years, that eleven adult sons and daughters attended their mother's funeral, as on this occasion.

High School Reception

Another event in the strenuous week of the Class of 1907 of the Quincy High school was the reception of Thursday evening tendered to their teachers, schoolmates and friends. Nearly 400 were in attendance and it was a very enjoyable occasion for one and all. The new High School hall was found to be a grand place for such gatherings, and the temperature was delightfully cool.

In the receiving party were Miss Persis A. Thompson, the president; Mr. Russell L. Tupper, the vice president; and the following matrons—Mrs. Charles F. Harper, Miss Elizabeth A. Souther, Miss Madeleine Fish and Miss Eleanor M. Guild. Ten young men of the Junior class acted as ushers.

It was a pleasure to the class to have so many of the teaching corps present, and also some of the former teachers, including Miss Helen M. Sherman, Mr. Lindol E. French and Mr. Samuel D. Thompson.

The decorations included the motto of the class—"Oui Vult Omnia Potest" —flowers and flags.

Dancing followed the reception and continued until midnight, excellent music being furnished by Gould's orchestra of Boston.

During the evening punch was served by Lambros of City Square.

William W. Nichols is secretary of the class, and Carleton W. Cummings treasurer.

This evening a party will be held for members of the class only.

City Square Alive With Picnickers

Two Sunday school picnics are being held today, that of the First church at Randolph grove, and that of Christ church at the Rock Island farm. The result was that for a time this morning City Square was filled with a crowd of happy and wide-awake children.

At nine o'clock just before the First church children started, five special cars containing the Sunday school of Christ church came through City Square. For a few minutes the air was full of shouts, and the noise made by the tooting of horns and whistles.

The special cars were switched onto the Houghs Neck tracks and soon disappeared down the Coddington boulevard.

Meanwhile five barges drew up in front of the First church and were soon filled with children.

Each child held a small flag and similar emblems adorned the heads of the horses. They took their departure for Randolph grove at 9.20.

The day is an ideal one for a picnic and the children are sure to have a grand good time.

A series of sports for young people has been arranged for both picnics. The usual picnic lunches will also form a part of the program.

Patriotic songs will be sung by soloists and quartet, at the Point church Sunday evening, June 30, at the patriotic service.

A LIMIT TO PROOF

Court Sustains Haywood Prosecution's Contention

QUESTION OF CONSPIRACY

State Laid Foundation For Its Evidence--Defense Cannot Have Equal Latitude In Effort to Show Existence of Counter Conspiracy

Boise, Ida., June 28.—A ruling made by Judge Wood while Edward Boyce, for years the leader of the Western Federation of Miners, and now a wealthy mineowner of the Coeur d'Alenes, was testifying in behalf of William D. Haywood, may limit materially the showing of the defense as to the existence of an alleged counter conspiracy against Haywood and his associates.

Mr. Darrow, for the defense, claimed that same latitude in proving counter conspiracy that the state enjoyed in showing a conspiracy. Mr. Hawley, for the state, contended that it had directly shown the existence of a conspiracy by Harry Orchard, and by so doing had laid the foundation for and made the connection of all the evidence subsequently offered on the subject. He said that the defense was trying to show a counter conspiracy by proving various isolated instances and certain general conditions, none of which were connected with the case and for none of which a proper foundation had been laid.

In ruling, the court accepted in part the contention of the prosecution and limited the proof of the defense along this line to events in Colorado and the Coeur d'Alenes connected with the case as now established.

Boyce was the principal witness of the day and his testimony was chiefly devoted to the history and work of the Western Federation. He denied the existence of an "inner circle" or that there had ever been a conspiracy in the organization to do an illegal act. The chief importance of Boyce's cross-examination was the production of a speech by him at the convention of the federation at Salt Lake in 1898, in which he said that every union should have a rifle club and every member a rifle, that the federation could march 25,000 armed men in the ranks of labor.

Boyce would not agree with the accuracy of the quotation, but saying that the sentiment was correct, declared with spirit that when he spoke the words imputed to him he had in mind the misconduct of state troops in Colorado, the use of troops elsewhere against the federation, and the constitutional right of all citizens to bear arms, which was as much the right of the miner as the aristocrat.

William Easterly, one of the most important witnesses in the case, was called just before adjournment and his testimony will be continued today. He occupied the witness chair long enough, however, to deny directly the statements of Orchard, charging him with criminal misconduct in Colorado.

Clemenceau Is "Up Against It"

Paris, June 28.—All the extreme Left groups with which Premier Clemenceau has been affiliated in the past are now on the warpath, because, as they allege, he has turned his back on his former associates and since May 1 has resorted to methods of repression characteristic of the reactionaries. The entire representation in the rebellious region of the south, irrespective of party, is also against him. Almost a score of interpellations have been introduced in the chamber of deputies.

Canadians Seeking Concessions

Paris, June 28.—Premier Laurier, Minister of Finance Fielding and Minister of Marine Brodeur of Canada have returned here from their trip to Italy. There was a lengthy exchange of views with President Fallieres regarding a more advantageous commercial arrangement between Canada and France, negotiations for which can now be regarded as officially begun. It is learned that the visit of the Canadian statesmen to Italy was unproductive of results.

Salvationists' Welcome to Booth

London, June 28.—Fresh from the honors conferred upon him by Oxford university, General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, was given a remarkable ovation on his return from the world's tour. An enormous gathering of Salvationists in Albert hall last night welcomed Booth, still wearing his Oxford robes. He described his tour of 45,000 miles and how he held 93 meetings and addressed 140,000 people.

Holmes Tells His Story

Washington, June 28.—In the trial of former Associate Statistician Holmes of the agricultural department on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government, an entire day was consumed in the examination of Holmes himself. His testimony covered most of the specifications of the government and he denied practically all the charges.

Letter Missing For Thirty Years

Washington, June 28.—The postoffice department yesterday forwarded to Captain O. W. French of Lincolnton, Me., a letter written by his 6-year-old son and addressed to him at Minatitlan, Mex., more than 30 years ago. A package of old letters written in this country many years ago and which had never reached their proper destination were recently returned here from Mexico. French, who was skipper of schooner Edora Condon of Belfast, Me., which was at Minatitlan in March and April, 1877, recognized the meagrely described letter as his.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

As a reliable family tonic, in all complaints of the stomach, liver or bowels, especially constipation, Dr. True's Elixir stands without an equal; it is a pure vegetable compound with a wonderfully successful record since 1851. Adults as well as children are troubled with worms. The symptoms are: Indigestion, with a variable appetite; foul tongue, offensive breath, hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the naval; eyes heavy and dull, itching of the nose, short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth, starting during sleep; slow fever, and often in children, convulsions and bed wetting.

A few doses of Dr. True's Elixir will expel the worms if there are any; if not it acts as a gentle laxative tonic, clearing the stomach and bowels of all waste matter, leaving these organs sweet and clean—it increases the appetite, causing pure life-giving blood to flow through the body, thus invigorating the whole system with rugged, robust health. If taken regularly it will prevent coughs, colds, fevers and worms.

Sold by druggists, 35c., 50c., $1.00. Write for booklet, "Children and Their Diseases."

WAS A GRAND RACE

Victory Perches on Yale's Banner In Great Varsity Contest

BOTH CREWS WELL TRAINED

Yale Used Her Strength More Economically Than Brawny Opponents --Harriman, the Railroad Magnate, Misses Race by Being Arrested

New London, Conn., June 28.—Before the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a race on the Thames river the Yale crew last evening, rowing on an average of four strokes to the minute less than Harvard, held the big Cambridge crew even until the last half mile, when the Elis let out their speed and won a great race by a scant boat length.

Never once in the whole four miles did the long, graceful shells cease to lap each other. The delicate prows zigzagged between the strokes and the thousands of spectators sent cheers upon cheers to the old rivals as they fought out one of the grandest races in the history of boating. Yale's time for the four miles was 21 minutes and 10 seconds; Harvard's 21 minutes and 13 seconds.

The race was scheduled to be rowed at 1:30, but at that hour a stiff northwest breeze was blowing which every now and then broke out into little squalls that would have swamped a racing shell. Shortly before 6 o'clock the breeze gradually died away and at 7 o'clock, when the two eights reached their stakeboats, there was scarcely enough wind left to ruffle the hundreds of flags that floated from the finest yachts of the country, which formed an avenue all the way up the river four miles. The postponement of the race made it necessary to row the race up stream, but the crews had the benefit of an unusually strong tide.

It was 7:10 o'clock before Referee Meikleham first asked Harvard and then Yale: "Are you ready?" and on receiving no response shouted "go." Both boats got away in good style. Stroke Farley of Harvard started into the race rowing 36 strokes to the minute. Yale started at 33, but quickly dropped her gait down to 30 and then to 29. Harvard eased up on her stroke just before she reached the first half-mile flag and passed this stake going at 32 strokes to the minute.

Harvard got a slight advantage at the start, but although Yale was rowing a lower stroke the Elis soon were on even terms with the Crimson and at the first half-mile-flag were leading Harvard by half a boat length. Then Yale settled down into her gait of 28 strokes to the minute, which she held up to the 2½-mile flag. Harvard raised her stroke to 34 and cut down Yale's lead. The Elis for a few strokes ran their's up to 31 and at this gait held Harvard even.

The boats did not change positions over the next half mile. At the 3-mile flag the noses of the shells were zigzagging and it was still either's and neither's race. Yale had dropped her stroke, however, to 28 to the minute, while Harvard was still rowing 34. About this time it dawned upon the Harvard experts that Yale might have something up her sleeve.

Just as the shells swept into the last half mile of the race Stroke Boulton of Yale let go his first real spurt. Up went his stroke from 28 to 30 and then to 35 to the minute. Boulton, at the end of the race, was striking the gait which Harvard struck at the beginning of the race. Harvard had made her spurt and she could not make another one. It was this spurt which won the race for Yale.

But Harvard was not easily whipped. Although the Elis raised their stroke 7 points they only crept away from Harvard on this last mile by inches at a time. Little by little, however, Yale forged her shell ahead, but she was not able to show clear water between the boats before the flag dropped. Her victory was won by a scant boat length.

Two better trained crews never rowed a race and likewise two better fighting eights have never measured off their strength against each other. The time of 21:10 up stream is the fastest time on record for an up-stream race. The record for the course is 20:10, but this was made down stream with tide and wind.

The difference between the crews was simply that Yale used her strength more economically than did Harvard. The Elis' stroke was rounded out and the men rowed it so perfectly that they did not seem to be making an effort. Harvard, with greater power and rowing from four to five strokes more to the minute, was unable to get away from this Yale crew.

The postponed freshman eight-oared race and 'varsity four-oared race will be rowed today and a good portion of the crowd remained in New London for these races.

The race was accompanied by one disagreeable incident. This was the arrest of E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, by Lieutenant Billard, President Roosevelt's naval aide. Billard, who was in charge of the revenue cutters, had warned every boat owner not to follow the race. The big 'varsity struggle had scarcely been started when Harriman, in a powerful motor boat, started to follow the race. Billard and Chairman Schweppe, who were aboard the regatta committee boat, the Arrow, repeatedly warned Harriman to stop his engine and get out of the course. Harriman not only paid no attention to them, but took a position right alongside of the referee's boat and held it. Off the navy yard Billard signalled for a launch and tooted the revenue whistle, which finally caused Harriman to look around.

"You are under arrest, sir," shouted Billard. "You will give yourself up to this man, who will take you aboard the Gresham to await my orders."

Then it was discovered that the man in the powerful and speedy motor boat was Harriman. Chairman Schweppe of the regatta committee was very angry and he shouted to Harriman in terms which the latter could not mistake. The millionaire levelled his forefinger at Schweppe and yelled back: "Young man, I will see you later."

Schweppe's friends aboard the Arrow gave Harriman a gentle laugh. Harriman saw no more of the race, but was detained as any ordinary prisoner aboard the Gresham until after the race was over, when Billard released Harriman, but ordered his boat tied up at the navy yard. The incident may cost Harriman a fine of $500. This was the penalty imposed on a yacht owner at last year's race for transgressing the rules governing the course.

Sharp Advance In Wheat

Chicago, June 28.—Wheat yesterday went above the dollar mark, the September option selling on the floor of the Board of Trade for $1 and the December delivery for $1.03. The advance was caused by the report of a statistician, who last April estimated that the winter wheat crop of Kansas would be 60,000,000 bushels. A report was issued by the statistician declaring that the crop will probably fall 10,000,000 bushels below this amount because of the damage sustained in Kansas. This statement caused shorts to cover actively.

The origin of the fire is said to have been due to the igniting of explosives concealed under the floor of the theatre, the fire following the explosion.

The fraternities have done what the professors could not do. They are necessary for the usefulness of the college."

AFTER LONG BATTLE

Anti-Merger Bill Is Passed by Massachusetts Senate

BUT TWO DISSENTING VOTES

Measure Attacked by Vahey, Who Brands It as a Farce and Charges Certain Republicans With Playing Politics--Mellen Is Criticised

Boston, June 28.—A bill designed to prevent the proposed merger of the Boston and Maine with the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad until specific authority be given for such a consolidation by the legislature passed what is practically its final stage in the legislature late yesterday.

After an all-day discussion of the measure it was ordered to engrossment by the senate by a vote of 36 to 2. The only action needed before the bill is placed in the governor's hands for his signature is the concurrent action of the house on a minor amendment. It is the opinion of those who have followed the measure in its novel legislative career that the house will make no objection to this final matter and that the bill will be sent to the chief executive today.

The bill, as it now stands, framed along general lines "to restrain the consolidation of railroad corporations," but aimed directly at the proposed merger of the two greatest New England railroad systems, is the outcome of nearly a month's concentrated attention at the state house.

During this consideration, beginning with a message from Governor Guild warning the legislators to safeguard the interests of the commonwealth, no less than 10 different measures were submitted to the legislative committee on railroads to either restrict or prevent the merger. Both the presidents of the two great railroads concerned were heard, besides several interested parties, and when a bill was finally decided upon by the committee and submitted to the legislators no less than a score of amendments were proposed. Of these suggested changes, only one was adopted. This was offered by Senator Faxon, making the restrictive legislation not apply to railroads acquired before May 1, 1907.

This amendment, and in fact the whole bill, was attacked by Senator Vahey during the debate yesterday, as being altogether to weak. The Faxon amendment, he argued, practically nullified the intent of the act, inasmuch of a great deal of Boston and Maine stock was acquired by the New Haven road or "its friendly interests" prior to May 1, 1907. Vahey offered an amendment to set the date further back so as to allow no possible chance for the New Haven road, which he charged with already defying the laws of the commonwealth, to further evade the intent of the law. This amendment, which was offered both Wednesday and yesterday, was each time killed, as were many minor changes suggested by other senators.

In a long speech Vahey vehemently charged certain Republican members with playing politics in connection with the bill, and in a vigorous attack upon President Mellen of the New Haven road he charged him with having openly admitted before the railroad committee that he had violated his own agreement, and the law of the state as well, in certain leases and purchases of electric railways in Massachusetts.

Senator Vahey also ventured to assert that if it had not been for Speaker Cole's ambition to become lieutenant governor next year he would never have introduced any bill. He practically branded the measure as a farce, and as an invitation to the New Haven corporation to absorb the Boston and Maine. Taking the attitude that the bill was better than nothing, he announced that he would vote for it if no more stringent measure could be given consideration.

When the bill came up on the question of referendum to the people at next fall's election the proposition was killed by a vote of 20 to 18, with seven Republicans recorded in the affirmative. In the vote upon engrossment Senators Buttrick of Lancaster and Schuster of Worcester were the only members to oppose.

Rheumatism Badly Cripples a Baldwinsville Farmer.

URIC-O QUICKLY CURED HIM.

Treated Two Years with a High-Priced Physician with No Success.

Mr. Frank Howe, a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren, says: "I visited the best Physician in this country, who treated me for about two years for rheumatism. I spent in that time several hundred dollars and seemed to grow worse instead of better each day. Being on crutches and forced to drive to the train and hobbling to the doctor's office became very discouraging, let alone the sleepless nights and fearful hours of pain. Being advised by a friend I purchased Smith's Uric-O prescription, took it home and used it that day as directed.

"Those fearful sciatic pains left me, my blood seemed to let loose and flow freely, I felt different and knew the next morning I had found a cure, as I slept and rested well all night, something I had not done before in two years. I used in all six bottles of Uric-O and have never felt a return of the disease, had no use for crutches or cane since the first day's treatment.

I have since recommended Uric-O to hundreds of friends and acquaintances and in every instance it gave remarkable relief. To every person who suffers from Rheumatism I say take Uric-O at once and your suffering will soon end.

FRANK HOWE, Baldwinsville, N. Y.

Anyone who doubts Mr. Howe's experience is invited to write him for further details.

Council Divided on Nomination

Boston, June 28.—By a vote of 3 to 6, the executive council refused to confirm Governor Guild's nomination of Charles F. Pidgin to succeed himself as chief of the bureau of statistics of labor. The governor must now take the initiative. He may or may not send in Pidgin's name again. A fair guess, however, would be that he will not renominate Pidgin.

Armor Belt for Big Battleships

Contracts have not been signed as yet for the building of the two big battleships by the Newport News and the Fore River companies, but a Washington dispatch says, Secretary Metcalf plans to award contracts this week despite a protest by several prominent officers that the armor distribution of these ships is defective.

The general board of the navy has made no official protest, but the protest which has been made is backed by the professional opinion of the board.

By the same individual method the secretary has been advised to delay the award of contracts until the designs can be perfected on better lines.

Members of the board believe the navy department is plunging ahead toward a great mistake.

The cardinal defect charged against the designs of the new ships is that, completed and fully loaded, the top of their water line armor belt will be not more than six inches above the harbor water line.

This, it is contended, will leave the ship so vulnerable, notably in a sea, and just above the water line, that it is certain to ship water in a seaway through possible holes made by hostile fire. Some of the Russian ships in the battle of the Sea of Japan had their armor belt entirely under water, with the result that their side armor was punctured by Japanese shell, and one of them capsized on this account.

All sea officers agree that the submersion of the armor belt is a most serious defect, and it is therefore difficult to believe that the new designs can be as bad as reported.

Lieut. Commander Hill submitted to Sec. Metcalf a paper setting forth his views of the unwisdom of the designs, so far as the armor belt was concerned. This is designed to be eight feet in width and of the greatest thickness ever put on an American ship of this type.

Members of the board of construction have nothing to say for publication about the matter. They are unanimous in standing firm on their original recommendations.

MILTON.

East Milton people are entertaining quite a number of out-of-town friends this week.

And still that Improvement society has not materialized and that old freight car continues to mar the beauty of the surroundings near the East Milton depot.

A movement is on foot to have the street railway extend its tracks through Granite avenue so as to connect with the Adams street line of elevated cars to Dudley street. Such a line would be appreciated by West Quincy people as well, as it would give them a short and direct line to Boston.

That floral plot in front of the house of Hose 2 at East Mileon has been filled with flowering geraniums and is very attractive.

Officer James Wigley, the veteran guardian of the peace at East Milton, returned from his vacation this week very much refreshed.

The school buildings of the town will be thoroughly overhauled and put in repair during the long summer vacation.

The Thursday Evening club will suspend its meetings during July and August.

E. D. Dodge and family have moved to Newtonville.

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Annie G. Windy and Rough.

A Newport dispatch of Thursday say the Octopus and Cuttlefish from Quincy encountered a strong north-northwest wind and a rough sea but without the slightest difficulty, the submarines made the run from Vineyard Haven to this port today. They arrived at noon at the torpedo station, and their behavior in the rough conditions were highly satisfactory to the officers in charge. On or about July 8 the two boats will be given their official trials here.

The Steel Turbine Steamship "Yale."

The new Steel Turbine Steamship "Yale" constructed for the Consolidated Steamship Lines commencing about July 1st, 1907, and continuing during the summer will be operated in Express Service direct between Boston and St. John on the International Division of the Eastern Steamship Company.

The Yale will be capable of making the run between Boston and St. John in 18 hours, thus maintaining an average speed of approximately seventeen statute miles an hour, making her the fastest steamship engaged in American Atlantic Coast service.

In arrangement and equipment the Yale is most luxurious. The quarter deck or social hall which passengers enter upon boarding the steamer is most comfortable and rich in furnishings. Upon this deck is located the purser's office, packing room, news stand, barbor shop, etc., while from this deck also the dining hall is entered. From the quarter deck an artistic staircase reaches to the grand saloon deck above, and another from that to the gallery saloon. On these two decks are located the staterooms, upwards of 300 in number, several of these being en suite with bath.

Express Service Steamship "Yale" between Boston and St. John, N. B., leaves Union wharf, Boston, Mondays and Thursdays at twelve noon, connecting at St. John for all maritime province points.

—As a result of the 2-cent rate enforced against the Pennsylvania road that corporation has withdrawn all commutation tickets as well as workingmen's tickets and excursion rates. It must be admitted that this is their way to get even for what they consider improper legislation against their road.

The Magazines.

The July number of the New England Magazine in even more vigorous persuasive and entertaining than the issue of the previous month. It starts off with a new series by Frank Putnam on the general topic: "What's the Matter With New England?" The first instalment is "Maine, a Study in Land-Grabbing, Tax-dodging and Isolation." Mr. Putnam gives Maine what a New Englander would call "a good going over" as to its political and industrial conditions.

July Lippincott's contains the latest automobile novel by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. Its title is "He Who Stole and Rode Away,' and it appears complete in one number of the Magazine. This means that the plot is packed full of meat—not padded out to make so many pages of print. Like "Brown" in the Williamsons' early success, "The Lightning Conductor," this new hero is a gentleman-chauffeur, and the girl is a "winner." The characters are real flesh and blood people.

No more vitally interesting article has appeared in a long time than "Brain and Body,' in the July Everybody's. The author, Dr. William Hanna Thomson, recognized authority, presents what to most of us will be an entirely new conception of the brain, facts of the greatest practical importance in mental training, and he puts it in a simple, easily comprehended form unusual in a scientific writer. It is a notable contribution.

There could be no more fascinating reading than Walter Wellman's account of his preparation for a voyage to the Pole in a flying machine to be made in July. Wellman's article is printed in McClure's for June and July. It catches the imagination like a dream of the far distant future. Just conceive it—a vast cigar-shaped balloon, nearly two hundred feet long, whizzing through the air, suspended from it by threads that look finer than spun silk, is a long steel car.

—The annual subscriptions for current expenses of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, received in reponse to the circular issued in March already amounts to $16,737, within about $1,000 of the exceptional sum contributed last year. The number of subscribers exceeds that of last year, but is still far from reflecting the growth of the city since the subscription began. The appeal is renewed for such an increase in the subscription as will forestall this year the use of Museum capital in its maintenance—in 1905 about $20,000, and in 1906 nearly $5,000, under unusual conditions of economy. The support of this institution by private generosity alone, is the surprise of those who visit it from abroad, and should be a source of pride to every Bostonian.

—The graduates of the Braintree High school Wednesday evening were: Agnes T. Baldwin, Gladys W. Bean, Ernest W. Clark, Alice M. Fiske, James V. Gallivan, Lillian B. Hill, Olive A. Robinson, Katherine A. Schraut, May Stevens, Harlow Welch, Henry A. White, Mildred A. Whitmarsh and Alton P. Wood.

—Save the broken lens; we can match it. We grind them at 1473 Hancock st., Quincy. You may watch the operation. Williams. Tel. 279-3.

The Social Realm

A bird sang sweet and strong
In the top of the highest tree;
He sang, "I pour out my soul in song
For the summer that soon shall be."
But deep in the shady wood
Another bird sang, "I pour
My soul on the solemn solitude
For the spring that returns no more."
—George William Curtis.

NO DOUBT

Fore River Co Of This City Will Build Big Battleship

The fate of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy, Mass., as to securing the contract for one of the proposed two new 20,000-ton battleships is hanging in the balance, says a Washington dispatch of Friday to the Herald.

The question whether the Newport News Company can build a ship for the surprisingly low figure of $3,985,000, the question whether one of the vessels shall be built at the Brooklyn navy yard and a diffenence of opinion between Secretary Metcalf the President and the board of construction, are giving the navy department some concern.

Secretary Metcalf today had a conference with his bureau chiefs, and later with representatives of the Fore River and Newport News companies. These two lowest bidders gave renewed assurance of their ability to build the ships.

Recently strong representations have been made to the President by Represntative Waldo of New York and others to have one of the ships built at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and the President ordered a thorough inquiry. Congress fixed a limit of $6,000,000 for the hull and equipment of each vessel. Government constructors estimate that the Brooklyn Navy Yard could do the work for $5,500,000, but the Fore River bid is nearly a million less than this.

If the Newport News Company should receive one contract, and the other vessel goes to the Brooklyn navy yard. Fore River would fail to secure a contract which would mean good work and wages for the employes of the concern near Boston.

Secretary Metcalf will leave for California Saturday and will probably award the contracts before his departure.

He has also taken up the question of submarines. There is said to have been a difference of opinion between the experts conducting the recent tests at Newport, and the secretary has found it difficult to decide which type, the Lake, Holland or Subsurface, shall be adopted. He had a conference today with Siman Lake, but no statement regarding it was made.

A representative of the Daily Ledger finds no cause for doubt at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. Officials of the company say they have assurances that one of the big battleships will be built in Quincy, and the fact that President Bowles returned yesterday from Washington, would seem to verify this. The contract will be signed as soon as the papers can be prepared.

Further, there is a probability that the Fore River Company will supply Curtis turbine engines for both the battleships. The Quincy company also expects contracts for a fleet of submarine boats.

Mulligan Arrested.

Arthur B. Mulligan, whom the Quincy police have been trying to locate for some time, was captured by Officers Larkin and Matthews at Harrison Square at 10.30 this morning. He was placed under arrest for the Quincy officers by an officer of Station 11.

The specific charge upon which he was arrested was breaking and entering. The Quincy police have three warrants, however, against him. Mulligan is as slippery as an eel, for on several occasions when the officers thought they had him he was not there.

He could not keep away from Quincy, however, and would turn up here occasionally. A few days ago the police learned that he was in the vicinity of Johnson's lumber wharf. Officers were hurried there, but when they arrived Mulligan had gone.

Seats for Smokers.

The introduction of the new semi-convertible cars on various lines of the Old Colony street railway has led to some confession as to the rights of the smokers on these cars. In this respect an attempt has been made by the company to treat all its passengers fairly as possible. With this in view it has been decided, and orders have been so issued that smoking be allowed in the seats in the rear of the cross seats in these cars when the car is open only, or in other words when the sashes are thrown up.

IT WAS ACCIDENTAL

Claim of Haywood's Counsel Regarding Vindicator Explosion

GIANT POWDER WAS REMOVED

Witness Declares That It Is a "Reasonable Inference" That It Was Taken by Two Officials Who Were Blown Up--What Orchard Said

Boise, Ida., June 29.—Attorneys for William D. Haywood, charged with killing former Governor Steunenberg, continued their efforts for the discrediting of Harry Orchard and the establishment of their assertion that Orchard killed Steunenberg in revenge for the loss of his interest in the Hercules mine. They directly attacked the Vindicator mine explosion with the testimony of a witness that made it appear accidental rather than criminal.

Thomas Wood, a non-unionist, who entered the Vindicator mine as a timber man after the strike began, swore that the night before the explosion he placed a box containing 25 pounds of giant powder at the shaft of the eighth level. He saw the powder the next morning shortly after 10 o'clock and a few minutes later Superintendent McCormick and Foreman Beck came to the eighth level. They remained but a short time and left to go to the sixth level, where they were killed. Wood swore that when he reached the shaft 20 minutes later the powder was gone, and it was a reasonable inference that McCormick and Beck took it with them.

Wood testified that he had seen a revolver in Beck's pocket; that the fragments of one revolver was found in the sixth level, and that the bodies of McCormick and Beck were blown apart, indicating that the explosion had occurred between them. Orchard said that he fixed a revolver with a wire attachment so that when the safety bar was raised it would send a bullet into the giant powder he had placed. One witness for the state has sworn that he later found a wire attached to the safety bar, but Wood said that he carefully examined the safety bar and found nothing attached to it.

William Easterly and C. D. Copley both swore that they heard Orchard tell of the loss of the Hercules mine and threats to kill Steunenberg for it. On cross-examination the state scored Easterly and Copley for remaining quiet when they knew a crime might be committed. Easterly contended that he did not know Steunenberg lived at Caldwell and explained that, although he knew "Thomas Hogan" was Harry Orchard, he took no steps immediately after the crime except to consult counsel for the federation, because he was not an informer. Copley asserted that he did not take Orchard seriously when they met in San Francisco and Orchard told him of the Bradley crime.

The effort of the defense to open the way for a showing of a general conspiracy, extending over many states, on the part of the mine owners to crush out the Western Federation of Miners, has now become one of the interesting features of the trial. The state is resisting this earnestly. So far, Judge Wood has ruled that evidence showing a conspiracy in Idaho and Colorado will be admitted on the promise that the defense will connect this later with their line of defense.

But the defense has not given up their effort to widen the field. Clarence Darrow, who is conducting the defense, asserts positively that he proposes to go, directly, if possible, into the conspiracy of the mine owners, and claims, if he succeeds in broadening the scope, he will be able to prove that a widespread conspiracy exists.

The state insists that the defense must lay its foundations for the proof of a general conspiracy in the same way as was done by their witness, Orchard, and that separate cases do not suffice.

Darrow says that he can bring the Pinkerton agency in as one of the chiefs in this conspiracy and claims to have witnesses here who will fully support his charges. The counter conspiracy and not the discrediting of Orchard has now come to the forefront.

Cruising Off New England

New York, June 29.—The United States midshipmen's practice squadron, comprising the cruiser Olympia and the monitors Arkansas, Florida and Nevada, sailed from here for New London, Conn., where headquarters will be established for the summer. Cruises along the New England coast will take place until August, when the squadron will proceed to Annapolis.

Fine Weather Improves Business

New York, June 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that improvement has become more pronounced in distribution of seasonable merchandise. Weather conditions have again both favored trade and agriculture, rapid development of the crops being potent for good in commercial departments.

Had No Faith In Physicians

New York, June 29.—Clarence W. Byrne, a salesman, was pronounced guilty of failing to call a physician to attend his 6-year-old daughter, Violet, during her fatal illness. Byrne calls himself a "healer." He will be sentenced on July 12.

Great Fight Looked For

San Francisco, June 29.—Interest in the Squires-Burns heavyweight contest for the world's championship was increased yesterday when Burns arrived at Oakland. The American champion will work in public up to two days before the fight. Many followers of pugilism have visited Squires, and the consensus is that the fighter from Australia has not been over-rated. The fighters are to enter the ring at Colma, a suburb, July 4. If either is not ready to answer the gong at 2 p. m. he will forfeit $5000.

Courteous Acts of Brazilians

Rio De Janeiro, June 29.—The officers of the United States cruiser St. Louis were entertained by the Naval club of this city on the summit of Mount Corcovado, which arises to a height of 2000 feet just outside of this city. Admiral Maurity gave a toast to the health of President Roosevelt and to the American navy, which was responded to by Commander Usher of the St. Louis. All Brazilian warships now anchored in the harbor will dress suit on July 4 in honor of the presence of the American cruiser.

Mayors Will Remain on Strike

Argelliers, France, June 29.—At a meeting of 1500 delegates of federal committees here, it was voted that the present attitude of the mayors in the south should be maintained. The meeting drew up minimum demands to be made to the government, which include more stringent measures for the prevention of fraud in the making of wine and a higher tax on sugar.

Paris, June 29.—The senate yesterday passed the wine fraud bill.

American Proposition May Win

The Hague, June 29.—Friday's sitting of the first commission of the peace conference afforded an opportunity for Joseph H. Choate to deliver a long speech, upholding the principle of the exemption of all private property, except contraband, from capture on the high sea. The impression is that the American proposition, which in the conference of 1899 was only taken in for consideration, this time will be unanimously approved.

Ecuador Has a Fresh Revolution

Guayaquil, Ecuador, June 29.—The revolution, which was supposed to be dead, has broken out afresh, and a new rebel band appeared at Quevedo, an important centre among the cocoa plantations, and occupied the village and burned it. The government officials fled at the approach of the rebels.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The project for holding an international exposition in Berlin during 1913, in celebration of the 25th anniversary of Emperor William's accession to the throne, was finally killed at a meeting of the Berlin Chamber of Commerce.

Inhabitants of the province of Esmeraldas, Ecuador, are panic-stricken as the result of frequent earthquake shocks felt throughout the province during the past week.

The inquiry into the case of Colonel Ayres, Fourteenth cavalry, in connection with his comments on army justice, has been turned over to Colonel Galbraith.

The railroad shops and roundhouse of the Central New England railroad at Hartford were burned to the ground, causing damage of about $75,000. It is supposed that the fire was due to a short circuited wire.

PERILOUS TO THE NAVY

Peoria Manufacturer Considers Powder Reserve a Menace.

WARSHIPS EVER IN DANGER.

R. S. Waddell Tells the President of Smokeless Powder's Tendency to Explode—Urges Federal Plants to Save Money and Lives as Well.

In an open letter recently mailed to President Roosevelt, the secretary of war and the secretary of navy, R. S. Waddell, president of a powder company of Peoria, Ill., makes some startling declarations concerning the smokeless powder supply of the army and navy, alleging not only that millions of dollars are being wasted by the government, but that every warship in the navy is in constant danger of annihilation because of the tendency of smokeless powder to explode from spontaneous combustion when the product gets old, says a Peoria special dispatch to the Chicago Record-Herald.

He urges that government powder factories are an imperative necessity, and in support of his contentions against the present system presents an array of facts and figures based on reports of official investigations showing that the powder deteriorates with age and a reserve stock not only becomes worthless, but a menace.

About a year ago the government decided that, on account of delays of manufacture—it takes six months to dry smokeless powder for use—and the limited number of factories, to accumulate a large reserve stock in the government magazines and aboard the battleships. The reserve supply was fixed at approximately 30,000,000 pounds, and about one-fourth of this quantity, according to Mr. Waddell, is now on hand. At the present price, 60 cents a pound, paid by the government to the private enterprise which holds the contract, the 30,000,000 pounds will cost $20,000,000.

The consumption of powder in target practice by the army and navy, Mr. Waddell says, is about 1,500,000 pounds a year, and at this ratio if the oldest powder is used from the stock on hand the supply would be completely renewed once in twenty years, and thus the average age of all the powder would be twenty years, provided no war ensues and the powder does not explode from spontaneous combustion.

Mr. Waddell asserts that, according to official reports, the Japanese battleship Mikasa, Admiral Togo's flagship, was exploded and sunk, with heavy loss of life, by the spontaneous combustion of old smokeless powder in its magazines and that the loss of the French battleship Iena, which exploded at Toulon two months ago, with a loss of 117 lives, was due to the same cause.

He also submits in connection with his claim that all the chemical compounds known as smokeless powders are subject to constant change, deterioration and spontaneous explosions by changes in temperature and other climatic conditions, the report of members of the ordnance research committee of Great Britain bearing out his assertions by actual tests. He then asks:

"Will the administration await the almost certain explosion of one or more American battleships or magazines, with consequent casualties, or profit by the wisdom and experience of other first class naval authorities and the opinion of experts?

"Is it not manifestly unwise and unsafe to continue the present policy of creating a large reserve of powder that is sure to deteriorate and render the gunnery defective if no fatalities result? Of this the probabilities are against the government."

He argues that should it be resolved by the government to change the policy and maintain a reserve of, say, 6,000,000 pounds, renewable in four years, largely increased facilities for rapid manufacture must be provided, and no private industry would expend the vast sums necessary in plants to remain idle awaiting the indefinite contingency of a war to operate them.

Mr. Waddell maintains that the navy and war department plants can now produce sufficient powder for current use, but that in the event of war one first class battleship could use up in thirty minutes double the amount that all the privately owned plants can produce in twenty-four hours. In case of actual war, he says, more than twenty times the capacity of the present commercial plants would be required to provide fresh powder, and in time of peace it is folly to continue to manufacture and store an article that would be found worthless in emergency.

Mr. Waddell in conclusion advocates the establishment of government factories, which could lie idle in times of peace, except for keeping up an ordinary reserve. The cost he estimates at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 and the expense of care and maintenance slight and holds that even the interest and depreciation on this investment by the government would not equal the interest on over $20,000,000 invested in reserve powder under the present system, which, he says, will in all probability net a total loss and leave the navy and the nation helpless in time of peril.

Record Breaking In Shoveling.

Lem Smith of Alba, Mo., in the Joplin (Mo.) mining district, has set at rest all the traditional shoveling records by filling 303 cans of dirt and rock in eight hours, says a Joplin dispatch. Each can weighed 850 pounds. Smith earned in wages that day $12.12 and won a prize of $50 for the record he made.

A Pool In Matrimony.

[Original.]

"My dear marquis, we can't all marry this splendid fortune, with an American girl for an incumbrance, and none of us has the means to court her properly. You, having her acquaintance and being the son of a duke, have the best chance. Now, I propose that we make up a pool to be yours for the purposes of courtship and to be returned to us with, say, 100 per cent interest after marriage."

The arrival of Molly Flick, the daughter of the head of the firm of Flick & Co., one of the largest American meat concerns, was known twelve hours after it occurred to every impecunious noble fortune hunter in Paris. The remarks quoted were the result of a dispute between several of them as to who should have a free field to win the prize. The proposition was accepted by the Marquis of Courtemache and the rest of the company. Not more than 1,200 francs could be raised by the subscription, but this was handed over to the marquis, who called that very evening on Miss Flick and began to lay siege to her heart.

"How do, marquis?" she exclaimed. "Awful glad to see you!"

"I came, mademoiselle, to ask your mother and yourself to go with me to the opera."

"Mother! Goody gracious, marquis! Do you suppose I have my mother traipsing around after me? No, sir! I'll go to the opera with you, but no mother for me."

"But, mademoiselle, in Paris that would occasion remark."

"Oh, that's it! Very well, we'll take mother. Will you go, mammy?"

"I suppose I'll have to."

The young man proceeded methodically. During this his first call he told Miss Molly of his ancient lineage, winding up with a decription of the chateau of the Courtemaches, built several centuries ago and now a ruin. Then, heaving a deep sigh, he said he would love to repair and live in it. Miss Molly listened attentively and asked what it would cost. The marquis replied that it would require 5,000,000 francs, or a million of dollars, whereupon the girl remarked that if that was all she wondered why he didn't make them at once.

The marquis after his visit met his friends at the club and reported progress. For a month he devoted himself to the heiress. He not only accompanied her on her sightseeing tours to Versailles, Fontainebleau, Sevres and other curious points in the environs of Paris, but secured for her and her mother invitations to the best houses in Paris.

But at the end of the month Gaston one morning awoke to find in his vest pocket but a single napoleon of the money furnished him. It was necessary that he bring matters to a head. Half the napoleon he spent for candy and the other half for flowers. These he sent Miss Flick during the day. It occurred to him to save a few francs for a breakfast the morning after his proposal, but if he succeeded in winning the heiress he could make a further loan from his friends, and he was sure of winning.

About 9 o'clock in the evening he went to the hotel where the Flicks sojourned and sent up his card. While waiting he paced back and forth in a terrible suspense. It seemed an age till he was summoned, though it was only ten minutes. Ushered into the apartment used for a reception room, he saw standing on a table the flowers he had sent and the box of candy. The box was empty.

"Come in here, marquis!" called the cheery voice of Miss Molly.

With visions of a private boudoir dancing in his head, Gaston entered the next room. He saw no one there.

"Why don't you come in?" came a voice from an adjoining room.

The marquis did as he had been bidden. Still he saw no one.

"This room," presently came the voice.

"Oh, mademoiselle, what is this pretty game you are playing? Where are you? Do you call to me from heaven?"

"I hope not. I don't want to go to heaven just yet. I'm in here."

Again the marquis entered another room, only to be led farther. Indeed, the rooms all communicated, and the girl led him in a circle till he stood again where he had started, in the reception room. He was very much chagrined at being forced to play this juvenile game for the amusement of Miss Flick, but he remembered that she was barely eighteen, and, if no French girl would have done the same, there was no French girl with an enormous fortune that he could marry. So he kept his temper and wore a perpetual smile, thinking that after all it was very droll.

"You're getting warm," came the girl's voice as he went hunting through the room.

"Very warm."

"Baking hot."

He went to a curtain hanging before a recess. He knew Miss Flick was behind it. How strange these Americans! He pulled aside the curtain and started back. A young man was with the girl.

"Game's up!" cried Molly. "Marquis, this is George Trimmingham, just come over to join us. He brought me this." And on the third finger of her left hand she displayed a ring. "The marquis has been awful nice to me, George; took me to the opera and lots of places. You'll show George around, won't you? He doesn't know anything about Paris. That's a dear old marquis."

The next morning Gaston went without his breakfast, and pool stock stood at zero. LOUISE C. FARRELL.

HAD A BUSY SESSION

Bay State Legislature of 1907 Established a Record

SOME INTERESTING POINTS

Anti-Monopoly Bill Killed Just Before Prorogation--Over Seven Hundred Acts and Resolves Signed by Governor--Last Day's Legislation

Boston, June 29.—With the record of having enacted more laws than any previous Massachusetts legislature, the 1907 legislative body was prorogued late last night by Governor Guild, the house ending its work with a mock session, while the senate combined the killing of the anti-monopoly bill, 14 to 23, and the presentation of gifts to the chief officials of the senate.

The disposal of the anti-monopoly bill came in the form of a report from the second conference committee, which reported that it was unable to agree, and a third conference committee being sought was voted down by the senate, allowing the bill to fall between the branches.

The 1907 legislature has been in session 178 days, the exact duration of its predecessor. There have been 587 acts and 133 resolves signed by the governor, and six acts and two resolves vetoed and all vetoes sustained. This is in comparison with 536 acts and 133 resolves enacted by the preceding legislature.

The principle bills passed during the session were the anti-shoe machinery bill, understood to be aimed at the United Shoe Machinery company; the anti-merger bill, aimed against the consolidation of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and Boston and Maine railroad systems, and the anti-bucket shop bill, by which the bucket shops of the state were legislated out of existence.

Other important measures passed were: The overtime bill, which forbids women and children to work in the cotton mills at night; the jury reform bill, which ensures more care in making up of jury lists; the industrial insurance bill, which gives savings banks the right to insurance counters, and inheritance tax, which imposes a tax upon direct inheritances passing through the probate court.

The principal bills which failed of passage were the public opinion bill and the anti-monopoly bill, the former referring to the placing of referendum questions on the state ballot, and the latter said to be aimed more especially against the Standard Oil company.

Other measures which failed were: The Sunday law bill, intended to permit a wider range of Sunday recreations; the veterans gratuity bill, giving a gratuity to veterans who never received a bounty; vetoed by Governor Guild and for the first time in its history blocked in the house.

The anti-merger bill, so called, was signed by Governor Guild last night, and the pen with which the governor affixed his signature was presented to Representative Vittum of Beverly.

The house yesterday sustained Governor Guild's vetoes of the resolves to pay W. F. Willis and J. G. Warren, veterans of the Civil war, a gratuity of $125 each. The vote on the Willis resolve was 80 in favor of passing it over the governor's veto to 100 against. That on the Warren resolve was 75 yes and 98 no—not the necessary two-thirds in either case.

The revised and recodified insurance law bill was passed to be enacted in the house at the forenoon session, and later in the senate.

Governor Guild yesterday signed the resolve to provide for a revison of the laws relative to taxation. He also affixed his signature to these bills: To provide for an east and west subway in Boston (the Riverbank subway); for the laying out and construction as a state highway of Washington street in West Roxbury; relative to the tax commissioner; hours of labor for laborers, workmen and mechanics.

Bond Bidders Are Shy

New York, June 29.—An attempt to dispose of $29,000,000 New York City 4 percent bonds, for which bids had been offered for several days, has proved a failure. When the bids were opened it was found that only $2,500,000 of the bonds had been subscribed for. There were 57 bids, all for small amounts, at prices ranging from 100 to 100.25. The remaining $26,500,000 will be readvertised. The bonds, with the exception of $2,000,000, are to run 50 years.

Coming For Naval Information

New York, June 29.—Admiral Yamamoto and five other officers of the Japanese navy will arrive in New York from Europe on July 8 for the purpose of studying the latest naval improvements, with a view of introducing some of them in Japanese navy yards. The commission has been in Europe for several months.

Three Men Lower Auto Records

St. Paul, June 29.—Three men broke the world's record for 25 miles for touring cars under the prevailing conditions at Hamline track. The time for the 25 miles was: Eddie Bald, 30:28; E. Simpson, 31:50; Winston, 31:58.

CLEMENCEAU TRUMPHS

Stems a Strong Tide and Receives Great Vote of Confidence

Paris, June 29.—The chamber of deputies last night, by a decisive majority of 120, after an exciting eight-hour debate, voted confidence in the government's policy to ensure respect for the law. Premier Clemenceau's victory was more decisive than his most ardent friends had looked for. During the session the extreme Socialists, who directed the attack on the government, put forward speaker after speaker from the south, but notwithstanding the savage blows they struck, they proved to be no match for Clemenceau, who is past grand master in parliamentary debate.

The premier based his defense of the government's use of force upon the ground that the situation in the south, with 200 municipalities striking and their population refusing to pay taxes, could not be tolerated. With consummate skill he replied to the reproaches that he had become reactionary by recalling the long years during which he had fought in the ranks against oppression and injustice and referring to the time when, as mayor of Montmartre under the commune, he almost sacrificed his life in endeavoring to save French officers from a mob.

After Clemenceau had concluded M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, attempted to turn the tide, but it was too late to make any impression, and by a succession of votes the cabinet was sustained.

Liquor Men Charge Oppression

Havana, June 29.—The union liquor manufacturers of Cuba, with one exception, have voted to close their factories July 3, alleging that it is impossible to continue operations owing to vexatious and oppressive fines for violations of the law imposed by the chief of the excise department. This action is important, as the loan of $35,000,000 to pay the army of revolution is based on the special tax on manufactured liquors, cigars and matches. Of this special tax the liquor dealers pay $1,500,000 annually.

Dominie Keller Resigns

Newark, N. J., June 29.—Rev. John Keller has tendered to Bishop Lines his resignation as rector of Trinity Episcopal church of Arlington, to take effect July 1. Keller has been with the Arlington church since 1886. Several years ago he was shot by Thomas G. Barker, a member of his congregation, following accusations made against Keller by Barker's wife. Keller lost the sight of one eye through his injuries. Barker received a prison sentence, but was later paroled.

Subpoenas For Standard Oil Men

New York, June 29.—Subpoenas requiring the presence of John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, H. H. Rogers, J. R. Archbold and a number of other officers of the Standard Oil company to testify as witnesses before the federal court of Chicago on July 6 have been received by Marshal Henkel. The marshal personally served the subpoenas upon four of the men who are in this city.

Ice Consumers May Suffer

New York, June 29.—The American Ice company will attempt today to break the strike of the 2000 drivers who quit work yesterday, following a demand for an increase in the wages of helpers. One half of the usual number of teams will be started out if the company's plans are successful. Should they fail the situation from the consumers' standpoint will be serious.

No Kick From Canal Zone

Washington, June 29.—"It is a tissue of falsehoods," said Secretary Taft when his attention was called to the reports of dissatisfaction on the part of the administration with the management of affairs under the isthmian canal commission, and of the intention of the officers engaged in that work to relinquish it and return to the United States.

American Schooner Forfeited

Halifax, June 29.—Orders have been issued by the admiralty court for the dismantling of the Boston fishing schooner Fannie B. Prescott, recently seized off the Nova Scotia coast for alleged fishing inside the three-mile limit. The marshal of the court had the work of dismantling begun at once.

Shortage of Over $150,000

Minneapolis, June 29.—James V. Barnes, former president of the Title Insurance Trust company of this city, now defunct, was arrested on a bench warrant charging him with embezzlement from the company. There is a shortage of over $150,000 on the company's books.

Russo-Italian Commerce Treaty

Rome, June 29.—It is officially announced that the Russo-Italian commercial treaty was signed in St. Petersburg yesterday afternoon. It is to be in effect for 10 years. The terms of the treaty will not be disclosed at the present time.

Digging Out Culebra Cut

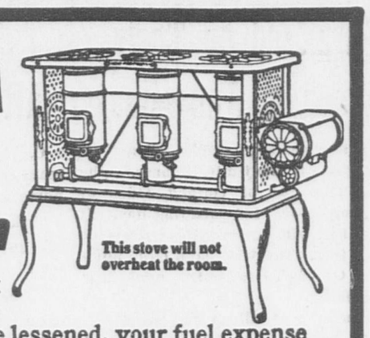

Colon, June 29.—Despite the loss in time occasioned by the strike of steam shovel men in May and the heavy rainfall, the earth taken from the Culebra cut during the last month exceeded 500,000 cubic yards.

Also a Gentleman

By LESLIE STEWART.

Copyright, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

When Miss Irene Jackson left Columbus, O., to pay a visit to her aunt at Hastings, N. Y., her mother gave her many warnings. She was to look out for collisions. She was to beware of open switches. She was to hold no converse with either young or old men. She was to hang on to her purse. She was to regard any woman who might address her as an adventuress.

All but one of these instructions were carefully followed by the nineteen-year-old girl. She was somewhat surprised and a good deal delighted to find herself in New York city at last, and she bravely followed the crowd on to the ferryboat and landed at the foot of Thirty-fourth street. There she took a cab for the Grand Central depot. It was only when she got out that she found her purse was missing. She remembered that some one had crowded her as she got off the ferryboat, but that bit of news didn't affect the hackman at all. He was a married man with a family of seven, and he had to assist in supporting five different saloons, so he wanted cash on the nail. There were tears, but they didn't move him. He had often seen them at home when he had reeled in on Saturday night without a cent in his pocket.

Miss Jackson couldn't pay the cabman, and she couldn't buy a ticket to Hastings, and for ten minutes she felt as helpless as a child. She was about to give the cabman a diamond ring as security when a young man of twenty-five stepped into the breach. He had the long hair that some professional men affect, and he had the rusty clothes that other professional men affect; but, as for his heart, that apparently was pure gold. He stepped forward, paid the cabman and told him to be gone. The cabman smiled and winked and drove away. Then the young man introduced himself as Professor Nordenfelt of Columbia college, professor of languages. He asked the inestimable privilege of buying a ticket to Hastings for the young lady. He asked it because some one had rescued his sister from just such a position in Chicago a few days before.

As soon as the young man announced that he was a professor Miss Jackson drew a long breath of relief. She had met but few professors in her life, but she knew them to be all right. Like a sensible girl, she leaned on this one. She wasn't even surprised when he said that he was on his way up to Irvington and would take charge of her as far as Hastings. She might have opened her eyes had she seen him pay for both tickets out of her lost purse, and she might have been most unhappy had she known that he had her diamond brooch in view, but as it was she felt nothing but glad relief.

They sat together on the train. Miss Jackson told the professor all about Columbus, and he told her all about Columbia. He spoke seven different languages and was learning seven others. The girl had always heard that professors were profound, absent-minded and tactiturn, but she did not find this one so. He had given her an address so that she might return the money he had loaned her.

When Hastings was reached, her gratitude became profound. She insisted that he stop over one train and allow her aunt to thank him. He smiled in a curious way, thought over it for a moment and then accepted the invitation.

The aunt was no spring chicken, and she was puzzled over the professor. At first she set him down as a confidence man, but his knowledge of Columbia college and the seven languages upset this theory. His manners were good, and his conversation confirmed his assertions. He was finally accepted, repaid the loan and invited to call again. The police will never be able to satisfactorily explain to themselves why Jimmy the Kid, as his photograph in the rogues' gallery was labeled, should have made a second and a third visit to the house on the Hudson. It couldn't have been from a spirit of bravado, for Jimmy was sly. He couldn't have been "hit," for he was the one who had robbed the girl on the ferryboat and was still making use of her money.

For his second call Jimmy had dressed up a bit. It helped him in one way and damaged him in another. He didn't look so much like a professor in his better suit, but it did help his looks as a caller. He was still interesting, too, and an hour passed away. When he had departed and the women had criticised him favorably, the aunt said to Irene:

"A professor of languages must get a big salary in a college."

"Surely he must."

"He must be received in the best of society."

"Of course."

"And he is probably rich."

"I don't doubt it."

"Irene, wouldn't it be funny, wouldn't it be odd, wouldn't it be romantic, if something were to come of this?"

"What kind of something, aunt?" asked the girl, without blushing. There was a man in Columbus. To be sure he was not a professor, but—

Jimmy's third appearance was his last. He announced that he had mastered one more language and would soon be ready to tackle the ninth. He said something about his having helped to raise $50,000 to erect a new department at the university, and he mentioned that he had received an autograph letter from King Edward. These things were not stated in a boastful way. They simply crept in incidentally. It could not be said that Jimmy was seeking to make an impression, but he made one for all that, and a favorable one too. The only slip he made—and that was not noticed until afterward—was in referring to his travels. For a Columbia college professor, engaged in teaching languages for six hours a day, he had gone around the country at lightning speed. He had also made some acquaintances that do not fall in the way of the ordinary professor. He knew Detective Johnson and Captain Flynt and the police commissioner, and because of his knowing them he had a surprise on hand.

There was something dramatic in the way Jimmie fished up Miss Jackson's lost purse and restored it to her. It created a sensation. Assisted by the detective, the captain and the commissioner, he had run down the desperate criminal and forced him to disgorge. The lost money was there to a cent. No, thanks! It was only his way—only an incident in his study of languages. He was about ready to take his leave, but had been urged to call at his convenience in future, when young Tom Blynn, who was in a city real estate office, but living in Hastings, and an acquaintance of the aunt, called on a matter of business.

He had barely been introduced to "Professor Nordenfelt of Columbia college, professor of languages," when the ladies noticed that Tom stared and the professor changed color. It seemed plain that both had met before. Tom's stare became a scowl. With a gesture, oddly appealing, the other man stopped him and said to the ladies:

"I have waited until the last moment to tell you that this may be my last call here. The university has decided to send me to the island of Samalong to study the very peculiar language of its people, and I expect to be gone a year or more. Miss Jackson, if I have been of the slightest service to you I am extremely pleased. Mrs. Harper, you have made my calls very pleasant and agreeable, and I thank you."

As he bowed his way out he was followed by Tom Blynn, whose face wore a very determined look. Jimmie slipped his arm through the other's, and when they were hidden by the shrubbery he squared off and said:

"Well, I am caught with the goods on."

"Yes, you got my watch a month ago on a Twenty-third street car. I had my hands on you, but you got away."

"Here is the ticker. It cost me $3 to have it cleaned and put in good running order. I hope you have not been greatly inconvenienced."

"What are you doing here at Mrs. Harper's?"

"Recalling old times, when I was a gentleman. I seldom get a chance to do it. 'Professor Nordenfelt of Columbia college' isn't so bad, is it? Sounds much, more 'genteel than Jimmy the Kid."

"Is this to be your last call here?"

"Positively the last, and I see no reason why you should give me away. Let it go as it is. I've been a gentleman again for a few days, and I don't believe the women in there would thank you for showing me up."

"Professor, I bid you godspeed on your way to Samalong," replied Tom as he raised his hat and extended his hand, and thus they parted.

At the house the two women were very curious and asked many questions, but Tom would not give them much information beyond saying that it was just as well that the professor was going away. An hour later, after she had had time to think things over, Mrs. Harper felt that she had got pretty near the truth, but she sighed as she said to Miss Irene:

"Poor professor! He was such an entertaining gentleman!"

Language of Umbrellas.

There is a language of umbrellas as of flowers. For instance, place your umbrella in a rack and it will often indicate that it will change owners.

To open it quickly in the street means that somebody's eye is going to be in danger.

To shut it quickly signifies that a hat or two will probably be knocked off.

An umbrella carried over a woman, the man getting nothing but the drippings of the rain, signifies courtship.

When a man has the umbrella and the woman the drippings it indicates marriage.

To swing your umbrella over your shoulder signifies "I am making a nuisance of myself."

To put an alpaca umbrella by the side of a silk one signifies "Exchange is no robbery."

To lend an umbrella indicates "I am a fool."

To return an umbrella means—well, never mind what it means. Nobody ever does that.—Spare Moments.

Funny Rebellions.

A rebellion in China, as a rule, is a comparatively harmless affair, says the Times of India. The people inform the governor that his exactions are in excess of custom and that he must reduce them. If he agrees the matter ends. If not, there is a demonstration and perhaps some shooting, but this is only preliminary to a compromise, for the Peking government never backs up its officials when force has to be resorted to, and the people have far too much respect for authority to push any successes to extremes. The troops boast of the numbers of the enemy they have killed, but the fighting does not often amount to very much. A typical story is told of the taotai of a city which shall be nameless who claimed to have put down a rebellion, but explained when pressed for particulars that it had not been necessary to fight since by happy inspiration he had shaken out a tiger skin, which had so frightened the insurgents that they had all run away.

Find Much of Interest Here

The Old South Historical society were in Quincy this morning on their twelfth annual pilgrimage. The party, which numbers 135 ladies and gentlemen, is in charge of George G. Wolkins, chairman of the pilgrimage committee.

It was while on their pilgrimage a year ago that Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy suggested a visit to Quincy, as it was a city rich with places of historical interest. It was in response to this suggestion that Quincy was included this year.

The party left Boston in special cars attached to the 8.27 train. Leaving the cars at Quincy Adams they walked through Presidents avenue to the birthplaces of President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams.

There the party divided, some going into the John Adams house and some into the John Quincy Adams house. At the former, which is in charge of the Quincy Historical society, James Rideout, the custodian, Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morton and John J. Loud and Miss Loud were on hand to show the party through the rooms.

At the other house controlled by the Daughter of Revolution, Mrs. E. G. Pratt, the historian of the society, was on hand to pilot the party. There is much of interest in both houses to see and there were many expressions of pleasure.

It was then suggested that the Abigail Adams Cairn be visited, and quite a number of the younger members of the party climbed Penns hill, and enjoyed the magnificent view.

At 10.30 special cars were taken for the Dorothy Q house. When City Square was reached the cars were stopped for a few minutes while Dr. Hardy called attention to the First church and the sarcophagi under the steps, and to the old cemetery.

At 11.45 the cars were again boarded and the party left for Hingham, where they visited the old meeting house and were addressed by Hon. John D. Long. At 6.40 they return to Boston by boat from Nantasket.

Attractions at Flag Festival

Thirty of the Boys' Brigade at Atlantic have entered for the athletic sports on the Adams Academy grounds, next Tuesday, July 2, to take place between six and seven.

"Charlie" Howard, John Wilson and Alden Blanchard are arranging a series of sports to be held early in the afternoon, and many of the young people who have taken prizes at the picnics will contest in the various races.

There will be sack race, potato race, three-legged race, dashes, etc., in two classes, below 12 years and between 12 and 16. All boys are asked to enter and ribbons will be given to winners. Entries may be made on Tuesday at grounds or to Mr. Stanley Duncan or Alden Blanchard.

PEACE CONFERENCE

Far Reaching Agreement Signed By Granite Workers And Manufacturers

One of the most important meetings ever held in the interest of the labor situation in this country took place yesterday, says the Globe, when sub-committees of the national association of the granite industries of the United States and the executive council of the Granite Cutters' international association of America met to consider a plan whereby lockouts, strikes or other labor difficulties might be done away with as far as possible in the granite industry of the United States.

The Granite cutters' international association was represented by Thomas Johnstone, Alex Cowe, A. C. Smith and James Duncan, international secretary of the association. The national association of the granite industries of the United States was represented by C. Harry Rogers of Rockport, Mass., Alfred O. Diack of this city; William S. Alexander of Barre, Vt.; and James Gourlay, of Westerly, R. I.

At this meeting, which had been arranged some time ago, the committees signed an aggreement "with the subject in view of encouraging settlements of contentions, new or old, in a pacific manner, and of reducing strikes, lockouts or suspensions of work as nearly as possible to a minimum," and the following resolves were submitted to both associations for official action:

"1. That nothing hereinafter contained shall be construed to supplant or annul adjustment clauses in Agreements.

"2. That this plan is not by evasive or dilatory acts, to be made to apply to petty disputes which could be settled locally, and is to be used only when the ordinary local methods have failed, and when desired by both parties to the contention.

"3. That it is the intent of this document that when disputes arise which can be settled through local adjustment committees, or as herein set forth, neither strike, lockout, nor other suspension of work shall occur pending efforts of settlement.

"4. That when contentions arise in localities where agreements exist between members of the national association of the granite industries of the United States, and branches of the granite cutters' international association of America, and where efforts, as per the adjustment clauses of local agreements have failed, and where the parties to a dispute have voluntarily sought this plan of settlement, the dispute shall be referrd to a joint council of three members of the executive officers of both associations to which council all points in dispute shall be submitted, either in document form, or by not more than three members representing each of the two sides in dispute; or, the joint council may, with said committee of three, form a board of conciliation, and the decision in either event shall be binding on both parties.

"5. That local committees meet within a week after three months' notice of change of an agreement has been given, and points in dispute are not to be sent to the joint council before the 10th of the third month after notice of change, so that local parties shall make all possible effort at settlement before reference of a contention to the joint council.

"6. That when either party to a contention believes the time has arrived to use this plan, said party shall notify its general secretary to that effect, who shall immediately notify the secretary of the request, and who, in turn, unless he has been similarly notified, shall convey the request to the other party to the dispute, and when both parties favor this form of settlement the secretaries at the earliest possible date shall arrange a joint meeting for that purpose.

"7. This agreement to take effect on adoption and remain in effect for one year; if any change is desired, three months' notice to be given previous to date of expiration by party desiring change; if no change is desired it to remain in effect from year to year."

Surprised on Their Wedding Anniversary

Eighteen years ago today was an important one to Benjamin Johnson, the genial treasurer of Quincy lodge of Elks, for it was his wedding day. It was to help him observe the anniversary of this important date that a large number of Quincy lodge called upon him last evening.

Cards sent to all of the members, except Ben, had put them wise that there would be something doing. The members assembled at the rooms on Foster street, and at 8 o'clock they walked in upon Ben at his home on School street.

Although taken by surprise a hearty welcome was extended, and all were bidden to make themselves at home.

Surprise number two came a little later when Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were called into the dining room to look upon an elegant gold and white dinner set of Havalin china, comprising 112 pieces.

This Exalted ruler, D. J. Deasy, informed them, in a few brief words, that the dishes were for them, and were given as a slight taken of the regard in which Ben was held by his brother Elks, and to remind him that his work for the welfare and upbuilding of the lodge was appreciated.

Since the institution of the lodge he had been one of the hardest workers for its success and it was due in a great measure to him that it stood where it did today.

In reply Mr. Johnson said that he fully appreciated the gift. All that he had done for the lodge he would do again, and that he should not relax his efforts. Words to exactly express his feelings were lacking and the only thing that he was sorry for, was that he did not know they were coming, that he might have been able to receive them differently.

An hour or two of sociability followed, during which there was vocal music by those present, and piano selections by Prof. Fouche, E. E. Miller and others. A buffet lunch was served during the evening.

Tidbits from All Wards of City

C. W. Guy, the veteran furniture man, is quite seriously ill at his home on Butler road.

Today is the first day since June 15 that Quincy has had temperature below 80 at noon.

Uncle Sam expects every one in town to call on him next Tuesday. He will receive at the Flag Festival from ten in the morning until ten at night; Adams Academy grounds Hancock street, corner of Dimmock.

Everett, the rival city of Quincy, had two less High school graduates than Quincy, a total of 88. It should be remembered also that Quincy has two other secondary schools, the Woodward Institute and the Adams Academy.

The London Morning Post says of Rafael Navas, the Spanish pianist to appear in Quincy Point next Monday: His programmes, devoted as they are to modern music, and consisting chiefly of examples of the Russian, French and Spanish schools, are interesting to a degree. Here is something unconventional for which to be thankful."

Bethany Picnic Largely Attended

The Sunday school of the Bethany church had a pleasant morning for its annual picnic, and thus are assured a grand good time. The outing is held this year at New Downer Landing where there are many amusements.

The children began to gather in City Square with their baskets and boxes containing lunch, as early as 9 o'clock, although the hour for the start was not until 10.15. At that time there were upwards of 200 in waiting, and they completely filled the three special cars provided.

This was merely the advance guard, for the grove is so easy of access that many of the older ones will go down during the afternoon. Numerous sports have been arranged and if the participants do not have a grand outing it will be no fault of those having the affair in charge.

All Quincy Point Goes to Germantown

The Sunday school of the Washington Street Congregational church of Quincy Point is holding its annual picnic today at Germantown and a good time is anticipated. A dozen or more boats were on hand early this morning to ferry the picnickers across the river.

This in itself proved quite an innovation, and it goes without saying that those in charge of the boats were kept busy all the morning.

During the day there was a series of sports for boys and girls and for the older people including a red hot game of ball between the married and single men and other games.

The Union veteran firemen have decided not to participate in the firemen's muster at Everett next Thursday.

Rev. E. N. Hardy, pastor of Bethany church, Quincy, will preach on Sunday morning at Union church in exchange with the pastor, Rev. R. H. Cochrane.

There were 95 pupils graduated from the Braintree grammar schools. About 80 of them will enter the high school. How many will complete the four years course?

New A. O. H. Hall Finely Appointed

The new building of Division 5, A. O. H., on Franklin street, is practically completed and ready for occupancy. No date has been set for the dedication of the building, although the Division will meet in the new lodge room in the building for the first time in July.

The building which is of wood has a frontage on Franklin street of 42 feet, and a depth of 70 feet. In addition to this there is an L on the south side, 13 by 18 feet, in which is located the entrance to the public hall on the second floor. On the north side there is also an L, 9 by 19, in which is located a stairway leading to the stage on the upper floor as well as an entrance to the main lodge room.

The cellar has a concrete floor and plastered walls. Here is located the heating apparatus as well as cellar rooms for the two stores. There is also a large room 32 by 42 which will eventually be used for a gymnasium.

The main entrance on the street floor leads into a large vestibule with glass doors. From this vestibule entrance is had to a committee room on the right, and to a system of toilet rooms on the left. At the rear of this vestibule are large double doors leading to the lodge room which is 42 by 36 feet. At the rear is a large ventilating shaft, which not only ventilates the room but is so supplied with steam pipes that it will carry off foul air as well as smoke, if at any time a smoke talk should be held.

At the right of the main entrance are two stores, each of which is 16 feet wide and 24 feet deep. Both of these stores have been let and will be opened the first of the month. One as a variety store and the other as a barbor shop.

The whole upper floor is given up to a public hall, whose dimensions are 42 by 50 feet giving a seating capactiy of 400. At the easterly end is a stage, 26 feet wide and 14 feet deep, with dressing rooms on either side. On the westerly or Franklin street end is a gallery arranged with steps having a seating capacity of 200. This gallery is 42 feet wide and 18 feet deep. Beneath the gallery are ladies' and gentlemens' rooms fitted with toilets. There is also a ticket office and cloak checking room.

The hall is finished in Georgia pine with maple floors. The trusses, which are exposed to view, are of hard pine. They are thus placed to overcome the echo and the acoustic properties are said to be the best of any hall in the city. As stated elsewhere the main entrance to the hall is by a broad stairway located in the L on the southerly side of the main building.

The building which is an ornament to the city is from plans made by W. R. Lofgren, who was also the builder.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

SPAIN'S BABY PRINCE.

Prenatal Gift of Tiny Automobile Awaited King Alfonso's Son.

Everything was ready for the eagerly awaited event which has given an heir to the Spanish throne, says the Philadelphia North American.

Even the rooms in the royal palace at Madrid which the infant will use had been arranged and furnished. The rooms for the royal babe are situated immediately above the private apartments of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria Eugenie. With these apartments they communicate by way of a small staircase. The rooms are a night nursery, a day nursery, a dining room and a bathroom.

The pope has blessed the beautiful and costly layette, which was made by the most skillful nuns in Rome, and Queen Victoria herself chose a magnificent satin pillow of pale rose color on which the baby was laid when formally presented to the court.

All the convents in Madrid, too, had been hard at work preparing dainty, diminutive garments. Six dozen chemisettes, exquisitely embroidered and trimmed with valenciennes lace, were made by the Sisters of Mercy, while the Sisters of the Sacred Heart contributed eight dozen dresses, all trimmed with the same costly lace.

The honor of providing the cradle linen belongs to the convent of St. Catharine, King Alfonso himself having designed the monogram used. Honiton is Queen Victoria's favorite lace, though she is very fond of valenciennes. The royal baby's robes are, one and all, trimmed with gorgeous lace flounces as well as exquisite embroideries, while the cot is a mass of filmy lace.

The finest old Brussels lace, which has been worn by more than one royal bride as a portion of her wedding train, will form its curtains.

Before his birth even the heir was presented with a miniature motor car by a firm to whom King Alfonso recently gave an order for a car of his own.

A London society woman made the christening cap, which is in enamel work.

BRAVE WOMAN'S WILD RIDE.

Mounts Unbroken Colt and Flags Train Nearing Burning Bridge.

Alone on her farm and unable without assistance to extinguish the flames of a burning bridge, Dora Jasper mounted an unbroken colt and rode three miles over hills and gullies to warn the crew of the fast mail train that but for her warning would have crashed through the burned trestle, says a Memphis (Tenn.) special dispatch to the New York Times.

Mrs. Jasper's farm is near Eureka Springs, Ark., on the Missouri and North Arkansas railway. When Mrs. Jasper first noticed that the trestle bridge over a branch of White river had been fired by the sparks of a passing freight she attempted single handed to put out the blaze. Finding this impossible, she ran to her barn. Every animal and every saddle and bridle was in use with the sole exception of a wild, unbroken colt and one rope halter.

Bareback and halter bridled, Mrs. Jasper rode at racing speed to the switch, which she reached in time to flag the train. Besides the train crew and fully 100 passengers, a high official of the road was on the train.

His first order was for the finest side saddle to be obtained, with a suitable inscription stamped on the flap, to commemorate her bravery.

BISMARCK A FINE CAT.

A Terror to Tramps Who Invade the Zimmerer Farm.

Jacob Zimmerer, a farmer near Brookdale, N. J., is the owner of a remarkable cat, says a special to the New York Times. Bismarck, in addition to keeping the farmhouse free of rats, is a terror to hoboes who come to the village and annoy the farmers and their wives.

If Mr. Zimmerer happens to be absent, all his wife has to do is to call Bismarck, point her finger, and the cat will do the rest. The cat will leap on the shoulder of the intruder and claw at his head and face until the tramp is glad to escape.

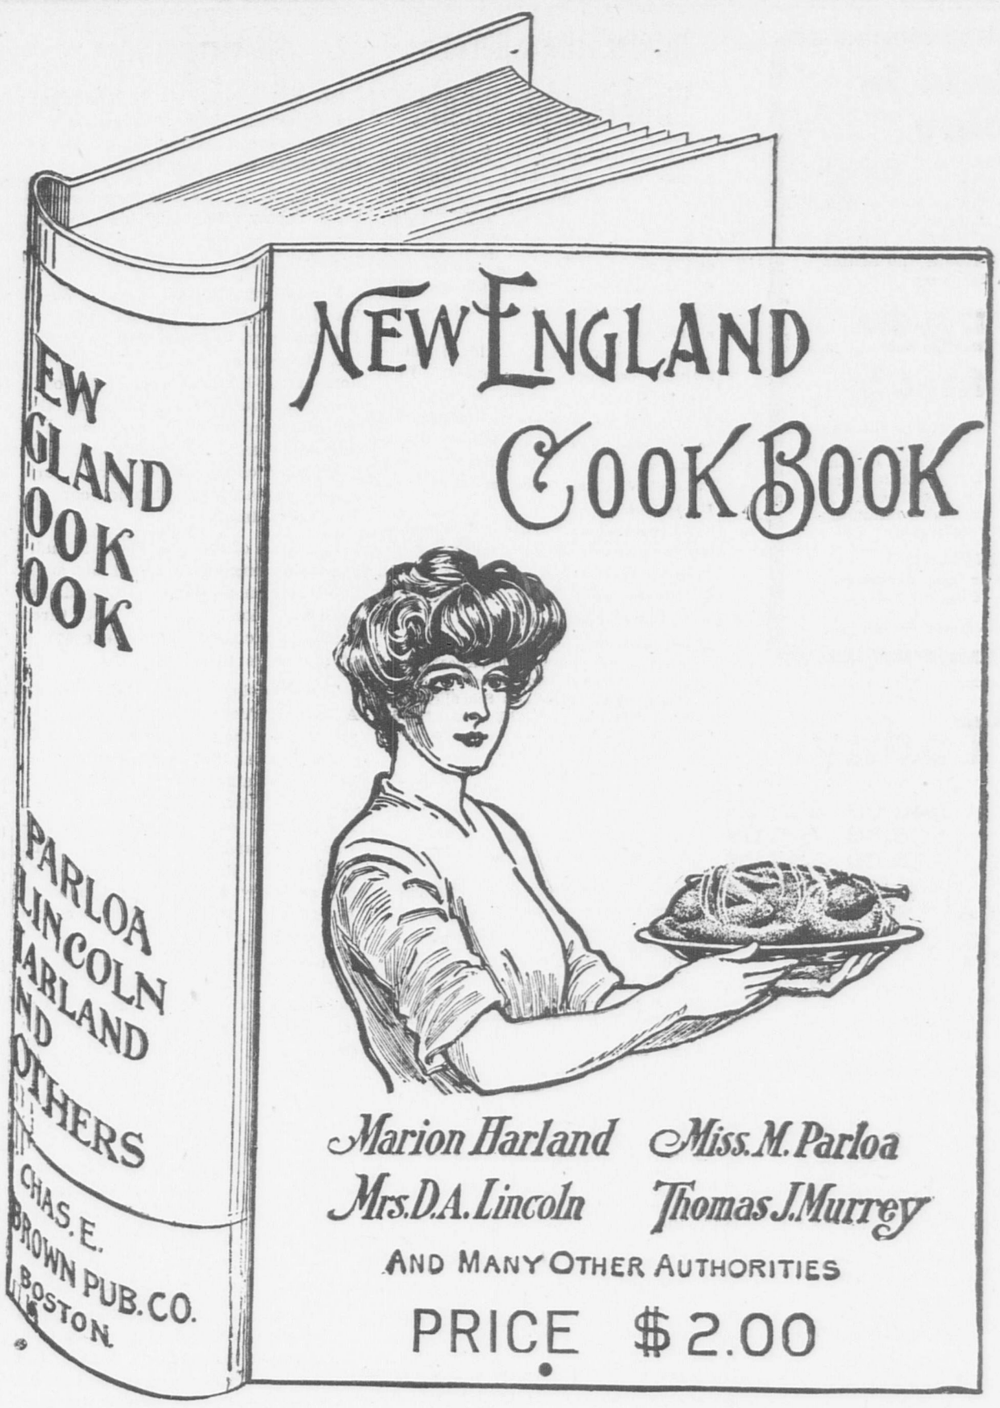

Bismarck's favorite drink it buttermilk. Instead of licking his paws and then rubbing them over his face and head, he walks to a pan of water placed at one side of the room by his mistress every morning and will there wash his face and paws.

New Cable to the Balearic Islands.

The Spanish government recently laid a submarine cable from Barcelona to Palma de Mallorca, in the Balearic islands. The cable is 117 miles long and was put down by a London company in less than two days, says the New York Sun. The contract price, $145,995, will be paid by the Spanish government. The line has long been needed for commercial purposes. Barcelona is the chief commercial metropolis of Spain, with a population of about 700,000, and Palma de Mallorca is the principal city of the Balearic islands, with 70,000 population, and is the seat of considerable industry.

North Pole as an Auto Station.

No less than six automobiles, patterned after the euphoniously named Long Island scooter, are said to be building for various arctic explorers, who will use them in attempts to reach the pole during the summer of 1908, says the New York World. Two of them are under construction for Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, who once accompanied Peary, and a third is for Anthony Fiala of Ziegler expedition fame, while the remainder are for other expeditions.

A JUDGE AS MASTER

Latest Action In Suit of the "Next Friends" of Mrs. Eddy

TO DETERMINE COMPETENCY

Court Wants to Know If Head of Christian Science Church Was Capable of Intelligently Managing Her Affairs--No Intervention

Concord, N. H., June 29.—Judge Aldrich of Littleton was appointed master to determine the competency of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy by Judge Chamberlin of the superior court late yesterday. Chamberlin filed the appointment with the clerk of the superior court of Merrimack county, the master being named in connection with the suit brought by Mrs. Eddy's son, George W. Glover, and others, as "next friends," for an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property.

The master is directed to ascertain, determine and report the fact whether Mrs. Eddy was capable of intelligently managing, controlling and conducting her financial affairs and property interests, on the first day of March, 1907, and during such time before that date as may to the master seem reasonable. No limitations are made as to the evidence to be introduced.

The master is directed to make and file his report with the clerk of the court on or before Sept. 30, 1907. He may conduct his inquiry in the courthouse at Concord or in such other reasonable places as he may see fit. He is given authority to certify to the court contempt of any party for neglecting or refusing to appear and testify or to produce books and papers or to answer questions.

The motion of counsel for Mrs. Eddy, made on June 5, for an immediate investigation of facts connected with the case, is denied, except insofar as it is granted by this appointment of a master.

On the motion of counsel for the trustees appointed by Mrs. Eddy to manage her property that the reasons be given in writing for the court's decision against their petition for leave to intervene as plaintiffs in the suit brought by the "next friends," Judge Chamberlin says that the deed of trust given by Mrs. Eddy did not give the trustees a legal right to intervene, and that he found on the facts submitted that justice did not require such intervention.

Judge Aldrich is judge of the United States court for the district of New Hampshire. He is at present at his home in Littleton.

The original bill in the Eddy suit filed by the "next friends" of Mrs. Eddy charges:

First—Mental incapacity.

Second—A combination to seclude Mrs. Eddy and manage her property.

Third—Misappropriation of her property.

When Judge Chamberlin decided adversely on the petition to intervene, brought by the trustees to whom Mrs. Eddy turned over her property, he announced, after denying other dilatory motions, that the next thing to be done was to take up the first charge under the Eddy bill, "mental incapacity." To determine this Aldrich is appointed master.

Strike Endangers People's Lives

New York, June 29.—Believing that the health of the city was menaced by the continuation of the strike of 2000 drivers, Mayor McClellan went over the head of Commissioner of Street Cleaning Craven and placed the responsibility for the collection of garbage with the health department. The health people are making heroic efforts to re-establish sanitary conditions against a possible epidemic.

St. Petersburg, June 29.—The Novoe Vremya announces that the government has decided to distribute this summer 25,000,000 acres of crown, state and peasants' bank lands in average lots of 25 acres to individual peasant settlers on easy payment terms. This decision carries out the policy to create small farms the length and breadth of the country.

SOCIAL VALUE OF GRINS

Chicago Instructor Says Laughter Makes People Congenial.

CURE FOR SOCIAL DISCORD.

Declares Many Are Cured of Their Peculiarities by Ridicule—Man or Woman, Lacking the Comic Spirit, He Claims, Has No Place In Society.

It's laughter that makes everybody a respecter of the fashion plate; it's laughter that punishes people out of their faults; it's laughter that cures idiosyncracies; it's laughter that kills social discord and enables society to exist happily. The man or woman without the comic spirit has no place in society.

These are some of the things that Professor W. D. MacClintock told the members of the Cook County Teachers' association the other day, says the Chicago Tribune. He told the teachers to encourage the development of the sense of humor in the young. He classified laughter, dissected it and then enumerated its uses. Professor MacClintock's subject was "The Newer Conceptions of the Nature and the Functions of the Comic Spirit."

"The comic spirit is a growth of civilization," he said. "It is the natural product of the intelligent mind. It is something which has been manufactured or affected. It is natural to children. It is a part of their inheritance.

"Three great attempts have been made to explain laughter. One of the explanations is that it is due to a feeling of superiority over others, another that it is due to the incongruity of things that happen when least expected. The physiological explanation is that laughter marks the relief of the mind from tension."

Professor MacClintock then gave the different "levels of laughter," as follows:

First.—Gladsome laughter, such as the laughter of children in the enjoyment of their games and sports.

Second.—Social laughter, which compels others to be in the social group and to observe the prevailing styles and customs.

Third.—Laughter produced by humor, which is sympathetic—so sympathetic that you may laugh at your friends and still love them.

Fourth.—Laughter produced by wit.

Fifth.—Laughter produced by nonsense, the deliberate and artistic breaking of the law of congruity for the sake of fun.

The most important use of laughter, Professor MacClintock declared, is its use as a cure for social discord. Another important function of laughter is the correction of personal faults. The fear of ridicule compels folks to respect the styles and customs of society. Laughter is also of great value in getting rid of social folly, he said, and for promoting good feeling and entertainment.

FOREST FOR A RAILROAD.

The Pennsylvania to Set Out 2,250,000 Trees For Ties.

It was learned recently that the Pennsylvania Railroad company, impressed with the necessity of providing a future source of supply for the 5,000,000 railroad ties used annually on its system, was about to undertake what is said to be the most extensive private forest planting on record and that altogether 2,250,000 red oak, Scotch pine, chestnut, locust and catalpa trees would be set out by the company's agents this spring, says the New York Tribune. The total area to be planted, it was said, was about a thousand acres at Mount Union, Altoona and Hollidaysburg, Pa.

In explanation it was said that ties had been getting scarcer and more expensive every year and that the company thought it best to insure itself a proper supply, say, in twenty years, when it was expected that some of the trees would be large enough to cut for ties. The Scotch pine and red oak trees will not be suitable for cutting for about thirty or forty years, but they are said to make the best ties.

Bell From the Maine.

Some of the metal rescued from the old battleship Maine in Havana harbor, which is now at the navy yard in Brooklyn, will be turned over to the Virginia authorities for use in casting a bell, which it is designed shall surmount the Virginia building at the Jamestown exposition, says the Boston Herald. The navy department recently received a request for about 2,000 pounds of historic metal for this purpose, and the bureau of ordnance has reported that it will be possible to obtain 3,500 pounds of old material from the Brooklyn navy yard, but on account of its source would hardly be sold as are other condemned materials. Steps will be taken to turn the metal over to the Virginians for the use they desire to make of it.

A School For Pulpit Orators.

St. Louis church congregations may look out in the near future for much better preaching from an oratorical standpoint, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It has been decided by some of the more progressive of the young ministers that they need to renew their youth and gifts of speech by taking lessons in elocution and voice culture. For this purpose Professor George M. Sleeth of Allegheny, Pa., who is elocution teacher at three theological seminaries, those of the Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and Reformed Presbyterian churches, has been engaged to come to St. Louis the second week in June to instruct a class during the summer vacation.

TRAIN STRUCK CARRIAGE

Woman and Horse Killed and Man and Woman Badly Hurt

Danbury, Conn., June 29.—Mrs. A. C. Seely, aged 60, was killed outright, while two of her companions, Mrs. George Decker and Howard S. Hoyt, were badly injured when an express train struck the carriage containing them as it was crossing the railroad tracks at Bethel last night. A fourth occupant of the carriage, Mrs. E. B. Rosevear, jumped as the engine struck the equipage and escaped injury. All the members of the party were from this city.

The moment the engine struck the carriage the horses were killed and caught up by the pilot, where they remained until taken off. The carriage was thrown up against the baggage car and wrecked.

The gateman, it is said, was about to lower the gate at the crossing when the carriage was driven on the tracks, but it is believed that Hoyt saw neither the gateman nor was aware that a train was approaching, the buildings near the crossing preventing a view up and down the track.

The party had been out for an afternoon's drive and were on their way back to this city when the accident occurred. The coroner will investigate.

Daylight Robber In Custody

Boston, June 29.—Dora Goldbert, the young woman who was held up and robbed of $800 in cash on Harrison avenue Monday noon, has identified Charles J. Whalen as her assailant. Whalen was also identified by Samuel Berkwitch, who witnessed the robbery and claims to have been assaulted by the man. Whalen, who was arrested, is a bookkeeper employed by a railroad company. He refused to tell of his whereabouts at the time of the robbery.

Results of Postponed Races

New London, Conn., June 29.—Rallying desperately toward the finish, the Yale freshman oarsmen came close to defeating the Harvard freshman eight on the Thames. The Eli spurt came too late, and Harvard finished just a length in the lead in the slow time of 11:15. Kennedy's slow stroke prevailed for the undoing of the Crimson four-oared crew in its race against the Yale four, for the Elis crossed the finish line 15 lengths to the fore in 12:33.

Killed as Result of Gallantry

Boston, June 29.—John O'Brien saw two men accost a girl in an insulting manner on a street and going to her assistance was so badly pummeled by the two young men that he had to be taken to a hospital, where he died last night of his injuries. The young men who were arrested and charged with assault and battery at the time gave the names of Jeremiah Curley, and Michael T. Monohan. The charge will probably be changed to manslaughter

Fatal Dose of "Medicine"

Boston, June 29.—Miss Mary Smith, aged 35, employed as a housekeeper, met a sudden death last night as a result of being given what is supposed to have been bromide of potassium in mistake for medicine. Miss Smith was not feeling well when a boarder at the house offered to go to a nearby drug store and secure medicine for her. Miss Smith took the medicine brought her and died with an hour. No arrests have been made.

Electric Car Kills Girl

Boston, June 29.—A Bay View car swung down Leverett street just in time to hit Annie Cohen, 9 years of age, living at No. 78. The accident happened in front of No. 91, and when the child was picked up it was found that she had sustained a fracture of the skull and that her left leg was crushed. An ambulance bore the girl to a hospital, where she died. Motorman McLaughrey was taken in custody by the police.

Papermakers' Strike Endorsed

Northampton, Mass., June 29.—A vote to endorse the strike of 600 papermakers and workers at Bellows Falls, Vt., was passed by the International Brotherhood of Papermakers. The members of the joint conference committee having in charge the proposed merger with the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers reported that there was no chance of the union being effected.

Death Instead of Wedding

Boston, June 29.—Miss Grace McDonald, aged 26, of Gardiner, Me., died at the Charles street jail last night, where she was under arrest and pending trial for misdemeanors. She was to have been married to Walter Tooler, aged 29, of this city, who took out a license Thursday.

Passenger Train Derailed

Waterville, Me., June 29.—The tender and four cars of a passenger train were derailed at a curve here and the roadbed was torn up for some distance. The cars remained right side up, and although the passengers were severely shaken up, no person was injured.

Complaint of Labor Men

Washington, June 29.—President Roosevelt has transmitted to Commissioner of Corporations Smith the telegram from the Central Labor union of this city, requesting him to have an inquiry made into the alleged violation of the anti-trust act by the telegraph companies.

Charged With Accepting Bribes

San Francisco, June 29.—Eugene A. Schmitz was arraigned before Judge Dunne yesterday on two indictments charging the acceptance of bribes in connection with municipal ordinances. July 3 was set for the pleadings.

Quincy Forming Franco-American Democratic Campaign Club

IN THE INTEREST OF WHITNEY

E. W. Thomson of Ottawa and His Reciprocity Campaign—John B. Moran and the District Attorney Nomination

The political waters are being agitated by an attempt on the part of friends of Henry M. Whitney of Brookline to organize a Franco-American Democratic club in this state.

The active man behind this movement is Josiah Quincy, a former mayor of Boston and a subterranean politician of greater or less astuteness

Mr. Quincy has had several experiences along the line of controlling French votes in this state. He was the leading figure in an effort, some 15 years ago, to corral the French vote and tie it to the Democratic kite as an appropriate and picturesque tail.

He was also the head and front of a movement to establish a French newspaper of Democratic proclivities, and in this enterprise he was assisted by one Lenthier. Mr. Quincy cannot be characterized as an unqualified success in the newspaper field, notwithstanding the fact that he is more or less of a romancer and extremely fertile as an inventor of issues.

Some of the French Canadian voters, who have had an eye on this movement of Mr. Quincy's, see in it merely an opportunity for Mr. Whitney to spend some money in furnishing employment to Democrats of the French Canadian race who are willing to go around the state and manufacture enthusiasm for his boom. Undoubtedly a considerable majority of the French voters are Republican. There is, of course, in some of the cities a preponderance of Democratic voters in the French population, but taking the state as a whole, it is believed that nearly two-thirds of the voters of this descent are Republicans.

Franco-Americans and Democracy

The experience of the Franco-Americans with the Democratic party has not been such as to win them over to its ardent support. The Democracy in Massachusetts has never had any great use for the Franco-American vote, except at election time. After the elections were over and the victory won, other elements of the party have divided the spoils among themselves to the exclusion of the French vote.

Probably some of the people of the state have noticed within the last few days that E. W. Thomson, the Ottawa newspaper correspondent, is in town, sounding the tocsin for reciprocity.

There is something peculiar about this fact, and considerable surprise has been manifested, as Mr. Thomson, in many newspaper articles in the past, has deprecated the idea that Canada was in favor of any reciprocity agreement with the United States, and threw cold water on the entire scheme.

The sudden change of front of Mr. Thomson has set people to wondering what has changed the spirit of his dream. As a matter of fact, Mr. Thomson resided in this section of the country for some time, a few years ago, while he was connected with a Boston publication, but a few years ago he returned to Canada, which is his native land. Now he is in the city again and it is said that he is working in the interest of Henry M. Whitney and his reciprocity campaign.

Whitney Stumps State

Mr. Whitney, himself, is on the stump in various parts of the commonwealth, and, as a matter of fact, his campaign is well under way. There was a time when a large interest in reciprocity was taken in this commonwealth. Those who ought to be in a position to know doubt very much if there is at the present moment any large public sentiment favoring free trade between the dominion and this country. It is beginning to be apparent to everybody that the aim of Democrats like Mr. Whitney is not so much reciprocity as it is free trade, not only with Canada, but with the rest of the world. Some of the reciprocity people in the Democratic camp do not hesitate to say quietly that it is not reciprocity which the Democracy desires so much as a general breaking down of the protective tariff system which has made the country prosperous beyond the dreams of those who framed the Dingley act. The party hardly dares make the campaign on the issue which it really believes in and is, therefore, compelled to adopt reciprocity as a subterfuge by which to deceive the voters.

Those familiar with legislation as enacted at Washington are well aware that no section of the country can have high protection for its finished product and free trade in what it uses as raw material from the very fact that other states have something to say about the construction of tariff acts, and what is Massachusetts manufacturers' raw material is the finished product of some other industry and state.

Democratic Plottings

It has been the effort of Democrats for years to try and make Massachusetts citizens discontented with the party in power by claiming that it is not receiving all which belongs to it as a manufacturing state. They have tried to make it appear that what Massachusetts needs for its continued prosperity and growth is protection for its finished products and free trade with the rest of the world in raw materials. It ought to be patent to the dullest intelligence that no state can expect any such program in a union of states where one section produces raw materials and another section produces finished manufactures.

A protective tariff is supposed to be for the benefit of all sections of the country and not for one section alone. The Democrats are well aware that if their scheme of dividing the protective tariff people into opposing factional camps should be successful the protective tariff would fail by reason of this very division among its friends. Consequently, the Democratic plan is ingenious, but ought to be ineffectual, in a commonwealth where intelligence is presumed to govern the voters.

There is no reason for opposing Canadian reciprocity if it is modeled on lines favorable to the United States as well as to Canada. The reciprocity desired by the Democratic party, however, is utterly heedless and regardless of real American interests. Their only aim is to befog the minds of the voters and secure a reciprocity only in natural products or any plan which will help to weaken the protective tariff policy of the country.

Moran and Fitzgerald

It is getting close to the time when work will be lively in Suffolk county over the district attorney nomination. The Democratic party does not propose to renominate John B. Moran for that office, but Mr. Moran intends to be in the field and to secure a nomination from some source, if from no other than that of the Independence League. Mayor Fitzgerald does not design that Moran shall have another term if he can help it. He is as strenuous in his antagonism to Moran as he is to the Independence League. He would like to wipe both of them out of existence, but each of them is liable to keep him busy for the next few months. There is no reason why Moran should be renominated by any party, for he has apparently only sought to bring himself prominently before the public during his term of office and his sensational methods have marked him as spectacular, but ineffectual. He has done very little that will be remembered beyond the tenure of his office.

CARD GAMES.

The Earliest Played In England Were Imported From Spain.

Spain is generally believed to have sent us our first card games. "El hombre," or "the man," corrupted by us into "ombre," was probably our earliest card game in England, and that must have come from Spain. Also the oldest packs of cards found in England show Spanish symbols, such as cupus, maces and swords. Another popular English card game in the sixteenth century was trump, clearly a form of the Spanish game triumfo.

Cards could be bought in 1545 for twopence a pack. These were very wretched specimens and most inferior to those produced by the Cardmakers' company of London, in which Charles I. created a monopoly, with the financial genius of his race, by buying them up cheap and selling them at a high price. In this he was a more open rogue perhaps than his father, who forbade card playing in Scotland and indulged in it himself at every opportunity.

Cards have always been a royal game. Queen Elizabeth played cards and lost her temper over them frequently. She was no Anne of Austria, to play "like a queen without passion of greed or gain." In her reign was commanded to be played "at Wyndsore a Comedie or Morral devised on a game of the cardes," which resulted in the performance by the children of her majesty's chapel of "Alexander and Campaspe," in which the pretty lines occur:

Cupid and Campaspe played
At cards for kisses. Cupid paid.

LEARNING TO SHOOT.

A Simple Rifle Target and the Way to Practice.

The first moving target that I would recommend is one that is simplicity itself and yet, with the assistance of a gentle sloping hill and a friend to take turns with you, will be of great value and benefit. One of the most successful deer hunters I know trained this way, and you will readily see the good points of this practice on trial of it. Secure half a dozen barrel heads for your partner. Have him take a position at the top of the hill and roll these heads down the slope diagonally. At first it will be best to select a fairly smooth slope and have the targets rolled down at a medium rate. At fifty to seventy-five yards take your position, according to your gun and ammunition. If it is a 22, a somewhat smaller target might be used at a little shorter distance. At your signal one of these targets is started on its journeys. As it starts bring the gun to the shoulder, taking aim and swinging with the moving object. Always aim to hit the center of the object. You will find that the eye naturally seeks the center, just as it is nature for one to see the front sight through the center of the peep. Do not attempt to hold your gun at a point the target will pass and try to pull the trigger while it passes, but pull when the aim has been secured, just as when firing at a stationary object.—Outer's Book.

Significant Silence.

"What has become of your son, the young inventor, who used to advance such startling theories?" asked a friendly man of an old negro known to the Washington Star. "I never hear of him any more."

"No, sah," replied the shrewd father, "he's re'lly inventing something now."

The schools having closed Miss Carrie F. Parker is in Quincy for the summer.

Miss Katherine Freeman of Grand View avenue has gone to Wellfleet, for a few weeks' visit with relatives.

The Finnish band will add much to the pleasure of the Flag Festival, as they are to give their services during the evening.

Representative E. J. Sandberg has been appointed a member of the recess committee of the Legislature to visit the Jamestown Exposition.

Fred S. Crowell of Crescent street has returned from Hampton Centre, Me., where he has been on a visit to his mother, who although 89 years of age is very smart and enjoys good health.

The Universalist church after the services tomorrow will be closed for the summer vacation. Rev. Mr. Perkins invites all his parishoners to be present tomorrow as he will have something of special interest to say to them.

Miss Elsie Miner of Old Colony avenue, returned Friday from a visit in Brockton. While there Miss Miner was maid of honor at the wedding of a former schoolmate, Miss Berva Wash.

Be sure to visit the Japanese Tea booth at the Flag Festival. Under the big umbrella Mrs. Florence Peltier Pope with her Japanese maidens will serve tea and dainty sandwiches. There will also be some beautiful embroideries and linen work from a girls' school in Japan.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church of Milton will hold their annual lawn party on the church grounds Wednesday afternoon and evening of July 3. A lunch will be served from five o'clock until ten. The Boys' orchestra of Wollaston will furnish music during the evening.

Mr. Harper has decided to sell this house and has advertised it in this issue. It is a fine opportunity for some one to secure not only a home but a good investment as well, as the house is a double one and is already rented. The house was carefully built under the personal supervision of Architect Wright and has only been completed a few months.

Everyone is becoming interested in the Flag festival for the benefit of the Day Nursery and each day new features are added and contributions received. The Finn band are to give their services. "Preposterous to Call Mrs. Eddy Incompetent; Charges Are Vicious."

ARTHUR BRISBANE INTERVIEWS HEAD OF CHURCH.

Impartial light is thrown upon the Eddy case by Arthur Brisbane, who, at the request of the Cosmopolitan Magaine, interviewed the aged leader of Christian Scientists, at her home in Concord, N. H.

Mr. Brisbane passed an hour at the home of Mrs. Eddy. Mr. Brisbane's immediate report to the publication he represented upon the results of his visit to the home of Mrs. Eddy was as follows:

"I visited Mrs. Eddy as the representative of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, in accordance with the arrangement that you had made. I had a long and extremely interesting talk with her. I am glad to tell you that I shall be able to write the article which you ask for, and that it will be positively reassuring and comforting to Mrs. Eddy's home as follows:

"Those about her are devoted to her. She is in absolute control of her own movements, and mistress of her entire household. That is evident.

"Mrs. Eddy is thoroughly competent to take care of herself and her business. The suggestion that she should be deprived of her personal liberty, or of the property that she has earned, is preposterous and shameful.

Her Mental Vigor Unusual.

"For a woman of her age—she is eighty-six years old—her mental vigor and clearness of thought are most unusual. I had every opportunity of convincing myself thoroughly as to her metal and physical condition. She talks clearly, logically. She reads beautifully with a voice very musical and of great power. She understands business matters thoroughly. She speaks with intense feeling and gratitude of her friends and their devotion. To accuse those friends of conspiracy against her welfare is in my opinion disgraceful.

"I shall say at length that I feel most deeply, namely, that if Mrs. Eddy in her old age should be deprived by law of her fortune, of the right to dispose of it, or of the right to dispose of herself, the act would be outrageous. And it would cause just apprehension in the mind of any woman past three score and ten and possessed of property that might arouse the cupidity or the interest of outsiders.

Lives Under Ideal Conditions.

"Mrs. Eddy lives under ideal conditions of comfort, happiness and contentment. It would be sheer brutality on the part of so-called 'next friends' or any others to interfere with her life as it is today.

"Mrs. Eddy is well able to take care of herself. She understands the complicated details of her lawsuit, and of her very large religious following far better than the average woman of twenty-five could do.

"I questioned her in detail as to the lawsuit which seeks to deprive her of her property, and as to the deed of trust which she recently executed. These matters are clear in her mind.

"The charges against Mrs. Eddy are false in my opinion. But if all the charges made against her mental condition were true, that very truth would constitute an additional reason for leaving her as she is, in an ideally beautiful home, surrounded by good women devoted to her, to whom her wishes are law, in whom she has absolute confidence, and whose devotion makes her life happy.

Suit Stupid or Vicious.

"The effort to deprive Mrs. Eddy in her old age of her freedom of action, control of the property which she has accumulated, is stupid or vicious, and I say this as one having no interest whatever in Christian Science.

"To interfere with Mrs. Edd'y life, to take away from her her complete liberty of action, would be a shameful outrage, and I am convinced that no court will encourage the effort. I shall write you more fully before preparing the article that I have promised."

☞One of the features of the Day Nursery Flag Festival will be the Japanese pavilion where tea and sweets will be served by charming young women in fascinating Japanese garb. The management has been fortunate in securing some really unique teacups and saucers that will be sold with the tea. Attractive holders for the universally popular "joss sticks" will also be on sale. The pavilion itself will be most decorative in scheme.

Ideal weather contributed to make the lawn party at the Union Congregational church a successs yesterday afternoon and evening. The children running hither and thither on the lawn, the Japanese lanterns aglow with light, with the pretty church in the background, furnished a scene of surpassing beauty.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Henry E. Dixey will be a most welcome leading attraction at Keith's next week, for no actor is more popular in Boston than he, in fact Dixey seems to be the exception that proves the old saying: "A prophet is without honor in his own country." It will be an additional delight to know that he is to play one of his most congenial roles, David Garrick, in the classic one act comedy of the same name.

"Stop, Look and Listen" is the title of one of the most successful playlets of the season. It is the work of the well known author and editor. Matthew White, Jr., and is most ably played by Miss May Tully and company. It give Miss Tully excellent opportunity to introduce several of her capital imitations of stage favorites

Tremont Theatre.

"The Hurdy Gurdy Girl" is in its third week at the Tremont theatre, swinging into line with the summer show successes which have given this theatre its exceptional standing as a home of new productions. Richard Carle's newest venture has great capacity to amuse, has capital music, and is beautifully mounted. In fact, the costume display makes the show a positive delight for women, and cannot fail to appeal to less discerning man. Mr. Carle has invested his money handsomely and wisely, devoting part of it to the maintenance of a well balanced and experienced cast. These useful players are found in parts of nearly equal strength: Jaccues Kruger, Mrs. Annie Yeamans, Mme, Cottrelli, Mary Bolen, Mae Botti, Adele Rowland, the Constantine Sisters, Harry Stone, Walter Lawrence, Henry Norman, John E. Hazzard, Sylvain Langlois, Arthur Conrad and Tony Sullian. The well trained chorus of "The Spring Chicken" was transferred to this production, and counts heavily in the general success. Of the several song hits, the particular haunting melody goes with the song, "The Apple of My Eye."

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

During the coming week at the Castle Square Theatre, Planquette's popular opera. "The Chimes of Normandy" will be sung by the singers that have alredy completely established themselves in the esteem of Boston theatre-goers and music-lovers. Ever scince its original production in Paris nearly thirty years ago, "The Chimes of Normandy" or "Les Cloches de Corneville," as it is called in the original, has held a place in the front rank of light operas. It is a three act operetta, and its remantic story, its picturesque characters, and its tuneful music make it in every way brilliant and brightly attractive. In the part of Serpolette Miss Clara Lane and Miss Lois Ewell will alternate throughout the week, with George Tallman and Harry Davis sharing the role of Grericheux at alternate performances. Following "The Chimes of Normandy" at the Castle Square, during the week of July 8th, comes a grand revival of Verdi's opera, "Ill Trovatore."

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Geo. M. Cohan's latest play, "50 Miles From Boston," has settled down for a prosperous engagement at the Colonial theatre, where it has made an emphatic hit. Every one of the comedians engaged in this production are delightful, and their names stand for absolute worth in this particular branch of art and endeavor. Emma Janvier, that delicious humorist and artistic player, is inimitable as a gossip, patterned after the satire so much after the Janier heart. Her walk, costumes, expression and gestures are studies in broad caricature but kept cleverly within the scope of complete art. Fritz Williams, as Jed Woodis, is finding much favor in a capitally acted part, which is more virile and genuine and agreeably dramatic than he has ever been in serious roles. One of the most polished and graceful pieces of acting is that of George Parsons, a splendid young actor, who, as the accomplished and careless young liar and polite rascal the Brookfield "dude," Dave Harrigan, is foiled in everything he attempts in the play, but is a genuine hit with the audience. "50 Miles From Boston" is well staged, swift in action and altogether entertaining, and is undoubtedly the best show Cohan has given us since "45 Minutes From Broadway."
